The Syndicate Puts Up Again.

[illegible] gold reserve stood at [illegible] business Tuesday with the [illegible] and deposits taken into [illegible] $101,577,148. The withdrawals of gold reported to the treasury were: At New York, August 19th, $100,000; at New York, August 20th, $2,850,000; total, $2,950,000. There was deposited at New York during the day by the Belmont-Morgan syndicate $2,000,000 in gold.

The telegram announcing the withdrawals came from Assistant United States Treasurer Jordan and occasioned much speculation as to whether or not the syndicate would permit the gold reserve to fall below $100,000,000. Unless a deposit by the syndicate was made the withdrawals announced would carry it below the mark. About 3:45 o'clock a welcome telegram from Mr. Jordan stated that a deposit of $2,000,000 of gold coin had been made by the syndicate and the gold reserve was still intact. This was the third time that the syndicate had come to the rescue of the gold reserve within the past few weeks. In all it has deposited in excess of its bond stipulation $7,000,000 in gold coin, or nearly fourteen tons of the yellow metal. Since July 13th, when the present gold export movement began, the treasury has lost in gold coin taken for export $13,185,000.

CHINESE ENRAGED.

ANOTHER AMERICAN MISSION ATTACKED AT FUCHAU.

The People Parade the Streets Shouting "Drive Out the Foreign Devils."

Information has been received that a large mob of infuriated natives armed with weapons of every conceivable kind made an attempt a few days ago upon the American mission near Fuchau, China, and wrecked the chapel and school attached to the mission. Four native scholars attending the school were wounded, but the teacher, an American, succeeded in making his escape. The strong anti-foreign feeling which exists in Fuchau is spreading rapidly. The people parade the streets shouting "Drive out the foreign devils," and it is not safe for a foreigner to show himself.

The News Confirmed.

A dispatch to the London Times from Hong Kong confirms the dispatch announcing the attack upon the American mission near Fuchau and the critical situation there. According to the dispatch the American school was situated just outside of the west gate of Fuchau. The dispatch adds: "The situation at Ku Cheng is unchanged. Captain John S. Newell, of the United States crusier Detroit, and Dr. Hart have gone there. More anti-foreign placards and pamphlets are being distributed at Canton."

CONFLAGRATION IN MILWAUKEE

Six Blocks of Warehouses Destroyed by the Flames.

At 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon a serious fire broke out in the union steamboat dock and warehouse on the Menominee river at Milwaukee. The dock and warehouse are leased by the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway Company. The wind was blowing almost a gale and the fire spread to the Anchor warehouse and then to the freight houses of the company. The wind spread it rapidly to freight cars, loaded and empty, many of which were moved away by engines as soon as they could be reached. All the warehouses for six blocks along the west side of the river, which were mostly frame, were burned with contents, including much freight. Before 2 o'clock the fire was under control. The loss will foot up probably $300,000 to $500,000.

A boy named McManus was run over and killed by a coal supply wagon of the fire department during the progress of the fire.

SCALPER'S TICKET IS GOOD.

That is the Opinion of the Supreme Court of Georgia.

The supreme court of Georgia has rendered a decision that scalped tickets are legal. A year ago a man named Lovejoy bought a coupon good from Atlanta to Washington over the Richmond and Danville. The ticket was originally sold at Memphis by the Memphis and Birmingham. It was issued for the G. A. R. Encampment at Washington. The original purchaser sold it in Atlanta to a broker. Lovejoy admitted to the Richmond and Danville conductor that he had bought the unused coupon in Atlanta. He was put off the train and in his suit got a verdict for $150. The supreme court sustains the verdict.

RIOTERS BOUND OVER.

Prosecution of the Italians Taken Up at Princeton, Ill.

Twenty-five of the twenty-nine Spring Valley men arrested for participation in the mob that drove the colored people from their homes in Spring Valley, Ill., have been bound over by the court at Princeton to await the action of the grand jury, and of this number all but Paul Yerly and Desire Bovine, for whom bail was presented and accepted, were again committed to jail.

Agreement Signed.

An agreement has been signed at New York by representatives of the Macon & Northern Railroad bondholders and Messrs. Thomas and Ryan, under which the Macon & Northern will become a part of the reorganized Central Railroad & Banking Company of Georgia system.

More Spanish Troops for Cuba.

It is announced at Madrid that 25,000 fresh troops will embark for Cuba in November. Later dispatches from Havana confirm the report of the execution of the rebel chief Mujiga. He was shot at Matanzas on August 19th.

NEBRASKA ACTS.

THE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION ADOPTS A 16 TO 1 PLATFORM.

W. J. Bryan Leads the Party—State Officers Nominated.

The Nebraska democratic state convention assembled at Omaha Thursday elected for associate justice of the supreme court, Charles J. P. Phelps, of Colfax; for regents of the state university, A. T. Blackburn, of Holt county, and Robert Kottle, of Dade county.

A free coinage resolution, offered by ex-Congressman W. J. Bryan, chairman of the committee on resolutions, was adopted by an overwhelming majority, only six votes being cast against it.

The matter of resolutions caused a great deal of discussion. While all were in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of silver, there was a difference of opinion as to the way the silver plank should be worded. Half a dozen planks were formulated and all had strong supporters and just as strong opponents. All of them were based, or supposed to be, on the plank adopted at the democratic state convention last year, and there was a strong sentiment of simply adopting it over again.

The following plank, written by Mr. Bryan, was presented by the committee and adopted almost unanimously, a substitute embodying the coinage platform of the national democratic committee of 1892 receiving only six votes:

"We, the democrats of Nebraska, in convention assembled, reaffirm our faith in those principles written in the declaration of American independence, and emphasized by Jefferson and Jackson; namely, that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, among which are life, liberty and happiness; that governments are instituted among men to secure these rights, and that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed, and we demand that all of the departments of the government, legislative, executive and judicial, shall be administered in accordance with these principles.

"We reaffirm the declaration made by the last democratic state convention held in Nebraska, September 16, 1894. We believe that the restoration of the money of the constitution is now the paramount issue before the committee and insist that all parties shall plainly state their respective positions upon this question in order that the voters may intelligently express their preference.

"We, therefore, declare ourselves in favor of the immediate restoration of the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver at the present legal ratio of 16 to 1, as such coinage existed prior to 1873, without waiting for the aid or consent of any other nations, such gold and silver coin to be full legal tender for all debts, public and private.

"We send greetings to our democratic brethren throughout the union who are making such a gallant fight for the restoration of bimetallism and congratulate them upon the progress made.

"We deprecate and denounce as un-American and subversive of the principles of free government any attempt to control the action of policy of the political parties of this country by secret cabal or organization of any character, and warn the people against the danger to our institutions which lurks under any such secret organization, whether based on religious, political or other differences of opinion. Recognizing that the stability of our institutions must rest on the virtue and intelligence of the people, we seek, as in the past to favor the common school system of the state and declare that the same must be perpetuated and receive liberal financial support and that the management and control of said school system should be non-sectarian and non-partisan. The democracy of Nebraska approves and commends the declarations of President Cleveland in the past in condemning the pernicious inactivity of incumbents of federal officers under the government in attempting to control the policy and nominations of their parties, and we hereby recommend the renewal of the policy of his first administration in that regard.

"We affirm the uncompromising opposition of the democratic party to the fostering aid by the government, either national or state, of chartered monopolies and declare it as the recognized policy of the party from the days of Jefferson and Jackson to watch with the utmost jealousy the encroachments of corporate power, and we are in favor of such action as will insure a reasonable control by the state of corporations deriving their powers and privileges from the state, and especially the regulation of rates for transportation by the railroads of the state."

The convention adjourned sine die at the close of the afternoon meeting.

Monument to Emperor William.

The foundation stone for the monument to Emperor William I, at Berlin, Germany, was laid Sunday by his grandson, Emperor William III, with the most imposing ceremonies. The former Schloss Freihete, where the monument is to be erected, was converted into a closed arena for the occupancy of the many guests who had been invited to attend the ceremony.

A BOY'S FAULT.

TWENTY-FIVE PEOPLE KILLED BY A BOILER EXPLOSION.

The Gumry Hotel at Denver, Colorado, Completely Wrecked.

Probably twenty-five men, women and children perished by the explosion of a boiler in the Gumry hotel at Denver, Col. Half a dozen others are injured and at the hospital. Eight burned and crushed bodies are at the morgue. Ten more are known to be buried in the ruins, but seventeen persons are reported missing altogether.

With deafening sound and terrific force the entire rear portion of the building was demolished. The rear and side walls crumbled like a toy house. Soon afterwards the mass of timbers, brick and furniture caught fire, cremating many of the victims who lay pinioned and helpless amid the blazing pile. Their piteous appeal for help could not be responded to because of the flames.

The known killed whose bodies have been recovered are:

R. C. Grirner, assistant superintendent of construction of the state capitol, and wife, who acted as clerk of the hotel.

George Burt, of Denver, a conductor on the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad.

Fred Hubbold, of Lisbon, Ia., guest.

F. J. McCloskey, of Longmont, Colo., guest.

Will Richards, of Denver, elevator boy.

Unknown woman.

Unknown child three years old.

The only means of identifying the woman is by a gold band ring with the initials "H. B." engraved thereon. Among those who are missing and are supposed to be still in the ruins are:

Peter Gumry, owner of the hotel and superintendent of construction of the state capitol.

General Charles Adams, of Denver.

James Murphy, a prominent democratic politician of Omaha.

E. W. Edwards, butcher, of Denver.

W. J. Blake.

N. J. Corson.

F. French, county treasurer of Gilpin county, Col.

Mrs. G. R. Wolfe.

Grace Wolfe, five years of age, of Lincoln, Neb.

B. I. Lurch, of Blackhawk.

Unknown woman.

Three unknown chambermaids.

The injured are: M. E. Letson, Joseph Munal, Alex E. Irwin, Fred Coleman, Nathan Burgess and Bud Hopkins.

The latest information regarding the catastrophe is that a seventeen-year-old boy, Elmer Pierce, who was temporarily placed in charge of the boiler, was responsible for the explosion. He escaped uninjured.

Few people other than firemen and the hastily summoned rescue corps and policemen remained near the scene to witness the recovery of the horribly burned and distorted bodies.

SIX MEN KILLED.

A Furnace at Pittsburg Blows Up With Disastrous Results.

Furnace H of the Edgar Thompson steel works, Carnegie's plant at Bessemer, near Braddock, Pa., exploded between 4 and 5 o'clock Tuesday morning, killing six men and badly burning eight others, not one of those employed about the furnace escaping.

SEVENTEEN LIVES LOST.

A Steamer Runs Down a Motor Boat With Disastrous Results.

A dispatch from Hamburg says the steamer Concordia ran down the motor boat Beckman Monday evening, near Folkenthal, on the Elbe river, and that seventeen persons were drowned. Of eight members of a family named Laski who were on the motor boat only Fran Laski was saved.

NO BULL FIGHTS.

The Exposition Directors Calls Them Off Instanter.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Atlanta Exposition, the far-famed and much commented on bull fight was disposed of. Resolutions were adopted declaring that they could not take place according to program, and the Mexican village concessionaries were so notified.

Valid Except in New York.

Some people are wondering how Corbett could marry again when the recent divorce decree obtained by his first wife restrained him. The divorce was obtained in New York, Corbett and his new wife married in New Jersey, claiming to be residents of that state. The marriage holds good in any state except New York. If the Corbetts should ever settle down in that state Mrs. Corbett would not be a wife, and the children of the couple would not be legitimate. But they are husband and wife everywhere else.

Cloak Makers Strike.

The first important strike in the cloak trade took place at New York Thursday. Twelve hundred men and women employed by Freeman Bros., who act for that firm, quit work during the morning. The strikers demand an advance of about 25 per cent on piece work and the usual union rules shall be adopted.

Four Burned to Death in a Hotel.

Four people were burned to death by a fire at Pendleton, Ore., which destroyed the Transfer hotel and several adjoining buildings on Main street, one block from the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company depot.

CAMPBELL NAMED.

NOMINATED FOR GOVERNOR OF OHIO AGAINST HIS WISHES.

However, He Gracefully Accepts the Honor—The Platform as Adopted.

The Ohio democratic state convention assembled at Springfield Wednesday under peculiar circumstances. Usually the contests are for the nominations. At this convention the contests were between rival delegations for seats, between fighting factions for platform planks and between other elements for almost everything except the places on the ticket. Senator Brice was made permanent chairman and addressed the convention.

The references of the senator to the money question were loudly applauded and equal enthusiasm was manifested when the speaker pronounced the eulogy upon President Cleveland. Just as soon as he had concluded the report of the committee on credentials was called for.

All contests being disposed of, the report of the committee on permanent organization continuing the temporary organization was adopted with a shout. Frank Hurd then presented the majority report of the committee on resolutions. It read:

The Platform.

"The democratic party of Ohio, in convention assembled points with satisfaction and pride to the wisdom of action of that party in the last two years and the results accomplished according to its promises, to-wit: The repeal of the republican legislation known as the Sherman law; the un-American federal-election law, and the McKinley law, from which repeals resulted returning prosperity to the country to such an extent that even the republicans are obliged to recognize the same.

"We congratulate President Cleveland that his efforts in favor of the repeal of these various laws and the upholding of the credit of the country has been successful.

"We congratulate our senator, Hon. Calvin S. Brice, for the earnest and effective support he has given to the president in these matters.

"When we consider the fact that the democratic party received from the republicans in 1892 a bankrupt treasury that it inherited from them the vicious currency and tariff laws which had prepared and finally produced the panic of 1893, we insist that it is entitled to the thanks of the people for the courage with which it has attacked and repealed these laws.

"We reaffirm the following portion of the seventh plank of the last national democratic convention:

"'We hold to the use of both gold and silver as the standard money of the country, and to coin, both gold and silver, without discrimination against either metal or charge for mintage, but the dollar unit of coinage of both metals must be of equal intrinsic and exchangeable value or be adjusted by international agreement, or by such safe legislation as shall insure the maintenance of the parity of the two metals and the equal power of every dollar at all times in the payment of debts, and we demand that the paper currency shall be kept at par with and redeemable in such coin.'

"We insist on such policy as especially necessary for the protection of farmers and laboring classes, the first and most defenseless victims of unstable money and fluctuating currency."

The remainder of the platform relates to state affairs entirely.

The platform was signed by nineteen out of twenty-one members of the committee, the dissenters being A. W. Patrick, of Tuscarawas, and J. W. Lewis, of Champaign. These submitted the following minority report to the financial plank:

"We demand the immediate restoration of the law providing for the free coinage and legal tender of both gold and silver coins without discrimination against either metal, as provided in the constitution and without waiting the assent of England or any other foreign nation."

A roll call was demanded on the adoption of the minority report, which was lost by a vote of 270 to 525.

Campbell for Governor.

As soon as nominations were declared in order ex Governor Campbell was again in his chair. "Cries of "Campbell for governor" drowned his voice for a couple of minutes. Finally securing silence he said that there was a mission before the democratic party of the state this fall; that of achieving a victory that should electrify the whole country. At this point the ex-governor gave ex-State Chairman Norton, of Tiffin, permission to interrupt him and Norton proceeded to move that Campbell be nominated for governor by acclamation.

This was the cue for the convention to rise en masse and give three cheers twice over, while the band played the "Campbells Are Coming." But the ex-governor held his ground and having once more secured silence, he proceeded to say that he had made five races under unfavorable auspices in ten years, all calculated to deplete his condition financially and physically. There were men in Ohio who could better afford to make the fight and make the sacrifice, and if the convention was composed of his friends it ought to respect his wishes and bestow the nomination elsewhere.

He concluded by nominating General Peck, of Hamilton county, but the convention would not have it so, and as Mr. Ingalls had said that between the wishes of the candidates sought, the latter would perforce go to the wall, the nomination was made by acclamation.

Seeing that he could do nothing else the ex-governor gracefully accepted the situation and the remaining nominations followed in quick order, each being made without a contest.

Following is the ticket in full:

For governor, ex-Governor James E. Campbell.

Lieutenant governor, J. B. Peaslee, of Hamilton county.

Supreme judge, William T. Mooney, of Auglais.

State auditor, James W. Kennett, of Mansfield.

State treasurer, W. J. Shober, of Gallia.

Attorney general, George A. Fairbanks, of Franklin.

Member of board of public works, H. P. Heffer, of Tuscarawaro county.

Clerk of the supreme court, J. W. Cruikshank, of Miami, all of the above by acclamation.

The convention adopted the rooster as an emblem and at 2:40 o'clock adjourned sine die.

KENTUCKY CAMPAIGN

Opened at Louisville by Debate Between Hardin and Bradley.

The opening of the most vigorous political campaign ever known in the commonwealth of Kentucky was made at the Auditorium in Louisville Monday night in the presence of 6,000 people, by a joint debate of three hours between General P. Wat Hardin and Colonel William O. Bradley, the democratic and republican candidates for governor, respectively.

The assemblage was the most representative that was ever gathered in the state on a political occasion and the enthusiasm that burst forth during the speaking was such as could only be expected from the intense partisans. The Auditorium was equally divided between democrats and republicans, there being about 3,000 representatives of each party present. The vast hall was filled a half hour before the time set for the opening of the debate and the stage held 400 prominent men of each party and newspaper men from all over the country. The presence of so many was an indication of the deep interest that is being taken in the campaign in Kentucky.

THE CHECK-MATE OPERATORS.

Miners of Alabama, Tennessee and Kentucky Will Organize.

A movement has been begun in the Birmingham, Ala., district to effect a tri-state organization of the coal miners of Alabama, Tennessee and Kentucky, in which states there are about 20,000 free miners. This will be done to meet the combine recently formed by the operators of these states, which the miners regard detrimental to their interest.

A meeting of representative miners from every mine in the three states concerned is soon to be held in Chattanooga or Birmingham to perfect the organization and outline plans to cope with the operators' combine. The call as published in the Labor Advocate at Birmingham says:

"The combine that the miners of the south can form will not interfere with the present system of organization. The cause of the miners in the south is the cause of the miners in the north. If the southern miners succeed in keeping up wages in the south, so also will it assist in keeping up wages in the north. Heretofore the axe has cut the other way."

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Situation as Reported for the Past Week.

A review of the industrial situation of the south for the past week indicates continued activity in industrial and commercial circles. Railroad earnings show satisfactory gains over last year. The demand for lumber is increasing and prices on all standard lumber have been advanced. Machinery is in active demand and an encouraging feature of the week is the large number of new industries reported. The phosphate industry is receiving considerable attention, and interest in the manufacture of cotton in the south continues active. The demand for iron and steel is firmly maintained, the furnaces and rolling mills being taxed to their utmost to fill orders for immediate delivery. But few orders are being taken except for August delivery, as a further advance in prices is expected. Idle furnaces in the iron districts of the south are being overhauled and several plants in Alabama, Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee will be put in blast within the next sixty days. The coal mines are busy, the fall business having already begun and the reports of manufacturers in all lines of industry are favorable as to the present and future condition of trade.

Thirty-seven new industries are reported for the week, the most important being iron works at Greenville, Ala., a sheet mill at Birmingham, Ala., a $100,000 manufacturing company at Hot Springs, Ark., and a $50,000 oil mill at Charleston, S. C. A $100,000 cotton mill will be erected at Henderson, N. C., a 5,000 spindle mill at Malee, N. C.; one with a capital of $100,000 near Statesville, N. C., and another to cost $100,000 at Yorkville, S. C. The Adams-Thornhill Manufacturing Co. will erect a $25,000 plant at Lynchburg, Va., to manufacture building material; the W. B. Wright Co., capital $250,000, will establish a woodworking plant at Pensacola, Fla., and the Texas Co-Operative Co., capital $250,000, a buggy factory at Waco, Texas. A $100,000 lumber company has been chartered at Milton, Fla., and one at Morgantown and Roaring Creek, W. Va., with a capital of $300,000 each. Other woodworking plants will be established at Jacksonville, Fla., Orange and Timpson, Texas, and Hower[illegible]ous and Norfolk, Va.

Among the enlargements for the week is a quarry at Knoxville, Tenn., cotton mills at Goldsboro and Monroe, N. C., and Abbeville, S. C., and a saw mill at Marion, Fla.

The list of new buildings include an asylum to cost $19,500 at Chattahoochee, Fla., a $22,000 court house at Jeffersonville, Ga., college buildings at Little Rock, Ark., to cost $17,000, a $100,000 hotel at Ocean Springs, Miss., a $12,000 office building and warehouse to cost $18,000 at Louisville, Ky.—Tradesman (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

Minnie is Not Dead.

A startling revelation has come to light in the Holmes case. W. A. Shoemaker, counsel for Holmes, received a message from Minnie R. Williams, dated Providence, R. I., which stated that the sender was alive and well. This is one of the women whom Holmes is accused of having murdered in the Chicago "castle."

THE MORA CLAIM

WILL BE PAID NEXT MONTH BY THE SPANISH GOVERNMENT.

The Claim Amounts to the Munificent Sum of $1,500,000.

After many years of controversy the claim of Maxima Mora, a naturalized American citizen, against the government of Spain for the value of his sugar plantations in Cuba, has been amicably settled, or rather practically so, for Spain has until September 15th to make the payment.

Spain's final and positive agreement to pay at an early date was made some time ago, but since the cabinet council at Madrid committed the government to that promise a difficulty arose through a further decision of the council not to pay the interest on the claim, amounting to about $800,000. It was believed at the time that this attitude of the cabinet would result in serious difficulty between the United States and Spain. The patience of the Washington government has been worn out through Spain's insistent policy of making promises and then failing to keep them.

So seriously did this government view the refusal to pay the interest that a plan that might have involved the United States in war with Spain was decided on by the president, Secretary Olney and Secretary Herbert. This was no less than an intention to seize Havana and hold that port until the Spanish government paid the amount of the interest, or customs revenues amounting to the full interest had been collected at the Havana custom house by the United States officers who would have been placed in charge. The statement that this plan was practically arranged is made on the best authority.

Rear Admiral Bunce, commanding the north Atlantic squadron, now cruising in New England waters, was selected as the officer to command the expedition to Havana, and his fleet was to consist of the New York, the Montgomery, the Raleigh and the Minneapolis, at present composing the squadron of evolution; the Cincinnati, now at Key West, and such other vessels as could be prepared for service in time.

There was little doubt in the minds of those who arranged the plan for the seizure of Havana that Spain would pay the indemnity very quickly when she learned of the character of the persuasion to be employed by this government. The waiver of Mora, however, with regard to the interest obviated the necessity of carrying out the plan, which Spain by prompt payment would probably not have allowed to proceed further than the receipt of an ultimatum that the interest must be paid or Havana would be seized.

The agreement between Spain, the United States and Mora was arranged after repeated conferences between Secretary Olney, Senor Dupuy de Lome, the Spanish minister, and Mora's attorney. Secretary Olney is at Falmouth and Senor de Lome is at Swampscott, and Mora and his attorney were summond to Massachusetts to sign the agreement. Mora waives all claim for interest and Spain, represented by Senor de Lome, agrees to make the payment on September 15th. The principal of the claim is $1,500,000, and it is to be paid in Spanish gold.

SENATOR QUAY A WINNER.

He Defeats the Combine Formed Against Him.

The result of the election at Philadelphia Tuesday is a victory for Senator Quay and a defeat for the combination of politicians throughout the state who tried to overthrow him. He will not have less than twenty-three delegates from the city, and the returns already in from the primaries are a sufficient indication that he will have a big majority in the state convention. His friends have claimed that he could win without a single delegate from Philadelphia, and with those he has won his victory is certain.

Quay has carried Mayor Charles F. Warwick's own ward, the fifteenth, and will get its three delegates. The hottest kind of a fight was made in this ward because of Mayor Warwick's prominence in the anti-Quay movement, but the mayor has been snowed under, and Alexander Crow, Jr., the Quay leader in the ward, will head the delegation to the state convention. This is, perhaps, the most distinct setback which the combine has received in the fight.

HERBERT INVITED TO SPEAK.

His Fellow Citizens Extend Him a Cordial Invitation.

An invitation signed by a number of citizens of Montgomery, Ala., has been presented Colonel Hilary A. Herbert, secretary of the navy, requesting that he address the citizens upon the financial policy of the democratic party and more particularly upon the propriety of the United States alone entering upon the free and unlimited coinage of silver at 16 to 1.

VEST MAKERS ON A STRIKE.

They Demand an Increase of Twenty-Five Per Cent.

There is much excitement among the tailors of New York on account of the vest makers' strike. There are about 3,500 men and women on strike. They demand an increase of 25 per cent in pay and that employers shall sign the new agreement to maintain rates and pay wages regularly. The strike extends to Brooklyn and Brownsville.

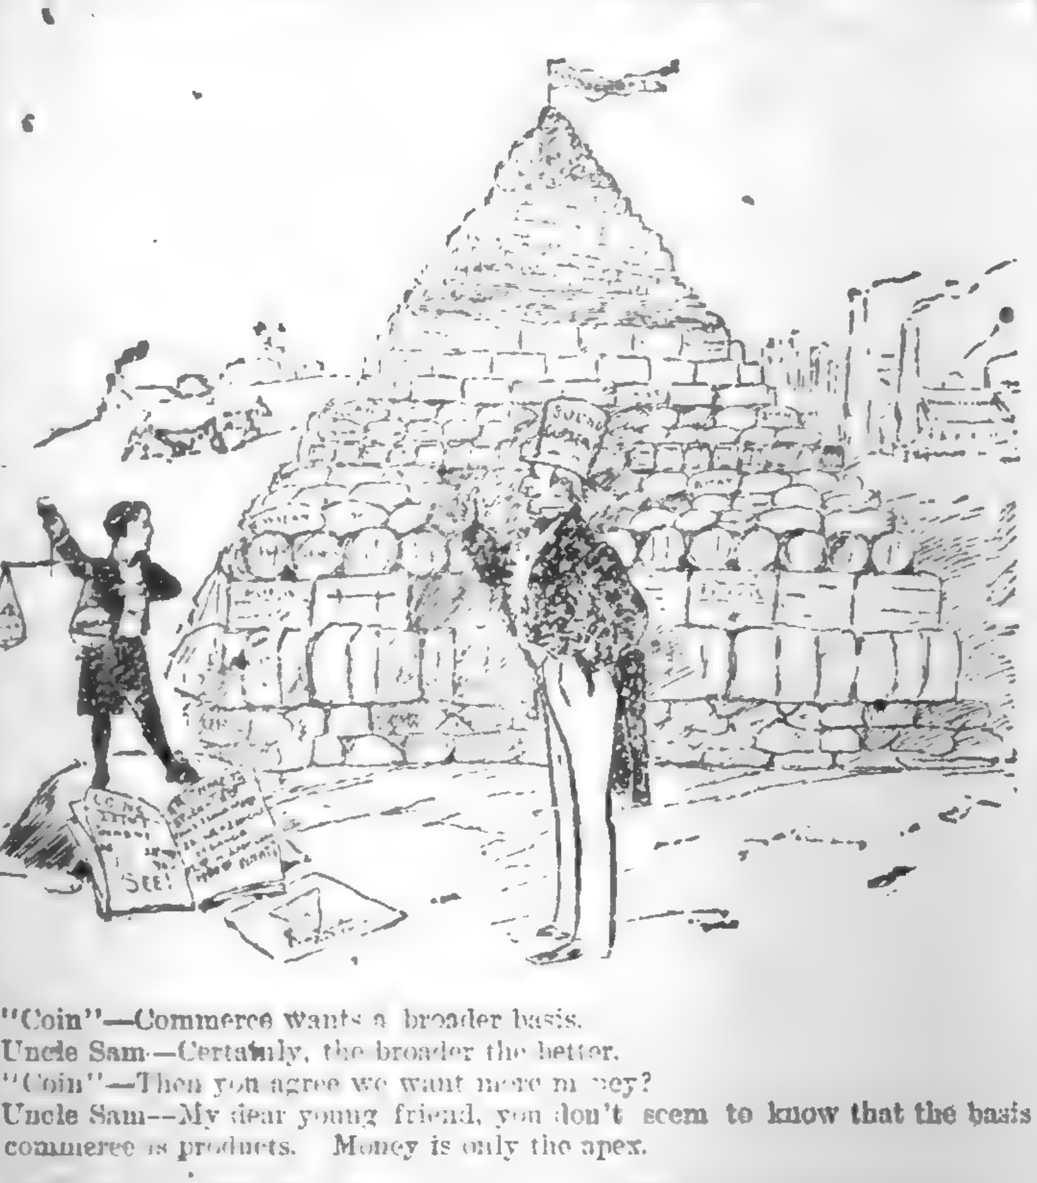
THE BASIS OF COMMERCE.



"Coin"—Commerce wants a broader basis.
Uncle Sam—Certainly, the broader the better.
"Coin"—Then you agree we want more money?
Uncle Sam—My dear young friend, you don't seem to know that the basis of commerce is products. Money is only the apex.

BUSINESS MEN AND FREE COINAGE.

How Doubling of Prices Would Affect the Sale of Goods.

A large majority of the business men of this country are opposed to free coinage and the adoption of the silver standard. But in a few states, outside of the silver producing sections of the country, some merchants have been led to favor the cheap money movement through a mistaken belief that free silver, by giving us more money, would increase the demand for all kinds of goods and thus add to the profits of manufacturers and traders. Another reason for the support by some business men of the free coinage scheme is their belief that the prices of all goods in stock would be doubled by the adoption of the silver standard.

That free silver would bring a business boom, which would encourage industry and make the country more prosperous, is a favorite assertion of the silverites. But they never attempt to show how this would be done, or how the consumption of goods of all kinds upon which the volume of exchanges depends would be stimulated by the doubling of prices, or by stamping "one dollar" on all the silver bullion in the country. People do not eat, drink or wear money. If there were large stores of silver dollars instead of bullion, trade and industry would not in any way be increased, while it is certain that the immediate result of doubling prices by the silver standard would be a great falling off in the demand for goods, since the workingmen of the country would find their wages buying only half as much as on the gold standard. If the business man who has been attracted by the specious promises of the silverites will reflect for a moment he will see that instead of encouraging trade the effect of doubling prices would be to cause people to buy less goods. Does he want that kind of "free silver prosperity?"

It is true that the price of goods in stock would be increased, but this would be merely a temporary benefit, and the loss to merchants through the payment of all outstanding accounts in 50 cent dollars would far outweigh the slight gain in that direction. So that in this case also free coinage would be a positive injury. And the panic which would inevitably follow such a financial upheaval as the change from the gold to the silver standard would bring widespread ruin and disaster.

SILVER AND SAVINGS BANKS.

Free Coinage Would Have the Effect of Wiping Out One-half the Deposits.

A tailor who should insist on his customer accepting a suit of clothes worth only half as much as the one paid for would be considered either a fool or a rogue. The agitators for a debased currency which would permit debtors to pay their creditors in dollars worth one-half of those they borrowed need not complain if plain people use plain language in speaking of their scheme. The silverites claim they are being unfairly abused when they are called dishonest or repudiators. A single illustration will show whether they are not correctly described.

There are in the various savings banks of this country deposits amounting to $1,980,744,000. This large sum represents the little savings of years by working men and women, small business men and farmers. On the passage of a free coinage law these deposits would be payable in silver dollars worth only 50 cents and having a purchasing power one-half less than our present dollar. As the banks keep very little money on hand they would not be able to pay their depositors in gold, even though they wished, as their loans would be payable in silver, and of course their debtors would pay in the cheap dollars. The result would infallibly be that one-half of the entire savings bank deposits of the country would be wiped out, practically stolen from their owners and given to those who had borrowed them. Would not this be dishonest? Is it not simple repudiation? And, if so, what are the men who advocate it?

Silver States Hoarding Gold.

Silver states do not seem to have any prejudice against gold in carrying on their own financial affairs. Utah banks hold twenty-one times as much gold as silver, Arizona banks nine times as much. The Colorado banks possess over $3,000,000 in gold and only one-tenth of the amount in silver. While this is eminently judicious it is not conclusive reason for piling up a mountain of silver in the United States treasury vaults.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Eufaula bought her first bale of cotton last week, paying 9 cents a pound.

Dr. Moseley is reported as advising his followers to drop the silver issue and stick to honest elections.

Deal not roughly with him that is tempted, but give him comfort, as thou wouldst wish to be done to thyself. Ram's Horn.

MORTON BURNS A HOTEL.

The Secretary of Agriculture Gives a 16 to 1 Object Lesson.

Secretary of Agriculture J. Sterling Morton not only has clear ideas about money, but he is ever ready with some striking illustration or pat parable to make his thoughts clear to others. On July 23 he wrote the following letter:

DEAR SIR—Returning from a small furlough, I find your letter. In it you state: "Money, whether made of metals or paper, is merely a fiction of the law. The commodity value of the material out of which money is coined or created is of no consequence in a currency."

In Wyoming, Otoe county, Neb., there lives a good citizen who on the field and in the United States senate has been a conspicuous figure. He has in his time advocated nearly all kinds of money, including of course the "poor man's money," meaning silver at 16 to 1. And now he advertises for sale for cash in hand to the highest bidder a half mile square of his large domains. Many thrifty citizens of Otoe county arrive at the Hotel Wyoming the night before the sale to be on hand when the bidding begins at 8 o'clock next morning. During the night the hotel is burned to the ground. Sixteen of the would be purchasers, each having 1,000 silver dollars melted in the conflagration so that the Goddess of Liberty and "In God we trust" are erased and swallowed up in ragged chunks of bullion, awake to find that the commodity value of money is of consequence. For, placing their bullion of silver on the market, they find it worth only 60 cents, whereas they bought it at a mint value, with labor and labor's products, at $1.29 an ounce. Sixteen thousand dollars of silver coin accidentally melted into bullion brings its owners less than $8,000.

But there was also one would be purchaser who had melted in that same fire $1,000 of gold coin, so that the goddess and "In God we trust" were lost to view in a lump of yellow bullion without a single sign of governmental stamp thereupon.

And this one who held gold finds that the commodity value of his bullion is nearly if not quite equal to that stamped upon it by the United States mint. He has learned that the bullion value and the mint value of gold are very much the same, and therefore gold is by far the best metallic money.

It is safe to wager 16 to 1 that the gold coin owner feels 16 times as much consolation when selling his bullion his gold thousand dollars as does any one of the other selling his thousand dollars of silver reduced to bullion. And the poor man's best money is that which loses least in value when by fire or otherwise it loses the stamp of the government.

And if at that fire some fiat money advocate lost a few thousand paper promises to pay dollars, he also will rise up and declare the paper fallacy that "money is a mere fiction of the law" and vehemently denounce the vagary that "a commodity value in money is unnecessary and useless."

Gold and silver were money before any law made them so—before any government coined them or any mint stamped them. And then each was valued by the demand for each; and now also the relation of the supply of gold to the demand for gold regulates its value. And the relation of the supply of silver to the demand for silver regulates its value.

But you further say that the government not taking silver for coinage at 16 to 1, has destroyed the demand for silver.

In a government like ours, which is en- tirely and simply "all of us," there can be no demand created either for silver or anything else except the integral parts of the composite evolve that demand. Only the people of the United States by their generally expressed desire for a thing can create a demand for it.

Yours faithfully, J. STERLING MORTON.

Sixteen to One Twiddle Twaddle.

The people are beginning to see that the free silver coiners are not basing their assertions upon facts, nor do they employ any sound logic. The phrases, "dollars of our fathers," "money of the constitution," "crime of '73," together with anarchistic denunciation of the "bankers," "money lenders," "Wall street sharks," etc., constitute their entire stock in trade. And by means of such twiddle twaddle they expect to destroy bimetallism and degrade this country to a single silver standard.—Jefferson City (Mo.) Courier.

Will Catch It Worst.

The wage earner, the laborer and the salaried man should be teeth and toe nail against free silver because the amount they receive will not be increased while the prices of living will go up. They are much worse off than the merchants and the farmer. Their wages are not flexible. Salaries cannot be adjusted at once. It takes time. Meanwhile they must work at starvation rates and pay inflation prices.

Chiefly Lungs.

"Where are the brains?" asked the king of Mbwpka.

"Please, your majesty," explained the chef, "he hadn't any. This is the man who could not talk about anything but 16 to 1, your highness may be pleased to remember. I think his brains had all run to whiskers."

The explanation seemed plausible.—Indianapolis Journal.

AGAINST FREE SILVER.

Unlimited Coinage Would Make America the Dumping Ground.

At the Iowa Republican convention, held at Des Moines on July 10, the Hon. Joseph R. Lane, temporary chairman, made the following reference to the silver question:

Silver being necessary in the money of the world, we must either maintain its coinage at par by legislative limitation of the amount or change the coinage ratio of the basis of its market value. Under the policy of legislative limitation of the amount, aided by redemption when in excess of demand, we have been able to maintain at par our silver coin, although its intrinsic value is much less. This policy was satisfactory so long as the price of silver continued high, but when it became reduced, on account of overproduction and other causes, there sprung up a demand by the producers of silver for special silver legislation. This claim has now crystallized into a demand for free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver at the ratio of 16 to 1. This means to give to every man, to every nation, the right to deposit at the mints of the United States silver in unlimited quantity and to demand and receive in return, free of charge or cost, that silver coined into money at the ratio of 16 to 1, bearing the stamp of our government.

In my judgment such a policy will make America the dumping ground of silver for the world. It means we would be brought at once to a silver basis. It means the degradation of our dollar to 50 cents. It means repudiation. It will bring an avalanche of silver, but a fast for labor. The Republicans of Iowa oppose this. In the state of Iowa if we owe a debt, we expect to pay it in money worth 100 cents on the dollar, in money of equal purchasing power with any other money of the world. If any one owes us, we demand and expect payment in money of equal value. This is a vital question to all classes. The farmer, the laborer, the merchant, the manufacturer, all classes have an interest in the maintenance of good currency. The dollar they receive for their productions and labor should have the highest purchasing power and be as good as the best purchasing dollar in the world. Upon a sound currency depends to a large extent the development, the prosperity, the success and the maintenance of our people.

DEMANDS OF SILVERITES.

They Ask More For Silver Than Has Ever Been Granted to Gold.

One of the claims made by the advocates of silver is that the government should treat both metals alike. How does the government treat gold? For every 23.2 grains of pure bullion deposited in the mint the owner receives a gold dollar weighing 25.8 grains and nine-tenths fine. The government stamp adds nothing to the value of the metal. It simply certifies to that value and puts the metal in a form convenient for use. Everywhere in the world gold thus coined is worth $1. If you go to Europe, the little piece of gold is worth $1. If your house burns down, the little lump of gold that was worth $1 previous to the fire will be worth $1 at any jeweler's anywhere.

The advocates of free silver do not want silver treated this way. Oh, no! They ask for more. They ask that the owner of silver bullion be permitted to take it to the mint and have the government stamp 371¼ grains, with the necessary alloy, as a dollar of equal legal tender with the gold dollar when today the value of the bullion in the dollar is worth only 53 cents. They ask that the government stamp its fiat, to the extent of 47 cents, shall be put on every 53 cents' worth of silver they take to the mint. Say the house burns again. The piece of silver worth $1 the night before because of the stamp only is only worth 53 cents when taken to the jeweler.

Don't you see that the silver people are asking more from the government for silver than was ever granted by any government in the world for gold? One metal stamped $1 because of its value the world over; the other stamped $1 and worth but 53 cents anywhere. If we are to have fiat money, why not have it all fiat, and not 47 cents fiat? If we are to have fiat money, let it be paper. But the silver people claim that if the government passes a free coinage of silver bill silver will immediately jump in price from now being worth 53 cents for 371¼ grains to 100 cents for the same amount. Do you believe it? Some people are almost willing to believe that the moon is made of green cheese.—Humboldt (Tenn.) Messenger.

Give a Dog a Bad Name, Etc.

A boy in Kansas was pulling a dog along the road by a rope. The boy called to his dog, "Come along, Pop, you ornery cuss." A bystander asked him why he called the dog Pop. "For short," answered the boy.

"What's his full name?" "Populist," answered the boy. "Why call him Populist?" asked the stranger. "Well, sir," the boy said, "because he is just like a Populist. He's the orneryist dog in Kansas. He ain't worth a durn only to sit on his tail and howl."—Topeka Daily Capital.

A New View of Life.

It is surprising how often the troubles of this life spring from indigestion. And more surprising how few people know it. You say, "I'm blue," or "My head feels queer," or "I can't sleep," or "Everything frets me." Nine times in ten Indigestion is at the bottom of all your miseries, and a box of Ripans Tabules would give you an entirely new view of life.

Don't Drag Your Feet.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

WOMAN'S WORLD.

PLEASANT LITERATURE FOR FEMININE READERS

GIRLS HIDE THEIR EARS.

There seems to be a tendency on the part of many girls nowadays to hide their ears. This they do by snipping their hair at the sides and then, after fluffing and crimping it to the last degree, they brush the mass forward until there is no vestige of ear to be seen. The effect is somewhat Donatello-like, as though the modern maiden, like the modern faun, had something to conceal. The observer can't help but wonder to himself if, under those fluffy masses, there are not furry, little, leaf-like points instead of the regulation human ears.

FAIR ONES COLLECT THE FARES.

The women of Rome, Ga., have just gone through with an experience that has been of unprecedented beauty, says the Philadelphia Press. Some time ago Superintendent Marvin, of the Electric Railway Company, offered them the electric cars for one day, the net proceeds to go to the St. Peter's Church building fund.

They accepted and they have just completed the task. The leading society women of the city got together and divided up the time into turns of two hours each, and one married and two single ladies took the different turns.

The girls put on their most attractive summer garments, sewed bands of ribbon on them with "Conductor" in large letters on the front, and they just took the town by storm. The city was full of visiting Masons, and when they caught on to the scheme they filled the cars, and the women conductors swung around on the footboards and roped in the riches in a hurry. The day was a splendid success, and while the weather was warm they didn't seem to mind it, and worked faithfully till 11 o'clock at night, when the cars were taken off.

There were some of the most amusing episodes connected with the day imaginable. Many of the passengers, when the young women would approach them and timidly hold out their hands, would take the proffered hand and shake it gingerly with a winning glance up into the bright face above, which was quickly changed to consternation when they beheld the insignia of office on the summer hat and heard the cast iron "Fare, please," from the curling lips.

WIDOW'S MOURNING.

A widow who wishes to be properly gowned chooses the material known as Eudora cloth, which is really the finest brand of Henrietta, and as it can be gotten in different weights is adapted to all seasons. Of course the "jet black" when trimmed with crape looks almost like navy blue. A suitable toilet to be worn during the summer shows a skirt of Eudora cloth made after the revived flaring style, and having set in at each side of the front width two side plaits of crape that extend from the waist to the edge of the skirt. The bodice is a round draped one with a high collar of crape and a plait of crape coming just down in the centre of the front loop fashion, its end being concealed under a crape belt. The sleeves are of the cloth and shape into the arms and have for a finish three narrow folds of crape, while on the outer edge of each are set six small crape buttons. The bonnet is a modified Marie Stuart, made of crape, with dull black strings rather broad and a white widow's cap showing from under the edge. The veil is of the best English crape, which is really the only kind worth buying, and for the first three months it is worn over the face and reaches almost to the edge of the skirt in front and within two inches of it at the back. At the end of three months the front portion is thrown back and carefully draped so that the two portions fall over in the back in a very artistic manner. Over the face there is worn a round net veil bordered with crape, and this round veil with the crape veil thrown back are proper for the next nine months. When traveling one is permitted to lay aside one's veil and simply wear the ordinary black silk one, such as is liked by all women. Perfectly plain crepon is chosen for indoor wear and makes very beautiful house gowns, as it falls gracefully and is particularly obliging in lending itself to most artistic curves.—Ladies' Home Journal.

FASHION NOTES.

Powder-blue is the latest shade of blue-gray to be designated.

Lawn and organdie gowns are elaborately decorated with both wide and narrow patterns of this lace.

The French zephyr ginghams are really beautiful and make charming beach or mountain costumes.

The very quaint model chameleon silk has a full godet skirt and a gathered bodice, with a full basque.

The thin, silky crepons are very well liked. They are exquisite in white, made over a colored foundation.

The popularity of skirts distinct in color and material from the bodices they accompany is still largely maintained.

As grass linen of any shade is very trying to the complexion, a wide sailor tie of some becoming shade is usually added.

Young boys wear on showy occasions Tuxedo coats as correctly made as their fathers', with waistcoat and shirt front.

There were a great many hats with the broad brims heavily trimmed by wide, full ruchings or scarfs of gauze and lace, and with masses of flowers falling against the hair.

Spangled satin ribbons are shown in several widths in white and black, with gold, silver, jet or colored paillettes disposed in rings, wheels, arabesques, vines and other outlines.

Pompadour silks, in both light and dark shades, make exceedingly pretty and serviceable parasols, and the handles are of white or natural colored wood suitable to the tint of the silk.

The majority of the new bodices seem to have the opening under the arm with the fullness of the material pleated into the waist in front—a most becoming fashion to a slender figure.

WORDS OF WISDOM.

Nature is full of indications of divine attributes.

Nothing which comes into the world of truth is ever lost.

There are some natures that only tempests can bring out.

Only in the love we have for others can we truly live or die.

Hardness of heart wants softness of heart to teach it the quality of softness.

Strong action can issue only from strong faith. Only out of certainty comes power.

There is a wonderful power in sympathy to open and display the hidden richness of a man's life.

Gentleness is not a separate and distinct faculty. It is the method by which strength manifests itself.

Man is fully satisfied only with what satisfies his soul, only with character and an endless chance for that character to grow.

The value of the soul above the body, of the character above circumstances, and the eternal life, these are what men may cling to.

You cannot grow too familiar with the books of all ages which have in them the truest humor, for the truest humor is the bloom of the highest life.

It is good to know that he who makes nobler life possible by any conscious work of his, for other people, therein lives nobly himself, not merely in their lives, but in his own.

It is not our fortune in life, our sorrow, or our joy; it is the explanation which we give of it ourselves, the depth to which we can see down into it that makes our lives significant or insignificant to us.

An Eccentric Cabinet Officer.

It does seem like going a long ways back for a yarn, but a good story improves with age, especially if it has never seen the light of day, and has been buried away in the cellar of some one's memory. President Fillmore's Secretary of the Interior was Alexander H. H. Stuart, of Virginia. He was a big man in his day, and a great lawyer. He was devoted to Clay, and used to make the valley of Shenandoah ring with his praises of the eloquent Kentuckian. If I mistake not, Mr. Stuart died only a few years ago. One of his peculiarities was lack of memory and absent-mindedness in general, and many tales are told of his eccentricities. After serving three years in Fillmore's Cabinet he retired to the practice of law at Staunton. The new President, Franklin Pierce, he had known very well in Washington. One day a singularly handsome man, a stranger to Staunton, asked the way to Mr. Stuart's office. Entering, he found the lawyer busy with his work. "Mr. Stuart, I believe," said the caller, pleasantly, by way of introduction. Stuart looked up from his books a moment, nodded assent, and then went on with his work. After a lapse of some minutes, the visitor ventured to inquire: "Did you say your name was Stuart?" Again the eccentric lawyer looked up from his books, said: "I am Stuart," and once more resumed his studies. After another short period of silence, the handsome stranger spoke rather sharply. "If you are Aleck Stuart," he exclaimed, "I wish you'd turn around here and talk to me." At this the lawyer slapped the covers of his book together, rose, and walked up to his visitor. "You have the advantage of me, sir," he said. "My name is Pierce—Franklin Pierce"—explained the caller. "Oh, yes," said Stuart, his eyes brightening a little, 'now I know you. You live over on the big creek, near Pond Gap. What can I do for you?'"

Another story of Stuart is one Randolph Tucker used to be fond of telling in Washington. Stuart used to imagine he could not read without spectacles, though the habitues of the courtroom noticed he could get along about as well with one pair as with another. After reading some authority from the law books he had a habit of pushing his spectacles up over his head, while continuing his argument to the court. When he wanted to read again he would forget that his glasses were on the top of his head and go poking around among the books and papers for his lost spectacles. The waggish young lawyers, noting this peculiarity of the veteran's, used to gather up all the spectacles in court and have them ready so that when Stuart began nosing about for his glasses some one stood ready to hand him a pair. In this way pair after pair was passed up to old man, and one after another was shoved up the top of his head until finally he had stowed away there all the glasses in the courtroom, some ten or twelve in number, while judge, jury, bar and spectators were all having fits of half-suppressed laughter.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Are Animals Immortal?

The Rev. Charles Josiah Adams, rector of the Church of the Holy Spirit, Kingston, N. Y., has just completed the organization of a bureau of animal psychology or biophilism, having as its executive staff Mr. Adams, Eugene Field, of Chicago; John Burroughs, of West Park, Henry Abbey, of Kingston, and Eugene Glass, the editor of The Dog Fancier at Battle Creek, Mich.

The object of the bureau is to collect evidence to show that the lower animals may possess the same faculties that man possesses; to show that the lower animals may be immortal; to show that all the arguments that go to prove man's immortality also go to prove the immortality of other sentient beings. The evidence will be sought by correspondence and observation.

Although the organization is but a week old, there are already nearly two hundred members who have signed their names as members of the bureau.—New York Times.

Confirming a Bible Story.

Major John writes in the United Service Magazine that while he was employed between Port Said and Kantara he saw the waters of the Lake Menzaleh "driven beyond the horizon" by a violent wind, so that the natives walked about where the day before they were fishing. This convinced him that he had seen exactly what happened when the Israelites passed dryshod through the Red Sea.

SOUTH CAROLINA'S ELECTION.

Tillmanites Will Control the Convention by a Large Majority.

A Columbia, S. C., special says: Reports from all parts of the state indicate that not more than a half vote was cast in the election of delegates to the constitutional convention held Tuesday. The apathy shown in the primary has extended to the general election.

In the following counties there were no contests and the primary tickets were elected accordingly: Abbeville, Aiken, Barnwell, Colleton, Darlington, Edgefield, Georgetown, Kershaw, Lancaster, Laurens, Newberry, Pickens and York. In Sumter and Union the independent compromise ticket have probably defeated the straightout reform tickets nominated in the primary. In Anderson, Greenville, Fairfield and Oconee the indications are that the primary tickets, composed of reformers and conservatives, have defeated the independent full straightout tickets. In these four counties no republican tickets were run, but the republicans supported the independent ticket.

In Beaufort, Berkley, Charleston, Chester, Chesterfield, Clarendon, Hampton, Horry, Marion, Orangeburg, Richmond and Williamsburg full republican tickets were run, but the indications are that in every county named the democrats were successful, except possibly in Beaufort, where a compromise democratic-republican ticket has probably won. Ex-Circuit Judge Wallace, who ran on the independent ticket in Union county, has been sent to the convention, and so has ex-Circuit Judge Frazier, who ran on the independent ticket in Sumter county.

In Columbia not more than half of the registered white vote was polled, but the democratic majority over the republicans in the county will be about seventy-five. Gov. Evans has been elected from Aiken county, and so have Senator Tillman from Edgefield, Senator Irby from Laurens, Congressman Talbot from Edgefield and Congressman Wilson from Spartanburg. A large number of very strong men have been elected from various counties and all are agreed that the convention will be the most intellectual that has been held in South Carolina since the war. Throughout the state it was one of the most quiet elections that has been held in recent years, and not a casualty has been reported. The friends of the dispensary claim that to this institution a large share of the credit for this is due, as the dispensaries were closed and there were no side doors through which persons could get liquor.

CHINA IS SLOW

In Making Amends for the Recent Massacre of Missionaries.

The London Times publishes a dispatch from Shanghai trying the work of the commission appointed to inquire into the massacre of Christians at Kucheng is likely to prove futile. The Chinese government is trifling with the question and there are likely to be further troubles. The dispatch adds that if the western powers demand that the officials concerned in the massacre be publicly deprived of their posts and the cause of their dismissal be specified, China will not refuse the demand, and the success of the measure will be certain.

NINE BULLETS IN DINKINS.

His Killing by Marshall and Friends Regarded as Murder.

The killing of R. F. Dinkins at Brandon, Miss., by Senator Dabney Marshall and his friends, Coleman, Fox and Volars, of Vicksburg, is considered by many as the most foul murder ever committed. Nine bullets were found in Dinkins' body, four of which entered the back and one the back of his head.

At Their Own Risk.

A London cable dispatch says: Though Lord Salisbury is determined to avenge the recent massacre of foreigners at Kucheng and the other outrages committed by the Chinese mob at that place, he refuses to entertain the claims of the missionary societies that their agents be protected wherever they may go, and in this action the premier is backed up by the liberals.

Will Not Return to Work.

The striking iron ore miners at a meeting at Ishpeming decided not to accept the company's terms, and will not return to work. This has caused great dissatisfaction among the men and many of them have declared their intention of returning to the mines and asking for work under protection.

FARMS AND FARMERS.

The first buckwheat state is New York, with 280,029 acres and 4,675,735 bushels of product.

Illinois claims the largest number of improved acres on her farms, having 52,669,060.

Ohio has the greatest number of farms, 251,430, having 23,352,408 acres; Illinois is second, with 240,681 farms and 30,498,277 acres; Missouri being third, with 238,013 farms and 30,780,290 acres.

New York has the greatest amount of capital invested in farm implements and machinery, the sum total being $46,659,465; Pennsylvania is second, with $39,046,855; Iowa is third, with $36,665,315.

In the estimated value of farm products, according to the returns of the eleventh census, Illinois is first, with $184,759,013; New York is second, with $161,593,009; Iowa is third, with $159,347,844.

Illinois has the greatest value in fences and buildings—$1,262,870,587, the second place belonging to Ohio, which has $1,050,931,828, and the third to New York, whose fences and buildings are valued at $968,127,286.

Kentucky stands first in tobacco, having 274,587 acres, producing 221,880,303 pounds; Virginia is second, with 110,579 acres and 48,522,655 pounds, and North Carolina is third, with 97,077 acres, producing 36,375,258 pounds.

The first corn-producing state is Iowa, with an acreage of 8,585,522 and 313,130,782 bushels; next comes Illinois, with 7,863,025 acres and 289,697,256 bushels; the third being Kansas, with 7,314,665 acres and 259,674,568 bushels.

Among the barley-producing states California stands first, having 815,995 acres, yielding 17,548,386 bushels; the second is Iowa, with 518,729 acres and 13,406,122 bushels; the third being Wisconsin, with 474,014 acres and 15,225,872 bushels.

According to the statistics furnished by our consular service, the farmers of this country are better clothed, better housed, better fed, give their children a better education and have more money in bank than the rural population of any country in the world.

The first state in flaxseed is Minnesota, the fields of that commonwealth yielding 2,721,987 bushels of seed and 8,609 pounds of fiber; the second in rank is Iowa, with 2,282,359 bushels of seed and 6,281 pounds of fiber; the third being South Dakota, with 1,801,114 bushels of seed and 3,278 pounds of fiber.

Acute Rheumatism.

From the Keowee Courier, Walhalla, S. C.

For several years Mrs. Mary Hunter, wife of Mr. William Hunter, of Mountain Rest, Oconee County, S. C., was a constant sufferer from rheumatism and could find no relief, even though she consulted the best doctors and tried every remedy prescribed by the most eminent physicians of the South. But she finally stumbled, as it were, on a medicine which wrought her cure in a simple, but nevertheless a most remarkable, manner. Such was her experience, and for the benefit of suffering humanity she consented to an interview touching her peculiar case.

"Yes, it is true that I had chronic rheumatism of long standing," said Mrs. Hunter to a reporter, "and the most celebrated physicians of South Carolina could effect no cure. But I have been cured, and that completely." And she spoke the words with a bright smile and cheerful countenance.

"I am sixty-six years of age," she continued, "and about five years ago I began to suffer from acute rheumatism. The pain soon became constant, and for four years I could find no relief. I could not remain still in any position, either lying, sitting, walking or standing. There was no rest nor ease for me, and thus it continued until life itself became a burden. During these years I consulted several of the most capable and eminent physicians of our State and took their prescriptions. But short and temporary was the relief afforded by any of them, and some failed to give any relief at all. The malady would return with accumulated force after every period of temporary suspension, and at last it seemed that my case was hopeless.

"About this time I received a letter from my sister, Mrs. Lucinda Stewart, of Texas, who wrote me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and she told me how much good they had done her. She had been sick for seven years and had had two strokes of paralysis. None of the doctors of Texas could do anything for her, and her cure seemed impossible. But she was told by a friend to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and she at last did so. She wrote that she had taken only half a box when she experienced a decided change for the better, and soon she felt like a young girl again, even though she was over forty years old. In a short time she was cured, and she is now enjoying good health.

"But, even after receiving that letter, it was some time before I consented to try the pills. I continued to receive treatment from physicians for a year or more, because I had little or no faith in patent medicines of any kind. But finally, being reduced to a dire extremity, and all else failing, I concluded to write for one box of the pills, and did so. Within a week after beginning to take them I commenced feeling better, and when the first box was used I ordered six boxes. But two more boxes effected my cure, and that permanently, too; for during the past year I have been entirely free from rheumatic pains, and count my cure complete. Since then I have given the pills to other members of my family, and in no instance have they failed to give speedy and permanent relief. I am convinced that the pills are all that Dr. Williams claims for them, and more too. I cheerfully recommend them to all sufferers."

To confirm her statement of facts beyond all doubts, Mrs. Hunter made the following affidavit:

Sworn to before me this, the 9th day of May, A. D. 1895.

(L.S.) R. T. JAYNES, Notary Public.

Mrs. Hunter is well and favorably known, being the wife of one of Oconee's most successful and substantial farmers. No one can doubt her statement for a moment, and many of her neighbors, moreover, are cognizant of her remarkable cure.

How Many Apples Did They Eat?

"Can you tell me," said Will to Bob, "how many apples Adam and Eve ate in the garden of Eden?"

"That's a chestnut!" Bob answered. "Eve ate one and Adam ate, too; that makes three."

"You don't add correctly, Bob. The total is 163."

"How do you make that out?"

"Why, as you said, Eve ate one (81) and Adam ate, too (82). Add 81 and 82 together, and you get 163, don't you?"

Bob thought a moment and then exclaimed; "I guess they ate more, after all. Eve ate, for one (841), and Adam ate too (82). Total, 923."

"Oh, I can do better than that," said will. Eve, for one, ate one (4181), and Adam, too, ate one (281). That makes a total of 4,362. Can you beat that?"

"Yes, indeed! How is this? Eve ate one, for one (8,141), and Adam ate, one too (812). That is a total of 8,953. Now it's your turn."

"I'll quit," said Will. "They must have eaten the whole crop."—New York Recorder.

A CAT'S QUEER KITTEN.

Experiment in Foster-Mothers Wherein a Young Hare Took Part.

An interesting experiment in the rearing of animals is recorded by a German journal. A country gentleman, having captured a young hare a few days old, conceived the idea of giving it as foster mother a cat which had just had a litter of kittens. The cat showed no objection to this curious addition to her family, and the herbivorous nursling seemed to take very well to the regime to which it was so unexpectedly subjected. The hare throve and grew, and the cat soon thought it time to begin the education of her foster child.

For the catching of mice, however, the hare showed not the slightest disposition, and at each fault committed the adoptive mother administered vigorous correction with her paws. This produced but little improvement, and the relations between the two animals were becoming somewhat strained, when one day they were placed together on the lawn in front of the house. The hare at once proceeded to nibble at the vegetation with remarkable avidity, to the evident astonishment and indignation of the cat, who could make nothing of such conduct. Finally, perceiving that she had nourished anything but a kitten, the disappointed nurse withdrew with an expression of unmistakable disdain.

COPIOUSNESS and simplicity, variety and unity, constitute real greatness of character.

QUAY WAS BOSS.

CAPTURES THE PENNSYLVANIA REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

Takes the Chairmanship of the Party for Himself.

A Harrisburg, Pa., special says: The most bitter fight that has ever [illegible] in the ranks of Pennsylvania republicans is at an end. [illegible] is victorious. The [illegible] swept everything [illegible] was unanimously con[illegible] interest of party har[illegible] nomination of the six [illegible] judges, as the adminis[illegible] desired. The con[illegible] a count three [illegible] taken, was mar[illegible].

[illegible] the way the Quay and [illegible] hobnobbed within a [illegible] after the convention had [illegible] to order, the respective [illegible] the example by consult[illegible] another, it was not evi[illegible] the party had been rent in [illegible] the past two months and [illegible] any of the convention [illegible] that was unprecedented [illegible].

[illegible] of Senator Quay is re[illegible] a masterly political achieve[illegible]. He has secured control of the [illegible] in the Keystone State [illegible] himself elected state [illegible] succeed an active political [illegible] the latter himself placing [illegible] name in nomination, and [illegible] the power at the convention.

[illegible] convention was announced to [illegible] o'clock Wednesday morn[illegible] was within five minu[illegible] hour when State Chair[illegible] rapped for order.

[illegible] call of the 289 delegates [illegible] to their names and then [illegible] for temporary chairman [illegible]. Representative John [illegible], of Delaware county, was [illegible] temporary chairman by acclamation.

[illegible] made a motion which [illegible] by Representative Stone [illegible] committee on permanent or[illegible] be instructed to report the [illegible] of Governor Hastings for perma[illegible] chairman of the convention. It [illegible].

Senator Quay then presented the [illegible] resolution, which was re[illegible] the committee on resolutions:

[illegible], That we decry the grow[illegible] money in politics and the [illegible] control of legislatures, mu[illegible] councils, political primaries [illegible] and favor the enactment [illegible] and enforcement of laws [illegible] such abuses.

[illegible] earnestly insist upon a form [illegible] service which will prevent the [illegible] of public officers and em[illegible] and the compelling of those [illegible] to preserve the peace to [illegible] themselves to their duties, [illegible] will insure absolute freedom [illegible] fairness in bestowing state and [illegible] municipal contracts, and [illegible] any form of favoritism in [illegible] them, which will forbid the [illegible] exclusive franchises to deal [illegible] necessities, comforts, con[illegible] and sanitary requirements, [illegible] insure the recognition of [illegible] and fidelity in the public ser[illegible] service to the country [illegible] when accompanied by [illegible] and fitness.

[illegible] demand that public office should [illegible] the public benefit and its term [illegible] positions should be [illegible] good behavior.

[illegible] public employe or officer should [illegible] to influence primaries or [illegible] nor upon any pretense to be [illegible] upon his salary, and all un[illegible] positions and salaries should [illegible] and expenditures and [illegible] reduced; there should be a [illegible] basis of valuation of property [illegible] purposes; corporations en[illegible] public privileges should pay for [illegible] schools should be divorced [illegible] and kept absolutely free [illegible] political influence and control."

[illegible] resolution committee not being [illegible] report, Chairman Hastings [illegible] the next order of business. [illegible] Henry Hall mounted the [illegible] placed the name of Benja[illegible] Haywood, of Mercer county, be[illegible] convention for state treasurer. [illegible] were no other nominations, and [illegible] Haywood was chosen by acclamation.

Senator Quay, in a brief speech, [illegible] the names of the six [illegible] members of the superior [illegible] for nomination. The judges [illegible] appointed by Governor Hastings [illegible] 27th and the senator moved [illegible] all be selected by acclama[illegible]. The nominations were made as [illegible] requested.

[illegible] Gilkeson then withdrew as a [illegible] for state chairman, and moved that Senator Matthew Stanley Quay be elected state chairman.

[illegible] delegates outdid themselves [illegible] Mr. Gilkeson had concluded, and [illegible] was the most impressive of [illegible] convention. Men shouted until [illegible] hoarse, and hats, canes and [illegible] were waved frantically. [illegible] was now at its height [illegible] perspiring participants forgot [illegible] heat in giving expression [illegible] harmony programme. Quay [illegible] elected by acclamation.

After a somewhat lengthy wait, the [illegible] on resolutions reported the [illegible], which was read by District Attorney Graham, of Philadelphia.

The financial and tariff planks are [illegible]:

"We accept unreservedly the decla[illegible] enunciated by the republican [illegible] convention of 1892, that we [illegible] the use of both gold and silver money with such restrictions and under such provisions, to be determined by legislation, as will secure the maintenance of the parity of values of the two metals, so that the purchasing and debt-paying power of the dollar, whether of silver, gold or paper, shall at all times be equal.

"Faithful to the republican party and believing it to be the settled doctrine of the party that the honor of the nation and the interests of its citizens require the maintenance of a national currency, every dollar of which whether in gold, silver or notes, shall be of stable value and of equal purchasing power, this convention hereby declares its opposition to the debasement of the national currency by the admission of silver to free and unlimited coinage at the arbitrary ratio of 16 to 1.

"We declare our continued adherence to the protective policy which has been so sturdily championed for one hundred years by the great men of our state and of our nation, and to the acceptance of which policy by the republican party the country owes all the prosperity it has enjoyed during the last thirty years.

"We insist upon the passage of such legislation as will secure the restoration and maintenance of this policy without qualification or abatement.

"The democratic party, under Mr. Cleveland's leadership, is charged with the precipitation upon the country in the early part of 1893 of the most disastrous industrial and financial panic in our history, which was caused by the open threat of Mr. Cleveland to destroy the protective policy and by the fear that other radical and destructive legislative changes would be attempted under the same leadership."

The final plank was the resolution offered by Senator Quay, regarding civil service.

The platform was adopted and the convention, at 2:48 o'clock p. m., adjourned sine die.

The nominees for judges are: Ex-Governor James A. Beaver, of Centre county; Howard J. Reeder, Northampton; John Wickham, Beaver; George B. Orlady, Huntingdon; Charles E. Rice, Luzerne, and E. N. Willard, Lackawanna.

The seventh member of the judiciary is Henry J. McCarthy (democrat) of Philadelphia, the law creating the new court providing for minority representation.

NO INTERNATIONAL AGREEMENT

Germany Reconsidering the Proposal for Another Conference.

The London Standard prints a Berlin dispatch saying that in consequence of the opinion recently expressed by Mr. Balfour that there was no reason for supposing that any agreement on the currency question would result from a national monetary conference at the present time, and a second abortive conference was very undesirable, the German government is reconsidering its plan for the reconvening of another congress and it is expected that the result of its deliberations will be averse to the proposal.

NIAGARA'S GREAT POWER

Retailed to Manufacturers by the Cataract Company.

After almost five years' work and the expenditure of over $3,000,000, Niagara has finally been harnessed and the electric power generated by monster five thousand horse power dynamos of the Cataract Construction Company is now being sent out for commercial use. The first power was delivered to the works of the Pittsburg Reduction Company Monday morning, when dynamo No. 2 in the construction company's power house was set in motion.

EVIDENCE AGAINST HOLMES.

Charred Bones of Howard Peitzel Found in Holmes' Cottage.

Evidence of the murder of little Howard Peitzel by Holmes were found in the frame cottage at Irvington, near Indianapolis, Tuesday, by Detective Geyer, of Philadelphia, charred bones and buttons from the boy's coat being discovered in the fireplace, where the murdered child was probably cremated. In a chimney were found charred bones which are those of a human body. Evidence that Holmes once occupied the house is conclusive.

KEENER TO HANG

For the Murder of Leonia and Arizona Moore.

Seymour Keener was sentenced Thursday by Judge Kimsey, at Clayton, Ga., to be hanged October 18th.

It will be remembered that Keener killed his two cousins, Leonia and Arizona Moore, on Sunday afternoon, June 23d last.

The trial was very interesting. The court house was crowded while it was in progress. Laura Moore, a sister of the two murdered girls, was the state's main witness.

Nebraska Populists in Convention.

The Nebraska populist state convention for the nomination of an associate justice of the supreme court and two regents of the universities was opened at Lincoln Wednesday afternoon, over 700 delegates attending. Senator Allen was chosen permanent chairman and after the appointment of committees adjournment was taken. Samuel Maxwell was nominated for supreme judge.

ADVANCE IN SILVERWARE.

Manufacturers Raise the Price of Flat Goods Ten Cents an Ounce.

Twelve of the largest silverware manufacturers in the country, it is announced, representing millions of dollars in the aggregate annual production of silver, have raised the price of sterling silver flatware ten cents an ounce, the advance to go into effect at once.

WASHINGTON NOTES

GOSSIP OF THE CAPITAL IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS.

Doings of the Chiefs and Heads of the Various Departments.

Considerable demand is being made on the treasury from New Orleans, St. Louis, Chicago and other western and southwestern points for small notes with which to move the crops. The treasury is well supplied with these denominations and will furnish the points asking for them as rapidly as demanded. The effect will be not only to distribute money among the people, but at the same time to build up the treasury gold reserve by the exchange in which these small notes invariably take part.

Up to Tuesday morning Acting Secretary Adee had received nothing from Minister Denby concerning the information on the Chinese situation contained in the press dispatches. Mr. Adee is exceedingly averse to making any comment on what this absence of official communication signifies, and he would not talk on the subject beyond the remark that nothing had been received by him to show whether or not Mr. Denby was carrying out the instructions sent him by the department.

Uncle Sam's Account.

The corrected official statement of government receipts and expenditures for the past fiscal year has been made public at the treasury department. It places the total receipts at $319,390,075.1; derived from these sources; Customs, $152,158,617; internal revenue, $143,421,673; sales of public land, $1,103,347; miscellaneous, $16,706,438.

Expenditures are stated at $356,195,298, of which $141,395,228 were for pensions. Among the expenditures is an item of $1,136,366, which was placed to the credit of the sinking fund. During the past three years about $8,000,000 has been placed to the credit of this fund. Prior to 1893 the least amount for any one year for a number of years back placed to the credit of this fund exceeded $37,000,000. The exact deficit for 1895 is stated at $43,941,589.61. This is the amount which will go on record.

Denby Heard From.

The state department is in receipt of a cablegram from Minister Denby, in which he states that in response to a request made by him to the Tsung li Yamen, the Taotai, Hsu Hsing-li, has been sent to co-operate with Consul Hixson in investigating the Kutien (Ku Cheng) riots. The rank of the commissioner, who is an intendant of circuit (Taotai) is by treaty equal to that of the consul.

The wording of Mr. Denby's cablegram leads the department to believe that this commissioner has been sent from Pekin, and it is also inferred that Minister Denby has given ample instructions to Consul Hixson and that he is enjoying all the facilities necessary to carry out his instructions at Kutien.

This cable, it is stated, should put to rest the reports that Minister Denby was not carrying out the instructions of acting Secretary Adee, that there was dissatisfaction with him at the state department.

Librarian Spofford Explains.

In view of the construction that has been placed upon Mr. Spofford's statement that he recently paid to the treasury a sum of $22,400 on his accounts the librarian of congress desires that the following explanation be made public. He states that the payment was what he found to be the approximate balance between two accounts—the treasury owing him for several monthly disbursements of library salaries and he owing the treasury copyright fees, the adjustment of which had been delayed by his engrossment in pressing labors, preventing close scrutiny and prompt balancing of accounts. During the entire time of this delay, running from October, 1893, he had continued to pay in the treasury every two or three months copyright fees to the amount of over $55,000 in 1894 and 1895, exclusive of the $22,400 referred to.

This was the plain state of the case, delayed adjustment of accounts and not a shortage, as has been widely reported. He distinctly denied that the recent deposit was to make good any wrongful withholding of moneys due to the government.

Adulterated Ginseng.

The attention of the department of agriculture has recently been called by certain ginseng dealers in New York city to the alleged adulteration of American ginseng with an inferior grade imported from Japan for fraudulent purposes. The American product comes chiefly from the Allegheny mountain region, Pennsylvania, eastern Ohio, New York, Vermont, Wisconsin and Canada. The dried root is purchased by dealers for $2.50 to $4 per pound, the digging of the plant constituting, therefore, in some parts of the United States an important local industry. The export from the United States amounts to about $1,000,000 annually.

If congress goes counter to the intention of Secretary Morton in abolishing the seed division of his office, it will be requested to provide suitable quarters for the conduct of the business. This seed division has occupied the whole of the lower floor of the annex to the agricultural department, and since its abolishment Secretary Morton has had the large room cut up into smaller apartments, where he has located various of the overcrowded offices of the main building. Even with this thinning out of things, the agricultural department is cramped for room. The seed division has thus not only been abolished, but every vestige of its former habitation obliterated.

CHICKAMAUGA NATIONAL PARK.

Secretary Lamont Issues Orders Regarding its Dedication.

Secretary of War Lamont has issued formal orders regarding the national dedication of the Chickamauga and Chattanooga National Military park, which will take place on the 19th and 20th of September. The exercises the first day will be at Snodgrass hill, Chickamauga battlefield, when addresses will be delivered by General John M. Palmer, of Illinois, and General John B. Gordon, of Georgia. On the 20th the exercises will take place in the city of Chattanooga, where the speakers will be General Charles H. Grosvenor, of Ohio, and General William B. Bate, of Tennessee.

The evenings of both days will be devoted to meetings of the veterans of the armies participating in the two battles.

The orders issued extend invitations to all the survivors of the armies that were engaged in the battles of Chickamauga and Chattanooga.

In view of the large attendance which now seems assured, the orders suggest that all who expect to be present make immediate arrangements for quarters.

General J. S. Fullerton, chairman of the commission, is designated as grand marshal of the ceremonies.

The band and one batalion of the Sixth infantry; the band and one battalion of the Seventeenth infantry, and the band and one battallion of the Third artillery are ordered, under the command of the Third artillery, to camp on the field of Chickamauga, about September 1st proximo, and remain until after the ceremonies.

The troops will be employed in preserving order within the park and in the protection of public property.

SHERIFF CAN SHOOT.

Attorney General of Texas Delivers an Opinion as to the Sheriff's Duty.

Attorney General Crane, of Texas, has handed down his opinion in the Corbett-Fitzsimmons prize fighting case in reply to an interrogatory of Sheriff Cabell, of Dallas county, as to whether he had any legal right to shoot down people while attempting to suppress the fight. The attorney general says that in effect the fighters, referees, etc., constitute an unlawful assemblage and the statutes of the state make special provisions for the disbanding of such unlawful assemblages; that the sheriff is empowered to summon a posse or even the militia to his aid, and in case the fighters will not cease their unlawful conduct, then, that the statutes specially provide that homicide is justifiable when absolutely necessary to suppress riot or unlawful gatherings.

The attorney general concludes his opinion by saying that, while he does not believe it necessary, still if it is necessary the statutes provide that the sheriff can use firearms in disbanding any unlawful assemblage.

SLAIN BY RYE SMITH.

Revenged His Father's Death by Killing Fifteen Bannock Indians.

A special from Burns, Ore., says that a courier from Diamond Valley reports the killing of fifteen Bannocks by cattlemen under the leadership of Rye Smith. Smith's reason was revenge for the murder of his father in 1878 in Diamond Valley. There is great excitement in the town and through the country. The forces are ready to march on short notice, and are awaiting orders from the county sheriff for authority to act.

While particulars of the affair are difficult to obtain it is learned that the matter has no bearing on the Jackson's Hole trouble. Ever since Smith's father was killed in 1878 by warriors of the Bannock tribe he has been "on their trail," and not a few have met death at his hands.

Inman Still Missing.

A New York dispatch says: No tidings whatever have been received from Robert W. Inman, who was run down on his sloop, the Adelaide, Monday night by the steamboat Perseus, and it is yet a matter of doubt whether or not he is living. As far as his business associates and friends are concerned, they have given him up as dead. Of the eight occupants of the yacht at the time of the accident, Inman is the only one who has not been accounted for.

The gold reserve in the treasury is just above the hundred million mark, standing at the close of business Wednesday at $100,182,943. A withdrawal of $250,000 in gold at New York for export to Europe and the taking up in the treasurer's cash of $600,000 in gold withdrawn last Monday have caused the decline.

Oil Plant Burned.

The entire Alexandria, (Va.,) plant of the Standard Oil Company, except the tanks, was burned Wednesday morning, including a considerable quantity of oil in barrels. The loss is about $5,000. No insurance.

A RESIDENT of the State of Washington tells the Washington Post, that horses are the most worthless kind of property in the West. He says: "You can hardly give them away. A friend of mine, who used to bring ponies to the East, getting from $25 to $50 apiece for them in New York, Philadelphia and Washington, told me not long since that the business was completely played out, and he could buy all the ponies he wanted for $3 a head." If horseflesh were as much in use for food in this country as in Europe, the beef trust would meet with pretty lively competition about now."

BOODLERS SENT UP.

EX-ALDERMEN OF NEW ORLEANS GET EIGHT MONTHS EACH.

Though Convicted of Perjury Henry Bier to be Released.

A big crowd assembled at the criminal court at New Orleans Monday morning before the opening hour in anticipation of sensational developments. Henri Bier was to have been sentenced on conviction of perjury; Maurice J. Hart was to plead to three of the nine indictments recently found against him; Thomas Haley and Peter B. Caulfield, ex-city boodle councilman convicted of offering to receive a bribe, were to be either granted a new trial or to have sentence imposed upon them, and Charles Barnes was to be placed on trial for murder.

Maurice Hart was arraigned before Judge Moise on two charges of willful perjury. His counsel presented a general demurrer to each of the indictments. He was discharged on his bond until further notified. Haley and Caulfield were then brought before the judge. He had two motions to dispose of in their case—a motion for a new trial and a motion in arrest of judgment. The judge announced that he had decided to refuse both motions and proceeded to sentence the convicted councilmen.

"How long have you been confined in the parish prison?" Judge Moise asked.

"About two months and a half," Haley replied.

"In view of the time you have already been deprived of your liberty, I will sentence each of you to hard labor in the state penitentiary for a term of eight months."

The name of Henri Bier, the convicted capitalist, was not called. This was a great surprise to many who had gone to the court to hear sentence pronounced upon the wealthy stock broker and financier, who had been convicted of the crime of perjury and who had been refused a new trial, but it did not surprise those who had been carefully watching the trend of events of late around the criminal court building. Henry Bier sat in a carriage in charge of a deputy in front of the court house. The reason that he was not called upon for sentence is because District Attorney Butler requested Judge Moise to defer, and it is understood that sentence has been deferred indefinitely. It can be stated as an assured fact that the district attorney will enter a nol pros. in Henri Bier's case which will make him a free man, a man who, although convicted and called for sentence on the crime of perjury, will, in the eyes of the law, be an innocent man, whose testimony will be accepted in a court of justice and whose testimony in cases to be tried in the near future is expected to be of great value and weight.

HEIRS TO A FORTUNE.

General Holt's Will Sent Through the Mails to the Register of Wills.

What purports to be the last will of the late General Joseph Holt, of Kentucky, who died over a year ago, was made public at Washington Monday in a sensational manner. In the mail delivered to the office of the register of wills on Saturday were two or three envelopes which were not opened until Monday morning by Colonel Wright, the register. Among them was one addressed, in crude letters printed in ink, which when opened was found to contain a half-sheet of foolscap paper, the left end of which was burned, but not enough to make the writing illegible. Several small holes were burned in the sides and center of the sheet, but scarcely a word was eliminated. The text of the document was as follows:

"I do hereby devise and bequeath all of my property, both personal and real, to Lizzie Hynds, cousin of my first wife, and to Josephine Holt Throckmorton, who is my godchild, and to their heirs and assigns forever. I do hereby direct that at my death all of my property be divided equally between them.

"Lizzie Hynds is to inherit hers at my death; Josephine at the age of twenty-one. Her father, Major Charles B. Throckmorton, will hold her share in trust. I appoint Mr. Luke Devlin, of Washington, executor.

"Signed and sealed in the presence of the witnesses at Washington February 7, 1873. "J. HOLT.

"Witnesses: Ellen E. E. Sherman, U. S. Grant, W. T. Sherman."

Not one word of explanation accompanied the will and the officials of the register's office are at a loss to account for its appearance. No one who is familiar with the handwriting of General Holt and with the signature of Grant and Sherman doubt the authenticity of the document.

CALIFORNIA WILL BE ENLARGED

The New Survey Will Give Her a Slice of Nevada Territory.

Definite information has reached San Francisco that the resurvey of the boundary line between California and Nevada will result in giving California a strip of country aggregating several hundred square miles. The survey concerns only the boundary line between California and Nevada south of Lake Tahoe.

The Bomb Was Mailed in Paris.

The police of Paris have definitely ascertained that the letter, or infernal machine, which exploded in the office of Baron Rothschild, severely injuring his confidential clerk, posted in the city of Paris.

CONDITION OF COTTON.

Synopsis of Reports Received at the Weather Bureau.

The following is a synopsis of crop conditions for the past week as reported to the weather bureau at Washington by telegrams:

North Carolina: Rainfall generally beneficial except slightly injurious to cotton. Cotton still two weeks late and needs dry, clear weather; not a boll open.

South Carolina: Weather generally favorable except too much rain in places, causing cotton to shed and rust; it is opening freely in southern counties.

Georgia: Too much rain for cotton, which is rusting and shedding.

Florida: Cotton continues unsatisfactory, being ravaged by rust and shedding. Need rain.

Alabama: Cotton improving; is being damaged by rot, rust and worms; picking progressing slowly.

Mississippi: Heavy rains done serious damage to the crop in the lowland and boll worms have injured the plant locally. Picking begun and first bale marketed in southern portion.

Louisiana: Showers of week scattered, but too frequent in sugar and rice belt; interfering with harvesting of rice, corn and hay; worms, shedding and rust in cotton; picking begun; cane generally favorably affected and growing; weather warm; sun fairly abundant.

Texas: Scattered showers have occurred during the week but the amount of rains has not been sufficient to be beneficial except in a few localities; rain is needed for cotton and fall crops; cotton picking has progressed slowly.

Arkansas: Cotton slightly improved, but rain would be highly beneficial.

Tennessee: Cotton beginning to suffer and shedding forms.

A SECOND TIME

MATT RANSOM IS NAMED FOR THE MEXICAN MISSION.

The President Issues a New Commission to Our Minister to Mexico.

The white house mail Tuesday morning bore the commission of Matt W. Ransom to be United States minister to Mexico.

The commission was dated August 24th. This ends a legal complication by which Minister Ransom, after several months' service at his post at the City of Mexico, was declared ineligible to fill the office to which he had been appointed prior to the expiration of his term as United States senator.

It was held by the treasury accounting officers that he fell within a constitutional inhibition against the appointment of congressmen to offices created, or whose emoluments had been increased, during their service in congress. It has been generally understood that Mr. Ransom would be promptly reappointed and the slight delay which has occurred presumably has been for the purpose of definitely ascertaining that there was no more legal or other obstacles in the way of renaming Mr. Ransom to the Mexican mission. The minister was in Washington a few days ago, but is now in North Carolina, recuperating from an attack of illness due in part to the climate of the City of Mexico.

RANSOM TAKES THE OATH.

His Suspended Salary Will be Resumed from Date.

Hon. Matt W. Ransom arrived in Washington Wednesday night, and bright and early Thursday morning appeared at the state department, where he took the oath of office before a notary public to enable him to resume the duties of the Mexican mission. Mr. Ransom's suspended salary will be resumed from the date of the oath.

EXPOSITION ORATOR.

Judge Emory Speer Chosen and Accepts the Honor.

The orator of opening day at the exposition has been chosen. Judge Emory Speer has been selected and has accepted.

The brilliant jurist was settled upon as the orator of the day after a long and careful deliberation by the exposition board of directors. The selection was made some days ago, but the action of the directors was not made public until Judge Speer's letter of acceptance was received.

The following is Judge Speer's reply to the invitation:

MT. AIRY, GA., August 28, 1895.

HON. C. A. COLLIER, President and Director General:

MY DEAR SIR—I have your letter of the 26th inst., forwarded to me from Macon, in which you inform me that the board of directors of the exposition have selected me as orator for the occasion of the opening ceremonies on September 18th next.

I beg you to convey to the board my high sense of the honor they have conferred. I accept with pleasure their invitation so kindly and cordially supported by your own expression. Indeed, I am unaffectedly happy to be connected with an occasion auspicious for Georgia and the south, and instinct with the vitality and patriotism of your great, broad-minded municipality. With cordial regard,

Faithfully yours,
EMORY SPEER.

THE future does not come from before to meet us, but comes streaming up from behind over our heads.

BISSELL REFUSES

TO ACCEPT A PLACE ON THE SUPREME COURT BENCH.

Mr. Cleveland Offers the Vacant Place to His Old Law Partner.

A special from Buffalo, N. Y., says: It is learned on authority, which is regarded as absolutely reliable, that ex-Postmaster General Wilson S. Bissell has been offered the place on the United States supreme court bench, made vacant by the death of Justice Jackson.

The information came from a close friend of Mr. Bissell, and it is stated that the ex-postmaster general himself revealed the secret before he left Buffalo early this week.

Mr. Bissell, so it was stated, received a communication direct from Mr. Cleveland, making an unconditional proffer of the appointment. The communication further asked Mr. Bissell to come to see him concerning the matter. Mr. Bissell, it is also stated, declared he would not take the appointment. In giving his reasons for declining the honor, he is stated to have said:

"I have tried Washington life under favorable circumstances, and I prefer Buffalo. I do not care to return to Washington, and the offer of the judgeship will not tempt me to do it. I will go to see Mr. Cleveland, but I will not accept the office. I do not want it. I would rather stay in Buffalo."

Inquiry at the office of Bissell, Sicard, Bissell & Carey, revealed that Mr. Bissell had gone to Marion, on Buzzard's Bay, [illegible] miles from Gray Gables, Mr. Cleveland's summer home.

DEMOCRATS MEET.

The State Executive Committee in Session at Atlanta.

The Georgia state democratic executive committee met at Atlanta Thursday morning to take measures for the assistance of the democrats of the tenth district. Chairman Steve Clay called the meeting to order.

Roll call showed the following members present:

A. W. Fite, Cartersville; B. M. Blackburn, Atlanta; G. C. Crenshaw, Griffin; W. H. Love, Tifton; C. R. Warren, Hawkinsville; F. E. Dunson, LaGrange; B. H. Richardson, Columbus; C. F. Hayden, Atlanta; Richard Johnson, Atlanta; C. H. Brand, Lawrenceville; John J. Black, Clark Howell and F. H. Richardson, proxy for J. E. Wooten.

Mr. Clay said that he had called the committee together to consider the state of affairs in the Tenth district. Success in the tenth, he said, meant democratic success elsewhere, and defeat there would be disastrous throughout the state.

A letter from Mr. Henry C. Hammond, of Augusta, the president of the young men's democratic club, was then read. The letter pointed out the great need of assistance, and gave a review of the situation that was calculated to stir up the members of the committee and democrats everywhere. After the letter had been read, senator Walsh arose to make a statement. He urged on the committee the necessity for prompt action and announced his willingness to assist in any manner that the committee thought best.

After some further discussion it was decided that the committee should assist as much as possible and committees were named to visit the various cities and towns and see what could be done.

After authorizing the chairman to fill two vacancies the committee adjourned.

KNIGHTS ELECT OFFICERS.

Sir Warden Thomas is Grand Master. The Next Meeting in Pittsburg.

A dull, grey sky and rain-soaked earth discouraged the Knights Templars when they turned out for the day Thursday. Black and white plumes and tightly-fitting uniform coats gave way rapidly to fatigue caps and business suits, and the Sir Knights settled down to systematic sight-seeing.

The session of the grand encampment was reopened at Masonic Temple at 10 a. m., when the election of officers was taken up. The grand encampment elected Right Eminent Sir Warren Larue Thomas, of Kentucky, as grand master to succeed Most Eminent Sir Hugh McCurdy. Three hundred and one votes were cast, of which the successful candidate received 295. Very Eminent Sir Reuben H. Lloyd, of San Francisco, was elected deputy grand commander.

Other officers elected were: Grand generalissimo, Very Eminent Sir Henry B. Stoddard, of Texas; grand captain general, Very Eminent Sir George M. Moulton, of Illinois; grand senior warden, Very Eminent Sir Henry W. Rugg, of Rhode Island; grand junior warden, Very Eminent Sir W. B. Melish, of Cincinnati; grand treasurer, Very Eminent Sir H. Wales Lines, of Meriden, Conn.

The encampment decided upon Pittsburg as the next conclave city.

To Sell the Central.

Judge Pardee, of the United States circuit court, has appointed three commissioners to sell the Central railroad of Georgia. They are A. E. Buck and Clarance Angier, of Atlanta, and George S. Owens, of Savannah. The date of this sale was not fixed, but it will be about October 1st.

Texas Fever in Kansas.

CLANTON ALA. SEPT. 5 [illegible]

The farmers are rushing cotton into market as fast as it can be gathered.

The Populists might go a long way and not find better timber for Gubernatorial nomination than Rev. P. M. Adams of Bibb.

I. L. Peck, President of the Farmers State Alliance publishes that that body will meet in Clanton Tuesday Sept. 17th. A convention of the Trustee Stockholders of the Alliance Exchange will also be held here at that time.

Many of our people have been led to believe that we would never again have prosperity until we get free coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1. Yet cotton is advancing and so is iron, while the necessities of life are becoming cheaper. The whole country is taking on a more hopeful feeling.

The silver Democrats in their recent meeting in Washington determined that their plan shall be to remain inside of the Democratic party. Every financial and economic measure can best be settled by Democrats remaining in harmony. Men ought to be able to differ on politics and yet remain friends.

The committee on ceremonial days for the Cotton States and International Exposition has under consideration the programme for the opening exercises on September 18th, and it has already been arranged that President Cleveland shall touch the button at Gray Gables, setting the machinery in motion and unfurling the flags on the Exposition buildings. The committee is now arranging for the principal address to be delivered by an orator of national reputation whose name is not yet made public. The board of [illegible] has directed the committee on ceremonial days to issue an invitation to Booker W. Washington, President of the Tuskegee (Alabama) Normal and Industrial Institute, to take part in the exercises of the opening day, and to deliver an address on that occasion, thus recognizing the negro race in the official programme.

[illegible] Mr. [illegible] K[illegible], a prominent [illegible] of Des Moines, Iowa, had quite a serious [illegible], but the prompt use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy cured him of his cold so quickly that others at the hotel who had colds followed his example and half a dozen persons ordered it from the nearest drug store. They were profuse in their thanks to Mr. K[illegible] for telling them how to cure a bad cold so quickly. For sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and McNeil [illegible] Jemison, Ala.

The boycott instituted by the Wholesale Grocers Association, against the Louisville and Nashville R. R. Company [illegible] to the bottom [illegible] that the [illegible] Chattanooga [illegible] higher rates for long [illegible] to buy in car load lots. The wholesale grocers who [illegible] the [illegible] and [illegible] the advantage which they are seeking to force the L. & N. to give. Our small merchants ought not to be forced to buy from Southern wholesale [illegible] as they are now [illegible] to do. Were the boycott to succeed the real hurt would fall on the masses who must buy of the retailers.

A. M. Bailey, a well known citizen of Eugene, Oregon, says his wife has for four years been troubled with chronic diarrhoea and tried many remedies with little relief until she tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which has cured her sound and well. Give it a trial and you will be surprised at the prompt relief it affords. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and Smith and McNeill, Jemison, Ala.

LEGISLATION AND PRICES.

Laws of Trade More Powerful Than the Laws of Nations.

The Iowa Democrats on Aug. 7 declared against free coinage of silver at 16 to 1 by an overwhelming majority. The following is a short quotation from the speech of Hon. Nathaniel French, chairman of the convention:

"At what ratio shall we coin the metals so that a dollar of one will equal a dollar of the other in intrinsic and exchangeable value? When we want to know how much things are worth, we go to the markets and find out. We don't hunt up a congressman to ask the value of eggs or spring chickens or grain or anything else, or if congress has declared what their value shall be. We know that the mere declaration of congress, or even a constitutional amendment, could not fix the price of a single egg. In like manner, if we want to know how many ounces of silver an ounce of gold is worth, we must go to the bullion markets instead of the revised statutes. Thomas Jefferson could not have won and kept for [illegible] years the leadership of the common people if he had not been endowed with an abundance of common sense and [illegible] years ago, when [illegible] views as to the ratio to adopt for the coinage of gold and silver, he said: 'Disregard legal proportions altogether. Inquire into the market price.' He knew that opinions should not [illegible] could not be controlled by legislation. He knew that the basic laws of trade were more powerful than the laws of nations and that the multiplication table could not be altered by statute.

"To so coin gold and silver that both shall circulate together by reason of parity of value we must follow Jefferson's advice and inquire the price of gold and silver in the markets of the world. If we find one ounce of gold will buy 32 ounces of silver, that is the ratio to adopt. To put in the silver dollar more than 32 grains of silver for each grain of gold in the gold dollar would at once drive our silver money from circulation, and to put in less would banish our gold. The loss of either would be a misfortune, and to retain both we must adopt the mercantile ratio, putting in each coin no more and no less than is needed to make one of equal value to the other."

A MISSOURI STORY.

Uncle Billy Doesn't Agree With His Free Silver Neighbor.

Anent the silver question comes a good story from over in the "kingdom" of Callaway. In one of the most fertile sections of the "kingdom" lives Uncle Billy ——. He is a character in his way, and a prosperous, hardworking man, with grain in his barns, fat horses, sleek cattle and blooded sheep and hogs in his pasture, and money to his credit in the bank. He attends to his crops and has no time to sit on the fence and discuss silver. A neighbor of his, who is a rampant Populist and silver advocate, passed his place the other day. He accosted Uncle Billy as follows:

"Well, Uncle Billy, when do you think we will have better times?"

"Have you got any fat cattle?" asked Uncle Billy.

"No."

"Have you got any sheep?"

"No."

"Have you got any fat hogs?"

"Hardly enough to make my meat."

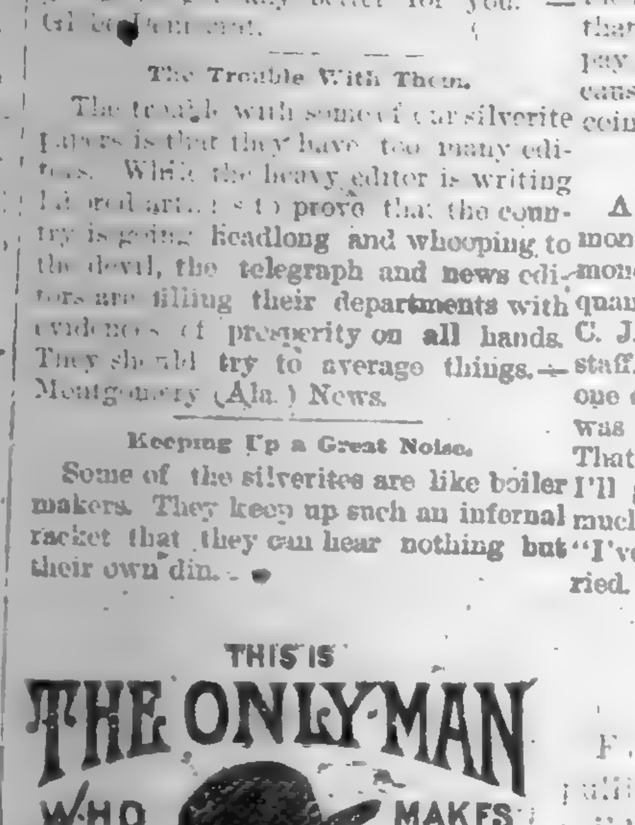
"Well," said Uncle Billy reflectively, "I'll be d—— if I see how times are going to get any better for you."—Globe-Democrat.

The Trouble With Them.

The trouble with some of our silverite papers is that they have too many editors. While the heavy editor is writing labored articles to prove that the country is going headlong and whooping to the devil, the telegraph and news editors are filling their departments with evidences of prosperity on all hands. They should try to average things.—Montgomery (Ala.) News.

Keeping Up a Great Noise.

Some of the silverites are like boiler makers. They keep up such an infernal racket that they can hear nothing but their own din.



CONCERNING FREE SILVER.

Some Historical Facts For 16 to 1 ers to Masticate.

In his recent sound money speech at Hillsboro, Tex., Judge Rufus Hardy cited the following historical facts:

The United States today has a larger circulation per capita than any free coinage country ever did have.

It has more gold dollars per capita than any free coinage country on earth today has of all kinds of money.

It has more silver dollars per capita than any free silver country today.

It has more gold than silver, and the volume of its silver circulation is greater per capita than the entire circulation—of gold, silver and paper reduced to silver—of any free coinage nation.

The United States under a gold standard—since 1878—has maintained a greater circulation per capita than it ever did before.

There has been five times more silver coined under the gold standard, from 1873 till now, 22 years, than there was under free coinage from 1792 to 1873, [illegible] years.

Every nation that has adopted the gold standard, except one or two who are on depreciated paper bases, has increased its circulation.

No nation of first class civilization has the silver standard.

Mexico is the highest type of free silver nation on earth on double standard, and its per capita circulation is $4.71.

Our per capita circulation has increased since 1873 more than the entire circulation of Mexico.

The wages of no free silver country on earth average a third of those in the United States.

No country on earth has in practice a double (gold and silver) standard.

No country for 200 years (since commerce became international) ever has in practice had a double standard.

The proposition that there can be but one standard is in fact self evident. (Carlisle and Mr. Ingham, secretary of treasury in 1830 under Jackson.)

Both metals under free coinage have never circulated concurrently and indiscriminately in any country where there are banks and money dealers. (Select committee of house under Jackson in 1832.)

The overvalued metal under free coinage drives out the other. (Benton, 1834.)—Benton (Tex.) Mirror.

Senator Turpie a Blind Leader.

Senator Turpie of Indiana tries to break the force of what is known as the "hammer test" of money—that is, the fact that a gold coin beaten out of shape retains its value, while a silver coin treated in the same way loses half its value—by claiming that, on account of the one-tenth alloy a $10 goldpiece would only be worth $9 if it were put under the hammer. Senator Turpie ought to know better than to delude his followers with such misleading nonsense. The weight of the pure gold in a $10 coin is the same as in an ingot worth $10. The alloy has nothing to do with the value of our gold coins, as any jewelry manufacturer who melts down double eagles for use in his business can tell the Indiana statesman. It is the 23 2-10 grains of gold which constitute the value of the standard dollars of 25 8-10 grains, and that weight of gold is worth just as much when the coin containing it is melted or hammered out of shape. Thousands of $10 and $20 pieces are melted every year for use in the arts. Does Senator Turpie suppose that business men are foolish enough to pay $10 for $9 worth of gold merely because it happens to be in the form of a coin?

Cheap Money—Dear Horses.

A good illustration of the sound money principle that the quality of money is far more important than the quantity is found in a story of Colonel C. J. Villere of General Beauregard's staff. Riding up to a group of cavalry one day toward the close of the war, he was accosted with: "Hello, Villere! That's a mighty fine horse you've got. I'll give you $10,000 for him." "Not much, you won't!" replied the colonel. "I've just paid $1,000 to have him curried."

Bro. J. G. Lowery came to our little burg, bringing with him some of the good brethren of Mulberry and after four days of earnest preaching (the Methodists people very kindly giving them the use of their church building) baptised 9 into the fellowship of Mulberry and 3 others declared their intention of connecting themselves with Ebenezer at next opportunity.

There was a greater number up for prayer at the last meeting than any previous time. Pressing duties, however, at other points compelled Bro. Lowery to close the meeting, which should have continued, on account of the interest manifested by the unsaved. Any pastor who can bring along with him, such earnest Christian helps as Bros. Rasberry, Flemming, Ellars and Latham, need not expect anything but a blessing from the Lord.

ALL DEBTORS NOT DISHONEST.

Free Silver Means That Creditors Are to Lose 50 Per Cent.

Is the proposition for "free silver at 16 to 1" expedient and honest?

Stripped of verbiage, the proposition is for this government to embark in the immediate and unlimited coinage of silver dollars, each dollar to contain approximately 50 cents worth of silver bullion; to discard all provisions for guaranteeing the concurrent circulation and parity of gold and silver, and to compel by law the acceptance of the new dollars in payment of all debts.

The object is to reduce the value of the dollar about one-half, and by forcing creditors to take this dollar for debts to scale all existing obligations. The only exception will be where the shrewd creditor has stipulated for payment in gold. Such creditor will be paid in full, but the unsuspecting man or woman who has merely trusted to the honor of the nation is to be "done up," just in proportion as the dollar is scaled.

The Populists are solid for this scheme. It's in their line of business. They are opposed to a dollar having any intrinsic value, but if they must have a dollar worth anything at all the less it is worth the better it suits them. Very few Republicans take any stock in the scheme, and the more it is studied the sooner it will be dropped by all thinking men.

The agitators assume, because Kansas people are in debt, that every Kansas man ought to join in the clamor for such dollars. I deny that it is the duty of any man, because he lives in Kansas and is in debt, to favor a scheme which his conscience tells him is wrong.

I am as much in debt as the average Kansan, but I cannot see why this fact should blind the conscience or destroy the ability of a man to reason on such questions. I believe in bimetallism, and in the use of the largest volume of silver as standard money which can be maintained at a parity with our gold and paper money, so that all of our dollars will be equal for all purposes. But the Harvey programme is merely a scheme to scale our standard dollar—in which all contracts have been made—for the purpose of robbing creditors.

If these agitators simply wanted to cheapen the dollars for use in future business transactions, they would advocate a law making the new dollars legal tender for future debts only. But that's not what they want. They insist that these new cheap dollars must be made a legal tender for all debts.

I am opposed to that because it is dishonest. If anybody can prove that it is honest, I will be glad to be for it. But he must prove it by some better argument than the threadbare assertion that John Sherman conspired with the Rothschilds to rob innocent people 20 years ago, for even if that idiotic statement were true it would be no reason why you and I should conspire to rob a much larger number of equally innocent people today.—George E. Douglass in Kansas City Star.

"But, grandma, what long, stiff ears you have got?"

"The better to hear what you say, my darling," said the wolf, and his eyes glared greener than ever.

"What large green eyes you have got, grandma!" said little Red Riding Hood, so frightened she knew not what to say.

"The better to see you with, my child," chuckled the wolf, showing his ugly teeth.

"Grandma, what a large mouth, and, oh, what big teeth you have got!"

"Ah, ah, ah, the better to tear you to pieces and eat you with," said the wolf, throwing off his disguise.

The Song of Silver.

Osiris and Zeus and Odin, all gods of the land and the sea,
And Pan, so beloved of the ancients, could not "hold a candle" to me,
For I am acclaimed for vast worship in spite of my present birth,
With the scepter I lift for your homage I propose to enrich the earth.

Is not Mexico blessed by my banner, and China my prophetess too?
Is there ever a lack of white rupees held back from the heathen Hindoo?
The reason strong nations deride me and will not come into my fold,
Is because the cantankerous English "stuck" on the value of gold.

I hate that pernicious intruder of yellow Mongolian hue,
And "the deuce" I shall raise when my minions secure that joint standard of "two."
We call it a scheme of great promise, for the people delightfully planned,
But you'll notice when once it is going it is I who will govern the land.

If the public is anxious to prosper and revel in dollars galore,
Unless it be copper and iron, what metal can multiply more?
It is true the bright leaves of October if backed by the government's word,
Might outdo me a little—but that would (perhaps) be a trifle absurd.

I think my apostles have shown what a glorious queen I should be
Had they not themselves taken a part in "the crime of the year '73;"
For if congress had sworn to my value and clung to the cult that was old
I shouldn't be kicked now from contracts my courtiers themselves write in gold.

Let my foes call me "it" if they wish to, like things that inanimate be,
My lackeys know better and bow to the lustrous, adorable "She."
I'm not in their eyes merely neuter, a part of the rocks and the ground;
I'm a being you mustn't "dishonor," a queen to be coddled and crowned.

—Joel Benton in Harper's Weekly.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher is on every wrapper.

Worthy of Trial—That is the Opinion of Mr. A. E. Thornton

"I think it is best not to hide a light under bushels, and when a good remedy is discovered it is our duty to let it be known in the interest of suffering humanity.

"I have been suffering with indigestion and dyspepsia. I tried all the various remedies as well as several eminent physicians, but without avail. I was induced by a friend to try Tyner's Dyspepsia Remedy and the first dose relieved me. Yours is a grand remedy for indigestion and dyspepsia. It builds up, and I recommend it as worthy of trial by all who wish to be cured." For sale by all druggists.

KNIGHTS IN LINE.

IMPOSING PARADE OF TEMPLARS IN THE CITY OF BOSTON.

Gorgeous Costumes and Thousands of Glittering Banners.

Seven hundred and fifty thousand people saw the parade of over 25,000 Sir Knights Templar at Boston Tuesday, and with one accord pronounced it the grandest pageant ever witnessed in the city.

Early morning scenes in the city streets were inspiring. Tens of thousands of Knights Templars, resplendent in uniforms and regalias, hastened hither and thither to join their commanderies in preparation for the march. Early morning trains and street cars poured other tens of thousands of visitors from surrounding places into Boston's already overcrowded thoroughfares.

Boston has seldom, if ever, been so elaborately decorated. Practically every building along the line of march, besides many of the side streets, were clothed in color, with appropriate mottoes and Masonic emblems intertwined with streamers and bunting.

At a signal of three guns, the first division took up the line of march, other divisions following successively as the heads of their representative columns were uncovered by the division immediately preceding them.

The column was reviewed at Columbus square by M. W. E. B. Holmes, grand master of Masons of Massachusetts. The column was reviewed at Blackstone square, Washington street, by M. E. Grand Master Hugh McCurdy and officers and members of the grand encampment Knights Templars of the United States, and his excellency Governor Greenhalge.

By 9 o'clock the whole city was brilliant with the banners and uniforms of the Templars and the air was tingling with stirring music of a hundred splendid bands, numbering among them some of the largest and best in this country.

Every commandery was headed by a band and the instant that one stopped playing another would strike up and the music from the crest of the hill rang out in splendid style.

Membership by States.

The report of the grand recorder, William E. Isaacs, Jr., shows that there are 961 regular commanderies, and 39 under the jurisdiction of the grand body. The membership of the former is 103,541, and of the latter 3,229. The increase since 1892 is commanderies, 87; membership, 3,979. Since the last conclave there have been knighted 20,748; admitted, 3,572; recorded, 878; deceased, 4,228; dimited, 5,957; suspended, 4,509; expelled, 103.

The report of the grand treasurer, R. Wales Lyles, shows receipts of $29,417, and disbursements of $15,495. The net cash resources are $30,302.

NEW TRIAL REFUSED.

Judge Hart Refuses Counsel's Application in the Myers Case.

Judge John C. Hart, of the Oconee circuit, presiding in Fulton county supreme court at Atlanta, refused to grant a new trial to Will Myers, convicted of the murder of Forest L. Crowley. The case will now go to the supreme court on a bill of exceptions to be heard at the October term, unless that tribunal, which has already passed upon the case once, grants him another hearing, Myers will probably hang before Christmas.

Judge Hart rendered his decision without hearing argument, immediately after the affidavits had been read. The prisoner's counsel presented a number of affidavits alleging the discovery of evidence to establish the identity of the notorious "Brown Allen," as well as other grounds.

The sensational feature was the affidavit of J. J. Rowe and L. N. Mercier, who accused attorney W. C. Glenn of tampering with the jury. These affidavits were met by counter affidavits from all the jurors and others, and in passing upon the case Judge Hart said that he desired to state so that it go into the record that he had seen the whole transaction upon which the affidavits were founded and there was nothing in it in the remotest degree resembling an attempt to unduly influence the jury. Rowe and Mercier are both being prosecuted on account of their affidavits.

Thirteen Miners Drowned.

Water broke the wall separating the abandoned workings of the Bobtain tunnel property and the Sleepy Hollow and Americus mines at Central City, Col., Thursday afternoon and caught thirteen miners before they could be warned of their danger.

ACCORDING to Professor Baird, there is now in the imperial aquarium of St. Petersburg a pike that first saw the light at the close of the fifteenth century. He still appears to be quite a young fellow, notwithstanding his centuries and his long captivity. The Professor says that there is nothing very extraordinary in this case, and he mentions several other fishes in the same aquarium that are more than 150 years old. Who knows but what the age of eels is still greater? Nobody can fix the date of their nativity, and the chances of their longevity, considering their regular habits, are certainly as good as those of the pike. What a moral there is here for temperance lecturers! Eels and pike never drink whisky and never chew tobacco. There is nothing like cold water for making a fellow live long.

ACCORDING to a Chicago paper the use of bicycles by farmers in sections where the road supervisor supervises is growing quite common. City wheelmen who are given to cross-country runs frequently meet men pedaling home from town with a good-sized collection of groceries strapped to the handle bar. Sometimes a home made carrier, consisting mostly of rope, is used, and sometimes the wire and leather arrangements which are kept for sale among other bicycle accessories. The problem presented by punctures and other mishaps which the wheel is heir to are not serious ones, as every well regulated farm has its own repair shop, and the farmer makes up in ingenuity what he lacks in tools.

PEACE rules the day, where reason rules the mind.

MONEY TO MOVE CROPS.

Notice Sent Out by the Acting U. S. Treasurer.

Tuesday Acting United States Treasurer Meline sent this notice to the assistant United States treasurer at New York:

"For deposits of gold coin or United States notes, in sums of $500 or multiples thereof, made with the assistant treasurer of the United States in New York, like sums of paper currency (less charges for transportation at bankers' express rates) of the denominations of $5, $10 and $20, or of the denominations of $1 and $2, as available at the time of application, will be sent by express to the order of the depository from the treasury at Washington. For deposits made early in the day the remittance will go forward the same day."

The purpose is to facilitate the forwarding of small bills to interior points with which to move crops. As soon as money is deposited in the subtreasury in New York, the treasurer will be notified by telegraph and the bills will be shipped the same day for the destination named in New York. The treasury department has also arranged for the transfer by telegraph of money deposited in New York to New Orleans for the movement of the cotton crop.

Preparations are in progress at the war department to secure the incorporation of another star on the United States flags to represent Utah. The flags having the additional star are not authorized to be used until July 4, 1896, the date of the admission of Utah as a state, and an official order will be issued requiring the change, to take effect on that date.

TO FINISH THE PANAMA CANAL.

A Syndicate of Americans Formed for That Purpose.

An item published in the last issue of The Mercantile and Financial Times, of New York and Chicago, stated that Mr. Philip Weigel, Jr., was at the head of a syndicate of three Americans, representing $100,000,000, who proposed to complete the Panama canal. Mr. Weigel said that he and two other Americans had formed a syndicate to purchase the entire interests in the property of the Panama Interocean and Canal Company. The syndicate proposed to buy all the titles and begin the work of completing the canal with $100,000,000 capital within eighteen months, when all the rights and grants held by the present company will have expired.

Mr. Weigel says the plans have been maturing three years and are perfected. The syndicate is simply waiting for the rights of the present company to expire. Mr. Weigel claims that negotiations are now pending with the Columbian government. He refuses to disclose the names of the other capitalists or to give the present status of the plan. He says, however, that one member of the syndicate lives in Savannah, Ga., and the other at Colon. He emphatically declare that the plan is not chimerical, but is well founded and financially sound. No bonds are to be issued.

Mr. Weigel is a hardware and iron merchant and is prominent throughout the state. He made a fortune in this city, where he has a reputation for reliability and good business judgment.

TO MURDER ROTHSCHILD

A Bomb is Received in His Mail and His Private Clerk Badly Hurt.

Excitement continues at fever heat at Paris over the attempt upon the life of Baron Alphonse de Rothschild, the Paris head of the greatest banking firm in the world.

A large, heavy envelope was received at the bank addressed to the baron, and was opened by M. Jodkowitz, the confidential clerk of the well known banker.

Just as the clerk tore open the envelope it exploded with great force, tearing his right eye out and blowing off some of his fingers.

When he inserted his penknife in in the cover of the package the edge of the knife caught upon something, since ascertained to have been a string concealed in the envelope. The act of cutting this string exploded a cap which ignited the fulminate of mercury.

The bank itself was not damaged, and very little damage was done to the private office in which the clerk opened the strange package.

The efforts of the police to discover the sender of the package have proved unavailing. The authorities, however, are confident that it was the work of anarchists and thirty suspected anarchists have been arrested, examined and forced to give the police specimens of their handwriting. They were subsequently discharged.

POPULAR SCIENCE.

Some naturalists say that the whale was once a land animal that took to the water for safety.

An English inventor has devised an automatic air brake, in which the weight of the train supplies the power to set the brakes.

A small electric lamp is being used instead of a bell in some telephone exchanges in England. The call for connection lights the lamps.

Cinnamon tea is recommended as a beverage for people who dwell in malarial districts. It is also used as a preventive of typhoid fever.

The highest temperature of the world is recorded in the great desert of Africa, where the thermometer often marks 150 degrees Fahrenheit.

In the hope of overcoming the tendency to slip, bicycle tires are now being made from the rough skins of sharks, spotted dog and other fishes.

Buffon declared that one hundred years of life was what Providence intended for man, but the intention for the most part has not been carried out.

The orange and the lemon are both said to be fatal to the cholera bacillus. Placed in contact with the cut surface of the fruit the bacteria survive but a few hours.

The new Odd Fellows' crematory at San Francisco was tested recently for the first time. A body weighing 180 pounds was reduced to ashes in an hour and a half.

A process has now been discovered by which decayed teeth can be stopped with aluminium. Dentists have unsuccessfully experimented with this metal for years.

The Numismatical Society of London has awarded its silver medal to Professor Mommsen, in acknowledgment of the great services rendered by him to numismatic science.

The first of the locomotives for the Snowdon Mountain Railway has just arrived at Liverpool. This locomotive will soon be at work taking passengers to the summit of the monarch of the Welsh mountains.

The apple is an excellent brain food, because it contains more phosphoric acid in easily digestible shape than any other vegetable known. It excites the action of the liver, promotes sound and healthful sleep, and thoroughly disinfects the mouth.

The milk of the reindeer and its cheese product are said to be most excellent for all lung diseases. The natives, who live largely on the same, are remarkably free from all forms of disease and among the hardiest and most robust people in the world.

Suspended Railways.

Among the novelties in rapid transit which are attracting attention are those where the cars are suspended from a framework on which small trucks run on properly arranged tracks. The idea is perhaps conveyed by likening them to an ordinary sliding door running on wheels after the fashion of ordinary barn doors, except that the wheels are set under a little box frame or truck. There are four to a truck, and a truck for either end of a car. The cars are run by electricity or gas motors. They are easy to ride in, they make very little noise and go around curves with the greatest ease. Trial lines have already been set up in Europe, and those who have investigated them are loud in their praise. Fifty persons can be carried in a car, and there are numerous stations. The line is to be operated on the block system, and by an automatic process each car shuts off its own current at a certain point, and as the cars in one direction all run on a given line, there seems very little chance of a collision. On one line, a portion of which is already built for trial, the cars are suspended sixteen feet above the surface of the ground. There are stops at suitable intervals where passengers may alight. This leaves the street entirely free from the annoyance of trolleys or tracks. There is neither smoke nor dust, nor noise sufficient to be in the least annoying. A project also includes a third line, designed to meet emergencies. In case an accident happens to a car or motor or anything gets out of gear, the third or inspection car is brought into requisition, takes passengers from the disabled car and either conveys them to their destination or transfers them to another car. An additional advantage of this form of transit is that there is no delay or necessity for stopping for passing vehicles, as on the ordinary tramcar, no danger of accidents to passengers and none of the frightful mortality results with which the American public is becoming quite too familiar.—New York Ledger.

A Novel Mail Service.

News has just been received from the remote island of St. Kilda in a somewhat strange form. On Sunday a tin canister, properly caulked and containing ten letters, including four for Glasgow, three for Harris and two for England, was found drifted ashore on the island of Burra, to the west of Shetland.

The full amount of postage in cash was enclosed, together with a note dated "St. Kilda, N. B., March 1, 1895," and signed "Findlay Gillies," which requested the finder of the canister to forward the letters by post, as they were on business. It also contained an intimation that all were well on the island, that very stormy weather had been experienced during the winter, and that no births, deaths or marriages had to be recorded since last year. The distance from St. Kilda to the Shetlands, it may be noted, is 300 miles, and in accomplishing this journey, the strange post-box occupied three months and nine days.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Borrowed Small Change for Robbers.

It takes a woman's wit to get the better of train robbers. While the highwaymen were taking up their little collection on the Oregon express the other day, an old lady at the rear end of the car asked a gentleman near her to loan her a little change. Four dollars were handed to her, which she gave the robbers when asked for her money. After the affair was over, the old lady repaid the loan from the purse of gold she had "held up" by her adroit trick.—Los Angeles (Cal.) Herald.

Love in Kansas.

A man in love, with few opportunities, doesn't care how many people are watching him. Under a tree at Forest Park yesterday there sat a girl with a pink dress trimmed in blue ribbons, and a young man who felt very awkward in his best clothes. Their love story was evidently new, as they didn't see a thing going on around them, and within a space of forty minutes had kissed each other thirty-seven times by actual count. Fully fifty people kept tally. They were first seen under the tree at 9 in the morning, and were still there long after milking time. They had nothing to eat or drink all day, but looked contented and happy. The balloon passed right over their heads, but they didn't see it. We wonder if they are still there, and if they know that it rained.—Atchison Globe.

Housekeeping and Homemaking.

Housekeeping is not always homemaking, and the modern woman is beginning to find it out. To live for the house and its glory is one mode of existence. Another mode is to make the house exist for the sake of the people who are to adorn it. The former is housekeeping; the latter is homemaking. You can discern the difference between a home and a house directly on entering a domicile if you are half way observant. You can tell by the books and the tidies and the arrangement of the divans and the pillows and the lamps. The real state of things is in the atmosphere and is as discernible as though written on the wall.

Still Shivering.

"People talk a good deal about how hot it is," said the man who was out of politics.

"Of course they do at this time of year."

In Our Great Grandfather's Time, big bulky pills were in general use. Like the "blunderbuss" of that decade they were big and clumsy, but ineffective. In this century of enlightenment, we have Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, which cure all liver, stomach and bowel derangements in the most effective way.

If people would pay more attention to properly regulating the action of their bowels, by the use of these little "Pellets" they would have less frequent occasion to call for their doctor's services to subdue attacks of dangerous diseases. The "Pellets" cure sick and bilious headache, constipation, indigestion, bilious attacks and kindred derangements of liver, stomach and bowels.

How weak

the soap and water seems when you begin your washing! You don't get any strength out of it till the work is about done. Plenty of hard work and rubbing and wear and tear, even then—but more of it at the beginning; when the water is weakest.

Now with Pearline, the water is just as strong at the beginning as at the end. This is one of the reasons (only one) why Pearline acts so much better than soap, in all washing and cleaning. Use no soap with it.

Gold Reserve Dropping Lower.

At the close of business Wednesday the treasury gold reserve stood at $99,175,172. This figure was reached just before the end of the day's business by the syndicate depositing $2,-[illegible] gold. Prior to 3 o'clock Assistant Treasurer Jordan reported $1,700,-[illegible] withdrawn at New [illegible] for export to Europe, [illegible] report was received [illegible] reserve had fallen below the $100,000,000 mark, standing [illegible] 17,172. On the treasurer's [illegible] to move the reserve limit, [illegible] withdrawals on Monday had [illegible] up. Tuesday the gold [illegible] was all day below the limit to [illegible] of $1,000,000. This fact was not known at the treasury, how[illegible] was generally understood, [illegible] officially reported, that [illegible] 000 in gold deposited by [illegible] Loan and Trust Company [illegible] the syndicate account.

Did Not Die of Cholera.

[illegible] General Wyman, of the marine hospital service, has instituted a [illegible] investigation into the facts in regard to the arrival of the steamer Belgic [illegible] San Francisco. This is the [illegible] that is supposed to have [illegible] the reinfected Chinese and [illegible] to Honolulu and then to have [illegible] to San Francisco, where her steerage passengers passed the quarantine officials and were landed. Press reports stated that the Belgic landed [illegible] Francisco with three dead Chinese in the steerage, all of whom had [illegible] from cholera August 31st.

[illegible] General Wyman wired Dr. [illegible], in charge of the marine hospital at San Francisco, giving him an [illegible] of the press dispatches, and directing him to investigate them. A reply was received from Mr. Godfrey stating that these Chinese did not die from cholera. No evidence has been adduced tending to show that there was cholera on the Belgic at any time either before or after leaving China, [illegible] the marine hospital service, taking the worst view and acting upon the supposition that cholera did exist, is [illegible] into the whole matter thoroughly and within a few days all the [illegible] passengers will be located.

Testing Armor Plate.

[illegible] ordnance board conducted [illegible] important and successful [illegible] Indian Head proving grounds [illegible]day. Primarily it was a test [illegible] armor plate, but really one of great importance, as it was a trial of the strength of the frames of modern warships, which, it has been claimed, [illegible] not withstand the shock caused [illegible] heavy projectiles against the [illegible] covering them—some authorities even going so far as to assert that the armor, if not shattered [illegible] penetrated by the shot, [illegible] driven through the vessel by the crushing of the frames. This was the first frame test ever made of distinctly modern warships, though the English government some years ago [illegible] fired at an antiquated armored vessel for the purpose of observing the effect of the shot. Wednesday's experiment demonstrated the fact that the [illegible] of our warships are perfectly [illegible] meet all ordinary demands. It [illegible] demonstrated that the new four[illegible] armor with which the new battleship will be protected can, under [illegible] circumstances, receive the fire [illegible] naval vessel afloat without serious [illegible]. A test was also made of [illegible] bolt designed by the ordnance board to replace the bolts [illegible] in fastening armor ships, which are weighty, cumbersome and [illegible]. [illegible] of the three tests [illegible] entirely satisfactory. The armor [illegible] exceeded the prescribed requirements: the counterfeit frames [illegible] shock without impairment, [illegible] the bolts were entirely satisfac[illegible]

ANOTHER CLAIM

Against the Spanish Government Will be Presented by Uncle Sam.

[illegible] claim of as much importance [illegible] Mora indemnity is going to be [illegible] by the United States government [illegible] the government of Spain [illegible] demand for the restoration of the property confiscated by the Spaniards during the last war from Martin Castillo Agramonte, an American citizen. Like the Mora claim, the case has been the subject of no small amount of correspondence between the two governments and it was rumored late in Havana that owing to the demands made by the state department [illegible] Washington the Agramonte claim would be paid immediately after the settlement of Mora's.

One year ago the prospects of a settlement were so bright that a Spanish capitalist came all the way from Madrid to New York and tried to buy Senor Agramonte's claim. Agramonte refused, stating that he had his case in the hands of the state department at Washington.

Seven months ago Mr. Agramonte died, leaving five daughters, one of whom is married to Senor Miguel de Morales, of this city. The claim is for the amount of $1,500,000 with interest.

Breckinridge Again on Deck.

A Lexington dispatch states that [illegible]nel W. C. P. Breckinridge will [illegible] first appearance in politics in [illegible] campaign at Williamstown [illegible]r 21st, speaking in favor of [illegible] Hardin and the state democratic ticket.

NEW ORLEANS RESENTS

A Threat of the Liverpool Cotton Association Regarding Packing.

Felix Couturie, vice president and acting president of the New Orleans cotton exchange, has addressed the following to the Liverpool Cotton Association in answer to its announcement to the New Orleans cotton exchange relative to the proposed penalty of £5 a bale on cotton not put up after this year as that institution desires:

"I am requested by the board of directors to acknowledge your communication of August 14, 1895.

"They desire me to state that while this exchange is in sympathy with any proper move to secure improvements in packing American cotton for market, they decline to recognize the right of the Liverpool association or any other mercantile body to enforce by a penalty such improvement.

"In their opinion the matter is one that must be regulated by competition between individuals, it being quite certain that the parties directly interested will soon solve it on a basis of dollars and cents.

"This exchange, as the representative of a large per centage of southern cotton growers, opposes anything in the nature of a threat (for in that light the proposed penalty may be regarded), as calculated rather to retard than advance the improvement desired. It doubts the ability of the Liverpool association or that of any commercial body to carry out any such arbitrary ruling and would refuse even if the measure were feasible to join in a matter which it considers disrespectful alike to American cotton planters and merchants.

"It trusts, therefore, that in the interest of mutual good feeling the Liverpool exchange will rescind its threats of a penalty of £5 per bale against American cotton planters who do not pack their cotton in such manner as may be suitable to it."

NORTH CAROLINA MILLS.

Remarkable Progress in Cotton Manufacturing in the State.

The North Carolina state agricultural department has issued valuable special bulletins giving a list of manufacturing enterprises in North Carolina. That portion of it which is of greatest interest is in regard to cotton mills. This shows that eleven mills are now in course of construction; that the stock in eight more has been subscribed; and that 169 are now in operation, spinning or weaving. Besides these, there are twelve knitting mills, one silk mill, one towel mill, four bag mills and manufactory of sash cord and cording. There are thirteen woolen mills in operation. The total of all is 192.

Alamance county leads, having twenty-two cotton mills. Gaston has twenty-one, Randolph fifteen and Mecklenburg thirteen. There are mills in forty-one of the ninety-six counties. There are reported 19,000 looms and 756,000 spindles.

Henry G. Hester, secretary of the New Orleans cotton exchange, has sent Governor Carr the following telegram:

"I congratulate you and the people of North Carolina on her remarkable progress in cotton manufactures. She is now practically equal to South Carolina, the largest cotton consumer in the South. By the actual census of mills North Carolina has consumed of this year's crop 227,000 bales, an increase of 55,000 over last year. She has new spindles which may be brought into play in 1895-96 which, with fair trade conditions, should increase her total to at least 250,000. In 1890 North Carolina consumed 114,000 bales. So your state has practically doubled her cotton manufactures within the past five years."

AFTER ROTHSCHILD AGAIN.

A Bomb-Thrower's Designs Nipped in the Bud.

A Paris dispath says that a bold attempt was made Thursday to explode a bomb in Rothschild's bank in the Rue La Fitte. While the business of the day was at its height a man walked into the bank carrying under his arm a bomb to which was attached a lighted fuse. One of the detectives employed in the bank was standing near, and sprang upon the man, seized the bomb and extinguished the fuse in time to prevent an explosion. The would-be bomb thrower was arrested and taken to the police station.

This attempt to blow up the Rothschilds's banking establishment, taken in connection with the recent sending of an infernal machine through the mails to the office of Baron Alphonse de Rothschild, signifies a persistent purpose on the part of the anarchistic element to inflict injury upon the heads and employes of the Rothschilds house.

A New Mexican Road.

Judge J. F. Crosby, of the City of Mexico, has completed the negotiations for the transfer of the franchise granting right of way and government assistance in building a railroad from Ciudad Jaurez to the rich mines of the Sierra Madre. The project is to construct a railroad from Jaurez, 125 miles southwesterly, to the property of the Cortelez Company, of which he is the president. One hundred miles of the railroad must be constructed within one year.

A Railroad Sold.

The Knoxville, Cumberland Gap and Louisville railroad, seventy-two miles in length, extending from Knoxville to Middlesborough, Ky., has been sold at receiver's sale for $500,000, the upset price. The purchaser was F. W. Whitridge, of New York, who owns a majority of the bonds.

HEIRS TO A FORTUNE.

General Holt's Will Sent Through the Mails to the Register of Wills.

What purports to be the last will of the late General Joseph Holt, of Kentucky, who died over a year ago, was made public at Washington Monday in a sensational manner. In the mail delivered to the office of the register of wills on Saturday were two or three envelopes which were not opened until Monday morning by Colonel Wright, the register. Among them was one addressed, in crude letters printed in ink, which when opened was found to contain a half-sheet of foolscap paper, the left end of which was burned, but not enough to make the writing illegible. Several small holes were burned in the sides and center of the sheet, but scarcely a word was eliminated. The text of the document was as follows:

"I do hereby devise and bequeath all of my property, both personal and real, to Lizzie Hynds, cousin of my first wife, and to Josephine Holt Throckmorton, who is my godchild, and to their heirs and assigns forever. I do hereby direct that at my death all of my property be divided equally between them.

"Lizzie Hynds is to inherit hers at my death; Josephine at the age of twenty-one. Her father, Major Charles B. Throckmorton, will hold her share in trust. I appoint Mr. Luke Devlin, of Washington, executor.

"Signed and sealed in the presence of the witnesses at Washington February 7, 1873. "J. HOLT.

"Witnesses: Ellen E. E. Sherman, U. S. Grant, W. T. Sherman."

Not one word of explanation accompanied the will and the officials of the register's office are at a loss to account for its appearance. No one who is familiar with the handwriting of General Holt and with the signature of Grant and Sherman doubt the authenticity of the document.

FAVORABLE TO FIGHTERS.

Dallas County Attorney Publishes an Opinion.

A dispatch from Dallas, Texas, says: County Attorney John Gillespie publishes a legal opion on the status of the law touching upon pugilistic encounters in Texas. The opinion is not in accord with Attorney General Crane's views and contains cold comfort for those who are opposed to the approaching fight between Corbett and Fitzsimmons.

Gillespie holds that the club cannot be enjoined from erecting the building or going on with arrangements, as the injunction law with regard to felony or misdemeanor cases has been repealed.

He holds further that the laws now on the books, one making pugilism a misdemeanor and the other licensing the same, make affairs complicated. The misdemeanor law, he says, is conflicting, vague and indefinite, and no man can tell just what the law is until the courts pass upon the same.

Attorney Gillespie closes by saying that if at any time in the future a reputable citizen will make affidavit that the law has been violated, then he will prosecute, but that he cannot anticipate violations of the law.

The opinion of the county attorney may not give satisfaction in official circles at the state capital, but the citizens of Dallas who favor the glove carnival are delighted beyond measure.

The Collins and Cavanaugh glove contest, which was "pulled off" Monday night and which will form the basis of a test case under habeas corpus proceedings, was stopped by the police in the twenty-first round.

WORKING FOR THE COPYRIGHT.

Edwin Newcombe Says English Authors and Publishers Oppose Him.

A cable dispatch from London says: Mr. Edwin Newcombe, deputy minister of justice for Canada, who came to England recently to present the Canadian case in favor of the issuance of a royal proclamation to give effect to the copyright act, was interviewed Tuesday by the Associated Press representative regarding the results of his mission. Mr. Newcombe said:

"I have met with much opposition on the part of English authors and publishers. At present I cannot state what arrangements have been made with the government, as to do so would embarass them, and moreover I am under instructions to report to the Canadian government before making public anything regarding these negotiations. You may, however, say that I have the greatest confidence that the matter will be adjusted in the manner Canada desires."

Mr. Newcombe spoke of the cordial manner in which he had been met and entertained by the Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, secretary of state for the colonies. Mr. Newcombe will sail for home by the steamship Labrador on Saturday.

Two Lines to the East.

The Clyde Steamship Company will put on a line of steamers from Brunswick, Ga., to Philadelphia, beginning on the 15th instant. Trips will be made weekly. This will give Brunswick two direct steamship lines to the east including the well known Mallory line to New York.

Assignment at Louisville.

Henry H. Wolfe & Co., wholesale clothiers at Louisville, Ky., have assigned. The indebtedness of the firm is said to be between $200,000 and $250,000, and it is claimed that the assets will equal, if not exceed, that sum. The firm is one of the largest in the clothing business in the south.

Precepts are like seeds; they are little things which do much good.

AGAINST BOUNTIES.

BOWLER WASHES HIS HANDS OF THE BOUNTY CASES,

And Leaves the Settlement of Them to the Courts.

The much anticipated decision of Bowler, comptroller of the treasury, in the sugar bounty cases was made public Thursday afternoon.

The particular case decided was the claim of the Oxnard Beet Sugar Company, of Nebraska, for the payment of a portion of the sugar bounty appropriated in the sundry civil bill, passed by the last congress. The amount involved in this case was only $11,782.50, being the claim allowed by the commissioner of internal revenue under an appropriation of $238,-000 to pay the producers of beet, sorghum or cane sugar previous to August 28, 1894, when the sugar bounty provisions of the McKinley law were repealed. But the decision, of course, involved the constitutionality of all sugar bounties.

The comptroller first asserts his jurisdiction over the matter and his right to refuse payment of these bounties on the ground of the unconstitutionality of the appropriation. He quotes the decision of the court of appeals of the District of Columbia in a suit brought before them by the Miles Plant Manufacturing Company, of Louisiana, for a mandamus to compel the secretary of the treasury and the commissioner of internal revenue to pay the sugar bounties provided by the McKinley law, and holds, in substance, that that court having decided all such bounties to be unconstitutional, its decision was one of which he was bound to take cognizance.

He holds that the present claim is clearly "one involving a controversed question of law, and comes directly within the provision of section 1063, because the authority, right and privilege is claimed on the one hand and denied on the other, under the constitution of the United States."

"Therefore, under the provisions of the statute quoted and with the statement that either party can appeal from the decision of the court of claims to the supreme court of the United States and then obtain a final decision, the comptroller makes the following order:

"The papers in the present case will, therefore, be returned to the auditor for transmission by him through the secretary of the treasury to the court of claims, under section 1062 for the rendition of a judgment, as required by the provision of section 1064 of the Revised Statutes, in order that they may be furnished a precedent for the future action of (the) executive department in the adjustment of (the) class of cases involved in these sugar bounties."

SCOTT ACQUITTED.

Jacksonville's ex-Treasurer Gains a Victory Over His Enemies.

Robert C. Scott, ex-city treasurer, of Jacksonville, Fla., who was on trial four days on a charge of embezzling city funds, was acquitted Thursday evening. The specific ground on which Scott was tried was the alleged embezzlement of a check of $2,000, which the Savannah, Florida and Western railroad had paid for taxes. There are five other cases of a similar character against Scott, but they will not be pushed.

At the last city election Scott's political enemies won and they started out to "Lexow" the out-going officials. It has been generally conceded that there was no basis for the charges against Scott and that they were made by his political enemies solely for the purpose of disgracing him.

GRAND ARMY NOTIFIED

Of the Invitation to Attend the Atlanta Exposition.

The following has been issued from the national headquarters of the Grand Army of the Republic:

"The commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic is in receipt of an invitation to the comrades of the organization to be present at the Cotton States and International exposition at Atlanta on Blue and Gray Day, September 21st. This invitation comes too late to be promulgated from headquarters, but the commander-in-chief is anxious that the comrades should know that they are invited to be present to mingle with those who wore the gray from 1861 to 1865, and he trusts that a large number of veterans will be present.

FRAKER HAS BEEN JAILED.

Part of the Insurance Money Paid on His Life Has Been Located.

Dr. George W. Fraker is now in the jail at Richmond, Mo. The drowning of the doctor was alleged to have taken place in Ray county, and for that reason the criminal proceedings against him for attempting to defraud the insurance companies out of $53,000 will take place there.

It is not improbable that an effort will be made by the lawyers to disprove his identification in order to prevent the insurance companies from recovering the money paid on his insurance.

Plug Tobacco Manufacturers.

The plug tobacco manufacturers held a meeting at New York behind closed doors. It was announced that it has been decided to manufacture cigarettes and flood the market. The first of the new brands will be placed on sale within thirty day.

TENNESSEE'S MONUMENTS.

The State Will Erect Five Elegant Ones at Chickamauga.

The Tennessee board of Chickamauga park commissioners have decided to erect five elegant monuments to her sons engaged in the Chickamauga battles, of which three will stand to the memory of her confederate dead, one to the troops in each branch of the service and one to the Tennesseeans in the union army—a cavalry monument. The monuments will cost $2,-000 each. Although Tennessee leads the list of states with fifty-eight commands engaged at Chickamauga, her appropriation is but $10,000, hence the main work of commemoration on an adequate scale will have to be carried out at a later day.

AFTER THE LEGISLATORS.

Springfield's Grand Jury to Investigate Grave Charges.

In the Sangmon county circuit court at Springfield, Ill., State Attorney Graham gave instructions to the grand jury for the September term of court, just convened, to investigate the charges of corruption made against certain members of the legislature and called upon the jury to do its duty and sift the matter to the bottom. The state's attorney claimed that the charges made in the press of the state were so definite and detailed that the jury and the prosecuting authorities could not agree to ignore the matter.

THIRTY-SIX VESSELS WRECKED.

Many People Killed and Drowned During a Storm.

A special to the New York Herald from Victoria, B. C., says a destructive typoon of unusual fury spent its strength at Kuchinotsu shortly before the last steamer sailed. All foreign ships in the harbor were blown on shore. With a few exceptions the houses in the town were entirely destroyed or partly wrecked. Thirty-six vessels became total wrecks, and the crews were all drowned.

FRAKER FOOLED THEM.

His Heirs Will Have to Disgorge $58,-000 Insurance Money.

George Fraker, of Topeka, Kansas, who was supposed to have been drowned in the Missouri river two years ago, has been captured in the woods near Tower, Minn. Fraker's life was insured for $58,000 and the heirs brought suit in the Kansas courts to recover the money. The case went to the supreme court and was one of the most famous in the annals of this country. The insurance companies were defeated in the final decision, which was recorded fast month.

A HEAVY DECREASE.

Forty-Three Millions Less Money in Circulation Than a Year Ago.

The treasury circulation statement issued at Washington Wednesday shows a net decrease of money of all kinds in circulation in the United States September 1st of $10,950,958, making the total circulation $1,603,-583,028, or 22.87 per capita, based on $70,127,000 population. As compared with September 1, 1894, there is a decrease in circulation of $43,000,000.

SIXTEEN CHINAMEN EXECUTED.

Murderers of Missionaries Punished by the Authorities.

A dispatch from Shanghai says that the sixteen persons sentenced for participation in the massacre of missionaries at Kucheng have been executed. The dispatch adds that as yet nothing has been done in regard to the claims made by the British and American ministers respecting the attacks on missionaries at Sechuan.

Tennessee's Centennial.

Major W. J. Willis, one of the leading spirits in the Tennessee Centennial Exhibition Company, returned to Nashville Wednesday from a visit to eastern cities in the interest of the coming celebration, and he brings assurances from prominent manufacturers of Baltimore, Boston and New York of their co-operation. The exhibition space at Westside park is being rapidly taken.

WORLD'S LEGISLATURES.

Differences in the Apportionment of Members.

The recently elected Italian Chamber of Deputies consists of 534 members. The present German Reichstag consists of 393 members. The next House of Representatives at Washington, exclusive of Territorial Delegates, will consist of 356 members. The English Parliament consists of 690 members, including those elected in Ireland and Scotland as well as those elected in England. Of these members 465 are chosen from English constituencies. 103 from Irish, 72 from Scotch, and 30 from Welsh. The French Chamber of Deputies consists of 622 members.

It appears from these figures that although popular control over the choice of representatives is most general in the United States, the lower House of Congress is a smaller body than the popular branch of the Legislature of Great Britain, Germany, France, or Italy. The Belgian Parliament, prior to the extension of universal suffrage and the adoption of the multiple system of voting, consisted of 124 members, the number varying according to the number of qualified electors in each district. The Hungarian House of Magnates consists of 735 members, and the Hungarian House of Representatives of 445. The Dutch Parliament is constructed on the basis of one deputy for every 45,-000 of population. The representation of all the Swiss cantons in the National Council is 135.

In the choice of representatives few European governments conform with the American plan of selecting representatives on the basis of the number of voters only. In England, for instance, where the right of suffrage has been extended to the point of being almost universal, or manhood suffrage, as it is called in the United States, nine university districts continue to have representations as such, and the divisional lines of parliamentary districts are such that the representation is unequal, being largest proportionately in the country and smallest in the urban districts. The basis of representation in the United States has varied greatly from time to time. The ratio of representation per population was 30,-000 under the first apportionment. It rose gradually under successive apportionments until 1843, when it was put at 70,000. In 1853 it jumped to 92,000 and in 1863 to 127,000. From that figure it grew gradually until 1883, when it was 151,000. The present basis of representation is materially higher—173,901. Congress fixes the number of members which each State shall have, but the subsequent subdivisions, based on the preceeding national census, is made by the State Legislature. The rule of equality of division is not very well preserved, though an effort to follow it is shown generally. The First Congressional district of Texas has a population of 120,-000; the Second Congressional district of Texas has a population of 210,000. That is a flagrant and exceptional inequality. Nevada has a representative in Congress for 45,600 inhabitants. In New York State the district having the largest population is the Fourteenth, now represented by Congressman Quigg. The Fourth district of Pennsylvania, one of the strongest Republican districts of the country, had by the last census a population of 209,000. Ohio had only one district with more than 200,000 inhabitants. Twelve of the thirteen districts of Massachusetts have 170,-000 population or a fraction more.

Railway Clerks in Convention.

The first annual convention of the Railway Clerks' Benefit Association met in session at Chicago Wednesday. The annual report of the secretary showed a surplus of $33,000 against $13,000 during the past year. The association has 3,448 members, 300 of whom have been added during the year. Eleven assessments, aggregating $58,000, were paid since the last report. There were 170 delegates in attendance.

To Quarantine Portland.

The city board of health of Portland, Oregon, has taken steps to quarantine that port from a threatened invasion of cholera now epidemic in Honolulu. Every precaution will be taken to prevent the disease being brought to this port by both tramp steamers and those in direct connection with the orient. Some recent arrivals have brought suspicious cases.

The Story Untrue.

The story of Minnie Williams, H. H. Holmes's alleged victim, being at Montreal, Quebec, in the convent of Hotel Dieu, which was telegraphed to the United States, is pronounced untrue by all connected with the institution.

From some recent life insurance statistics it appears that the presidential office is a fatal one. At Washington's inauguration his expectation of life, according to the insurance tables, was sixteen years, but he lived only ten years. The next seven presidents not only lived out their expectation of life, but the two Adamses, Jefferson, Madison, Jackson, Van Buren and Tyler exceeded it. But Harrison fell nine years short of his expectatation of life, Polk seventeen, Taylor eleven, Pierce seven, Lincoln sixteen, Johnson seven, Lincoln sixteen, Grant seven, Hayes three, Garfield twenty-two and Arthur fifteen. It was true that Lincoln and Garfield were assassinated, but the assassination of a president should always be taken into account as a possibility. Our first eight presidents exceeded their expectation of life forty-five years in the aggregate, while their successors fell 110 years short. This may seem strange when it is recollected that the length of human life has steadily increased during the century. The compiler of these statistics suggests an explanation. He says: "The fact seems plain to me that the presidential office is becoming too heavy a burden for any man to assume without almost certain shortening of his life. The responsibility is so great, the tension so destructive, that I never again expect to see a president survive the full period of his natural expectation."

Never sleep with the face turned toward a near wall.

WON BY GEORGIANS.

SAVANNAH RIFLEMEN SECURE THE PRIZE AT SEA GIRT.

They Were Closely Pushed, However, by Washington's Team.

The south was victorious over the north Wednesday in one of the most important matches ever held at Sea Girt, N. J. It was the third day's programme of the New Jersey State Rifle Association, and the event was the interstate military match. The trophy shot for was a large bronze "Soldier at Marathon," presented by the commander in-chief on behalf of the state of New York to be shot for annually and to be held during the year by the adjutant general of the state whose team wins it now. It is at the statehouse at Trenton, it having been won last year by the New Jersey marksmen. When the Savannah shooters start for home they will take this trophy along with them, and each contestant on the team will wear a medal to show what he did toward maintaining the reputation of the south.

The wind was blowing about six miles an hour when the match commenced at 9:30 a. m. The guardsmen set their wind guages accordingly. As the day wore on the wind increased. Five teams entered the interstate military match as follows: Georgia, District of Columbia, New Jersey, New York and Philadelphia. Each state selected twelve of its best marksmen. At 200 yards the position was standing and at 5,00 yards prone.

An Exciting Finish.

Georgia led the Washingtons at the 200-yard mark, but they were afraid of the Capital City marksmen on the longer range. Captain Cann, one of the Georgia marksmen, said after the 200-yard scores were finished that he doubted very much if the southerners would carry away the trophy. The Washington marksmen had made unusually good scores in the 500-yard range and Captain Cann based his prediction on that fact. Little attention was paid to either New York, Pennsylvania or New Jersey, as they were practically out of the race, although the New York boys put up a fairly good score on the long range, but the low score of 473 gave them little chance of winning.

The excitement between the District of Columbia and the Georgia teams was at fever heat. Captain Williamson, of the last named team, stood by his men and coached them. When Private Pollard, who is over 60 years of age and as spry and agile as a man of 20, missed the target at the seventh round on the 100-yard range, the Georgia boys were jubilant, but their joy was short-lived. Carleton made a score of 49 out of a possible 50. This dampened the enthusiasm of the southerners. Up to that time the highest score was 48, made by F. F. Wilson, of Georgia.

Georgia Wins.

It was anybody's match until the last shot was fired. When the scores on the two ranges were added it was found that the Georgians had made 1,043 points to the District of Columbia's 1,037, a difference of only six. Then a cheer went up that drowned the noise of the shooting. Captain W. W. Williamson was the happiest man on the grounds. He shook the hand of every one of his men and congratulated them on the good shooting they had made. No feeling of hostility was there among the gathering of national marksmen, no feeling of envy existed. It was one nation bound together by a fraternal bond of friendship. The Washington guardsmen sent up a cheer and the Georgia boys followed with three cheers and a tiger for their opponents.

BRICE BUYS A RAILROAD.

To Control Valuable Property He Gives Half a Million Dollars.

Senator Calvin S. Brice has bought the Cleveland, Akron and Columbus railroad of G. W. Saul, its president, and the Holland stockholders. An offer was made by Brice sometime ago but Saul refused it, and he controlled a majority of the stock. Brice made another bid and after a consultation of several hours with the board of directors of the road Saul accepted it. By the deal made 100,000 shares of stock in the road go to Brice for $500,000. Brice was immediately elected president of the road. The deal gives Brice a lake and eastern outlet for the Akron and Western railroad.

HOLMES TO BE TRIED AT LAST.

He Will be Brought Before Court in Philadelphia.

The Toronto authorities have been notified that H. H. Holmes, the multi-murderer, will be placed on trial at Philadelphia shortly for the murder of Benjamin F. Pietzel, father of the two little girls whom Holmes is alleged to have murdered in the St. Vincent street cottage in Philadelphia. In event of failure to convict Holmes he will be handed over to the Indianapolis authorities and will be carried to Canada only after all attempts to convict him in the United States of a capital offense have proved abortive.

A Railroad Sold.

The Knoxville, Cumberland Gap and Louisville railroad, seventy-two miles in length, extending from Knoxville to Middlesboro, Ky., was sold at receiver's sale Monday morning for $500,000, the upset price. The purchaser was F. W. Whitridge, of New York, who owns a majority of the bonds.

CLANTON ALA, SEPT. 12th 1895

Whisky making, whisky selling and whisky drinking will not pay and the sooner our people learn that lesson for themselves and teach it to their children the better will it be for us. The wives and of this county are frequently being made to bear the shame and hardship growing out of such habits. We call the attention of our boys and young men to what the Chicago Interior says:

"Twenty years ago it was often true that a young man who drank beer or wine or even whisky in moderation, might be advanced to places of great trust and responsibility. It is now scarcely possible. The habit is simply fatal to success. We do not believe there is a single reputable business house in Chicago where an employee who drinks intoxicants of any kind has anything like an even chance for promotion. The taking of even a single glass of beer may and often means, losing the chance of a lifetime. Brainy boys and young men, teetotalers from principle, are plenty enough to fill all the places in the line of promotion."

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder
World's Fair Highest Medal and Diploma.

While in Chicago, Mr. Charles L. Kahler, a prominent shoe merchant of Des Moines, Iowa, had quite a serious time of it. He took such a severe cold that he could hardly talk or navigate, but the prompt use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy cured him of his cold so quickly that others at the hotel who had bad colds followed his example and half a dozen persons ordered it from the nearest drug Store. They were profuse in their thanks to Mr. Kahler for telling them how to cure a bad cold so quickly. For sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and McNeill and Smith, Jemison, Ala.

The business revival all over the country is something wonderful. A representative of one of our Southern Manufacturing plants went East to place orders for new machinery and was informed by a great foundry that their orders now on hand, would run them for nearly a year. The railroads feel the upcoming tide of prosperity and are building new lines and more cars in order to handle the increasing volume of business.

THE PRICE OF COTTON

GOVERNED BY THE LAW OF SUPPLY AND DEMAND.

Free Silverites Should Study This History of Production and Prices Since 1791. What the Record of Crops Proves—Silver Has No Effect on Prices.

The spread of free coinage sentiment in the southern states has been almost entirely due to the belief that the low price of cotton was caused by the adoption of the gold standard. The main argument of the advocates of a 50 cent dollar in this section of the country has been that the alleged demonetization of silver was the cause of the marked fall in cotton during the past 23 years.

A bulletin just issued by the department of agriculture giving the history of the production and price of cotton for over 100 years proves conclusively that the use of silver as money has nothing to do with the decline in value of cotton. Beginning with 1791, with a crop of 8,589 bales, worth on an average 26 cents per pound in the United States, the production rapidly increased during the next ten years to 210,526 bales, and the price at the same time advanced to 44 cents. In 1802 the crop was 241,228 bales, of which 120,619 were shipped to Great Britain, but, owing to the greatly increased supply and a large stock—454,000 bales—on hand at the close of the year, the price dropped to 19 cents per pound in New York.

In spite of this remarkable decrease in price the crop increased to 340,000 bales in 1810, worth 16 cents. In 1816 the crop was 457,565 bales, but the enormously increased demand from Great Britain forced prices up to 29½ cents, and the next year to 34 cents. These high prices caused an increase in the acreage of cotton, and by 1820 the crop was 606,061 bales and the price dropped to 17 cents. The production increasing, prices fell, in 1822, to 11.40 cents, and in 1827, with a crop of 957,281 bales, and with 562,869 bales in stock, to 9.29 cents.

By 1834 an increase in the European demand for cotton had advanced the price to nearly 13 cents, with a crop of 1,205,394 bales. For the next five years prices fluctuated widely, averaging from 7½ to 20 cents per pound, and when, in 1840, the crop amounted to 2,177,855 bales, the average price went down to 8.92 cents. The great crops and the accumulation of large stocks in Liverpool caused a still further decline, in 1845 reaching 5 cents, the lowest recorded price, with a crop of 2,394,503 bales. By 1850 prices had advanced to 12.34 cents, and for the next ten years averaged about 11 cents, the crop increasing to 3,655,557 in 1856 and to 4,861,292 in 1860.

The war which broke out in 1861 brought on the "cotton panic," which lasted to 1866, when prices went as high as $1.89 per pound. The close of the war left many of the cotton growing states in an impoverished condition, and it was not until 1876 that the crop was as large as that of 1860. In the meantime the price had fallen with the gradual increase in production until in 1871, with a crop of 4,352,317 bales, it averaged 16.95 cents. In 1872 cotton was badly damaged by excessive rains, and with a crop of only 2,974,351 bales, the price reached 20.48. In 1880 the crop was 5,761,252 bales and the price had fallen to 12.03.

The increased European demand for a time prevented prices falling to the level of the decade previous to the war, but by 1889 the stock on hand began to increase beyond the demand, and in 1891 the unheard of crop of 8,652,597 bales forced the price down to 9.03 cents. In 1892 the crop was 9,035,379 bales, the stock on hand amounting to 2,253,000 bales. Prices fell to 7.64 cents, but advanced in 1893, when on account of unfavorable weather the crop fell off to 6,700,365 bales, to 8.24 cents. An increase to 7,549,817 bales in 1894 was followed by a decline in price, and the greatest crop on record in 1895, amounting to about 9,476,435 bales, brought down the price to 6.26.

The following table gives the comparative crops and stocks of cotton and the lowest and highest prices in the United States for two decades, showing that prices reached the lowest point during the years when the accumulation of surplus stocks was the largest, and that those were the years of largest crops:

This record of crops and prices proves that instead of being caused by an increase or decrease in the use of silver money, the price of cotton depends in every case on the relation between supply and demand. Larger crops have resulted in falling prices, and when in a few years with an increased crop prices advanced it was the increased European demand, which meant that the crop was not larger as compared with consumption, which regulated the price. The record further proves that in the year 1845, when the silverites claim that silver was the unit of value, the price of cotton in the United States was lower than at any time in the history of the country. In view of these facts we should hear no more of the price of cotton as a reason for debasing our currency by putting it on the silver standard.

A. M. Bailey, a well known citizen of Eugene, Oregon, says his wife has for four years been troubled with chronic diarrhoea and used many remedies with little relief until she tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which has cured her sound and well. Give it a trial and you will be surprised at the prompt relief it affords. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and Smith and McNeill. Jemison, Ala.

NO CLASS LEGISLATION.

Equal Rights For All, Special Privileges to None.

In a speech delivered before a free silver convention at Griffin, Ga., Senator Morgan of Alabama rehashed the stale theories of the silver standard advocate, and closed his exposition of the free coinage gospel with the declaration that the silverites demanded "equal rights for all, special privileges to none." This doctrine of equality before the law is one which appeals to every fair minded American, and it is the belief that silver is denied privileges granted to gold which has led many to support the agitation for free coinage at 16 to 1. But there is no ground for such claim. On the contrary the proposition that the government should coin into money at a fixed ratio all the silver of this or other countries which might be brought to the mints is a direct violation of the principles of equal rights.

All that the government does for gold is to stamp it with a certificate of its weight and fineness. The legal tender quality of gold coin adds nothing to its commercial value. If the government were to stop the coinage of gold tomorrow, the value of that metal would remain the same. And the adoption of gold as the standard of values has not increased the value of the products of the gold miner. The same could be said of silver were it merely proposed to coin that metal at its true commercial value. The most extreme "goldbug" of the silverite's imagination would not object to free coinage of silver dollars if each coin contained a full dollar's worth of silver. The objection to such action on the part of the government is that it would involve a great and useless expense for mintage, as the commercial value of silver continually changes, and it would be necessary to make new coins whenever silver became cheaper or dearer. But the demand of the free silver advocates is not for the coinage of both metals at their commercial value, but for the unlimited coinage of silver, worth only 50 cents, into coins which will be legal tender in payment for goods or of debts equal to gold coins, worth twice as much. In other words, they seek to compel the government to give one class, the producers of silver, the right to have the value of their products doubled by setting a fictitious value on it. This is what free coinage at 16 to 1 really means, and if adopted it would make the silver miners a privileged class at the expense of the whole people.

That this is true is recognized by all the leading Populists, who have demanded that the government should go farther and give the owners of staple farm products the right to have their crops stored in government warehouses and to receive money based on them. In this the Populists are consistent with their paternalistic views, but very inconsistent with the Jeffersonian doctrine of equal rights. The true remedy for any violation of this great principle is not the granting of special privileges to the farmers as well as to silver miners, but the repeal of all class legislation and steadfast opposition to all financial schemes involving government aid to any special interest.

HATRED OF ENGLAND.

The "English Octopus" the Best Customer For American Products.

Coin resorts to the familiar and well worn appeal to the prejudice which some people in this country are supposed to feel against England. The people of that country have the same religion, the same laws and the same language as ourselves. We did fight in years gone by, but we are now united by the close ties of business and friendship. The English octopus, as Coin calls it, is really a country that is our best customer for wheat, for cotton, for beef, for petroleum and for Yankee notions. He says it "feeds on nothing but gold." In fact, however, it feeds on the wheat, the coffee, the sugar of South America, the tea of China—in short, the natural or manufactured products of every part of the world, all of which it pays for. American investors draw great sums in royalties from this "octopus." It does not get any gold worth speaking of from Asia, from Africa or from South America. Whatever gold it does get is a natural product and a source of profit to those who produce and export it. In short, the whole octopus business, like the other delectable illustrations in "Coin's School," is a delusion and a snare. The worst thing that could happen to this country would be the ruin of England. No merchant would look with satisfaction on the ruin of his best customer.

There's no place like home

THE BRITISH SCARECROW.

Another favorite argument of the free silver advocates is that England first adopted the gold standard and has grown rich by it, and that, therefore, it must be bad for other countries. Let us note two things in this connection:

First.—England first adopted trial by jury and the writ of habeas corpus. She first enforced the principle of freedom that no man should be deprived of life, liberty or property but by the judgment of his peers or the law of the land. Shall we discard these sacred muniments of liberty because they are of English origin?

Second.—If England has prospered under the gold standard, why not the United States? Certainly no country ever became really prosperous by the ruin of its neighbors. In the great commonwealth of nations the prosperity of one makes trade with all and helps to enrich all.—From Everett P. Wheeler's "Real Bimetallism."

The View is sending statements to all who owe the paper. Some of our patrons were to pay in potatoes wood, corn or molasses. Of course these statements do not mean that we are unwilling still to accept those commodities, but we desire a closing up of the old year's business. The merchant takes a mortgage on the farmer and carries him a year, the View took its patrons on their honor and has advanced the paper during all this hard year and now only hints that money is most comforting thing for an editor to recieve.

EDUCATIONAL NOTES.

The Peabody Summer School of Pedagogy in connection with the State Normal College (Troy) Summer Term is proving a great success. The attendance is fair, and is made up, largely, of teachers from 20 Alabama counties and from several different States besides.

The interest is excellent. The Spring Term College commencement numbered 9 graduates and about the same number will be graduated at the commencement Sept. 20. Hereafter the Summer School of Pedagogy, intended largely, for teachers in actual work, will occur in June, in connection with the Spring Term of the College, so as to better accommodate teachers who are then having vacation in their schools. This extra provision for teachers is proving popular and many are taking advantage of it, many scores being on this "Extension Course" besides the "Regular Attendance Students."

The outlook for the Fall term to open Sept. 25, (not Oct. 15 as heretofore) is very encouraging to the friends of the College. This State Training College for teachers is doing a great work in sending out qualified teachers into the Ala. schools. Teachers and Directors should keep posted on work by writing for college literature as to good school making. May the State Normal College at Troy prosper more and more for the sake of the common schools.

The editor was away from his office half of each of the past the past three weeks, during which time he traveled over a portion of Shelby, Talladega, Coosa, Elmore, Montgomery, Macon, Lee, Tallapoosa, and Chambers counties. Fair crops greeted him at most of the points touched. Especially were the corn and cane crops fine. The general expression of the business men was that this crop will put our state in better shape than it has been in for many years. A few days spent in attendance at Circuit Court in LaFayette brought us in contact with a most able bar composed of splendid gentlemen. We were pleased to find Judge Denson improved somewhat in health. Judge Denson and Solicitor Brewer are everywhere held in high esteem for their faithfulness to duty. A day spent in Tuskegee introduced us to a most excellent people. They have much of the old time Southern culture and Southern hospitality. The business of the town is improving. There is located the Conference Female School under Dr. Massey, the Park High School for boys under Prof. Fouville and the Normal and Industrial School for the colored race. This latter is one of the most wonderful institutions of its kind in the world and is managed by Prof. Washington, a Southern negro whose fame has gone to the ends of the world.

SILVER IN MEXICO.

HOW THE LABORER IS ROBBED BY THE CHEAP DOLLAR.

The Condition of the Toiler In That Country Is a Warning to Be Heeded—Wages Merely a Pittance, and Living Is Made Higher by Free Silver.

Some things would seem to be so certain that it is a waste of time to argue about them. Among these is the condition of the people of Mexico, which everybody knows is in every respect inferior to that of the people of the United States. Yet the silverites have cheek enough to brazenly claim that the Mexicans are more prosperous than we are. The following letter, recently published in the New York Sun, shows the real facts as to Mexico's alleged prosperity:

MEXICO, July 6, 1895.

The fight over the financial question now on in the United States is watched with eagerness and interest by mine owners here. Whenever the United States throws open her mints to the free and unlimited coinage of silver the mining property of Mexico will be enhanced in value in the same proportion as that in Colorado, though experience has shown that the salary of the laborer will be the same, at least so far as Mexico is concerned. The dividend of the stockholder will alone be increased.

The average of wages ranges from 12½ to 25 cents a day in the cities and haciendas or plantations of Mexico, and in the remote mining districts it is a little more. All laborers have to "find" themselves in Mexico. On all plantations there are stores owned by the landlord. What is usually earned by labor on the land is always spent with the owner of it.

The question naturally arises, especially after one has heard the promises of the silver men on the floors of congress, Why have wages not risen in Mexico? Why, even on a silver basis, are they so much lower than the lowest paid in the United States? It must be remembered, too, that the wages paid here are in a depreciated coin, worth only half as much as the same amount received for labor in the United States.

On all sides one hears the answer that the silver basis in Mexico is not responsible for the low wages. This is partially true, but still wages have not increased or made any advance under the free coinage of silver. The chief argument of the silver men in the States seems to be that wages will advance and that the volume of currency will be largely inflated.

Nothing which has been promised by the silver men has come to pass here. Wages are lower and living higher. Since silver has decreased in value to about one-half, everything produced in this country which competes with the markets of the world has increased proportionately. The only products which have remained at nominally the old figure are those which are not grown for export and which do not come in contact with similar products grown in countries which have a sound currency. Even coffee, which is one of the staple products, has risen to such a point as to practically be beyond the reach of the peon and the laborer, while the only beef ever in reach of the peon is that which is cut from the dead animals after the bull fight.

Butter is so dear as to make it a luxury to all classes, and it is ordered in restaurants as dainties are. Beer, which is a standard drink here, sells for 15 cents a glass, and the only liquor which is to be had by the laboring classes is a native drink called "pulque," a milk-like looking beverage which produces some of the results of the malt product without possessing any of its virtues.

When these facts are pointed out to the silver man from the States, he at once says that such a condition of thing could not exist there; that labor is too well organized to permit such a state of affairs to last. The politician as well as the laborer knows that there can be no fictitious value in labor, and, moreover, that less than 2 per cent of the great mass of labor in the United States is organized. The low wages here are not confined alone to what may be termed the laboring class, but all salaries are proportionately small. The best of clerks in the stores get from $50 to $100 a month. The most expert bookkeepers can seldom get more than from $60 to $90 a month. Yet in this class of life the clothes they wear, the food they eat, are bought at gold prices. While his salary is higher, yet the bookkeeper's necessities are so much the greater.

Argue as they will, there can be but one result from a silver basis in the United States, which should be made clear to all who are dependent for their living upon their labor. It is that wages would not be perceptibly increased, and that the purchasing power of those wages would be diminished almost half.

Rents have been steadily advancing here, and they would be put up in any country which depreciates its money. Whenever the United States goes upon a silver basis, the earning power of her laborers, artisans and clerks will be cut almost in two, while the clothes they wear, the houses they live in, the food they eat, will be increased almost double. Seeing the condition of the toiler and the peasant here, in a country upon a silver basis, it can be but the one prayer of an American visiting Mexico that his own country may be spared the folly of doing what would be an irreparable wrong.

AN AMERICAN DEMOCRAT.

Wouldn't Suit Them.

We would offer no objection to the unlimited use of silver at its real value. Let the government offer to coin it into pieces of convenient size and stamp them according to their weight and fineness and let them pass current at their actual value. How many of the silver owners would take advantage of their silver in that way? Not any, but no fairer plan can be offered.—West Alabamian.

What is

CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
DR. G. C. OSGOOD,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
DR. J. F. KINCHELOE,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. ARCHER, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

Children Tell the Truth.

A rather flashily dressed woman, an elderly man, and a mite of a girl in white, formed a party on a Belle Isle boat last night. The woman talked in a high-keyed voice that could be heard all over the upper deck, the elderly man listened in silence, and the mite of a girl propped up her mother's conversation with a few remarks of her own.

"I don't know where under the sun we will get to spend the summer," remarked the woman, in a tone that interested every passenger on the deck. "Last summer we were in Europe, and we spent the summer before at Newport. There—"

"Why, mamma," chipped in the demure little maiden. "We weren't in Europe or anywhere. We've spent the last three summers with grandma in the country."

Mamma reached over and pinched the youngster's arm, but too late, and the trip consisted principally of uninterrupted thought.—Detroit News.

The Illusions of Distance.

The three bright stars which constitute the girdle or band of Orion never change their form; they preserve the same relative position to each other, and to the rest of the constellation from year to year and age to age. And yet in the profound rest of these stars there is a ceaseless motion; in their apparent stability and everlasting endurance there is constant change. In vast courses, with inconceivable velocities they are whirling around invisible centers, and ever shifting their positions in space. They appear to us motionless and changeless because of our own great distance from them.

Splitting Shackles Asunder

By merely flexing the muscles of his arms is an easy task for Sandow, that superlatively strong man. You will never be able to do this, but you may acquire that degree of vigor, which proceeds from complete digestion and sound repose, if you will enter on a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and persist in it. The Bitters will invariably afford relief to the malarious, rheumatic and neuralgic, and avert serious kidney trouble.

The greatest braggarts are generally the merest cowards.

The True Laxative Principle

Of the plants used in manufacturing the pleasant remedy, Syrup of Figs, has a permanently beneficial effect on the human system while the cheap vegetable extracts and mineral solutions, usually sold as medicines, are permanently injurious. Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure to get the genuine. It is taken internally, and is made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Age.

KENNEDY'S
Medical Discovery.

DONALD KENNEDY, OF ROXBURY, MASS.,

Has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures every kind of Humor, from the worst Scrofula down to a common pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases (both thunder humor). He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston. Send postal card for book.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the right quantity is taken.

When the lungs are affected it causes shooting pains, like needles passing through them; the same with the Liver or Bowels. This is caused by the ducts being stopped, and always disappears in a week after taking it. Read the label.

If the stomach is foul or bilious it will cause squeamish feelings at first.

No change of diet ever necessary. Eat the best you can get, and enough of it. Dose, one tablespoonful in water at bedtime. Sold by all Druggists.

LABOR'S OUTING.

MONSTER PARADES, PIC-NICS AND MASS MEETINGS.

Labor Day Generally Observed by the Working Men Everywhere.

There was hardly any labor organization in New York city but what had mapped out a parade or outing of some kind for Labor Day. The list of excursions out of the city was long and well arranged. An excursion to Coney Island was deemed the feature of the day and as a result the sea beach palace was crowded with men whose delegates practically regulate the labor element of the city.

At Columbus, Ohio.

At Columbus, Ohio, there were two parades—the trades assembly and the anti-trades assembly. The split was due to the charge that some of the uniforms worn were not sold by union clerks. The two bodies passed and repassed on the streets but there was no clash. Patrick McBryde addressed the antis while State Senator Earhart, Hon. N. B. Hysel and others entertained the other body.

A Great Day in Atlanta.

One of the largest and most significant pageants that has ever been witnessed in a southern city, passed through the streets of Atlanta, Ga., on Labor Day. It marked the first celebration of the kind of any importance in the history of the southern states, and was an affair that did great credit to the laboring people of the foremost of southern capitals. Nearly two thousand men, representing something like forty different labor organizations, were in the line of march. Speeches were made indicating the cordial and safe relationship between the laboring classes of the city and the state and municipal authorities. The success attendant upon the exercises is an assurance that Labor Day demonstrations of the future will be an event of unusual interest to Atlantians.

Nashville's Celebration.

At Nashville the labor organizations assembled at Glendale Park and were addressed by Mayor Guild, John J. McCann and W. C. Pomeroy. During the day various amusements were enjoyed.

A Monster Parade in Memphis.

The observance of the day in Memphis was the most extensive on record. Three thousand workingmen were in line in the morning parade, headed by platoons of police and city officials. A monster picnic was held at East End park where the multitude was addressed by Judge James M. Greer.

Divided at Chicago.

Two separate and distinct celebrations marked the day in Chicago. The labor congress, socialistic in its tendencies, held a mass meeting and picnic preceded by a parade. The principal speakers were Kier Hardie and John Swinton. The building trades council gave a counter attraction in the way of a pic-nic and mass meeting of its own. No attempt was made to carry the red flag in the congress parade, Mayor Swift having issued strict orders against such action.

Addressed by McBryde.

Indianapolis witnessed a gigantic parade of the various unions of organized labor. Several thousand people gathered at the fair grounds and were addressed by President McBryde, of the American Federation of Labor.

LETTER CARRIERS' CONVENTION

Sixth Annual Meeting at Philadelphia. Large Representation.

The sixth annual convention of the National Association of Letter Carriers was formally begun in the Bourse building at Philadelphia Tuesday morning. It was the first gathering in the new structure and George A. Bartol, president of the Bourse; John T. Bailey, the vice president, and William R. Tucker, the secretary; made addresses of welcome to the delegates.

The convention was called to order at 10 o'clock by President Cowden, of Cleveland. The committee on credentials reported a representation of 508 out of 528 votes in the convention. Delegate Atkinson offered a resolution requesting the committee on legislation to prepare a law for presentation to congress providing for the increase of salaries of second-class carries from $850 a year to $1,000.

WORMS EATING THE COTTON

In the Mississippi Delta—Planters Ordering Paris Green.

Reports received at New Orleans indicate that the worms in myriads are eating up the cotton. From Mississippi in all parts of the Yazoo and Mississippi delta, the greatest cotton producing country in the world, the cry is for paris green and london purple. From the Red river country in Louisiana clear on up to Shreveport and from Vicksburg to Monroe and throughout that section of the country the accounts of cotton worms is disheartening. A canvass of the leading drug houses shows that the orders for paris green and london purple have been so numerous from the worm-infested cotton districts that it has been impossible to fill them.

SMALL CUT FROM THE WEST.

In October the Western Lines May Do More for Rates.

At the meeting of Western Passenger Association at Chicago Tuesday a resolution was adopted providing that special rates to the Atlanta exposition should be based on 75 per cent. of the regular fare each way, the dates of sale and return limits to be fixed by the chairman. It was agreed that no lower rates should be made in advance of another meeting, which will be held early in October. It is then expected that a further reduction will be made: The western lines believe that they have done all that is safe and reasonable for this month.

Cholera in Russia.

An official report that has just been issued at St. Petersburg shows that there were 2,025 cases of cholera and 118 deaths from the disease in the government of Volhynia between July 11th and August 17th.

TROOPS AT THE MINES.

To Protect Men Taking the Places of Strikers.

A hundred and a half of state soldiers are encamped in the vicinity of the Lake Angeline mine, at Ishpeming, Mich., where the steam shovels are to be operated by men who have been brought from Chicago to take the places of the strikers. The mining companies are determined to begin the movement of the ore after a month's idleness, and Governor Rich has dispatched six companies of the Fifth regiment of infantry to the scene for the purpose of affording all the protection which the sheriff and the owners of the great mines may need to keep the peace and resume business. The thousand odd strikers, skilled miners, laborers, trimmers and steam shovel men who have been reduced to desperate straits by their idleness and the prospect of seeing other men fill their places, threaten to prevent the operation of the shovels and the situation is alarming.

LIBERTY BELL FOR ATLANTA.

The Injunction Asked for by the Kickers Was Refused,

Judge Thayer, at Philadelphia, rendered an opinion that the city could take the Liberty Bell to the Atlanta exposition. The opinion was delivered in connection with a bill in equity recently filed by certain well known citizens against the city, Mayor Warwick, James L. Miles, president of the select council; Wencel Hartman, president of the common council; Director of Public Works Thompson and Chief Eisenbower, of the bureau of city property.

The complainants appeared in the role of citizens and tax-payers, and asked for an injunction to restrain the defendants from taking the bell to the Atlanta exposition, on the grounds, among other things, of the illegality of the appropriation to pay the expenses, and also because such a trip beyond the city limits would be putting the bell to a use other than its proper and legitimate one.

THE KITE HEARD FROM.

Peary Expedition Steamer Seen—All on Board Well.

The Gloucester fishing schooner John E. McKenzie, Captain McKenzie, from Greenland, which arrived at St. Johns, F. F., Monday morning, reports the Peary expedition steamer Kite at Holstonberg July 15th. All on board were well. She picked up Professor Dyche, who was waiting her arrival there. The Kite sailed north for Peary's headquarters. Coast clear of ice as far north as reports could be obtained. She anticipates a splendid chance for the Kite reaching her destination.

REFUSED TO WORK ON SUNDAY

Mexican Lynotype Operators Strike Against Continuous Labor.

A special from the City of Mexico says The Mexican Herald, the English daily which made its appearance last Sunday, had a strike Monday. Mexican operators who had worked Sunday to get out Monday morning's paper rebelled against the loss of their accustomed holiday. The paper will appear, according to present intention, every day in the year, but it remains to be seen if it will be possible to secure operators willing to work so continuously.

Big Blaze at San Antonio.

Fire broke out Monday morning in the four-story furniture store of L. P. Peck & Co., at San Antonio, Texas. The entire stock was destroyed. Estimated loss $75,000 with $50,000 insurance. Damage to building about $20,000, covered by insurance. The Alamo trunk factory adjoining was damaged to the extent of $5,000 and the Texas Millinery Emporium Company suffered a loss of $2,000.

TELEGRAPHIC TICKS.

President Geo. C. Smith, of the Western and Atlantic and West Point railroads was re-elected at the annual meeting of directors in Montgomery.

George Augusta Sala, the famous journalist, is critically ill at his home in London.

Wednesday the Union Coal company of Shamokin, Pa., began working 3,000 men sixty hours per week.

Reports received in New Orleans indicate that cotton worms are destroying the crop in adjoining states.

A Chattanooga family named Scanlan ate toadstools, believing them to be mushrooms and are critically ill.

The announcement comes from Montgomery that Secretary Herbert will be a candidate for the United States senate.

Home Secretary Ridley has announced in the British parliament that his office had no power to order an inquiry in Mrs. Maybrick's case.

Middletown, O., people are satisfied that Dr. H. H. Holmes was once superintendent of public schools at that place and was known as C. W. Hatch.

Two Oklahoma farmers, Oller and William Knapp, fought with hatchets and pitchforks about a load of hay. Both men were badly wounded and will die.

Samuel Gompers, ex-president of the American Federation of Trades, was accorded an ovation by the Trades-Union Congress at Cardiff, Wales.

The thirteenth Ohio senatorial convention met at Marysville and indorsed Governor McKinley for president and Joseph B. Foraker for United States senator.

The organization of the Ohio democratic state executive committee has been completed. It was decided to open the campaign on September 28th, in the evening. Ex-Governor Campbell will be the principal speaker.

The eighth annual convention of the republican league of the state of New York met in session at Binghamton, N. Y., Wednesday. It is estimated that five thousand delegates and visitors are in attendance.

Are Not Alarmed.

The health authorities in San Francisco are not alarmed over the reports of a cholera epidemic in Honolulu. The disease is alleged to have been brought there by the British steamer Belgic. All vessels from the Hawaiian islands will be strictly quarantined.

No Blood in Him.

The human puzzle struck Washington the other day. His name is Nixbeno, or Harry Beno, of Port of Spain, Trinidad, and he is en route to New York, where, he declares, he has been offered $25,000 and a ticket back to Cuba for letting the doctors amputate his left arm in the interest of science. The human puzzle is a short, stocky looking knight of the road, and his great specialty is self-torture and mutilation. He sticks pins and needles into any part of him he can reach, and he is decorated all over with scars inflicted by obliging individuals who at his request have experimented on him. The puzzle says he has no physical sensibilities and no blood in his body. This last is very thoroughly disproved by a strong, healthy pulse at the wrist, but the former one might believe from the fact that he sticks darning needles through his tongue and hatpins through both sides of his jaws, while he invites anyone who is interested and skeptical to run a long bonnet pin through his biceps or his leg or any part of his body they choose.

He has a hypodermic syringe needle that he has fixed up for a cigarette holder, and this he thrusts through his windpipe and smokes a cigarette with his mouth shut. He declares that he does not mind being burned and shows a number of scars which he says are from recent electrical experiments. The puzzle is shy a third finger on his left hand. This, he says, was amputated in New Orleans just to show that he would not bleed, and the proposed amputation which he says is to take place at Bellevue Hospital in New York will be the consummation of a long and interesting public career. After that the puzzle says he will walk back to New Orleans on stilts for a wager and sail for Cuba to enjoy in an affluent old age the fruits of his youthful travel and adventure. Beno says that he is a half caste Spaniard, his mother being "an Englishman," but he looks the pure article of Bowery Americanism and bears on his arm a number of patriotic emblems in tatooing.

KAISER WILL DRIVE ZEBRAS.

Trained in South Africa and Now Being Tested by an Expert.

The Kaiser William has received from a Boer firm in the Transvaal a consignment of three zebras that have been broken in for carriage use and are said to be reliable if driven abreast. His majesty intends to use the team before the Russian troika, a carriage built for three horses harnessed together. The troika was given him by the late emperor of Russia, and in trying to drive the fiery horses of the steppes with his own royal hands, or rather his hand (for his left hand is no use to him in handling the ribbons), the kaiser came near getting killed once or twice. Several of his catchmen were injured and one killed in runaway accidents with the troika horses.

The zebra team will be thoroughly tested before his majesty attempts to handle it. The animals are now installed in the royal mews at the Neuss palais, and are exercised daily by an expert driver in the ground. They seem to go quiet, but the fact that two grooms on fleet horses follow in their tracks proves that accidents are anticipated, and that the driver is not willing to sacrifice his life for the sake of his master's whim.

The zebras are graceful, slight of build, and nearly of the size of Trakehnen horses from the celebrated royal stud which the emperor usually drives. Their bodies are white, striped with numerous brownish black bands. Three sets of russet and red morocco harness for each are being manufactured.

If expectations are realized the emperor intends to use the team upon his frequent travels between Potsdam and Berlin instead of the four Hungarian "Juckers" now employed by him

"Old Tecump" Too Thin to Be Shot.

Gen. Sherman and Gen. Thomas were warm and intimate friends. In their familiar intercourse they were to each other usually "Bill and "Tom," after the free and easy fashion of schoolboys, rather than like dignified and austere warriors. Near Resaca, Ga., during a sharp action Gen. Sherman went upon a railway embankment directly in the line of fire and stood carelessly amid the flying bullets, making his observations and giving his orders. Turning, he saw the head and shoulders of the portly and magnificently proportioned Thomas appear above the protection of the railway earthworks.

Sherman, always careful for his friends rather than for himself, called out:

"Pretty hot up here, Tom; better not come up."

"What are you doing up there yourself, then?" answered Thomas.

"Oh, I just turn edgeways to 'em," said the tall, attenuated commander, with a grin, as he resumed his duties.

INDIAN LEGISLATURE

To Meet In Extra Session and Act Against Trespassers.

Surprise was created at Tahlequah, I. T., when Chief Harris issued his proclamation calling the Cherokee legislature to meet in extra session September 11th. The proclamation does not specify what the extra session is called for. It is understood to be to make disposition, by sale or otherwise, of the improvements made by 173 non-citizens of that nation, who are trespassers. It is said Harris received some instructions from the secretary of the interior as to what course to pursue in disposing of the improvements of the intruders, who will be removed at once by the United States government by agreement. Matters have assumed such an aspect as to cause uneasiness among many intruders throughout Indian Territory.

WHARF AND FREIGHT BURNED.

Valuable Merchandise Destroyed by Fire in Boston.

The Boston and Albany extension wharf and freight sheds in East Boston, known as pier 1, Grand junction docks, were destroyed by fire Wednesday morning. The sheds were filled with freight of various kinds, none of which could be saved. In the sheds destroyed were stored about 5,000 bales of sisal grass, fifteen to twenty car loads of hay in bales, nearly fifty car loads of flour in sacks, a large quantity of wool and hemp, sixteen car loads of merchandise, and a large amount of general merchandise all valued at about $300,000. The wharf and buildings destroyed were worth $200,000. The losses on freight will fall upon the consignees and shippers, who, it is stated, have their goods insured.

WORTH KNOWING.

Lamp wicks soaked in vinegar will burn with a more brilliant light and will not smoke.

Slices of oranges are rather unmanageable. A better way to prepare this fruit for the table is, after peeling, to take a fork and a sharp knife and cut into small pieces. This makes a juicy, agreeable dessert.

Water and vinegar bottles which have become discolored can be cleaned with coarse shot or with small pieces of raw potato. Put a little cold water in the bottle with the shot or potato and shake until the stains are removed.

Dr. Duncan, writing for Demorest's, says that pure cinnamon makes an invaluable drink if one is where there is any danger of typhoid fever from poor drainage or impure water. Steep and drink freely, as it has power to destroy infectious microbes.

Equal quantities of lemon juice and glycerine make a fine emollient for the skin. Use at night and wear a pair of well perforated kid gloves. In the morning wash the hands thoroughly in warm water, rub well with a few drops of lemon juice, and, after a few applications, the skin will be soft and smooth. It is equally good for the face and neck.

A use has been found for old umbrella frames. They make excellent frames for branching and vining house plants. With a file, a pair of pinchers and some fine wire or stout thread any additions can easily be woven in to make the frame closer, according to the need of the plant. We can imagine that such a canopy covered by a fuschia, or nasturtium vine in full bloom would be a thing of beauty.

Consumption of Stamps.

The people of the United States use, on an average, 12,000,000 postage stamps of all kinds each and every day of the year, or a total of about 4,380,000,000 per annum.

J. STONE RECOVERING.

Owes His Health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

From The Sun, Gainesville, Fla.

The many friends of J. Stone, of Palmer, Fla., will be pleased to know that that estimable old gentleman, who has for years been a great sufferer from rheumatism, is recovering. At one time it was impossible for Mr. Stone to use his right arm. The gentleman in question was in the city yesterday, and when asked by a Sun man to give some reason for his recovery, he said:

"Well, sir, you will not believe me perhaps, but my recovery is due to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I think them an excellent remedy and must accept this opportunity, if you will permit me, to advise all who suffer as I have done to try them. I'll guarantee relief. Two years ago I was suffering from rheumatism; you know what condition I was in. I read an article in a Christian paper of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and I took seven boxes of them. The result was more than any human being could have expected. I grew better fast.

"Someone then advised other medicine, saying that I had taken enough of the pills. I heeded the advice and the result was I grew worse again and lost the use of my right arm. I could not move it a particle. Eight weeks ago I commenced to take the pills again and now I can use my arm without any pain whatever. They are a wonderful pill and I drove several miles to-day to purchase another box of them.

"I wish you would publish the following affidavit I swore to. I ask this of you as a means of displaying my gratitude as well as to endeavor to save some other poor sufferer."

The Sun man consented and the following is the affidavit which the happy man swore to yesterday before J. C. B. Koonce:

The above was sworn to and subscribed before me this 21st day of May, A. D. 1895.

J. C. B. Koonce,
[SEAL.] Notary Public.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effect of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, all forms of weakness either in male or female. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, (50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50—they are never sold in bulk or by the 100) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Why Preserve the Trees?

An additional reason why America should preserve her trees is being contributed by scientists, who anticipate that in the not far distant future the great motive power of civilization will be water, as related to gravitation and electricity.

Trees are the greatest water lifters. The wise men tell us that an oak tree of average size, with 700,000 leaves, lifts from the earth into the air about 123 tons of water during the five months it displays its foliage.

From the leaves the water is evaporated and formed into clouds, which, depositing their weight of moisture, ultimately supply the Niagara, capable of supplying a large part of the motive power of the country.

Trees are especially designed to facilitate evaporation through the moisture spread over their myriad leaves. The new prospects as to coming motive power offer a very potent reason why they should be preserved and cultivated.

Spare the trees. The destruction of our remaining forest areas would be a step toward economic suicide.—Boston Globe.

Wood-Pulp Mosaics.

The process pursued in Germany by manufacturers of varicolored wood-pulp mosaics is said to give the most perfect results in that beautiful art. Among the most important processes is that of placing the moist pulp into heated mosaic molds of the desired size and shape and in these forms placing it under the press. As a result of the heat the shellac in the mixture softens, regains its adhesive power and the curd cement hardens rapidly, so that both substances unite under the pressure so entirely with the wood particles that the resulting mass may be taken out of the mold in a few minutes without the loss of form. After the cooling process, these wood-pulp mosaics are less susceptible to moisture or change of temperature than any natural wood and are claimed to be more durable.

BRILLIANT PROSPECTS.

Fifty-Third Session of Cox College, Manchester, Ga.

Never in the history of the Southern Female (Cox) College, has the correspondence with patrons been so extensive as it has been this summer. More students than is usual have registered. The largest number of old ones will return. Applications are continually coming in. Old friends and alumnae are earnestly working for the college, and every indication points to a most prosperous session. With a faculty of thirty from Europe and America, with magnificent buildings, with all modern equipments and appliances, with advantages of the Exposition, this famous old institution offers eminent attractions and facilities in the way of education for young ladies.

Apple Marmalade.

Wash your apples, quarter them and cut the cores out. Put on to cook with water to cover them. Cook till soft and pour into a cheese cloth bag. Let drain through but do not squeeze. To every quart of juice use one pint of granulated sugar; boil fifteen minutes.

The pulp of the apples may be used by pressing through a sieve. Add one cup of sugar and the juice of a lemon to each quart of pulp; if it is too thick to cook, add a little water. Boil for thirty minutes, stirring constantly. Put in small crocks or bowls. It makes a nice spread for the little one's bread.—Womankind.

The Cause of Thunder.

The lightning spark heats the air in its path, causing sudden expansion and compression all around, followed by as sudden a rush of air into the partial vacuum thus produced. If the spark be straight and short the clap will be short and sharp; if its path be a long and crooked one, a succession of sounds, one after the other, with a characteristic rattle, will be heard, followed by the echoes from other clouds. The echoes have a rolling and rumbling sound.

A TROLLEY railroad running fifty miles along country highways and connecting six Indiana towns with Chicago, is soon to be built. It will be the longest trolley road in Indiana and one of the longest in the country.

The Onward March

of Consumption is stopped short by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. If you haven't waited beyond reason, there's complete recovery and cure.

Although by many believed to be incurable, there is the evidence of hundreds of living witnesses to the fact that, in all its earlier stages, consumption is a curable disease. Not every case, but a large percentage of cases, and we believe, fully 98 per cent. are cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, even after the disease has progressed so far as to induce repeated bleedings from the lungs, severe lingering cough with copious expectoration (including tubercular matter), great loss of flesh and extreme emaciation and weakness.

WASHINGTON NOTES

GOSSIP OF THE CAPITAL IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS.

Doings of the Chiefs and Heads of the Various Departments.

Wednesday's statement of the condition of the treasury showed: Available cash balance, $181,751,648; gold reserve, $97,620,003.

The president has signed an order permanently reserving Bowditch [illegible], Estero Island, Florida, for [illegible] purposes, and restoring the rest of the island to the public domain.

The case of Miss Elizabeth M. Flagler, the young society woman who [illegible] a sensation by shooting and killing a negro boy named Green for [illegible] a fruit tree, will not be [illegible] before next month.

The bond syndicate deposited $3,[illegible] in gold in the treasury Wednesday to make good the withdrawals. The action has been commented on favorably, and those who were disposed to feel uneasy about the matter, are now confirmed in the opinion that the syndicate will protect it.

The proceedings and findings of the court martial in the case of Capt. [illegible] of the cruiser Columbia, have been received at the navy department. The findings will not be officially [illegible] until the president acts upon them, but some unofficial statement of their purport will probably [illegible] a day or two, as is customary in such matters.

Dispatches from Consul General Williams at Havana corroborate the press reports announcing the release of Aguerre from prison. Aguerre and Sanguilly, both claiming to be American citizens, were apprehended and [illegible] in confinement some time ago [illegible] Spanish government on a [illegible] of complicity with the insurrection. Acting under advice from this government Consul General Williams [illegible] a civil trial. The authorities doubtless learned that the charge against Aguerre could not be sustained and he was liberated. Sanguilly still languishes in prison, the Spanish authorities holding him on alleged [illegible] charges.

Nicaragua Pays the "Smart Money."

[illegible] dispatches to the state department dated August 23d and 24th, [illegible] O'Hara, of San Juan del Norte, Nicaragua, announces the distribution of the indemnity of £15,000, paid by the government of Nicaragua in response to the British demand for damages because of the Bluefields affair. The Bluefields Recorder claims that [illegible] "the persons indemnified own allegiance to England." The amounts received by individuals range from £100 to £4,500, the British vice consul, Edwin Hatch, receiving the largest amount.

[illegible] such as the original British demand was for £15,000 as "smart money" to be paid for the insult to the British flag in the person of Vice [illegible] Hatch, and left the question of damages to Hatch and other British subjects in their private capacities, to be subject to further arbitration, this would seem to indicate that the British government had abandoned its [illegible] intention of pressing further demand and was willing to rest content with the payment of the £15,000 demanded by the British fleet.

Low Cotton Average.

The cotton report of the department of agriculture shows a decline from the August conditions of the crop [illegible] was 77.79 to 70.8 per cent, a [illegible] 7.1 points. [illegible] makes the lowest September condition of the plant since 1881 when it was reported at 70 per cent. The next lowest since 1881 was the [illegible] only 1893 when it stood one month at 73.4. Cotton [illegible] greatly during the month from [illegible] the early part of the [illegible] the excessive rain which [illegible]. The presence of boll worms has [illegible] great injury and the crop has [illegible] greatly. The causes [illegible] by Texas correspondents [illegible] deterioration in the state are as follows: Drought, hot weather, [illegible] worms.

There is a striking unanimity in the tone adopted by correspondents throughout the cotton raising [illegible] state averages are as follows: [illegible], 74; North Carolina, [illegible] Carolina, 81; Georgia, 81; [illegible] 79; Alabama, 73; Mississippi, [illegible], 75; Texas, 56; Arkansas [illegible] Tennessee, 76; Kentucky, 85.

Must Wait Sixty Days.

The postoffice department has been [illegible] considerable trouble lately by [illegible] of duplicate money orders alleged to have been lost, [illegible] or possibly stolen by dis[illegible]. All duplicates have to [illegible] the department at Washington [illegible] last year applications were [illegible] for the issuance of more than [illegible] such orders. The department [illegible] that in many cases both original [illegible] duplicate have been paid, [illegible] some cases suit has [illegible] brought to recover the [illegible] order to obviate such en[illegible] in the future, First Assistant Postmaster General Jones, at [illegible] the auditor, has [illegible] a rule not to issue duplicates [illegible] future until the expiration of [illegible] days from the date of the original money order, thereby affording time for the the receipt at the auditor's office of the money order statements of paying postmasters and an opportunity to examine such statements to ascertain whether the original orders have been paid.

This may work a hardship in some cases among those who can ill afford to wait the period of sixty days on account of the mistakes of their correspondents, but it is held at the postoffice department that the general good of the whole service demands the enforcement of the new regulations.

BLAZING NAPHTHA

Causes Fearful Havoc Near Alton Illinois.

The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad had a peculiarly bad wreck just east of Alton, Ill., early Thursday morning.

A west bound train broke in two, and as the front part slowed up at the water tank, the rear part ran into the front, causing a car of naptha to ignite. There were twelve cars of naptha and petroleum in the train and all were soon ignited. The flames shot hundreds of feet high. Three cars exploded with tremendous force.

The house of Thomas Craver, near by, was set on fire and destroyed, and Mr. and Mrs. Craver barely escaped with their lives. Samuel Welsh, twenty rods distant, a village fireman, was covered with burning oil and burned to death. Other firemen were badly but not fatally burned.

The loss to the railway company is $12,000. Houses a quarter of a mile away were scorched by the burning oil. The track is twisted, telegraph poles burned down, ties burned, trees blasted and the whole scene is one of ruin.

ON TO CHATTANOOGA.

Thousands Expected to Reach There in the Next Few Days.

Thursday morning a rather queer sort of train went of Chattanooga. It was composed of seventeen passenger coaches and not a single passenger was on the train, but it is expected to return from Louisville in sections, loaded down with passengers. Passenger agents say that between 15,000 and 25,000 of the Louisville visitors will be present at the park dedication.

Even this early the streets show that Chattanooga is entertaining over a thousand strangers. Flags and bunting are already displayed in profusion. The national guard of the state of Tennessee will be represented by about six hundred enlisted men, not including officers. Tents are now being pitched for their reception on the encampment grounds.

CHARGE HOLMES WITH MURDER.

Direct Coroner's Verdict Found in the Case of Howard Peitzel.

Coroner Castor, of Marion county, Indiana, will return a verdict of murder in the case of Howard Peitzel, and will charge H. H. Holmes directly with the crime. He says that the evidence taken in the county is to him conclusive, though entirely circumstantial.

The testimony of Mrs. Peitzel and her daughter completed the chain of evidence leading to the coroner's verdict. Mrs. Peitzel expressed a desire to see the house in Irvington where her son had been killed and his body burned. She and her daughter were accordingly driven to the scene.

ATE DISEASED PORK.

Father, Mother and Six Children Die With Trichinosis.

The family of Charles F. Kreueger, of La Porte, Ind., father, mother and six children, ranging in age from six to twenty years, were poisoned about a year ago by eating diseased pork, and despite the best medical skill, one followed the other to the grave, the last surviving child, Helen, aged six years, dying last Wednesday night. The physicians pronounced their disease trichinosis. Their bodies were literally alive with parasites.

Meeting of Tennessee Bivouacs.

The state association of Confederate Bivouacs of Tennessee met in Columbia Thursday and elected the following officers: Thomas Claiborne, president; W. W. Carnes, first vice president; Richard Ransom, second vice president; John P. Hickman, secretary and treasurer; R. B. Tomlinson, sergeant at arms; Rev. Joseph E. Martin, chaplain. The association will meet in Nashville in October, 1896.

Will be at Chickamauga.

A special from Bloomington, Ill., says: Hon. Adlai E. Stevenson, vice president, has accepted an invitation to preside upon the occasion of the dedication of the national park at Chickamauga battlefield on the 19th hand 20t instants.

Fortune for a Nurse Girl.

Winnie S. Andrews, a nurse girl, a resident of Port Townsend, Wash., received a letter notifying her of the death of her grandmother who died in Boston, leaving her 30,000. She has quit work and will go east to get the money.

Strike of Nashville Coopers.

One hundred and twenty coopers employed in three shops at Nashville are out on a strike on account of a proposed reduction in wages. It is thought, however, that the matter will be satisfactorily adjusted.

Twenty-three Bodies Recovered.

A party of men went down shaft No. 13 of the Osceola mine at Houghton. Mich., Thursday and found twenty-three dead miners at the fourteenth level and two at the third level. Five are still missing.

Some men do as much begrudge others a good name as they want one themselves.

ON SOUTHERN SOIL.

The G. A. R. Encampment Royally Welcomed.

With a reception of the national commander-in-chief, the first encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic to be held on southern soil was ushered in at Louisville, Ky., Monday morning. The weather was heated and muggy and the skies were threatening of showers, but these conditions did not repress the enthusiasm that Louisville had been keeping pent up for her guests.

When Commander-in-chief Lawler and the members of his staff, with National President Margaret Wallace and her associates of the women's relief corps, reached the union depot from Chicago at 8 o'clock they were met by a great demonstration of cheering and waving of flags and handkerchiefs. The committee on invitation, headed by General John B. Castleman, and including such representative Kentuckians as ex-Governor Simon Bolivar Buckner, W. N. Heldeman, ex-Congressman Caruth, Gen. Basil Duke, John M. Atherton and Gen. Andrew Cowan, was out in force and after welcomes, introductions and hand-shaking the visitors, under escort of the command, two companies of the Louisville Legion, with its band and drum corps, were taken to the Galt house. Here national headquarters were established in the big clubroom, on the east wall of which the fingers of fair Louisville women had fashioned in letters of evergreens two feet square the inscription, "Hail to the Chief."

The entrance of Southland by the Grand Army commenced at daybreak and continued far into the night with the prospect of still greater hosts for the morrow. Horse, foot and dragoons, from the two extremes of the continent, the veterans of the war, charged front, flank and rear through the open gates of Louisville and proceeded to avail themselves of the invitation to be seen on every hand to make themselves comfortable in an "old Kentucky home."

A RACE CONVENTION.

Negroes of North Carolina Confer About Their Condition.

At a negro convention held at Raleigh, N. C., forty-nine delegates were present, representing fifteen counties. They were all conservative colored men. The resolutions which were adopted were quite long. They declared that the time has come for the negro to assert himself, to put aside prejudices and make friends with his white fellow citizens; that sectional and party ~~lines~~ are being removed; that there is community of interests; the most urgent need is of good citizens; the cry is for purer politics and better leaders. The lack of organization among the negroes was deplored. The new sentiment is that every white man and every black man has an equal chance for education. The mistake of the negro for thirty years past has been reliance on outside influences, but the right thing is to look to themselves and their own southland for salvation. Progress since emancipation is not what is desired, but this is due to the failure of the negro to organize in his best interests. The choice of good leaders is recommended and also adherence to the principles of the old republican party. Accessions from any source are welcomed and people are called on to unite. Rings, cliques and party bossism are condemned. The negro vote should be thrown where it will do the greatest good, unite for purer politics, stop the negro howl and the calamity howl, let the negroes become landowners and have an interest in the soil.

The late legislature is condemned for its folly in abolishing county superintendents of schools. A board of twenty-two members, two from each district and four at large, is to be created, to be known as the North Carolina advisory board, in the interest of the negro race, politically, industrially and socially. Its members are to serve one and two years each.

DOUBTFUL THE FIGHT.

Governor Culberson Against the Corbett-Fitzsimmons Mill.

The nearer the day for the great battle between Corbett and Fitzsimmons comes around the more doubtful the probabilities of pulling off the fight become.

Dan Stewart, who is at the head of the Florida Athletic club, under whose auspices the fight is to take place, if it does occur, is a well-known politician of Texas, and he has considerable influence. He gave the matter of prize fighting in Texas a thorough legal investigation before going into this affair. Through that investigation he came to the opinion that the laws of the state do not prohibit the fight.

But since the work of arranging for the battle was commenced, opposition has sprung up, and now the governor has taken a hand in the agitation. At first Stewart and others paid no attention to the opposition, but when Governor Charley Culberson said the fight should not take place in Texas, Stewart and his associates called in the best legal talent of the state. The attorneys found a law which expired September 1st and then Stewart came out assuring every one that the fight could take place. Governor Culberson saw that the point was well made. He and the attorney general went to work to find something that would prevent a fight and they raked up an old law which said that the congregating of more than three persons was unlawful. This was searched and run down by the legal department of the state and was found to be effective enough to suit the governor.

Banana skins are said to put a fine polish on tan or russet shoes.

EVANS IN CHARGE.

SOUTH CAROLINA COVENTION IN FULL SWING.

Governor Evans Made President and Other Officers Elected.

The South Carolina constitutional convention met at Columbia Wednesday and was called to order exactly at the noon hour by secretary of state Tompkins. The convention was promptly opened by congressman Stanyarne Wilson, who nominated in a highly complimentary speech, Col. Robert Aldrich, of Barnwell, for temporary chairman.

Colonel Aldrich then proceeded to address the convention. He said this was the most important convention that had assembled in the state in a century. It was, though many conventions had been held, really only the second time that the people of the state had ever assembled to frame an organic law.

This was the only convention ever called to express the untrammelled will of the people. He gave a sketch of the history of the previous convention. His speech was well timed and well received.

J. P. K. Bryan and Willie Jones were made temporary secretaries. The enrollment of the delegates was then proceeded with.

The convention then proceeded to elect a vice-president, a secretary, sergeant-at-arms and a reading clerk.

Governor Evans was nominated by A. H. Patterson, of Barnwell, who said that Governor Evans, though young in years, was peculiarly fitted for the duties of president, Evans had been the father of the bill, and its champion on the stump. He was elected by acclamation, General Robert Smalls, the famed "Gullah statesman," being the only one to vote against him. Congressman Talbert and Speaker Ira B. Jones were elected vice-presidents.

S. W. Vance was made secretary and N. H. Stansell was elected sergeant-at-arms.

PRESIDENT EVANS' SPEECH.

As Governor Evans was escorted into the hall a heavy storm arose, and as he began his address the thunder rolled loudly. He was a new president "in a storm." He said they were here representing the sovereign power of the republic. He then proceeded to give his views as to what the convention should do. The governor should have power to suspend or remove all officers for just cause. He urged the proper support of the higher educational institutions; that all elections be taken from the legislature and placed in the hands of the people; that the legislative charter curse be abolished, and that all charters be granted under a general law; that the judiciary be placed on a high pinnacle; that the judges be elevated and elected by the people; that county courts be provided for; that the suffrage be taken care of through an educational qualification; that all political factions be disregarded in the work of the convention; that the convention must make provisions to guard the people against the encroachments of corporate wealth; that provisions must be made to counteract the influence of corporations upon municipal and other elections.

A. H. Dagnall was elected reading clerk and the convention immediately began the work of preparing rules, committees and filling minor offices. Senators Irby and Tillman, ex-Governor Sheppard, ex-Representative Tillman and other notables occupied seats in the convention.

The convention remained in session until 3:10 o'clock p. m., when a wrangle over the establishment of an engrossing department was stopped by a recess until 11 o'clock Wednesday.

The constitutional convention began its second day's session with another rush, and there have been lively proceedings thus far. President Evans announced his standing committee at the opening.

Senator Irby is chairman of the committee on declaration of rights, and Senator Tillman is in charge of the committee on rights of suffrage, which means, of course, the reporting of the Mississippi plan with modifications. The minority has been given a pretty fair representation on the committees. P. L. Melton was appointed assistant secretary and the other minor officers were also appointed. Mr. Henderson, of Aiken, offered several new ordinances, one on the suffrage and one on the matter of divorces, which were referred.

Attention was called to the fact that the delegates had not taken the constitutional oath, and for three-quarters of an hour things were lively in the extreme. The convention did not wish to take the oath provided in the old constitution, and a fight ensued, finally it being decided to do so. When four delegations had been sworn in and President Evans had taken the oath Senator Tillman submitted that, under the same constitution, if he took that oath he would have to leave the convention along with all others holding United States offices, for the constitution distinctly said that no man holding an office could hold a state office. This was impossible.

"We are the people," he said. "We are not officers, but represent society. I cannot take the oath."

After a lively running discussion, the convention referred the matter to the judiciary committee to report whether they should take an oath or not, and if so, to prepare a suitable one. A recess was taken pending this report.

The committee after the recess reported that the taking of the oath was not necessary and the report was adopted. All matter in the record in regard to the oath was ordered stricken out.

Numerous new ordinances were introduced—one providing a suffrage plan containing the same features as the Mississippi plan with alternative property and other qualifications, another providing a $2,000 property qualification in cities and towns, another providing for divorces for adultery upon conviction by a jury, another for the reduction of the area of counties to 500 square miles, making the terms of county officials four years, establishing county courts and electing county judges.

An effort was made to commit the convention against considering applications for the formation of new counties, but it failed. The counties of the state are abnormally large and the old constitution rendering their subdivision almost impracticable, on account of its provisions as to area, there is a strong lobby seeking the creation of many new counties.

By a vote of 109 to 38 the convention refused to increase the pay of its members from $2 to $4 per diem, members taking the ground that they had committed themselves to the lower rate by becoming candidates under the act of the legislature fixing such per diem.

Third Day.

The convention was in session only an hour and a half Thursday morning. Most of the work was of a routine character. No end of new ordinances were introduced. Provision was made, after a wrangle, for the establishment of a unique engrossing department.

T. E. Miller, the colored congressman of a few years ago, presented a contest on behalf of a negro delegation from Williamsburg county, which was referred to the committee on suffrage. Robert Aldrich introduced a complete constitution, which was referred. It is intended to prevent negroes from ever holding an office in the state. An anti-divorce ordinance was also introduced. An important ordinance was presented looking to the prevention of railroad corporations from securing control of parallel and competing lines.

Ben Tillman introduced an ordinance providing for the establishment of a new county, to be known as Mart Gary county, in honor of the memory of General Mart Gary.

NORTH CAROLINA MILLS.

Remarkable Progress in Cotton Manufacturing in the State.

The North Carolina state agricultural department has issued valuable special bulletins giving a list of manufacturing enterprises in North Carolina. That portion of it which is of greatest interest is in regard to cotton mills. This shows that eleven mills are now in course of construction; that the stock in eight more has been subscribed and that 169 are now in operation, spinning or weaving. Besides these, there are twelve knitting mills, one silk mill, one towel mill, four bag mills and manufactory of sash cord and cording. There are thirteen woolen mills in operation. The total of all is 192.

Alamance county leads, having twenty-two cotton mills. Gaston has twenty-one, Randolph fifteen and Mecklenburg thirteen. There are mills in forty-one of the ninety-six counties. There are reported 19,000 looms and 756,000 spindles.

Henry G. Hester, secretary of the New Orleans cotton exchange, has sent Governor Carr the following telegram:

"I congratulate you and the people of North Carolina on her remarkable progress in cotton manufactures. She is now practically equal to South Carolina, the largest cotton consumer in the South. By the actual census of mills North Carolina has consumed of this year's crop 227,000 bales, an increase of 55,000 over last year. She has new spindles which may be brought into play in 1895-96 which, with fair trade conditions, should increase her total to at least 250,000. In 1890 North Carolina consumed 114,000 bales. So your state has practically doubled her cotton manufactures within the past five years."

TO COTTON PLANTERS.

Advised to Hold Their Cotton Until Forced To Sell.

Hector D. Lane, of the Cotton Growers' Protective Association, has issued a circular to southern cotton growers. He says:

"New Orleans, La., September 7, 1895.—To the Southern Cotton Growers: In the discharge of my duty to you as the president of your association, I have personally examined the cotton crop in all the cotton states, as far as one man can reasonably do such a thing, and have received many communications from entirely reliable sources in every part of the southern cotton region.

"The crop is nowhere above, and in all save a few favored localities, is below the average. All possible causes except frosts have combined to produce this result, the causes varying with the locality—drought, rust, boll-worms, excessive rains and shedding. It is generally three weeks late and in such condition that a frost at the average date would be disastrous and before that time a calamity. The plant is notably deficient in fruit and the bolls are small and badly developed.

"I don't pose as a statistician, and no one can make any accurate forecast of the size of the crop before frost, but from my knowledge of present crop conditions, I venture the opinion that this crop cannot in any event exceed 7,000,000 bales, while 6,500,000 bales is by no means improbable.

"The English and European spinners, who consume the majority of the American crop and upon whose necessities to purchase we must largely depend for prices, have been induced by their resident alien professional-crop estimating representative, Mr. Neill, and his able bear coadjutors, to believe that the official reports of crop conditions and acreage are ventures; that the supply of cotton will be ample and that even present prices are abnormally high.

"In my humble judgment, if the consumers of cotton here and abroad believe that the maximum of this crop has even a strong probability of being below seven million there would be a material advance in the price of cotton. Clearly in the presence of a great trade revival the southern farmer ought to capture his share of the harvest of high prices. No country can take the place of supplying the world with cotton. He is not like the wheat grower. Wherever the sun shines and the rain falls wheat can be grown. The American cotton belt is sui generis, and has no counter part on the earth.

"The present situation is entirely under your control. This combined spinning capital of the world—an agregate five times greater than the combined wealth of the Rothschilds—is arrayed against you and under their banners march a plundering band of speculators and gamblers, whose trade is to lie and bear false witness against the industry of 20,000,000 of people. The Manchester Guardian boasted last year that England did not care if the farmer owned only the rags he stood in, as long as England bought the cotton he produced cheap. This guerrilla band of speculators and estimators would even take his rags away. Their main hope and argument is that the south will market and sell the bulk of its crop in four months.

"My earnest advice, therefore, is to market your cotton with reasonable intelligence. Do not rush it all forward between now and Christmas. Do not press it for sale except where absolute necessity compels. The spinners must have your cotton. Their mills are operated with profit and the loss attendant upon stoppage is too great for consideration. Husband your cotton and sell it as they need it and then you will get what it is worth, according to the true and undisturbed operation of the laws of political economy.

"All newspapers in the south are respectfully requested to publish this address. Your obedient servant,

"Hector D. Lane.

"President American Cotton Growers' Protective Association."

PENNSYLVENIA DEMOCRATS

Hold Their State Convention, Adopt a Platform and Name a Ticket.

The Pennsylvania state democratic convention met Wednesday at Williamsport. Ex-state chairman James A. Stranahan was selected as temporary chairman. The usual committees were announced and the convention took a recess.

When the convention reassembled John M. Garman, ex-district attorney of Luzerne county, was made permanent chairman and the other officers of the convention were made permanent.

The platform adopted renews its allegiance to, and declares its faith in the principles of democracy as formulated by Jefferson and illustrated by Cleveland. It congratulates the American people upon the first fruits of the democratic administration, which inherited from its republican predecessor a bankrupt treasury and unwise financial legislation, impaired public credit and widespread disaster, and which under the sagacious, courageous and patriotic leadership of its great president, Grover Cleveland, led the people out of the Slough of Despond to the high ground of substantial and increasing prosperity.

The following ticket was named:

Ex-Congressman Benjamin F. Myers, of Harrisburg, was nominated for state treasurer by acclamation.

James S. Morehead, Judge Herman Yeskes, Charles S. Noyes, Judge Smith, Christopher Magee and Judge O. P. Brecklet were nominated for judges of the superior court and at 8:22 o'clock p. m. the meeting adjourned sine die.

WE HOLD THE CUP.

THE ENGLISHMAN REFUSES TO SAIL OVER THE COURSE

And Defender Gets the Third and Final Race.

The America's cup race ended in a fiasco. Lord Dunraven withdrew the Valkyrie immediately after the start and the Defender sailed over the course alone.

The America's cup committee notified C. Oliver Iselin that three races and the cup were awarded to gallant Defender, and the crowds afloat and ashore cheered the ship that sustained Uncle Sam's supremacy on the seas and the skipper and crew that sailed her. For at least another year the international tropy is ours and in all probability it will be many years before a British yacht again challenges for the cup. The mishap of last Tuesday and the rather remarkable action of Lord Dunraven will not further the interests of international sport. Americans have complained of not being given fair play when racing in English waters, and both in 1893 and this year extra pains have been taken to prevent his lordship from having cause to complain of unfairness here. In withdrawing he does not charge any special unfairness to his boat, but bases his action upon the interference with both yachts caused by the large excursion fleet.

This was not the cause of the trouble Thursday, for the course was clear at the start when the British boat withdrew. The objections raised by the owner of the Valkyrie were made before the boats reached the line and were based upon the conduct of the attendant fleet on Saturday and Tuesday. Lord Dunraven sent the America's cup committee a strongly worded letter complaining about the action of steamboats and tugs, and stating that he was not willing to continue racing the Valkyrie unless a clear course was provided. He added that in his opinion the course should be distant from any large city.

Up to the time for the start for Thursday's race Lord Dunraven had received no reply to his communication. After his withdrawal from the race he said it was his intention to start if he received a reply, but none coming to hand he merely went down and crossed the line to give the other boat a chance to make the race.

Another Account.

Valkyrie crossed the line with Defender in Thursday's race in a half-hearted fashion and immediately surrendered, hoisted the colors of the New York Yacht-Club, as the signal to that effect, and started back to the city. She claimed that she had been blanketed by a pilot boat. Defender sailed over the course alone, turning the mark about 1:40.

The unfortunate foul between Valkyrie III. and Defender, at the start of the race on Tuesday, the awarding of the race to Defender, and, above all, the fact that Valkyrie was looked upon by many as a hopelessly outclassed yacht, all tended to blue matters up considerably.

But, under the gray mantle of clouds hovering over Sandy Hook and its vicinity, there was a glimmer of bright sunshine caused by the report that Mr. C. Oliver Iselin had asked the America's cup committee if they had any objection to his proposing to Lord Dunraven to resail the triangular race of Tuesday.

Dunraven's Protest.

Lord Dunraven's strong denunciation of the interference of steamers with the racers was looked upon in quite a serious light as there seemed no doubt that he meant what he said when he threatened to withdraw from Thursday's race if interfered with.

Contrary to expectations the excursion fleet was full twice as large as on Tuesday. From Scotland lighship up through the Narrows there was one continues line of boats.

When the Valkyrie came down to the line a large schooner pilot boat, came directly across and to windward of her. In an instant she was blanketed and as soon as she got a bit of wind she went to port and rounded the lightship.

As she did so she sent up to her mast-head the ensign of the New York Yacht Club, signifying that she surrendered the race.

It became apparent that Lord Dunraven had carried out his expressed intention of refusing to race any more in these waters if crowded by the excursion fleet.

AFTER THE LEGISLATORS.

Springfield's Grand Jury to Investigate Grave Charges.

In the Sangmon county circuit court at Springfield, Ill., State Attorney Graham gave instructions to the grand jury for the September term of court, just convened, to investigate the charges of corruption made against certain members of the legislature and called upon the jury to do its duty and sift the matter to the bottom. The state's attorney claimed that the charges made in the press of the state were so definite and detailed that the jury and the prosecuting authorities could not agree to ignore the matter.

Over in Miss. a few weeks since three prominent politicians shot and killed a man. Quickly the grand Jury found indictments for murder. The trial came on at once and so healthy was the sentiment against lawlessness that the murderers fearing the gallows came at once into court, plead guilty and were sentenced to the penitentiary for life. The public conscience must be quickened to the point of administering equal and speedy justice to all or human life will grow cheaper.

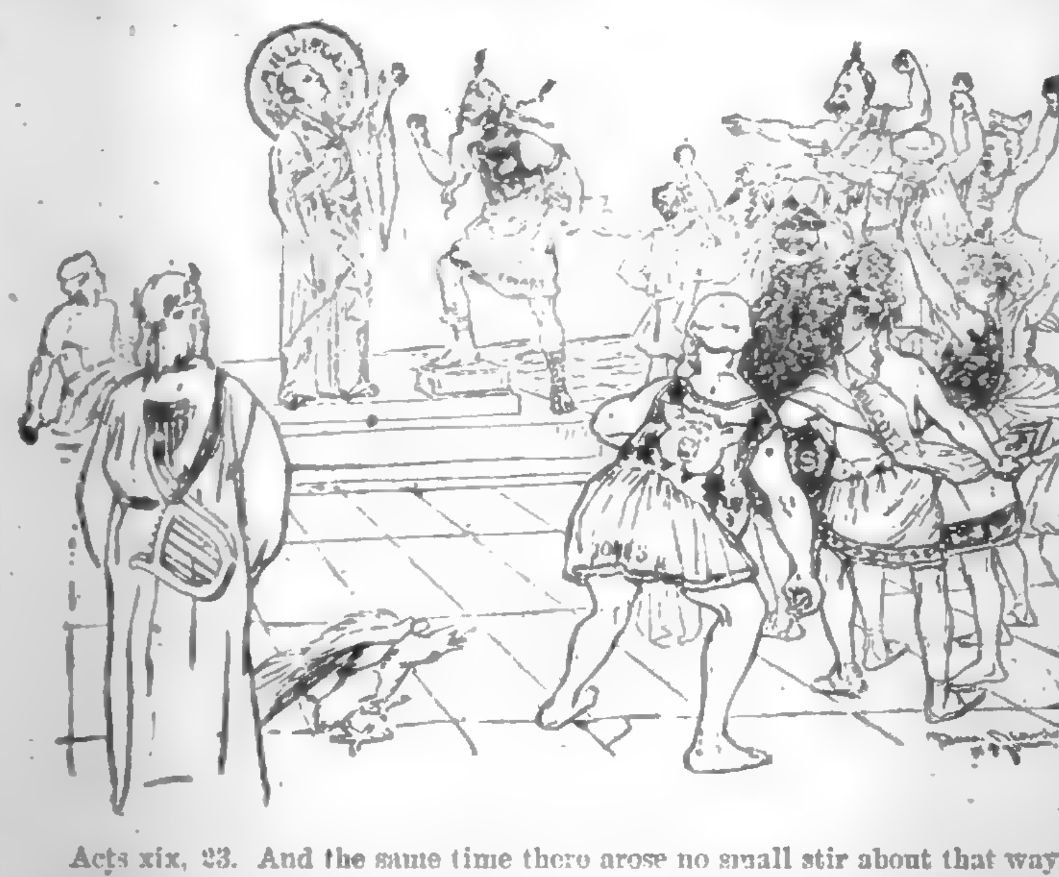
The Silver Convention held last week in Birmingham settled fully the fact that the fight on the money issue will be made by Democrats within the Democratic party. The convictions which control the honest men of both sides will necessarily give us an interesting fight, but in the midst of our zeal we must not forget that we are brethren and will continue living together after the fight is over.

Mrs. Wm. H. Felton, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Woman's Depatment, also chairman of the Awards Committee of the same department, and one of first five women appointed by the Exposition Company, and composed entirely of gentlemen, has been invited by the National Agricultural Congress, which will assemble in Atlanta, October 10th to the 16th, to make an address upon "Farmers' wives, and their need." She has accepted the invitation and is the only woman from Georgia on the programme.

DEMETRIUS BLACKBURN AND THE SILVERSMITHS.



Acts xix, 23. And the same time there arose no small stir about that way.
24. For a certain man named Demetrius, a silversmith, which made silver shrines for Diana, brought no small gain unto the craftsmen;
25. Whom he called together with the workmen of like occupation, and said, Sirs, ye know that by this craft we have our wealth.
26. Moreover ye see and hear, that not alone at Ephesus, but almost throughout all Asia, this Paul hath persuaded and turned away much people, saying that they be no gods, which are made with hands;
27. So that not only this our craft is in danger to be set at naught; but also that the temple of the great goddess Diana should be despised, and her magnificence should be destroyed, whom all Asia and the world worshipeth.
28. And when they heard these sayings, they were full of wrath, and cried out, saying, Great is Diana of the Ephesians.
29. And the whole city was filled with confusion.

TO STIR UP ENVY.

A Philadelphia Paper Tries to Create a Class Prejudice.

The Philadelphia Manufacturer is opposed to our present standard of value, and is trying to secure the adoption of what it calls "bimetallism," but what would in reality be a single silver standard. Writing of the fall in prices, which is claimed by silverites to be due to the use of gold as a measure of values, The Manufacturer says, "A dollar of high purchasing power is a good thing only for nonproducers," and argues that "the dollar has been given artificially high purchasing power solely that the few might enrich themselves at the expense of the many."

This attempt to create a class prejudice against the gold standard on the ground that it was designed to benefit a few nonproducers at the expense of the many would be more appropriate for a Populist or socialist paper than a journal published for business men. Not only are the statements untrue, but they are designed to appeal to the envy and hatred of those who think that their failure is due to the success of others. This is not the temper in which the important question of money is to be discussed and settled.

The claim that only nonproducers are benefited by a dollar of high purchasing power is so manifestly absurd that it is hardly worthy of contradiction. There are about 25,000,000 adults in this country, of whom ninety-nine one-hundredths are producers. The millions of working men and women in mills, factories and stores and on railroads and steamboats are all producers. Are they not benefited by receiving their wages in dollars which will buy a large amount of goods, instead of the reverse? Will The Manufacturer have the audacity to say that a cheap dollar which would buy less goods would be a greater benefit to this host of producers?

Then we have the great agricultural interest, with its millions of workers producing grain, cotton, etc. No one will deny that they are producers. Yet are they not benefited by receiving money which has a high purchasing power? Is there a farmer in America who does not want, so far as he is personally concerned, the dollars which will buy most of all the things which he consumes? If there are any who prefer the other kind they could easily be accommodated with Mexican "dollars," which will only buy 52 cents' worth of goods in this country.

There is absolutely no basis for the charge that the value of our present dollar has been artificially increased. Gold as money is worth just as much as in bullion, and no more. Its value is not affected by law, and it is therefore wholly untrue that it is designed to enrich the few at the expense of the many. The money of this country is the same for rich and poor. It gives no favor to any class, nor does it discriminate against the few or the many. It serves the interests of all alike, and only demagogues will pretend that it is maintained for the benefit of nonproducers or a limited class of rich men. A standard of values which measures alike the workingman's wages, the farmer's products and the manufacturer's goods cannot, with fairness, be said to artificially reduce prices in the interest of any class.

The Silver Case Stated.

The winklewad whortled its way through the dark,
As the spadgerwick snooted a scent from afar;
The snickerloot skecked on the snoot of a shark,
And the inklebot kinked the giune of a gar.

The suckerjab scrittled through thick and thin,
In quest of the scuttlejok, ruttling beyent;
The carpywog whetted the flange of its fin,
And fillipod a spuke at the scortle, hell bent.

The nimblewot welkered a whin at the moon,
As the jinglebox joined in the chorus of wrath,
While whangdoodles lifted the lay of the loon,
And the jumblewhacks gobbled the dank aftermath.

But in spite of this argument, strong as it is,
And in spite of the bugglet late brought about,
The symptoms all point to an argentic fizz,
It appears that free silver's about petered out.

A. M. Bailey, a well known citizen of Eugene, Oregon, says his wife has for four years been troubled with chronic diarrhoea and used many remedies with little relief until she tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which has cured her sound and well. Give it a trial and you will be surprised at the prompt relief it affords. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and Smith and McNeill, Jemison, Ala.

UNFOUNDED PREJUDICE.

Peculiar Views Held by Many That Banks Favor Dull Times.

One of the most surprising features of the present cheap money agitation is the evidence of widespread prejudice against banks. According to the silverites and fiat money advocates, it would seem that a bank is a diabolical institution which preys on the farmer and workingman, while the banker is an enemy and oppressor of the people. These peculiar views are held seriously by many persons, who oppose sound currency principles merely because the bankers are in favor of them.

It is hardly necessary in these enlightened days to show that banks are beneficent institutions, of as much use in our present system of industry and commerce as factories and stores. Their chief function is to serve as reservoirs for all the spare capital of the country, which they receive only to loan out again wherever it can be used to best advantage. The idea of the Populists that banks draw interest from the people on idle money locked up in bank vaults is purely a delusion. Unless capital is employed it can earn no interest.

The chief benefit conferred by banks is their insurance of credits, through which a much larger volume of business of all kinds is transacted than if men had to trade on a cash basis. In this way banks serve the same useful purpose as fire or life insurance companies.

The Populist pretense that bankers want money scarce so that business will be depressed is wholly untrue. In dull times bankers suffer like merchants and manufacturers. They cannot loan their funds, while they are nearly always bound to pay interest on the deposits loaned to them. Every sensible banker is anxious for the greatest possible prosperity. The banker of whom the cheap money advocates dream and write is altogether a creature of their imagination.

Wages In Japan.

We publish today a letter from Rev. Will B. Turner, a Methodist missionary who was sent from Georgia to Japan several years ago.

Mr. Turner keeps in touch with affairs in his native land and sees the effort that is being made to "Japan" our currency. His letter shows what we can expect should that calamity befall us.

A labor leader in Texas a few days ago advised the workingmen to vote for the free and unlimited coinage of silver. The rate of wages in the foremost free silver nation of the world will hardly commend this advice to sensible and intelligent wage earners in this country.

Mr. Turner, whose facilities for information are as good as possible and whose reliability is beyond question, tells us some interesting things about wages in Japan. It must be remembered that his figures are in Japanese money, which is equivalent to only 50 cents on the dollar in our currency.

Here are some of his figures:

Teachers in government schools, $12 to $35 per month.

Postoffice and custom house clerks and similar government positions, $8 to $50 per month.

Teachers in high schools, $15 to $75 per month.

Brick masons, 50 to 60 cents a day.

Carpenters, 45 to 55 cents a day.

Female operatives in cotton factories, 8 cents a day.

Male operatives, 16 cents a day.

Mr. Turner tells of an expert Japanese workman who with the aid of his wife made 8 cents a day!

The workingmen of this country are being informed about what a silver basis means in regard to wages.

There is not a nation on the face of the earth which has the free coinage of silver where the average of wages is one-fourth as high as it is in this country.—Atlanta Journal.

"Poor Man's Money."

They call silver "the poor man's money." Well, maybe it is. It is the money of Mexico and India and China and other unprogressive countries, where the common people are certainly about as poor as they can be.—Minneapolis Journal.

WHAT THEY SAY
OF THE ELECTROPOISE

The Electropoise has relieved me of a throat affection that has baffled all treatment and has annoyed me for more than forty years. Very respectfully, T. T. Tunstall.
Mobile, Ala., Oct. 22, 1894.

I commenced the use of the Electropoise when I was in a weak, nervous state, lying awake night after night until 2 o'clock. I commenced to sleep better almost immediately after beginning its use, and after three months felt that the Electropoise had paid for itself. Yours truly,
Mrs. J. C. Barry.
Memphis, Tenn., March 5, 1895.

A relative of mine who was wounded during the war, and who never recovered from the effects of the wound, has been using my Electropoise, and he is now as well as he ever was. I recommend the Electropoise to all my friends.
Yours truly, W. B. McGee,
Tchula, Miss., Dec. 5, 1891.

I cannot say too much in favor of the Electropoise. Yours truly,
T. S. Jones,
Fannin, Tex., June 25, 1895.

After returning from Hot Springs about a year ago without a cure and as the last resort, I applied the Electropoise, and received a prompt cure of rheumatism. This same Electropoise has made many cures in other diseases, and the instrument will do all that is claimed for it. Yours truly,
J. T. Stout.

There all parties desiring our services in the newspaper, job printing, legal, real estate or insurance business can find Mr. Smith ready to attend to their wants. I will spend as much time as practicable in Clanton and will always be on hand during the courts. I sincerely thank those who have been so kind as to entrust their business into my hands, and I ask for the new firm a continuation of patronage. Of course it is a difficult matter to run a paper in Chilton county, but with an enthusiastic support from all good citizens, the View will continue to make improvements. It has faithfully sought to do only those things which make to the betterment of the county. On this line it still marches.

GLARING FALLACIES.

Crude and Unsound Views From a Sound Money State.

Senator William E. Chandler of New Hampshire declares himself as steadfastly opposed to the gold standard and in favor of free coinage under an international agreement at a ratio of 15½ or 16 to 1. In a letter in which he defines his position he says, "That man knows nothing who will deny that if both ceased to be money metals an ounce of silver would be worth as much as one-sixteenth of an ounce of gold." Senator Chandler differs from the other silverites only in believing that the United States cannot alone make the value of 16 ounces of silver worth one of gold, but in other respects he holds all the false doctrines of the cheap dollar school. His views as to the origin of the value of gold and silver are exactly those of the fiat money advocates when he says, "It is the use of the two (gold and silver) as money metals that gives each all of its value worth considering."

That such glaring fallacies should be believed by a senator from a state which has always favored sound money is an indication of the popular confusion as to the real nature of value. Senator Chandler would indignantly deny that he wished to aid in the repudiation of debts or to establish the silver standard instead of gold. But his arguments are exactly the same as those on which the Populists base their schemes for cheating creditors and debasing the standard of value.

The bold assertion that if both metals ceased to be used as money 16 ounces of silver would be worth one of gold is purely guesswork on the part of Senator Chandler, and has no support in past history or present conditions. If what he says were true there must have been established by nature a fixed ratio between silver and gold. Such a supposition is nonsense, as nature has no more to do with ratios than with the number of buttons on a coat. Since gold is now worth 32 times as much as silver, it would seem that to deprive them of their use as money would affect both alike. Senator Chandler thinks that the result would be to decrease the value of gold twice as much as of silver, but offers no proof that such would be the case.

The theory that it is the use of gold and silver as money which gives them nearly all their value is another fiat money fallacy, the source of the greenback delusion. The facts are just the reverse of what Senator Chandler says. Instead of being valuable because they are used for money, gold and silver are used for money because they are valuable as metals. Before either was used as a measure of value gold and silver had a value of their own and would continue to be valuable if their use as money entirely ceased. Of this there can be no question, since in countries which have no metallic money these metals have a commercial value, which in the case of gold is equal to its coinage value. If Senator Chandler were right, gold and silver would be practically worthless in countries which did not coin these metals into money.

There are other equally grave blunders in Senator Chandler's profession of financial faith, but the above will be sufficient to show that he is an unsafe leader for Americans who want a sound currency and an honest dollar.

They Stand It; Why Should Not You?

Mine Owner—You ought to be ashamed to refuse to carry my little barrel. See what those fellows stand—you are stronger than they.

Wage Earner—That's so—strong enough to refuse.

What the Gold Standard Does For the Workingman.

"What will the gold standard do for the workingman?" asks the editor of an alleged labor paper. The answer is easy. It will continue to do just what it has been doing whenever adopted. It will furnish him with a standard of values which makes it certain that his wages will not fall through a decline in their purchasing power. It will enable him to buy more goods of all kinds than if he received cheaper money. It will guarantee him against being paid in a depreciated or fluctuating currency. It will make his deposits in the savings bank worth as much a year or five years hence as they are now.

By giving business a stable financial basis it will enable his employers to run their business steadily, thus insuring him against loss of work through the unsettlement of industry, which would exist under the silver standard. It will help extend our foreign trade by keeping our commerce on the same basis as that of the leading nations of the world, and thus aid in making markets for his surplus products. It will serve his best interests by encouraging the accumulation of capital and its investment in productive industry and so adding to the demand for labor. It will create a common interest between all countries having the same standard, and thus tend to diminish the national jealousies and wars which in the long run injure most the workingman. It will give him the standard of values used by all the highest wage paying countries of the earth, instead of that used by the Chinese, Hindoos and Mexicans. These are some of the things which the gold standard will do for the workingman. Will the 50 cent dollars do as much?

CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
Dr. G. C. Osgood,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
Dr. J. F. Kincheloe,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. Archer, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

Artificial Marble.

Nine-tenths of the marble-topped tables and so on—what I might call furniture marble—seen in this country, are made of artificial marble, said a man in the trade.

Thousands of tons of this mock marble are made annually, and even men in the trade can scarcely tell the difference between the real and the false article, for the markings, or marblings, go wholly through the block, and are not merely superficial. The basis of the whole is a combination of limestone and chalk, which, chemically treated, can be made of any shade desired. The artificial marble in the rough is placed in a water bath, and upon this is sprinkled a sort of varnish, consisting of sesquioxide of iron, gum, and turpentine, and all manner of marbled designs are produced when the turpentine is broken up by the addition of water.

Any pattern of marbling can be produced to order. Once such pattern appears, the air is expelled from the block, and the colors are fixed by the immersion of the stone in sulphate and warm water baths, and then another bath of sulphate and zinc so closes up the pores and hardens the stone that it acquires the density of the natural article, and can be cut and polished in the same manner.—Ex.

Colonizing Alabama.

The Southern States Magazine has a special dispatch showing that recent sales of land along the Mobile and Ohio Railroad to Northern and Western people aggregate 40,000 acres. Of this amount 22,000 acres have been sold to a colonization company organized at Sioux City, Ia., which proposes to take active steps at once to settle people from Iowa and other western states on this tract. The land will be laid out for farming purposes with a town in connection with it for such settlers as prefer town life. This property is located about sixty miles north of Mobile.

GREEN WAS ACQUITTED.

Result of a Remarkable Murder Trial at Madison, Ga.

William Green, on trial at Madison, Ga., for the murder of Tom Estes, was acquitted by the jury on short order. The case was an unusually remarkable one and a rehearsal of the material incidents are interesting. On May 12, 1895, by previous agreement, Miss Cora Estes, the fifteen year old daughter of John Tom Estes, a prosperous farmer of Morgan county, who resided near the line of Newton, met William O. Green at the little church at which the people of the neighborhood assembled for holding Sunday school. After a consultation the young couple got into a buggy and drove away. Sam Estes, a brother of the young lady, in company with a friend, followed, rode quickly to the Estes home and informed the father that the girl had started off with Green to be married.

Hastily getting into the buggy with his son, the two Esteses rode in hot pursuit of the fleeing couple. Estes and his son overtook the girl and Green at the residence of Rev. J. M. Harwell, near Newbern, Newton county, but on the Morgan side of the line, where they had gone to be married. The elder Estes sprang from his buggy, walked up to his daughter and, as witnesses have testified in the court, said, "Come on, Cora, and go home with me me."

Green thereupon drew his revolver and shot the old man dead in his tracks and, turning, fired at the younger Estes, who fled for refuge to Mr. Harwell's house.

The girl and her lover went on in their flight, and in less than forty minutes were married by Justice James N. Mann, who, of course, knew nothing of the tragedy.

Green fled to Baldwin county, where he remained until a few weeks ago, when, in attempting to pass through Macon on his way to Texas, he was captured and carried to Madison and lodged in the county jail. His case was set for this term of court and last Friday morning Judge John C. Hart called the case for trial. On Monday the trial ended with the above stated result.

DURANT WAS CALLOUS.

Unmoved by a Most Interesting Part of His Trial.

The fourth day of the Durant trial at San Francisco was pregnant with sensations. A fresh stage in the case was reached—a stage which was thrilling in its horror and kept the crowded court room almost gasping with interest. The story of the finding of Blanche Lamont's clothes, that were hidden away among the rafters of Emanuel church belfry, was told on the witness stand by the man who found them, and as each bit of cloth was shown the crowd swayed with excitement. There was just one man in all that crowd who seemed to feel no interest in the garments. This was the man who, of all others, might have been expected to shudder and cover his eyes when the clothes were exposed—the man accused of the murder of the girl who wore those garments when she was last seen alive.

The introduction of the girl's clothes was rather startling—almost theatrical. It happened soon after the noon recess. A man bearing a burden pushed through the crowd and into the court room. No one could see exactly what he held in his arms, but it appeared to be a woman's form.

What the bailiff brought into the court was really harmless enough—simply a dressmaker's dummy, over which had been draped Blanche Lamont's dress and skirt. In order to make it realistic, however, the dummy was as near as could be made the dead girl's height and figure—a tall, slight, girlish figure, undeveloped, but still not lacking in grace. The basque and skirt were torn and wrinkled, but the rents were pinned up in part and the gown draped so as to show much as it must have been where its wearer was alive.

The prosecution is still a good distance from its testimony, if it has any, which will prove beyond a doubt that the mild-mannered, well-bred little man is the one that committed the fiendish double tragedy at Emanuel Baptist church.

STORM SWEPT.

A Village in Kansas Completely Wrecked by Wind and Rain.

The little town of Gridley, Kansas, of 400 inhabitants, one of the terminuses of the Burlington branch of the Santa Fe, is a wreck with not a single uninjured house in its confines. Most of the buildings and all of the stocks of goods of every description are utterly ruined. About 3 o'clock Monday a storm of wind and rain burst on the town from the northwest. Twelve inches of water fell in an incredibly short time. This deluge completed the destruction that had not been accomplished by the wind. Strange to say, with all the falling roofs and walls and flying debris that broke windows far and near, not a person of the town reported more than the slightest personal injury.

Among the eighty or ninety buildings which were razed to the ground were the Methodist and Christian churches and the Odd Fellows hall. No one can yet get in from the country on account of the waters, but it is feared that there must have been some loss of life.

POISONED THE JAPS.

Four Young Japanese Dosed at a Chinese Restaurant.

Four young Japanese belonging to the Japanese Christian mission of San Francisco, went to a Chinese restaurant, at Waverly place, in the Chinese quarter. They received good attention and what was presumed to be a good meal was served. Shortly after they left the place they were all taken seriously ill, and a doctor was hastily summoned. It was discovered that they had been poisoned and an antidote was administered, but with little effect, and after a few hours of agony one of the victims died. The doctors have despaired of the lives of the other three, as the poison used is of a very virulent nature, the dead man turning black and swelling to twice the normal size shortly after his death. It is presumed that the enmity which exists between the two nations at the present time was the cause of the crime on the part of the Chinese.

HEIRS TO A FORTUNE.

General Holt's Will Sent Through the Mails to the Register of Wills.

What purports to be the last will of the late General Joseph Holt, of Kentucky, who died over a year ago, was made public at Washington Monday in a sensational manner. In the mail delivered to the office of the register of wills on Saturday were two or three envelopes which were not opened until Monday morning by Colonel Wright, the register. Among them was one addressed, in crude letters printed in ink, which when opened was found to contain a half-sheet of foolscap paper, the left end of which was burned, but not enough to make the writing illegible. Several small holes were burned in the sides and center of the sheet, but scarcely a word was eliminated. The text of the document was as follows:

"I do hereby devise and bequeath all of my property, both personal and real, to Lizzie Hynds, cousin of my first wife, and to Josephine Holt Throckmorton, who is my godchild, and to their heirs and assigns forever. I do hereby direct that at my death all of my property be divided equally between them.

"Lizzie Hynds is to inherit hers at my death; Josephine at the age of twenty-one. Her father, Major Charles B. Throckmorton, will hold her share in trust. I appoint Mr. Luke Devlin, of Washington, executor.

"Signed and sealed in the presence of the witnesses at Washington February 7, 1873. "J. HOLT.

"Witnesses: Ellen E. E. Sherman, U. S. Grant, W. T. Sherman."

Not one word of explanation accompanied the will and the officials of the register's office are at a loss to account for its appearance. No one who is familliar with the handwriting of General Holt and with the signature of Grant and Sherman doubt the authenticity of the document.

TENNESSEE'S MONUMENTS.

The State Will Erect Five Elegant Ones at Chickamauga.

The Tennessee board of Chickamauga park commissioners have decided to erect five elegant monuments to her sons engaged in the Chickamauga battles, of which three will stand to the memory of her confederate dead, one to the troops in each branch of the service and one to the Tennesseeans in the union army—a cavalry monument. The monuments will cost $2,000 each. Although Tennessee leads the list of states with fifty-eight commands engaged at Chickamauga, her appropriation is but $10,000, hence the main work of commemoration on an adequate scale will have to be carried out at a later day.

A CAISSON EXPLODES

And Four G. A. R. Soldiers Killed Outright.

Four members of the Louisville legion were instantly killed Wednesday morning by the explosion of ammunition in the caisson of the gun which was being driven to Phœnix Hill for service in connection with the Grand Army of the Republic parade. The victims were: Corporal A. L. Robinson, Private C. Woods, Private A. McBride and William Adams, colored, driver. The soldiers killed were members of Battery A, and belonged to a section of six in charge of one gun. Captain David Castleman was in command. The four unfortunates were seated on the caisson. The cause of the explosion is a mystery.

Enormous Damage by Army Worms.

The army worms which are so destructive to the young cotton bolls have made their appearance in the river counties of the Yazoo delta, including Cohoma, Bolivar, Washington, Sharkey, Issaquena and Warren counties of Mississippi, and also in the Louisiana parishes of Madison, Concordia and Tensas and east and west Carroll.

Big Blaze at San Antonio.

Fire broke out Monday morning in the four-story furniture store of L. P. Peck & Co., at San Antonio, Texas. The entire stock was destroyed. Estimated loss $75,000 with $50,000 insurance. Damage to building about $20,000, covered by insurance. The Alamo trunk factory adjoining was damaged to the extent of $5,000 and the Texas Millinery Emporium Company suffered a loss of $2,000.

Miners Refused to Come Out.

The miners' union at Ishpeming, Mich., ordered the pump men, firemen and other union employes engaged at section 24 mine of the Lake Superior company to come out, but the men say the order is a ridiculous one and stick to their posts.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Situation as Reported for the Past Week.

The favorable reports of the past few weeks are to be continued. Firm prices are mentioned by producers, and all southern staples are in steady demand. While much difference of opinion exists as to the future of the iron market, it is the fact that advancing prices are maintained, that no accumulation of stocks on hand is reported, and that the southern furnaces are running at full rates under satisfactory conditions. The coal output is large, and demand at present, is equal to the supply. The satisfactory condition of the southern textile industry is very apparent, the financial year which ended Sept. 1, showing an increase of more than one hundred mills and an increase of nearly 139,000 bales in the consumption of cotton as compared with the previous year.

Among southern new industries reported for the past week are the opening of marble quarries near Fort Smith, Ark., by a company with $1,000,000 capital; the organization of a coal mining company at Laredo, Texas, with $600,000 capital, and the chartering at Princeton, W. Va., of an oil and gas company capitalized at $[illegible]00,000 and one at Parkersburg, W. Va., with $1[illegible]0,000 capital. The Cavanal Coal, Coke and Railroad Co., capital $500,000, is chartered at Dallas, Texas, new cotton mills are reported at Demopolis, Ala., Toccoa, Ga., Prosperity, N. C., and Winnsboro, S. C.; a construction company with $100,000 capital has been chartered at Wilmington, N. C., and a $40,000 bridge and derrick company at Memphis, Tenn.

There is also reported a $25,000 tobacco company at Tallahassee, Fla., and a $20,000 lumber company at Bluefield, W. Va. Brick and tile works are to be established at Spring Hill, Alabama, electrical plants at Demopolis, Ala., St. Augustine, Fla., Dublin, Ga., and Beeville, Texas, and flour and grist mills at Atlanta, Ga., and Rock Hill, N. C.; an iron foundry will be built at Darlington, S. C., an oil mill at Sallisbury, S. C., and woodworking plants at Swainsboro, Ga., New Orleans and Levin, La., Carthage, N. C., London, Tenn., Corpus Christi and Waco, Texas.

The enlargements of southern industrial plants for the week, include cotton mills at Goldsboro, Greensboro and Moundville, N. C., and Batesburg, S. C., and sugar refinery at New Orleans, La.—Tradesman, (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

It is now thought by some physicians that death in cases of electric shock is due to a contraction of the arteries under the influence of the current so great that the heart is not strong enough to overcome it and keep up the circulation.

Dr. Bertram Windle has found that hens' eggs hatched between the poles of a magnet "produced an unusual number of abnormal chicks." It also appeared that the development of the eggs of trout was arrested by passing an electrical current through the water.

The French artificial pearl is produced by boring a hole in the shell of the oyster and introducing a small bit of glass, which the animal covers with "nacre," or mother of pearl, to stop the irritation. Such pearls are flat on one side and of less value than those produced naturally.

The longest unbroken stretch of telegraphic cable in the world is the one which connects the Red Sea with India. The weight of iron employed in its construction was not less than 61,126,714 pounds, while the copper weighed 517,404 pounds; 3500 knots was the total length of cable used.

A French geographical society proposes to divide the face of the clock into ten hours of ten minutes and a hundred seconds each. This is to make time uniform with the decimal system or count by tens. The count by twelves which now shows on the face of the clock survives from the earliest times—probably from long before the invention of letters.

Honor For a Dead Pet.

A Newfoundland dog was buried at Berkeley, Cal., the other day with all the solemnity and honor accorded human beings. The funeral took place from the Tracy residence, at the corner of Francisco and Grant streets, and the great, shaggy body was followed to the grave by nearly a score of mourners who seemed to be sincere in their emulation of the grief of Mrs. Tracy.

The dog was a favorite in the neighborhood. He used to play in the streets with children, and he had a manner of greeting friends that won him a warm place in many hearts.

When he died and Mrs. Tracy decided that he should have a regular burial, her friends sent offerings of flowers, which were heaped upon the bier in profusion.

The services in the house were conducted in every way befitting the dog's reputation and character for gentleness and honesty. Hymns were sung and a pretty eulogy in which his many admirable qualities were elaborated upon was read by a friend of his mistress.

Then the remains were carried to a newly-made grave back of the barn, placed in a rosewood casket and duly lowered with as much tenderness as if a human body was being handled.

The grave was quickly filled with earth and a little mound raised above it, which was strewn with choice flowers of every shade and hue. Mrs. Tracy will erect a headstone to mark the grave, and it will contain an enduring record of the virtues of her pet Newfoundland.—San Francisco Examiner.

Citric Acid.

Enormous quantities of citric acid are used in calico printing, in pharmacy and in the preparation of artificial lemonade. About an ounce and a quarter (570 grains) of pure citric acid dissolved in a pint of water gives a solution which has the average acidity of good lemon juice. When diluted with several times its bulk in water, sweetened with sugar, and scented with a single drop of essence of lemon, an artificial lemonade is cheaply produced, which is much used as a cooling drink in fever hospitals.

It has also been used in the navy as a substitute for fresh lemon juice in the treatment or prevention of scurvy, but has been found much less efficient. In fact, this artificial lemonade is by no means equal to that made from pure lemon juice, whether used at table or for invalids. In rheumatism or rheumatic gout the fresh juice of the lemon is preferred on account of the bi-citrate of potash which it contains. Pure lemon juice is also a valuable remedy in sore throat and diphtheria; cases have been recorded in which children have apparently been cured of this terrible disease by constantly sucking oranges or lemons.

Pure citric acid possesses, like some other acids, the power of destroying the bad effects of polluted water used for drinking; but it is, perhaps, better to boil the water before adding a little citric acid to it.—Chambers's Journal.

GREAT BOOK FREE.

When Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., published the first edition of his work, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, he announced that after 680,000 copies had been sold at the regular price, $1.50 per copy, the profit on which would repay him for the great amount of labor and money expended in producing it, he would distribute the next half million free. As this number of copies has already been sold, he is now distributing, absolutely free, 500,000 copies of this most complete, interesting and valuable common sense medical work ever published—the recipient only being required to mail to him, at the above address, this little COUPON with twenty-one (21) cents in one-cent stamps to pay for postage and packing only, and the book will be sent by mail. It is a veritable medical library, complete in one volume. It contains over 1000 pages and more than 300 illustrations. The Free Edition is precisely the same as those sold at $1.50 except only that the books are bound in strong manilla paper covers instead of cloth. Send NOW before all are given away. Which have you an eye to,
quantity or quality, when you buy something to make washing easy? If it's quality, you want Pearline. In effectiveness, in economy, and above all in its absolute harmlessness, no matter how or where you use it, there's nothing to compare with this, the first and only washing-compound.

What difference does the quantity make, after all? If you spend five cents or ten cents or a dollar for an aid to washing, don't you want the thing that will give you the most work, the best work, and the most certain safety for that amount of money? That thing is Pearline.

Send it Back. Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, be honest—send it back. 483 JAMES PYLE, New York.

WANTED
Bright Boys and Girls
—TO—Sell the New York Ledger
Every Week.

Big Pay for Little Work.

The New York Ledger has had so many applications from boys and girls throughout the country wanting to sell the Ledger during the week, as well as by subscription for the year, we have decided to establish wide-awake young agents in every town in the country.

We Want an Active Worker in Every Place.

Hundreds of smart boys and girls in every locality have several hours' spare time each week.

Read Our Plan.

We want just such ones to work for us a little while every week selling Ledgers at 5 cents each—selling the old, reliable, original and best story paper published—the New York Ledger.

No Possible Risk.

Our young agents take no possible risk. We send a bundle of Ledgers every week; they sell them like hot cakes at 5 cents. Every one wants the New York Ledger as soon as given an opportunity to see and read a copy of it. It will only be necessary for an agent to show a likely reader our offer of

$1,000 in Cash Prizes to Readers

$1,000 in Cash Prizes to Ledger Readers

And a regular reader will be secured on the spot. Each agent should read carefully the terms of the $1,000 in Cash Prizes to readers who send the best explanation of the mystery of Miss Florence Warden's wonderfully interesting story beginning in this week's Ledger, dated Sept. 14, entitled "The Mystery of the Inn by the Shore." Each agent will be entitled to compete for the $1,000 in Cash Prizes.

The Ledger Free.

If the postmaster or any responsible party will send us the name of a smart boy or girl to sell the Ledger every week in their town, we will put an extra Ledger in the agent's bundle each week, to be delivered free to the party appointing the agent as long as the agent sells the Ledger.

Send us the name of a smart boy or girl at once. Have them fill out this coupon and send it at once:

.............................18

I hereby agree to act from date as agent for the New York Ledger, and to sell the same to farmers and others at 5 cents a copy every week, and that I will report not later than the Monday after each package is received, on blank furnished and remit 3 cents for each copy I sell or deliver to subscribers, and will keep all unsold copies, to be returned as instructed.

WASHINGTON NOTES

GOSSIP OF THE CAPITAL IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS.

Doings of the Chiefs and Heads of the Various Departments.

At the close of business Thursday [illegible] true treasury gold reserve was [illegible],875. This includes $100,000 [illegible] St. Louis, Mo., deposited in New [illegible] exchange for currency.

[illegible]g Comptroller Tucker states [illegible] the news item going the rounds [illegible] press that L. B. Plumlee, re[illegible] [illegible] the First National bank of [illegible], Tenn., has been removed be[illegible] differed with the administra[illegible] the silver question, and was [illegible] in his opposition, is incor[illegible] Mr. Plumlee's resignation, [illegible] says, was requested for "pure[illegible]ness reasons" and in the inter[illegible] the creditors of the bank for [illegible] he was receiver.

[illegible] vague newspaper reports noth[illegible] known at the state department [illegible] intention of any of the govern[illegible] other American republics to [illegible] the belligerency of the [illegible] revolutionists and it is quite [illegible] that no formal application for recognition at the hands of the [illegible]d States has been made up to [illegible]. It is not perceived in Wash[illegible] how the insurgents can reap [illegible] substantial advantage at this time [illegible] such recognition and the only comfort that they would derive would be the moral effect.

Collector Brown, of Key West, Fla., has telegraphed the treasury depart[illegible] that the revenue cutter Winona [illegible] detained and turned over to him [illegible]oner Lark, suspected of being [illegible] in a filibustering expedition [illegible]st Cuba. Collector Brown was instructed to put himself in communication with United States District Attorney Clark, for the southern district of Florida. The treasury de[illegible] communicated the information to the department of justice and Acting Attorney General Conrad will await the report of Mr. Clark before taking any steps in the matter. Mr. Clark has already general instructions [illegible] his guidance as to filibustering ex[illegible].

The state department has received [illegible] information from China effectu[illegible] proving the accuracy of the dis[illegible]s recently published alleging [illegible] the work of the commission en[illegible] in the investigation of the Ku[illegible] missionary massacre has been [illegible] by the refusal of the Cinese to [illegible] those found guilty unless all [illegible] demands should be waived. M[illegible]ster Denby has cabled the depart[illegible] that seven men implicated in [illegible] outrage have been convicted and [illegible]ted. This was corroborated in a [illegible] a few hours later from Con[illegible] General Jernigan, in which he [illegible] the decapitation took place W[illegible]day morning.

Secretary Lamont Advancing Money.

Owing to a deficiency in the appro[illegible] for the pay of the army for [illegible] fiscal year ending June 30th, last, [illegible] officers and a number of en[illegible] men did not receive their pay [illegible] month of June, the last in the [illegible]. Secretary Lamont interested [illegible] in the matter and offered to ad[illegible] the necessary amount himself. He [illegible] directed the paymaster general [illegible] transfer certain unexpended bal[illegible] and to pay the enlisted men. [illegible] will receive their pay on prop[illegible] certified checks on the national [illegible] New York city. The latter [illegible], it is thought, will probably [illegible] advances from the secretary's [illegible] account, to be refunded as soon [illegible]ficiency bill making good last [illegible] shortage can be passed by con[illegible].

[illegible]gua Pays the "Smart Money."

[illegible] dispatches to the state depart[illegible] dated August 23d and 24th, [illegible] O'Hara, of San Juan del Norte, [illegible], announces the distribution [illegible] indemnity of £15,000 paid by [illegible] government of Nicaragua in re[illegible] to the British demand for dam[illegible] of the Bluefields affair. [illegible]fields Recorder claims that "the persons indemnified own [illegible] to England." The [illegible]s received by individuals range [illegible] £100 to £4,500, the British vice [illegible], Edwin Hatch, receiving the [illegible] amount.

[illegible] as the original British de[illegible] was for £15,000 as "smart [illegible]" to be paid for the insult to [illegible] flag in the person of Vice [illegible] Hatch, and left the question of [illegible] to Hatch and other British [illegible] in their private capacities, to [illegible] to further arbitration, this [illegible] to indicate that the Brit[illegible] government had abandoned its [illegible] intention of pressing further [illegible] and was willing to rest content [illegible] payment of the £15,000 de[illegible] by the British fleet.

FLAMES AT INDIANAPOLIS.

A Big Business Block Completely Destroyed.

A double front block, occupied by Eastman, Schleicher & Lee, retail furniture and china dealers at Indianapolis, was destroyed by fire early Wednesday morning, together with the entire stock. Loss, $200,000; insurance, $100,000. The Indiana National bank was destroyed, together with all its contents except the safe and its valuables. These are believed to be intact. Loss on contents is probably $100,000, with an insurance of nearly one-half. The Condit block, occupied by the Western Union, on the upper floor, was destroyed, and all batteries and wires ruined. The loss on this building is heavy in dollars and an immense inconvenience to business.

WEATHER CROP BULLETIN

Issued for the Past Week by the U. S. Agricultural Department.

The weekly weather crop bulletin issued by the weather bureau says:

North Carolina—Favorable week, with temperature much above normal and very dry except on the coast, cotton opening rapidly and very few complaints of boll-worms or shedding.

South Carolina—Excessive rain on the coast and dry in interior, favorable weather for gathering crops, cotton picking general, top crop shedding badly.

Georgia—Week very dry and unseasonably hot, but favorable to crops; cotton opening rapidly and picking beginning in northern counties, but well advanced in central and southern counties; less complaint of rust and shedding.

Florida—Cotton still damaged by rust and shedding; it is opening rapidly and picking active; cotton will fruit but little more on old lands; rains badly distributed.

Alabama—Hot, dry weather of past week caused cotton to open prematurely and has checked growth of immature bolls; about two-thirds of the cotton open and picking being pushed rapidly.

Mississippi—Week unusually hot and dry, causing cotton to open rapidly and permitting picking without interruption; complaints of damage to cotton from rust.

Louisiana—Hot, dry, sunshiny week, cotton opening rapidly and picking progressing; worms continue locally.

Texas—Dry weather has prevailed throughout the state and has been favorable for cotton picking, but has been injurious to late cotton and top crop, and in some localities is causing bolls to open prematurely.

Arkansas—Excessive heat and dry weather have injured all growing crops; cotton injured by rust, shedding of immature bolls and premature opening very rapidly and picking will be general this week.

Tennessee—Scattered showers, principally in central portion; cotton opening rapidly; drought damaged uplands.

SONS OF VETERANS.

Election of Officers at Knoxville Next Meeting at Louisville.

The commandery-in-chief of the Sons of Veterans elected the following officers for the next year at Wednesday afternoon's session:

Commander-in-chief, W. H. Russell, of Rush Center, Kan. G. B. Hurlburt, of Illinois, received 57 votes and Mr. Russell received 71. Senior vice commander, Elwood T. Carr, of Radnor, Pa.; junior vice commander, W. R. Cooper, of Knoxville, Tenn.; members of the council-in-chief, H. V. Spelman, of Ohio; Dan S. Goulding, of Massachusetts, and R. M. Buckley, of Louisville, Ky.

The following staff officers were selected by Commander-in-Chief Russell:

Chaplain-in-Chief, Rev. Fred Cole, of Providence, R. I.; surgeon general, Dr. Dan S. Gardner, of Massilon, O.; inspector general, Fred C. Stillson, of Battle Creek, Mich.; judge advocate, R. B. Oglesby, of Indianapolis. The adjutant general will be named as soon as headquarters have been established.

The commander-in-chief decided to hold its annual encampment next year at Louisville, Ky.

Resolutions were adopted expressing gratification at the manner in which the reception of visitors was conducted in Knoxville.

STEAMBOAT ABLAZE.

Six Women and One Child Perish in the Flames.

Fire broke out on the steamer Iona, from Edinburgh to London, Monday. The flames spread with so much rapidity that before aid reached the vessel six of the passengers and the stewardess of the Iona were burned to death. The fire was put out after four hours' struggle.

The fire broke out in the forepart of the vessel when the Iona was off Clacton. The passengers were aroused and it was supposed that all had escaped from the burning cabin. While the crew were busy fighting the flames, soldiers on board assisted in lowering the boats and in supplying passengers with life belts.

There was no wind and the sea was perfectly smooth. There was, however, so much excitement and confusion among the passengers that the captain was unable to restore order. Suddenly it was discovered that some women and children were missing. The stewardess re-entered the burning cabin, it is presumed to try to rescue those who were missing, and she also perished.

VEST IS FOR SILVER.

Says He Has Not Changed His Views Regarding Free Coinage.

Senator Vest, of Missouri, was interviewed at New York in regard to his reported change of views on the silver question. He said:

"I know absolutely nothing of the published report and the alleged conversation never occurred.

"During my stay abroad no one approached me on the subject. I have not left the ranks of free coinage advocates and my adhesion to the principles which I have always advocated is unchanged, notwithstanding the unauthorized report to the contrary."

All Dug Out Alive.

One wall of the old Cottonade building at Nashville tumbled down Thursday morning, burying six workmen under the debris. It was thought at the time that they had been crushed to death, but after an hour's work they were all dug out alive. Some of them were badly injured.

AT CHICAMAUGA

THE HOSTS OF THE BLUE AND GRAY COMMINGLE.

Monuments of the Various States Turned Over to the Government.

At early dawn Wednesday tens of thousands of people were astir on the streets of Chattanooga. Before 8 o'clock every thoroughfare in the city was thronged. Not since the bloody battle that occurred in that vicinity thirty-three years ago has there been so many people in the region.

Some of the old veterans who fought all over the grandly beautiful mountains and valleys surrounding Chattanooga said that there were more people present than upon that awful occasion. Estimates as to the size of the multitude vary, some of the conservatives placing the number at not over 50,000, others at 100,000 or more.

At daylight the people began to move towards Chickamauga, and from that time on until afternoon the trains and electric cars reminded one of those leading to the World's Fair at Chicago. They were jammed. The crowd was well handled, however.

The first event of the day was the dedication of the Michigan state monuments at Snodgrass Hill, a point at which there was possibly more hard fighting during the battle than on any other part of the field.

Governor John T. Rich, with his staff, the members of the park commission, arrived at the hill a few minutes after 9 o'clock. Chairman C. E. Belknap, president of the Michigan commission, in a brief speech in which he told of the work done by the commission, called the assembly to order and then introduced Governor John T. Rich, who spoke.

Col. Henry M. Duffield, of Detroit, responded.

When he had finished there was music by a military band after which the benediction was said.

The veterans of Ohio took possession of Snodgrass Hill as soon as those from Michigan had finished. General John A. Beatty, president of the Ohio commission, presided. When he had called the audience to order, Bishop Joyce invoked the blessing of the Deity. Following the prayer General Charles H. Grosvenor addressed the gathering.

Short addresses were then made by ex-Governor Campbell, who was governor at the time the commission was created. Hon. J. S. Gill and Hon. J. S. McElroy. General Aquilla Wiley then made a short address formally turning the monuments over to Governor McKinley, who in turn received them and then transferred them to the national government.

The Illinois monuments were then dedicated. Governor Altgeld was introduced and made an address turning the monuments over to the government. Responses were made by Col. Smith D. Atkins and Col. J. G. Everest.

The exercises attendant upon the transfer of the Indiana monuments to the government took place at Lyttle Hill, as the ridge south of the Dyer house is called in memory of General Lyttle, who was killed there.

The exercises were concluded with a salute fired by the regiments of the Indiana militia that were present.

The army of the Cumberland held the first session of its reunion at the courthouse at 9 o'clock in the morning. General James Morgan, of Illinois, the first vice-president, presided in the absence of the president, General W. S. Rosecrans. It was purely a business session. The work consisted of the reports of the officers and committees.

At night there was a meeting at the big tent, when General C. F. Manderson, of Nebraska, delivered the annual address.

Lieutenant General J. M. Schofield, General G. M. Dodge, of the army of the Tennessee, and others, also spoke.

THE BATTLEFIELD DEDICATED.

Vice-President Stevenson Presided. Gens. Gordon and Palmer Speak.

It is doubtful if the world ever before saw another such scene as that witnessed at Chickamauga Thursday. One of the bloodiest battle fields the world has ever seen was formally dedicated as a pleasure park for the edification and enjoyment of the American people for all time.

The dedication was witnessed by more than 50,000 people of the north and south and at least half of them took part in the bloody civil war of which Chickamauga battle was a part. Two generals with silver-gray hair who headed thousands of men on opposite sides in the great battle made the principal speeches at the dedication. They were Generals John M. Palmer and John B. Gordon.

The ceremonies took place at Snodgrass Hill, whose top and sides for a mile or more were so thickly covered with dead this day thirty-two years ago, that, as the survivors say, one could walk all over it from crest to base stepping from one prostrate body to another.

The first event of the day was a display of arms by battery F. 4th United States artillery. Then there was a battalion regimental drill showing the new tactics and field movements, under command of Colonel Polland.

The meeting was called to order at 12 o'clock and at that hour Snodgrass Hill was covered with people. Vice President Adlai E. Stevenson presided. The great natural arena selected by the national commission on Snodgrass Hill was so arranged that nearly every one of the tens of thousands of auditors could hear the speeches and addresses throughout.

There was a national salute of 44 guns by the artillery, followed by the Star Spangled Banner, played by one of the United States infantry bands. It was cheered to the echo by veterans of the blue and of the gray.

When the applause had ceased Vice-President Stevenson made a brief address appropriate to the occasion.

Vice-President Stevenson, in taking the chair, said: "I am honored by being called to preside over the ceremonies of this day. By solemn decree of the representatives of the American people this magnificent park, with its wonderful associations and memories, is now to be dedicated for all time to national and patriotic purposes.

"This is the fitting hour for the august ceremonies we now inaugurate. Today by act of congress of the United States the Chickamauga and Chattanooga National Military Park is forever set apart from all common uses, solemnly dedicated for all the ages to all the American people. The day is auspicious. It notes the anniversary of one of the greatest battles known in history. Here in the dread tribunal of last resort, valor contended against valor. Here brave men struggled and died for the right, 'as God gave them to see the right.'"

Prayer was offered by the Rt. Rev. Bishop Gailor, of Tennessee.

"America," the beautiful national anthem, was then sung by the audience, accompanied by the bands.

General John M. Palmer, the venerable senator from Illinois, who thirty-two years ago today risked his life on the battlefield, made the first dedicatory address.

Another patriotic air followed General Palmer and then that battle-scarred veteran of the Confederacy, whom Lee called his "right arm," John B. Gordon, of Georgia, was introduced. He was greeted with no less applause than that accorded General Palmer and spoke with fully as much enthusiasm and feeling.

After a grand peroration, General Gordon closed as follows:

"Forever live the spirit which animated the American congress and government in making possible this inspiring hour; and may the spirit of this hour abide in the hearts of our descendants through all generations. And why not? Why not mutual, absolute confidence, trust and unity? What is the basis of this trust and brotherhood? Shall I answer? I do answer, because the answer is a great truth, which history will record and heaven reveal at last. That basis for brotherhood vouched by the dead heroes who fell, and the living around me today, is the monumental fact that every drop of blood which was shed in that struggle was the priceless tribute paid by liberty-loving men to inherited and profoundly cherished convictions. Every uniform worn by the brave, whether its color was blue or gray; every sheet of flame from the ranks and rifles of both; every cannon that shook Chickamauga's hills or thundered around the heights of Gettysburg; every whizzing shell that tore through the wilderness at Chancellorsville or Shiloh; every bullet-rent flag that floated in victory or went down in defeat on any field; every patriotic sigh or prayer wafted heavenward from the north or the south; every loving and tender ministration at the dying soldier's side; every agonizing throb in woman's heart or burning tear on devoted woman's cheek—all, all were contributions to the upbuilding of a loftier American manhood for the future defense of American freedom.

And now by the authority of the American congress, and the executive department of the government, in the presence of these survivors of the great struggle; in the midst of this historic woodland, whose leaves were reddened with heroic blood, and whose giant oaks still bear upon their shivered trunks the visible track of shot and shell; by these flowing fountains, whose crystal waters symbolize the purity of purpose which convenes us—in the presence of all these witnesses, and in the name of this great republic and its people, we set apart, as an American Mecca, and consecrate for all time, this immortal battle-ground, made forever glorious by American valor.

THEY WANT SUFFRAGE.

South Carolina Women Speak Before the Constitutional Convention.

In the constitutional convention Tuesday everything was as serene and placid as the surface of a lake on a sultry day. There was not even an echo of Monday's battle of words.

Senator Benjamin R. Tillman being engaged with his committee hearing a contest, he was not in the hall during the morning session. The news that Irby had so severely handled his erstwhile bosom friend was a surprise it will take many some time to recover from.

The convention was only in session about half an hour during the morning owing to the fact that none of the committees were ready to report. A flood of new ordinances and resolutions were received and then the convention took a recess until 8 o'clock p. m., on motion of Colonel Aldrich, to hear speeches from all advocates of the cause of woman's suffrage who wished to address the convention.

A Five Million Mortgage.

One of the largest mortgages ever recorded in the probate office at Montgomery, Ala., was filed Monday. It is for $5,000,000 and is given by the Mobile and Montgomery and the Louisville and Nashville railroads to the Central Trust Company of New York. The mortgage covers all of the property and rolling stock of the Nashville and Montgomery road.

THE GATES AJAR

AND THE GREAT EXPOSITION AT ATLANTA IS OPENED.

Brilliant Exercises Attendant Upon the Auspicious Occasion.

The thunder of a hundred guns just at sunset Wednesday afternoon was the signal that the Cotton States and International exposition was formally opened. A minute before Grover Cleveland, president of the United States, sitting in his library at Gray Gables, had touched the electric key. The sharp metallic click of the instrument being watched by 3,000 people at Atlanta, sounded clearly in response.

The crowd cheered. The cannon thundered. The steam hissed and the machinery started. The south's greatest exposition was formally opened.

Twenty-five thousand people saw the opening. The largest and longest military parade ever seen in the city marched from the city to the grounds to witness the ceremonies. Over half the states in the Union were represented by distinguished representatives. Many foreign countries had representatives in line.

The opening exercises were deeply impressive. From the rendering of the grand new air, "Salute to Atlanta," to the benediction by Bishop Becker, everything on the program was intensely interesting.

It was a scene that marked an era in the south's history. It marked the industrial awakening of a great section and signalized a new departure in the relations of the races. What was happening on the stage of the auditorium, where the opening exercises were held, possessed nothing less than the significance of a historical drama.

The first day of the great show was immensely gratifying. It far surpassed in point of attendance and interest the highest expectations of the directory. It was a great day, a memorable day, a day to be remembered.

It started the exposition upon a career which promises many rich triumphs to those who are the bone and sinew of the enterprise.

The Day's Program.

In early morning the troops of the state began gathering. Every train brought a company, and as fast as they arrived they were escorted to the armories in the city, where they were royally entertained.

At 12 o'clock the companies began forming around the streets leading towards the corner of Broad and Marietta streets. Chief Marshal Kellogg and his staff were posted near the corner and around them were formed the various companies.

At 1 o'clock the line moved. The line of march was through an immense throng of people. It was along Marietta to Forsyth, Forsyth to Hunter street, Hunter to Whitehall street, Whitehall to Alabama street, Alabama to Broad street, Broad to Marietta street, Marietta to Peachtree street, Peachtree to Wilson avenue, and thence to the grounds.

As the head of the column reached the entrance the companies were halted, and the exposition directors and their guests, in carriages, passed into the grounds.

Then the military companies were marched in. They stopped on the plaza and stacked arms and were then taken to Sheriff Callaway's barbecue stand, where they were the guests of the exposition for a short while.

The guests and directors entered the auditorium where the formal opening occurred. The speakers were seated on the small stage which was profusely decorated. Judge Speer had remained in his private car and was escorted to the building shortly before the exercises began.

While the crowd was still gathering Victor Herbert's band rendered "The Salute to Atlanta" in a way that caused great applause. The master of ceremonies, presented Bishop Cleveland Kinlock Nelson, who impressively offered the opening prayer. Colonel Albert Howell then read the exposition ode written by Mr. Frank L. Stanton.

President Collier delivered an address, giving the thrilling story of the exposition's progress from its inception to the opening day. He was followed by Mrs. Joseph Thompson, president of the woman's board. The address of Mrs. Thompson was a gem, and as the words fell from her lips the large audience listened attentively.

For several minutes after Mrs. Thompson took her seat, the house continued to applaud her happy effort.

Mr. Bullock waved his hand for silence.

"President Cleveland is waiting on this audience," said Mr. Bullock, "and let me impress upon you this fact.

"We have with us today the representation of negro enterprise and negro civilization. I have the honor to introduce to you Professor Booker T. Washington, principal of the Tuskegee normal and industrial college, who will formally present the negro exhibit." Professor Washington delivered an exceedingly appropriate address in behalf of his race.

Georgia's Welcome.

The next feature of the program was the address of welcome in behalf of the state, which was delivered by Mr. George R. Brown, representing Governor Atkinson.

In introducing Mr. Brown, Mr. Bullock said that the people of the south had watched with deep concern the illness of its chief executor and they had reason for thanking the giver of all good and perfect things that his life had been spared. Mr. Bullock said:

"We are all thanking God that the life of Governor Atkinson has been spared and he is present with us today, but his friends will not allow him to speak, as the physical exertion might be too great."

At the conclusion of the words of the speaker Governor Atkinson arose from his seat on the platform and was given an ovation.

The speech of Mr. Brown was well received and listened to attentively.

Mayor King responded in behalf of the city of Atlanta, and extended welcome to the visitors. He said that Atlanta was the progressive city of the south, and in her tall factory chimneys, standing monuments to her material prosperity, her spacious and numerous school buildings, filled annually with children seeking wisdom, her elegant and costly office buildings, where fortunes were made in a day, sufficient proof was to be found to substantiate his assertion. He wanted all who came within her gates to feel that they were her bidden guests enjoying the love and confidence of the community.

The oration of the day was delivered by Hon. Emory Speer. With eloquent words the orator told of the rich developments of the southland and how from chaos and ruin substantial cities had been builded. In speaking of the progress of Atlanta Mr. Speer said he believed the Good Master was probably thinking of a city built on the lines on which Atlanta has been made when He said that a city set upon a hill could not be hidden and that our light would shine for all. From Marthasville we had grown until now the little village was but a recollection and its past but a dream.

Benediction was then pronounced by Bishop Becker.

The Button Pressed.

The telegraph operator wired that the exercises were over and the pressing of the button was all that was necessary to complete the order of the day. The little instrument clicked, there was a pause and then the current flashed back under the pressure of the finger of President Cleveland. The guns boomed out the glad tidings. The wheels in machinery hall rattled and roared, the flags fluttered from a thousand flag-poles, and the Cotton States and International exposition was open.

At Gray Gables.

A special from Buzzard's Bay, Mass., says: There were but few guests or others who were bidden, who did not arrive at Gray Gables to witness the pressing of the button which started the machinery in motion at the International and Cotton States exposition. The president and Mrs. Cleveland and all under the roof of the villa were alert all through the day taking a deep interest in the final preparations and awaiting as patiently as possible the signal which was so long in coming.

There was a long delay. The first word received in explanation was that there was so much speech making and other details to be gone through with before the president's place in the official program of the day would be reached; that it would likely be 4 or 5 o'clock before the button pressing would be required. The president made the best of it and waited with the others.

Shortly after 6 o'clock it became evident that the moment was approaching and the family and the president gathered about the ornamental telegraph key once more in full readiness. The signal came, and at fifty-four minutes and twenty seconds after 6 o'clock, Boston time, there was a tap, distinct and firm, on the wire from the Gables, and a moment later it was fully understood what it signified. The president had pressed the button.

REBELS VICTORIOUS.

Spaniards Attacked by Jose Maceo and a Hard Fight Ensues.

Particulars have reached Santiago de Cuba of the engagement between the forces of Garrido, Gomez and Jose Maceo, at Savigne, on the 13th. The loss was very heavy. The Spanish column of 850 men of the regiment of Simancas, 400 guerilleros of Gauntanamo, under Commander Garrido and Captain Gomez, with two pieces of artillery, met the vanguard of Jose Maceo's forces a short distance from Camp Santa Maria Savigne. The Spaniards attacked the skirmishing party, the fighting continuing all the afternoon. The Cubans retreated slowly to the foot of the high hill, on the peak of which their camp was located, drawing the enemy on.

Maceo, with 1,200 men, watched the fight from his well fortified position on the hill-top, his near presence being unsuspected by the Spaniards. At break of day the Spaniards resumed the attack, placing themselves along the bank of a creek at the foot of the hill. When the engagement was at its height Maceo sent part of his force of 1,200 men down the opposite side of the hill and surrounded the enemy. He fought desperately and for some hours the list of slain grew rapidly.

Antonio Maceo, who was in Tacandeli, eighteen miles from the scene of conflict, learning that his brother was fighting the Spaniards, sent 500 calvarymen to his aid. With this additional force Jose Maceo soon had the eenmy whipped and retreating, but it was not until eight hours of hard fighting. The Spaniard's loss was about 200 killed and wounded. Two officers lost their lives and nine were wounded, among them Captain Gomez, of the artillery, whose wounds will prove fatal. The Spaniards in their official report confess to twelve killed and fifty wounded. The rebels lost fifteen men and thirty were wounded.

Virginia Day at the Exposition.

Governor O'Ferrall has named October 28d as Virginia day at the Atlanta exposition.

TILLMAN AND IRBY

ENGAGE IN A HOT WAR OF WORDS ABOUT BUTLER.

An Exciting Episode in South Carolina's Convention.

Monday, the stormiest and most sensational day in South Carolina in a decade, the convention floor being the scene.

The two greatest of the recognized reform leaders—Tillman and Irby—along with other stalwarts of the South Carolina political world, became involved in a political controversy that caused Irby to rake Tillman fore and aft. Fraternal relations were cast to the winds by the Tillman brothers and time and again the president had to call upon the seargeant-at-arms of the convention and order him to preserve the peace.

One single word—"Butler"—was the cause of the whole explosion and the flow of dynamite charged verbal darts that were fired thick and fast. The whole thing came from George D. Tillman's speech in regard to the establishment of Butler county and the action of the convention in so establishing and naming the county in the absence of Senator Tillman. The senator was never more bitter, perhaps, in his whole career. Things that he said of General Butler were rough and in the excitement he did not mince his words in speaking of his elder brother. His whole frame as he spoke seemed to quiver with passion. Irby, too, spoke with more energy and passion than he has ever yet been known to display.

Ben Tillman attacked the character of General Butler in strong language. He said Butler had disgraced his name. He spoke of his absence when his brother spoke on Saturday (and with deliberation he added) "It is perhaps, fortunate that I was not here, for from what I read in the papers as to the speech made on this floor and what I have heard from gentlemen since my arrival as to it, I might have been unable to discuss the matter in cold blood."

Senator Irby Replies.

Senator Irby said he would not stoop to engage in this debate if he had not been attacked for voting for Butler county. Speaking of Ben Tillman, he said:

"With his characteristic consistency, after making one of the bitterest speeches of his life, he ends it by saying that he hopes that there will be no factional feeling on this floor.

"The gentleman dares to criticise me because I dared to exercise the right of a member to vote as I pleased. I did not intend it as a special compliment to M. C. Butler, but I throw back in his teeth that nothing M. C. Butler may do will ever disgrace the name of Butler in South Carolina. It will live (facing Senator Tillman and shaking his finger at him) when you are dead and forgotten. (Loud applause.) I am not the champion of Mr. Butler. I have fought him as earnestly as any man, and no man in this state had more to do with his defeat than I did, but General Butler went down and you had not the magnanimity to let him pass and not follow him into this convention. We are not here as the adherents of any man. So help me God; I will not vote for any law that will not fit both factions in this state. (Applause.)

"I sincerely regret that the great leader of the people of South Carolina should so far forget himself at the very threshold of this convention's session, when it is pre-eminently necessary that we should meet as brother Carolinians, that he should undertake to pop his whip over my head. I proudly acknowledge that I voted for Butler county and take great pleasure in standing to my original vote."

George Tillman was very severe on his brother, and he and Talbert got into such a hot debate, face to face, that the sergeant-at-arms was several times sent to preserve the peace.

The name of "Butler" was finally elim'nated.

THE ARMY OF TENNESSEE.

The Society Hold an Enthusiastic Meeting at Cincinnati.

A Cincinnati special says: The headquarters of the Society of the Army of Tennessee presented a warlike appearance Monday morning. The Grand hotel, the rendezvous for the old warriors, was very appropriately decorated in honor of the occasion. Back and forth across the lobby of the hotel sons of veteran cadets marched to measured tread and rifles at a "carry arms." Scattered around in little groups the veterans discussed incidents of war times and waited for "fall in," when they marched to the hotel to transact the business of the day. The meeting was called to order at 10:30 o'clock, with about 200 members present.

When President Dodge rapped for order it was with a gavel made from the wood of a hickory tree that stood near the spot where General McPherson fell at Atlanta, July 22, 1864.

General Hickenloper, the corresponding secretary, reported that the following deaths had occurred since the last reunion:

E. H. Webster, Denver, Col.; Captain T. H. Griffin, St. Louis, Mo.; Major George B. Hagin, Chicago; General Mason Bryaman, Kansas City, Mo.; Major Frank F. Potts, Rockford, Ill.; Lieutenant Colonel E. C. Daub, Cincinnati; Lieutenant Oliver Anson, Council Bluffs, Ia.; General Charles Sutherland, Washington; General Walter Q. Gresham, Washington; Major J. J. W. Paddock, Omaha, Neb.

The name of Colonel Calkins, of Tacoma, was added by a member.

CARLISLE'S FIVE.

In his Bowling Green speech Secretary Carlisle presented the ver issue in the following five terse verses, which cover the whole dispute and cannot be answered:

1. There is not a free coinage country in the world to-day that is not on a silver basis.

2. There is not a gold standard country in the world to-day that does not use silver money along with gold.

3. There is not a silver standard country in the world to-day that uses any gold along with silver.

4. There is not a silver standard country in the world to-day that has more than one third of the circulation per capita that the United States has.

5. There is not a silver standard country in the world to-day where the laboring man receives fair pay for his day's work.

SOBER MEN AT A PREMIUM.

The following from the Florida Citizen shows how the business world is thinking and acting concerning the liquor drinker. We beg the young men and boys to read these lines thoughtfully.

The president of a street railway company in St. Louis recently told an inquirer that he wanted "steady and sober men and only that kind." He considers even moderate drinking a bad habit, and will not tolerate it. He thus defined his policy:

"My foremen and others who have charge of men are repeatedly cautioned to be careful when men report for duty. If a man shows the least sign of having taken a drink or two, or does not appear steady in every way, he is right then and there asked to step out."

This is purely a matter of fact-ness with him. He is not seeking the moral improvement of his employees, but the safety of the property interests that he represents. "We must do this in self protection," he explained, "for let it once become known that we tolerate drinking and demoralization would soon ensue among the whole lot, while every accident that happened would be credited by the public to the drunken antics of our men, and we should then be compelled to pay every claim made against us."

This is another illustration of the law of the survival of the fittest. The drunkard, and even the drinking man who would resent being called intemperate, is being pushed to the wall by the laws of trade. We have reached an age when the sober man commands a premium in the labor market.

While in Chicago, Mr. Charles L. Kahler, a prominent shoe merchant of Des Moines, Iowa, had quite a serious time of it. He took such a severe cold that he could hardly talk or navigate, but the prompt use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy cured him of his cold so quickly that others at the hotel who had colds followed his example and half a dozen persons ordered it from the nearest drug store. They were profuse in their thanks to Mr. Kahler for telling them how to cure a bad cold so quickly. For sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and McNeill and Smith, Jemison, Ala.

The editor of the Catholic News says in his issue of May 8:

"Many a pitiful story is brought out in the police courts of a great city. Perhaps the saddest the newspapers of New York have ever reported came from Jefferson Market last week. A poor mother dropped dead there at the feet of her son who had been disgraced to her. This son was a young man of thirty or so. Instead of helping his aged mother, he spent what little he earned in drink. At last the poor woman determined to have him committed as a habitual drunkard, hoping that such a step would be for his good. She was called to the witness stand to swear to the complaint, but the effort was too much for her, and she died with the words on her lips, 'It's breaking my heart.' Here is a temperance lecture more eloquent than any man ever delivered." —Ex.

OUTLINES HIS VIEWS.

THE FINANCIAL FAITH OF A PROMINENT PROHIBITIONIST.

Why He Opposes Free Silver—Charge That the Law of 1873 Was a Crime Has Never Been Proved—Past Experience With Debased Currency.

In a letter published in The New Era, Chairman Samuel Dickie of the Prohibition national committee outlines his views on the currency question as follows:

Without undertaking an argument in behalf of any proposition herein, I submit the following as in part a declaration of my financial faith:

First.—Upon any satisfactory plan for equalizing the intrinsic and nominal value of our coins I am a bimetallist. An international agreement or an increased ratio might sufficiently approximate the desired result. To decrease the amount of gold in our gold coins might accomplish the same end, but would be a palpable fraud.

Second.—As between gold monometallism and silver monometallism I unhesitatingly declare for the former.

As to free coinage—several years ago when this question began to attract public attention I found myself inclined to sympathize with the advocates of free coinage. Before committing myself either way I sought to make a careful examination of the question, and believe that I was able to study the problem as a student and not as an advocate. I began my examination of the issue, however, with the belief that a studious investigation would only tend to confirm and strengthen impressions and prejudices which, at the time, I knew rested on no well established foundation.

An examination of the issue in all its bearings has led me, almost against my will, to the conclusion that at the ratio proposed, and without international agreement, the free coinage of silver by the United States would be a calamity of no mean magnitude. In this position I find myself in harmony with the best thought of the Prohibition party, as witness the rejection of a free coinage plank at Cincinnati by the decisive vote of 335 for to 596 against. The following are among the conclusions which have forced themselves upon me:

First.—The charge that the law of 1873 was a "crime" and the outcome of a "conspiracy" has never been proved. There is no direct testimony, the circumstantial evidence is utterly inadequate, and the absence of motive is important.

Second.—The effort on the part of the silver men to pose as the especial friends of the workingmen and to hold up their opponents in the guise of "aristocrats," "bondholders," "robbers," "gold barons," "Shylocks," etc., is a most disgusting exhibition of the demagogue's art.

Third.—Equally insincere and absurd is the attempt to arouse prejudice against an inert substance by the violent declamation that "gold is a traitor," "gold deserted the country when Sumter was fired upon," "gold never fought a battle for us," "gold fled in the time of danger," "nobody saw any gold during the war." Substitute "silver" for "gold" in the preceding quotations, and they are equally true.

Fourth.—Gold, measured by human toil, which is the only true standard, has steadily depreciated in purchasing power for many years.

Fifth.—Commodities, produced by improved methods of production, ought to depreciate in value, and such depreciation is no evidence of an appreciation in the currency of the country.

Sixth.—Debtors contracting debts during or soon after the war and paying "dollar for dollar" in the late seventies or since certainly suffered serious hardship. This hardship was incident to our recovery from an era of depreciated money and was not caused by the "crime" of 1873.

Seventh.—Free coinage, as proposed, would mean silver monometallism, depreciated currency and the prompt disappearance of gold.

Eighth.—To defend the debasement of our currency on the ground that cheap money will benefit the debtor class, enabling them to discharge their obligations more easily, is to advocate rank dishonesty.

Ninth.—A reasonable prospect of the enactment of such legislation as is advocated by the silver men would precipitate an era of forced liquidation certain to yield calamitous results.

Tenth.—All experience with a debased currency abundantly proves that under such a regime commodities promptly advance in price, while the advance in wages is always less prompt and in the degree of advance less perfectly compensates for the decreased purchasing power of the circulating medium. To add 50 per cent to the workingman's wages and 100 per cent to his expenses will be a sorry measure of relief. SAMUEL DICKIE.

What Nations Use Gold?

The following table from page 45, United States mint report, shows the amount of money per capita each nation has:

United States	$25 00
England	20 00
France	35 00
Germany	19 00
Austria	9 00
Netherlands	25 00
Belgium	26 00
Italy	9 00
Spain	18 00
Portugal	25 00
Russia	8 00
Roumania	6 34
Turkey	2 29
Australia	24 00
Japan (silver)	4 00
India (silver)	8 33
China (silver)	2 08
Mexico (silver)	4 71
Central American states (silver)	3 78
South American states (silver and paper)	17 00

France has the largest per capita and the largest aggregate stock of gold. She has $825,000,000 in gold, while we have $625,000,000.

The mint report for 1894 says the Bank of France, which holds the money of France in its hands, has:

Gold	$430,000,000
Silver	225,000,000

showing $205,000,000 more gold than silver.

The November statement of the United States treasury showed specie holdings:

Silver	$508,000,000
Gold	126,000,000

showing $382,000,000 more silver than gold.

So it appears that the Bank of France held nearly $2 in gold to every dollar in silver, while the United States treasury held only $1 in gold to every $4 in silver.

The Prospective 16 to 1 Crisis.

Suppose a congress and a president pledged to put this cheap dollar scheme in operation once fairly elected. Does it require any great study to see that, from the very day the election result was known, every dollar of our $600,000,000 of gold and gold certificates would instantly go out of circulation and thereby cause the most violent contraction of the currency ever known? Is it not clear that credit, for the time being, would be utterly destroyed, and a financial crisis precipitated, unparalleled in this generation and probably in all history?

From this maelstrom the country would, of course, in time, emerge. But it would emerge to do business solely on a silver basis, with millions of innocent debtors pressed to the wall long before the new congress could meet to set the scheme on foot; with millions of innocent creditors robbed of a large per cent of their honest dues; with every old soldier's pension virtually cut in two and every species of business relation disturbed.—George L. Douglass in Kansas Star.

Stewart In His Prime.

The silver people are fond of pulling records on people who oppose the free and unlimited coinage of silver, but here is a paragraph taken from a speech made by Senator Stewart in 1871, in discussing the proposition that led to the "crime of 1873," two years afterward. The senator then was in his prime: "I want the standard gold, and no paper money not redeemable in gold; no paper money the value of which is not ascertained; no paper money that will organize a gold board to speculate in it. Gold is the universal standard of the world. Everybody knows what a dollar in gold is worth."—Mound City (Kan.) Republic.

Unsound Currency.

"How has Bluffton been doing?" asked the man who had been away from his native community for some time.

"Well, he has made a great deal of money"—

"Getting along well, is he?"

"Well, he seemed to get along first rate till he tried to pass some of it."—Washington Star.

ALABAMA'S SHAME.

There is but one thing that has any tendency to make an Alabamian ashamed of his state. That is her school system. It sounds bad in print to talk about it. It makes us feel sick to have to think about it, but if we go along in a happy go easy style, and never tackle the vital point in the matter, we will never remedy it. We had as well begin war now and the sooner have done with it, as to go along and see the state suffer agony for years to come. Let every true Alabamian go to work to remedy the evil in Alabama. Our state is rich in mineral deposits. No section is better adapted to agriculture, truck farming fruit raising, manufacturing and commerce. Notice that we have 54 per cent of illiteracy Notice that the common schools, as a rule, run on an average, not over five months in a year. Noticed that the teachers' pay averages uit over $35.00 per month. See, the state does not pay a million dollars to her school fund. Can you wonder that we are so far behind in material development? True, Alabama ranks well in some branches of industry and improvement, but she cannot help making some progress, rich as she is in resources.

What would she be if we had a school fund of ten millions? We would have a school taught by a competent teacher on every hill-side and every person would have an education. The great state would then blossom like a rose and the shame of ignorance would vanish. still we would not be in the grasp of ignorance and on the back seat in industrial development. We must have a larger school fund in Alabama; one that is sure so we will see our teachers paid promptly, and none but those highly qualified will be allowed to teach.

If it must come by local taxation, let it come that way. Alabama ought to have a school fund of not less than ten millions of dollars, which would give us a right to be proud of Alabama. Let the press, the teachers, preachers, and citizens enlist in the fight and put our state first in intelligence as well as first alphabetically, on the roll of the states. These agencies must bring about the change and let us begin now.—Troy Messenger.

WHAT THEY SAY OF THE ELECTROPOISE

The Electropoise has relieved me of a throat affection that has baffled all treatment and has annoyed me for more than forty years. Very respectfully, T. T. Tunstall, Mobile, Ala., Oct. 22, 1894.

I commenced the use of the Electropoise when I was in a very nervous state, lying awake night after night until 2 o'clock. I commenced to sleep better almost immediately after beginning its use, and after three months I find that the Electropoise had paid for itself. Yours truly,

Mrs. J. C. Barry.
Memphis, Tenn., March 5, 1895.

A relative of mine who was wounded during the war, and who never recovered from the effects of the wound, has been using my Electropoise, and he is now as well as he ever was. I recommend the Electropoise to all my friends.

Yours truly, W. B. Melton.
Tebula, Miss., Dec. 5, 1894.

I cannot say too much in favor of the Electropoise. Yours truly,

T S. Jones,
Fannin, Tex, June 25, 1895.

After returning from Hot Springs about a year ago without a cure, and as the last resort, I applied the Electropoise, and received a prompt cure of rheumatism. This same Electropoise has made many cures in other diseases, and the instrument will do all that is claimed for it. Yours truly,

J. T. Stout.
Mobile, Ala., Sept. 22, 1894.

Proceedings of Teachers' Institute.

Chilton County Teachers Institute met and held a two day's session near South Calera last Friday and Saturday.

The Institute was called to order by Supt. J. W. Moore and opened with prayer by Prof. J. Alex Moore. After Prof. J. E. Creel gave the welcome address the institute went into regular business. The subjects were discussed well by those present and in the afternoon the subject of Compulsory Education was taken up. Prof. R. E. R Hicks for the affirmative not being present, Profs. J. E. Creel and W. R. Headley were chosen instead. And on the negative Profs. J. Alex Moore and M. W. Histon for Prof. H. L. Hicks, not present. Of course the negative side gained the victory. Teacher's expected to speak Saturday did not come on account of the train's being two hours or more late, thereby causing many to be disappointed, especially do we regret not having the educational address by Prof. C. C. Slaton.

The teachers will fondly remember the many kindnesses shown them by the citizens while in their midst. It is hoped all teachers will attend the next meeting.

DR. HILL'S PAMPHLET

A SUPPOSED SILVERITE WRITES AGAINST FREE COINAGE.

It Would Lower Our Standard of Value and Would Not Give Us 16 to 1 Coinage. A Pamphlet Which Has Dumfounded the Free Silver People.

Dr. W. P. Hill of St. Louis has just written a pamphlet entitled "Argument Against Free Silver Coinage at 16 to 1," which has dumfounded the free silver people. Dr. Hill is the youngest son of the late Britton A. Hill, one of the ablest champions of fiat money of the old Greenback party. Dr. Hill was educated in the best universities in Europe. It has been generally supposed that he would follow in the footsteps of his father and advocate cheap money. There is little doubt but that he made a special study of finance for the purpose of securing arguments against the gold standard. Study changed his opinions, as is apparent from the following quotation from his excellent pamphlet:

Many people innocently imagine that the free coinage of silver is simply a proposition to open our mints more freely to silver and to maintain our money at its present standard of value on the gold basis, and that by adopting free coinage we are not going to debase and lower the value of our money, but raise the price of silver all over the world to a 16 to 1 ratio with gold. There could be no greater mistake. They fail to see that it also involves a change in our unit, standard or measure of value.

If the proposition was that the United States should give a gold dollar for every 371¼ grains of pure silver brought to the mints, then that would really be an attempt on the part of our government to raise the price of silver, and how long we could raise it would depend on how much silver there was in the world and how much gold we had. But this is not the proposition. The free silver idea is that we must stop insulting the silver dollar by redeeming it and giving a gold dollar for it, and their proposition is simply to stamp as a dollar every 412½ grains of standard silver brought to the mint, and that this piece of silver so stamped shall be our unit or measure of value.

Is it possible to believe, when the the new law shall say that 412½ grains of standard silver shall constitute the value of our dollar, that the dollar will be worth any more than that? Under the present system we have issued millions of silver dollars on the ratio of 16 to 1. The world has steadily refused to accept our dictum as to their value, and we are compelled to maintain a large gold reserve, and not only stand ready to redeem all those dollars, but also constantly to redeem many of them in gold to maintain their value.

We are staggering under our load now with our present silver circulation and have difficulty to maintain our gold reserve. Will our load be lighter when we undertake to coin the world's surplus of silver? Will the world accept our dictum more readily, when, on the one hand, we will loudly assert the 16 to 1 ratio, and, on the other hand, resolutely give the lie to our own words by refusing to exchange them at the ratio of 16 to 1, which is the only way we can make our words count for anything?

The director of the United States mint estimates the coined silver money of the world at $4,055,700,000, which is about 53 per cent of the total. Of the coined silver money more than $2,000,000,000 passes current at exactly the same value as the silver bullion in the market, and would flow just like so much bullion to any place where it could obtain a higher price. The world's annual production amounts to $200,000,000; the annual production in this country alone to $84,000,000. Our gold reserve amounts to barely $100,000,000.

Suppose that by free coinage we could possibly raise the price of silver in this country to double what it is now—we need not say double, but even a fraction more than now—does any man need to be told that that would start a flow of silver to this country, and that our little gold reserve would be completely overwhelmed, and that the mighty stream would never stop flowing until all vestige of a higher price had been completely annihilated? And when that had been accomplished, does any man need to be told that our dollar would simply be worth what 412½ grains of standard silver would be worth in the market as bullion? This fact is unanswerable—there is no free silver country in the world where the dollar or unit of value is worth one particle more than the silver in it as bullion in the market.

Our attempt would be about as ridiculous as if we tried to stop the ebb and flow of the ocean tides by an act of congress, or to regulate the movements of the planets.

"Defuelized" Wood.

"Defuelization" is a new word added to the language, told in a story by Senator Palmer about an Illinois farmer who for several years had been selling him wood for $6 a cord. "This year," says Senator Palmer, "he came to me with a load, and I told him that I did not want it. He offered it at $2 a cord. I still refused, and he wanted to know why I would not take it at $2. I told him I was using soft coal, for which I paid $1.87 a ton. 'Gosh!' he exclaimed, 'I heard you was trying to demonetize silver, but now you're trying to defuelize wood.' "

Wealth Statistics.

In 1850 the total wealth of this country was $7,136,000,000, about $308 per capita; in 1860 it had raised to $16,160,000,000, or about $514 per head; in 1870 it was $30,069,000,000, or about $708 per head; in 1880 it had risen to $43,642,000,000, or $870 per head, and in 1890 to $62,000,000,000, or $1,000 per head.

New Star for Our Flag.

Another star, the forty-fifth, is to be added to the flag. The new star will represent Utah, and the order for its addition to the national colors was issued by Secretary Lamont. The star will be placed to the right of the fourth row from the top. The order for the addition of the star is accompanied by one changing the size of the colors. Heretofore the standard has been 6 feet by 5. The new order makes the regulation size 5 feet 6 inches by 4 feet 4 inches. The order provides for the new colors to be issued to all infantry, artillery and the battalions of engineers, and also for new standards for all cavalry. The new flags will be very handsome. They are to be made of the finest American silk. Utah will not attain statehood until July 4 next, but all the flags hereafter contracted for and issued will contain the star heralding the admission of that territory into the Union.

Antitoxin in Diphtheria.

In consequence of a decree of the German Chancellor, statistics have been collected regarding the effects of the anti-diphtheritic serum. In this Work-a-Day World

Brains and nervous systems often give way under the pressure and anxieties of business. Paresis, wasting of the nervous tissues, a sudden and unforeward collapse of the mental and physical faculties are daily occurrences, as the columns of the daily press show. Fortify the system when exhausted against such untoward events with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, that most helpful medicine of the weak, worn out and infirm. Use it in rheumatism, dyspepsia, constipation and malaria.

How many people live on the reputation of the reputation they might have made.

Of the plants used in manufacturing the pleasant remedy, Syrup of Figs, has a permanently beneficial effect on the human system, while the cheap vegetable extracts and mineral solutions, usually sold as medicines, are permanently injurious. Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Belligerency of the Cubans.

The cubans are extremely anxious to obtain from the United States a recognition of their belligerent rights, believing, and possibly correctly, that under this recognition their independence would be secured. Under it they could buy arms and munitions of war in the United States, or their friends could ship these to them. They would have liberty of trade, and while they would not have liberty to enlist men for their armies, they would have the next thing to it. The barrier against recruiting would be practically broken down. It would be an easy matter to send recruits to Cuba as nominally the crews of merchant ships. Under a grant of belligerent rights there is no doubt that this would be winked at. More that that could not be permitted without laying ourselves open to the charge of furnishing men to fight a nation with whom we are at peace. But that would be enough. In the event of it, adventurers would flock to Cuba in hope of gold and glory. With such assistance to the rebels it might be a question if the Spaniards could hold their own in the island long.

The grant of belligerency is always a delicate matter, for it is always regarded as an evidence of hostility. In the event of it Spain would be convinced that when the moment came we would go farther in the interest of her rebels. That is one reason why the grant is refused. Another is that it might serve merely to encourage rebellion; that is, the Cubans might be conquered in spite of it. No nation likes to take the risk of recognizing a rebellion which does not give satisfactory proof that it will end in independence, for every nation which does that expects when independence is established, a return of the favor in the shape of trade or other privileges. This is not the first rebellion in Cuba. There have been others which gave more promise of success than this one does.

Add that the authorities at Washington have their doubts of the ability of the Cubans to carry on an independent government if they had one, or least such a government as would be worth helping to create. If the Cuban people had had different training, or if they were of one blood, it is safe to say that the authorities at Washington would be more disposed to stretch a point in their favor. The parallel between France at the outbreak of the American Revolution and the United States now, as drawn by a representative of the Cubans, is greatly misleading, for France then had her revenge to wreak upon England through her revolted colonies, while we have none to wreak upon Spain, and as to the comparative fitness of the Americans for self-rule then and the Cubans now, the less said the kindlier. It is a mistake to suppose that this country is opposed to liberty in refusing to grant them beligerent rights. It is opposed to involving itself in complications with Spain without reasonable certainty that the resulting good will justify it.—Pittsburg Times.

FARMER BAILEY'S ESCAPE.

AND THE RARE EXPERIENCE OF JOHN H. LOFTIN.

A Happy Release After Both Had About Given Up.

From the Caucasian, Clinton, N. C.

We had been reliably informed that J. F. Bailey, of Warsaw, Dublin Co., N. C., had been cured of consumption, and sent a reporter to see him and make a report, believing that the facts would be welcome to many readers of this paper. We found Mr. Bailey strong in the belief that he had had consumption, though his physician, Dr. W. P. Kennedy, stated the case in a little different way. The doctor said:

"Mr. Bailey was suffering from overwork and chronic malarial poisoning, with some of the symptoms of chronic rheumatism and a general run-down condition of his system.

"Boils prevented him from work a part of the time. Bronchitis and spitting of blood were sources of great annoyance to him."

It is probably true that the doctor was correct, though without doubt Mr. Bailey would eventually have gone into consumption, as this disease frequently follows the symptoms and conditions above given. He was thoroughly cured, however. Mr. Bailey said to the reporter:

"In the spring of '94 I began farm work. Soon I found my health failing and a hacking cough my constant companion.

"I grew so weak that I could no longer work. My cough became so severe that I was unable to sleep, and I was constantly spitting up blood and corruption. My physician could give me no relief and I continued to grow weaker and weaker. I had well nigh given up all hope of living, much less being restored to my usual strength when a friend called my attention to testimonials as to the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I at once left off using the medicine prescribed by my physician and began to take the Pink Pills. I felt the good effects of this wonderful medicine within three days. In less than two months' time I was a well man, and three boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did the work.

"Is it any wonder," queried Mr. Bailey, "that I sing the praises of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills when they have done so much for me? But for the timely use of them I would to-day be in my grave and I want the world to know of their incalculable value as a medicine.

The reporter having heard that Mr. John H. Loftin, of Warsaw, had been cured of rheumatism by the use of three boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, interviewed him with the following result. Said Mr Loftin: "I suffered intensely with rheumatism for ten months. I was entirely helpless for two months. I tried various remedies but none of them did me any good. Having heard of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and their wonderful curative powers, I procured a box and began the use of them with wonderful effect. In two weeks' time I was able to leave my bed, and in a few months' time I was able to do manual labor. From helplessness to manual labor is my experience, and I attribute this great benefit solely to the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Dr. William's Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

The Quakers.

The Friends, or Quakers, at first called themselves "Seekers," from their assertion that they sought the kingdom of heaven in the same manner as it was sought by Nicodemus. They were called Quakers in ridicule because Fox, their founder, frequently bade his hearers "quake and tremble at the word of the Lord."

Our Criminal Population.

Professor Francis Wayland told the Social Science Association at Saratoga, the other day, that we have about 3,000,000 habitual criminals in our population.

This is the professor's estimate, and if we had included those persons who are always wavering on the borders of crime he might very well have raised his figures to 10,000,000. Such total, however, must include those who are guilty of small and occasional misdemeanors which frequently escape prosecution.

The professor's remedy is to lock up all these millions of criminals, but we do not see how it can be done. The prison problem has almost swamped us as it is, and if it gets any bigger it will be too much for us.

There is one way out of it—when the criminals are in the majority, as they soon will be, at the present ratio of increase, we can turn the tables on them by making them lock us up, and run the government, and tax themselves for our support. Let the majority rule is the basic idea of our government.—Atlanta Constitution.

Horticultural Note.

When a young tree does not grow and the leaves are yellowish instead of green, dig down to the roots and endeavor to discover if some insect or parasite is not working under the ground. Then dig away plenty of dirt and drench the roots with strong soapsuds, to which should be added a few pounds of unbleached wood ashes, or put the ashes in after drenching the roots. It will not injure the tree and may prove of great benefit.

The Prevailing Malady

in this country is dyspepsia. Probably more than three-fourths of the people suffer from it in some of its many forms. Many have dyspepsia and don't know it, because they have the painless kind. Such are always half sick and ascribe their ailment to any cause but the true one. Where dyspepsia is known, or suspected, Tyner's Dyspepsia Remedy ought to be used. It is a wonderful medicine, very pleasant to take, and not only corrects digestion in a few minutes, but cures the worst cases of dyspepsia. For sale by all druggists.

WOMEN'S FACES—like flowers, fade and wither with time; the bloom of the rose is only known to the healthy woman's cheeks. The nervous strain caused by the ailments and pains peculiar to the sex, and the labor and worry of rearing a family, can often be traced by the lines in the woman's face. Dull eyes, the sallow or wrinkled face and those "feelings of weakness" have their rise in the derangements and irregularities peculiar to women. The functional derangements, painful disorders, and chronic weaknesses of women, can be cured with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. For the young girl just entering womanhood, for the mother and those about to become mothers, and later in "the change of life," the "Prescription" is just what they need; it aids nature in preparing the system for these events. It's a medicine prescribed for thirty years, by Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y.

The deaths in 1884 in Paris hospitals were 1,400; from 1887 to 1891 they were from 900 to 960 a year; from 1892 to 1894 they averaged 733; in 1895 they were 239.—Information.

In this Work-a-Day World

Brains and nervous systems often give way under the pressure and anxieties of business. Paresis, wasting of the nervous tissues, a sudden and unforeward collapse of the mental and physical faculties are daily occurrences, as the columns of the daily press show. Fortify the system when exhausted against such untoward events with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, that most helpful medicine of the weak, worn out and infirm. Use it in rheumatism, dyspepsia, constipation and malaria.

How many people live on the reputation of the reputation they might have made.

The True Laxative Principle

Of the plants used in manufacturing the pleasant remedy, Syrup of Figs, has a permanently beneficial effect on the human system, while the cheap vegetable extracts and mineral solutions, usually sold as medicines, are permanently injurious. Being well informed, you will use the true remedy only. Manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or [illegible] hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Belligerency of the Cubans.

The cubans are extremely anxious to obtain from the United States a recognition of their belligerent rights, believing, and possibly correctly, that under this recognition their independence would be secured. Under it they could buy arms and munitions of war in the United States, or their friends could ship these to them. They would have liberty of trade, and while they would not have liberty to enlist men for their armies, they would have the next thing to it. The barrier against recruiting would be practically broken down. It would be an easy matter to send recruits to Cuba as nominally the crews of merchant ships. Under a grant of belligerent rights there is no doubt that this would be winked at. More that that could not be permitted without laying ourselves open to the charge of furnishing men to fight a nation with whom we are at peace. But that would be enough. In the event of it, adventurers would flock to Cuba in hope of gold and glory. With such assistance to the rebels it might be a question if the Spaniards could hold their own in the island long.

The grant of belligerency is always a delicate matter, for it is always regarded as an evidence of hostility. In the event of it Spain would be convinced that when the moment came we would go farther in the interest of her rebels. That is one reason why the grant is refused. Another is that it might serve merely to encourage rebellion; that is, the Cubans might be conquered in spite of it. No nation likes to take the risk of recognizing a rebellion which does not give satifactory proof that it will end in independence, for every nation which does that expects when independence is established, a return of the favor in the shape of trade or other privileges. This is not the first rebellion in Cuba. There have been others which gave more promise of success than this one does.

Add that the authorities at Washington have their doubts of the ability of the Cubans to carry on an independent government if they had one, or least such a government as would be worth helping to create. If the Cuban people had had different training, or if they were of one blood, it is safe to say that the authorities at Washington would be more disposed to stretch a point in their favor. The parallel between France at the outbreak of the American Revolution and the United States now, as drawn by a representative of the Cubans, is greatly misleading, for France then had her revenge to wreak upon England through her revolted colonies, while we have none to wreak upon Spain, and as to the comparative fitness of the Americans for self-rule then and the Cubans now, the less said the kindlier. It is a mistake to suppose that this country is opposed to liberty in refusing to grant them beligerent rights. It is opposed to involving itself in complications with Spain without reasonable certainty that the resulting good will justify it.—Pittsburg Times.

FARMER BAILEY'S ESCAPE

AND THE RARE EXPERIENCE OF JOHN H. LOFTIN.

A Happy Release After Both Had About Given Up.

From the Caucasian, Clinton, N. C.

We had been reliably informed that J. F. Bailey, of Warsaw, Dublin Co., N. C., had been cured of consumption, and sent a reporter to see him and make a report, believing that the facts would be welcome to many readers of this paper. We found Mr. Bailey strong in the belief that he had had consumption, though his physician, Dr. W. P. Kennedy, stated the case in a little different way. The doctor said:

"Mr. Bailey was suffering from overwork and chronic malarial poisoning, with some of the symptoms of chronic rheumatism and a general run-down condition of his system.

"Boils prevented him from work a part of the time. Bronchitis and spitting of blood were sources of great annoyance to him."

It is probably true that the doctor was correct, though without doubt Mr. Bailey would eventually have gone into consumption, as this disease frequently follows the symptoms and conditions above given. He was thoroughly cured, however. Mr. Bailey said to the reporter:

"In the spring of '94 I began farm work. Soon I found my health failing and a hacking cough my constant companion.

"I grew so weak that I could no longer work. My cough became so severe that I was unable to sleep, and I was constantly spitting up blood and corruption. My physician could give me no relief and I continued to grow weaker and weaker. I had well nigh given up all hope of living, much less being restored to my usual strength when a friend called my attention to testimonials as to the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I at once left off using the medicine prescribed by my physician and began to take the Pink Pills. I felt the good effects of this wonderful medicine within three days. In less than two months' time I was a well man, and three boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did the work.

"Is it any wonder," queried Mr. Bailey, "that I sing the praises of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills when they have done so much for me? But for the timely use of them I would to-day be in my grave and I want the world to know of their incalculable value as a medicine.

The reporter having heard that Mr. John H. Loftin, of Warsaw, had been cured of rheumatism by the use of three boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, interviewed him with the following result. Said Mr Loftin: "I suffered intensely with rheumatism for ten months. I was entirely helpless for two months. I tried various remedies but none of them did me any good. Having heard of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and their wonderful curative powers, I procured a box and began the use of them with wonderful effect. In two weeks' time I was able to leave my bed, and in a few months' time I was able to do manual labor. From helplessness to manual labor is my experience, and I attribute this great benefit solely to the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Dr. William's Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Our Criminal Population.

Professor Francis Wayland told the Social Science Association at Saratoga, the other day, that we have about 3,000,000 habitual criminals in our population.

This is the professor's estimate, and if we had included those persons who are always wavering on the borders of crime he might very well have raised his figures to 10,000,000. Such total, however, must include those who are guilty of small and occasional misdemeanors which frequently escape prosecution.

The professor's remedy is to lock up all these millions of criminals, but we do not see how it can be done. The prison problem has almost swamped us as it is, and if it gets any bigger it will be too much for us.

There is one way out of it—when the criminals are in the majority, as they soon will be, at the present ratio of increase, we can turn the tables on them by making them lock us up, and run the government, and tax themselves for our support. Let the majority rule is the basic idea of our government.—Atlanta Constitution.

Horticultural Note.

When a young tree does not grow and the leaves are yellowish instead of green, dig down to the roots and endeavor to discover if some insect or parasite is not working under the ground. Then dig away plenty of dirt and drench the roots with strong soapsuds, to which should be added a few pounds of unbleached wood ashes, or put the ashes in after drenching the roots. It will not injure the tree and may prove of great benefit.

WOMEN'S FACES—like flowers, fade and wither with time; the bloom of the rose is only known to the healthy woman's cheeks. The nervous strain caused by the ailments and pains peculiar to the sex, and the labor and worry of rearing a family, can often be traced by the lines in the woman's face. Dull eyes, the sallow or wrinkled face and those "feelings of weakness" have their rise in the derangements and irregularities peculiar to women. The functional derangements, painful disorders, and chronic weaknesses of women, can be cured with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. For the young girl just entering womanhood, for the mother and those about to become mothers, and later in "the change of life," the "Prescription" is just what they need; it aids nature in preparing the system for these events. It's a medicine prescribed for thirty years, by Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y.

ERIN'S WRONGS

STIRRING THE PATRIOTISM OF IRISH-AMERICANS.

They Declare That Force Must be Used to Gain Independence.

Thursday's session of the Irish "new movement" at Chicago was generally regarded as the most important of all. The principal business on the program was the consideration of the platform, submitted by the committee on resolutions and the report of the committee on ways and means for national organization.

Birth was given to an organization which has for its object the independence of Ireland as a republic by a policy of physical force. The ashes of the Fenian Brotherhood are rekindled; the National League, with its trust in legislatures and its reliance upon parliaments and enactments, is buried from sight, and in its place rises the Irish National Alliance of the world. Incidentally, too, the Irish parliamentary party across the Atlantic is repudiated and henceforward will be deprived of the abundant revenues that have been contributed from this country for its maintenance and support.

"The new movement of the organization shall be known by the style and title of the Irish National Alliance. It shall have for its object the securing the independence of Ireland by any means within its power consistent with the laws and usages of civilized nations.

The Platform Adopted.

The report of the committee on platform and resolutions was presented by O'Neill Ryan, of St. Louis, and was unanimously adopted amid great cheering. It read thus:

"The people of Ireland are a sovereign people. Ireland is by nature separate from every other country, and liberty is the birthright of her people. Ireland was known throughout Europe as a nation long before the dawn of Christianity and was the home of civilization, while England was still barbarous.

"England's claims to authority in Ireland originated in force and have been maintained by corruption and coercion; they have never ripened into a right to rule; the title to the conquest has never been perfected inasmuch as the Irish people have continually, by constitutional agitation or revolutionary movement, resisted England's power and endeavored to destroy her unlawful supremacy.

"Ireland is deprived of almost every civil right which the American people most dearly cherish. Unexampled cruelty and brutal vindictiveness have been the distinguishing features of England's rule in Ireland. England has destroyed Ireland's industries and ruined her commerce; she has placed upon her statute books laws making it a crime to educate an Irish child; she burned Ireland's schoolhouses and destroyed her churches; she has driven into exile, or left to perish in her dungeons thousands of men whose only crime was love of Ireland. Every measure for the last century looking toward legislative independence of the Irish people has either suffered defeat in the commons or been arbitrarily rejected by the lords. England has violated every treaty and broken every pledge and with almost every year of the century she has imposed upon Ireland brutal laws of coercion and one of the most drastic character is now upon her statute books.

"One of the pleas of the people for justice and their prayers for mercy, England has responded to with the scourge and the scaffold, and yet today, Ireland enthralled but not enslaved, crushed but not conquered, is in spirit a nation.

"It has become evident after many years [illegible] earnest endeavor to obtain a measure of independence from the English government by peaceful agitation that appeals to reason for justice are futile. It is left, therefore, for the men of the Irish race to proclaim again the truth recorded by history that the liberties of a people and the independence of a nation cannot be achieved by debate, but must be won upon the field of battle, and it is our belief that the men of Ireland who are being driven into exile, or into the graves of serfs in their native land by English misgovernment are entitled by the laws of God and man to use every means in their power to drive from their country the tyrant and usurper, and we believe that Ireland has the right to make England's difficulty her opportunity and to use all possible means to create that difficulty.

"In view of these facts, the members of this convention appeal with confidence to their American fellow citizens and all lovers of liberty to co-operate with them in aiding the people of Ireland in the achievement of the same measure of liberty enjoyed in these United States.

"Resolved, That we earnestly protest against the continued incarceration in English prisons of Irish patriots. That we consider it inhuman and against the policy of all civilized nations to keep in prison men who have acted only in the interest of their country, and human liberty; and that the release of these men is imperatively demanded, not only by the Irish people, but by civilization.

"Resolved, That this convention expresses the hope that the people of Cuba, who are struggling for political independence and the establishment of a republic, will be successful, and that we extend to them our heartfelt sympathy.

"Resolved, That this convention, recognizing the importance to the Irish nation of preserving the language, literature and music of the people, commends the work now being done by the Gaelic League, and the National Literary Society in Ireland, and by the Gaelic societies of this country, and earnestly trust our people will give them hearty co-operation and generous support.

"Resolved, That this convention recommend the formation of military companies wherever practicable in order to foster and preserve the military of the Irish race, and to be prepared for action in the hour of England's difficulty.

Officers Elected.

Nominations for officers and the executive council were next in order. Chairman Finnerty declined to be considered as a candidate for president and William Lyman, of New York, at one time treasurer of the Irish National League, was nominated and elected by acclamation. O'Neill Ryan, of St. Louis was selected as vice president and State Senator P. V. Fitzpatrick, of Chicago, as treasurer. The executive council was constituted as follows: J. J. Donovan, Massachusetts; Chris Gallagher, Minnesota; Martin Kelley, Tennessee; Captain Mangan, Wisconsin; J. Sheeby, California; J. M. Kennedy, Montana; T. J. Dundon, Ohio; J. S. Lawler, Texas; Thomas H. Greevy, Pennsylvania.

When the officers-elect were introduced, President Lyman promised that he would start the "work" forthwith, and Vice President Ryan declared that before many months the organization would be planted in the heart of London itself. Then the delegates rose to their feet and sang "My Country, 'Tis of Thee" and "God Save Ireland." At 6 o'clock p. m. the convention adjourned sine die.

A SURPRISE

Will be the Defense of Durant, According to His Lawyers.

Thirty-seven witnesses, not counting the silent ones, which point forever to the murder of Blanche Lamont, have given their testimony in the nine weeks that have elapsed since the commencement of the Durant trial at San Francisco.

Half a score more will take the stand for the prosecution during the present week. The district attorney is sanguine that he can put in his case within a few days and in anticipation of this, the attorneys for the accused are putting the finishing touches on their opening statement and will be ready to present it when called upon.

The defense, it is stated, will be a surprise. Semi-official utterances have it that Mr. Deuprey will state that neither himself nor his colleagues have ever entertained the idea of disputing the testimony of Mrs. Mary Vogel and the three normal school girls to the effect that Durant joined Blanche Lamont at Clay and Powell streets at 3 o'clock on the afternoon of April 3d. He will admit that the young woman and the medical student got on the car together and rode in the direction of Market street. Upon the arrival of the two, however, at Market and Powell, they separated, Miss Lamont going in one direction, Durant in another, Durant bent upon keeping an engagement with Mrs. Rosalind Holland.

THEIR DOORS OPENED

To Union Men, but They Will Not Sign the Amalgamated Scale.

The mill of the Oliver Iron and Steel Company at Pittsburg, Pa., is declared open to union men. This action, which is satisfactory, to the company and the men, has been taken by the Amalgamated Association lodge at that mill. When D. B. Oliver refused to recognize the Amalgamated Association or to sign its scale a strike was declared. The mill has been successfully operated, however, and without union rules. During the past year a lodge was formed in the mill without objection from the company. Many urgent requests have been made to the national officers to declare the mill open so that union men could go to work. Union wages have been paid by the company which has not, and likely will not, sign the amalgamated wage scale. Many former employes will now return, but no skilled worker will be removed to make place for the men who have been on a strike for two years.

ON A LARGE SCALE

Will Lands in East Tennessee Be Developed.

A dispatch to The Manufacturers' Record states that the LaFollette Coal and Iron Company of New York City, which owns between 30,000 and 40,000 acres of timber, coal and iron lands in East Tennessee, is preparing to develop this property on a large scale by building several railroads to connect with surrounding points. The dispatch says:

"The LaFollette railway will be constructed immediately from Coal Creek to the town of LaFollette, with branches to Middleboro and Jellico, and that the line will probably be extended from Coal Creek to Knoxville. A considerable part of the grading on the section from Coal Creek to LaFollette is done and enough ties for that section have been gotten out and partially distributed."

Advancing Wages Voluntarily.

The coke workers' convention, held at Scottdale, Pa., Wednesday, passed a resolution stating that the operators had promised an advance in wages when the price of coke advanced calling on all men on strike to return until October 10th. The labor officials expect that by that date the price of coke will be advanced. Notices have been posted at the Charlotte furnace giving the ten-hour men a voluntary advance in wages of 10 per cent. The advance will date from September 16th.

WASHINGTON NOTES

GOSSIP OF THE CAPITAL IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS.

Doings of the Chiefs and Heads of the Various Departments.

The treasury gold reserve stood at the close of business Wednesday at $94,118,434. The reserve was reduced to these figures by the withdrawal of $1,000,000 for export to Europe, and $150,000 for shipment to Canada.

All the heavy expenditures of the treasury for this month have been paid and now for the first time the figures show a slight excess of receipts for the month. The excess is only $112,744, but it is expected that by October 1st the excess will reach $2,500,000 and the deficit for the present fiscal year, which is now $13,000,000, will be reduced to $10,500,000.

Ransom as Arbitrator.

Hon. Matt Ransom, United States minister to Mexico, has been appointed sole arbitrator in the Mexican-Guatamalan contention. He was the first choice of both countries. It is a great compliment, both to the minister personally and to the country he represents. The invitations have been received officially from both countries and the minister has accepted the work and responsibility entailed in the appointment.

The matter of which he has to be the judge is the result of the boundary contention which came so near embroiling the two republics in a war. It was happily averted by a treaty. That treaty has been interpreted in different ways by the two countries and a number of claims have been set afoot on account of the contention. It is these claims and these contentions which the American minister is now called to pass upon.

Pension Roll Increases.

A year ago Commissioner of Pensions Lochren said that the limit had probably been reached in the number of pensions, or rather in the amount to be yearly appropriated for pensions. It was his opinion that there would be a slight reduction in the number of pensioners on account of deaths, but that the allowance of new pensions with back pay and arrearage would probably keep the amount about even.

While the amount of money paid for pensions will not be materially different from that of past years it appears that there has been added to the pension rolls during the year about a thousand names in excess of those that have dropped out, so that there has been an increase instead of a decrease.

There have been a great many outstanding pension claims adjusted during the year, and that accounts for the large increase. The year has not been very fatal to pensioners, the death rate being less than would be anticipated at the time of life at which the veterans of the late war have arrived.

World's Grain Crop.

Consul General Max Judd, of Vienna, has forwarded to the department of state a report on the grain crop of the world for 1895 compiled from the report of the international grain fair which Mr. Judd commends as trustworthy.

The abstract furnished by Mr. Judd shows that the wheat, rye, barley and oat crops of Europe are somewhat below the average—while corn is exceedingly promising and it is expected that the yield will be one-half again as large this year as it has been on an average for ten years.

Canada shows an increase of about 6,000,000 metre centals in wheat while India shows a loss of about double that quality—both as compared with 1894. Most of the Russian provinces indicate an increase in wheat and rye.

The Austria-Hungarian wheat crop is poor in quality and less in quantity than usual. A lighter wheat crop is also indicated in the United States. The French wheat crop is estimated at 98 per cent—rye at 105 and oats at 85 per cent of the average. The wheat crop of Great Britian and Ireland is put down as poor and is estimated at from 40 to 50 per cent of the average the English barley crop will be better than the wheat crop but the quality will be poor; Egypt will export considerable wheat.

It is anticipated that the loss on wheat in India and the United States will be compensated for by the grain in Canada and Russia—and that taking this crop througont the world the result for the year will be about equal to the average season.

GOV. WOODBURY EXPLAINS.

Says He Was Misquoted in His Chattanooga Speech.

Governor Urban A. Woodbury, of Vermont, whose speech at Chattanooga as reported by several special correspondents has caused so much comment says the paragraph in question was misquoted. According to the governor it should have read: "There is not in any section of country the least bitter or unkind feeling toward the people of the south. We are willing to believe that you thought you were right at the time, but we cannot do otherwise than teach our children that you were wrong."

Forest Fires in California.

An immense forest fire is now raging in the vicinity of Santa Cruz, Cal., and hundreds of men are fighting the flames. The fire covers over ten square miles and is still spreading, being beyond control. The fire is now within two miles of the powder works, where 500 tons of powder are stored. The damage at present cannot be estimated, but it will be enormous.

FOR INDEPENDENCE.

Irish Americans Advocate the Use of the Sword.

"Revolution," written in big flaming letters, was the text of Wednesday's proceedings of the Irish national convention at Chicago; and when the body adjourned to await the report of the committees on resolution and ways and means, there did not remain a lingering doubt in the minds of a single delegate regarding the exact purpose and policy of those whose call had summoned them to Chicago. There was no beating about the bush, no veiling in fancy words of the object of the gathering. It was boldly declared by Irish-Americans from different parts of the country—some of them men of national reputation—that no matter what the sentiments of the American government, or the American people, the time had arrived for the Irish in America to abandon constitutional agitation, to take up the sword, and to seek the independence of their isle by the use of weapons rather than through legislative enactments.

The organization of a standing army, ready to do battle whenever the opportunity should present itself, was advocated amid frantic enthusiasm, and which culminated in a wild scene when a New York delegate named the chairman, ex-Congressman John F. Finerty, as the first president of the Irish republic of the near future. Hatred of England and everything English was expressed in vehement language in every speech, and the cheers and yells of approval were mixed with hoots, hisses and groans for the British government, tories and unionists.

The Convention Ridiculed.

The newspapers of both parties at London, ridiculing the national convention of Irish societies in Chicago, which they regard as being a part of the presidential contest. The Times, in its issue of Thursday, referring to the convention, said: "The performance will be regarded with contemptuous indifference here."

FRIENDS OF CUBA FREE.

The Men on Trial at Wilmington Not Guilty.

Judge Wales, in the district court at Wilmington, Del., Monday, charged the jury in relation to the 21 Cubans charged with violation of the neutrality laws. After being out fifty minutes the jury returned a verdict of "Not guilty."

The jurors filed into court and the crowd in the ante-rooms and corridors hurried into the room, many standing up on chairs and benches and waiting nervously the announcement to be made. After the usual preliminaries the foreman in reply to a question said a verdict of not guilty had been found. Then followed a memorable scene. Nearly every one in the court room, except the court officials, sent up a shout of satisfaction, clapped their hands and stamped their feet. An attempt to stop the tumult was met with another round of cheers.

HOLMES'S TRIAL ARRANGED.

On October 28th He Will Go Before a Jury in Philadelphia

Herman W. Mudgett, alias H. H. Holmes, was arraigned before Judge Finleter in the court of oyer and terminer at Philadelphia Monday on the indictment charging him with the murder of Benjamin F. Peitzel, on September 2, 1894. Upon the advice of his counsel, the prisoner pleaded not guilty. District Attorney Graham asked that Monday, October 28th, be fixed for the beginning of the trial. Holmes's counsel objected to this date, but the judge, after hearing argument on both sides, stated that he thought October 28th would give the defense sufficient time in which to prepare its case. He then ordered that the trial be set down for that day, with the understanding that when the time arrived neither side could expect to come into court and obtain continuance on paltry excuses.

A DUKE IN LUCK.

The Master of Benheim Castle to Wed Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt.

The announcement at New York of the engagement of the Duke of Marlborough and Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt is confirmed. The young Duke when seen at the Hotel Woldorf gave out the following written statement:

"It is officially announced that a marriage has been arranged between the duke of Marlborough and Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt. The engagement was arranged by Mrs. Vanderbilt's friends and those of the Duke of Marlborough. The wedding will take place toward the latter part of this year in New York."

DROUGHT IN NORTH CAROLINA

Causing Serious Injury to Crops, Especially Cotton.

The North Carolina state weather bureau has issued an unfavorable crop report. The past week has been the most abnormal on record in North Carolina during September, the temperature averaging 15 degrees daily above normal. The maximum temperature ranged from 90 in the mountain region to 100 on the coast. The percentage of moisture was the lowest ever recorded in summer. The drought is serious, and is injuring all growing crops. The farmers say great numbers of upper bolls of the cotton have fallen off.

Miners Refused to Come Out.

The miners' union at Ishpeming, Mich., ordered the pump men, firemen and other union employes engaged at section 24 mine of the Lake Superior company to come out, but the men say the order is a ridiculous one and stick to their posts.

AT SYRACUSE.

THE NEW YORK DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION MEETS.

Temporary Chairman Belmont Foreshadows the Platform.

Cool, bracing weather and bright skies greeted the members and boomers of the New York state convention at Syracuse when they arose Tuesday morning. Towards 11 o'clock those who were to be alternates and spectators began to move towards the convention hall, wisely enough, for the hall would not seat all of the vast crowd that was on the ground.

At ten o'clock the principal interest centered about the Yates House, where the state committee was to meet. The committee was late in getting together and the session lasted just six minutes, and the only business transacted was the adoption of a resolution that the committee recommended the increase of the state committee to 50 members. The usual convention resolutions were adopted and the committee adjourned.

Convention Called to Order.

At precisely 12:25 o'clock Chairman Hinckley, of the state committee, called the convention to order, and Rev. A. H. Fahnestock, offered prayer asking for peace and unity. Chairman Hinckley announced that he was directed by the state committee to announce that both sets of delegates from Kings county should be placed on the rolls.

The chairman announced that the state committee had selected for temporary chairman the Hon. Perry Belmont, of New York, and appointed Hon. Daniel Lockwood, of Buffalo, and George Foster Peabody, of Kings county, temporary secretaries. When Mr. Belmont took the platform he was greeted with applause, and when it subsided he began his remarks.

Mr. Belmont spoke of the conditions this year as compared with those of last year, saying that the political skies were much brighter this fall. On the subject of excise he said:

"As to our own state there is need of immediate reform of certain features of our excise law. Recent misconstructions of their provisions coupled with harsh, arbitrary and unintelligent enforcement thereof have rendered it absolutely necessary to legislate in order to prevent repetition of such official tyranny and absurdity.

"The preachers and the churches, the brewers and the saloons should act together, formulate, vote for and enforce a reasonable excise law. Sobriety is very important but not more important than is personal freedom for sober men to buy, eat, drink and do what pleases them if it does not infringe on the rights of others."

Mr. Belmont quoted several sections of the resolutions from the platform of 1873, written by Governor Seymour.

On financial questions, Mr. Belmont declared that the New York democracy has always been for "sound money." He said the greenbacks cause the driving out of our gold. The speaker concluded with a denunciation of the late republican legislature.

Secretary DeForest began the reading of the temporary roll call immediately. The names of Flower, Shephard, Bell and Bissell were cheered.

Contrary to expectation when the New York district was reached there was no public notice of a contest until the clerk had read the entire Tammany delegation, when ex-Secretary Charles Fairchilds arose and presented the contest for 35 seats held by the New York delegation.

In Queens county, ex-Mayor Gleasen also made notice of a contest, and when Richmond was called a delegate said that contesting delegations there had agreed upon the same representation as had been agreed upon in Kings county, and they desired their names on the roll. Both contests were referred to the committee on credentials.

Congressman Sulzer moved that the rules of the last assembly govern the body. This was adopted. The usual resolutions were offered in relation to the appointment of committee.

Just before the convention adjourned Dr. Storcke, of Buffalo, Erie county, offered resolutions asking the state legislature to pass a uniform reasonable license law with a provision for local option the revenue of which licenses shall go to the local poor fund of the cities and towns in the state, and to further ask that the legislature amend and modify the Sunday law now upon the statute books. The convention then adjourned until 10 o'clock Wednesday.

BOLTED.

Grace-Fairchild Faction Withdraws From the Convention.

The convention hall began to fill up again shortly before 10 o'clock Wednesday morning and in a short time there were over 2,000 people in the hall.

At 11:26 the convention was called to order by the temporary chairman, Perry Belmont. The first business was the report of the committee on credentials.

James D. Bell, of Kings county, presented the report. In the contests in Oswego and in Queens county the committee reported in favor of the sitting delegates. This was adopted. He then reported a resolution previously adopted by the committee giving the New York state democracy one-fifth representation in the convention and for this convention only, and declaring the Tammany delegates to be the only regular delegates from New York county. Each Tammany hall delegate, under the resolution, is given four-fifths of a vote and each Grace-Fairchild delegate, one-fifth vote.

Charles J. Petterson, of Kings county, then presented the following resolution:

"Resolved, That upon the roll call of this convention, the names of both sitting and contesting delegations from New York county be called and that the sitting delegation be accorded seventy votes and the contesting delegation thirty-five votes in the convention, and that the sitting delegation select eight members of the state committee and the contesting delegation four members of the state committee, subject, however, to the right of the organization represented by the sitting delegates to use the party emblem for their local ticket in case of a difference.

At 12:25 o'clock the vote was taken on the Patterson amendment placing the names of both delegations on the roll. It was lost. Then the question of adopting the report of the committee on credentials, giving the contestants one-fifth representation, was put and carried by a large affirmative vote.

Confusion followed. Tammany men cheered and cries of derision were heard from the spectators' benches. In the midst of it all the Grace-Fairchild democrats arose and marched out of the hall. Tammany delegates jeered them and the Shepard democrats from Kings county rose in their places and gave the retiring delegates three cheers. Chairman Belmont pounded on the desk with his gavel, but it was several minutes before business could go on.

The report of the committee on permanent organization was then presented. It named the Hon. Roswell P. Flower for permanent chairman and the usual list of vice presidents and honorary secretaries. At 12:30 o'clock Daniel N. Lockwood, chairman of the committee on resolutions, reported the platform, which he read to the convention.

There was loud applause for the home rule and excise planks. There was laughter and hand-clapping at the reference to good roads for farmers and bicycle riders. When Congressman Lockwood finished he moved the adoption of the platform. It was adopted unanimously. Mr. Larkin, of Westchester, offered a resolution to adopt the five-pointed star as the emblem of the democratic party of New York state for use on ballots. It was adopted.

William Sulzer, of New York, asked for the adoption of the following resolution: "Resolved, That we extend our sympathy to the Cuban patriots and to all people struggling against oppression and endeavoring to accomplish their freedom and independence." It was adopted without objection.

Nomination of candidates was then declared in order.

The following nominations were made:

Secretary of State—Horatio C. King.
Attorney General—Norton Chase.
Comptroller—John P. Judson.
State Treasurer—D. C. Dow.
Engineer—Russell R. Stuart.
Judge Court of Appeals—John D. Teller.

On motion of Thomas F. Grady a resolution was adopted empowering the state committee to fill any vacancies in the nominations. John Fox, of New York, offered a resolution of thanks to the citizens of Syracuse for the reception and entertainment of the delegates.

Chairman Flower, just before the close of the convention, stepped to the front of the platform and raising his right hand said:

"Before we leave the convention hall let us give the first three cheers for the ticket." This was given with a will and the convention adjourned sine die at 2:19 o'clock p. m.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Situation as Reported for the Past Week.

Reports as to industrial conditions all over the south for the past week show that firmness in maintaining prices, with prospect of further advances in values of southern products is unabated. The lumber industry is selling its output at better prices than have ruled heretofore, and if producers work together it seems as if the market will be maintained, especially as lumber has not been profitable to manufacturers thereof until the recent advance began. Continued hot weather is injuring the cotton crop—planters are firm in their determination to sell their cotton at higher prices. The south is in better condition to hold its crops for satisfactory prices than ever before. Iron and coal are unchanged with an upward tendency. Reports from the furnace operators shows that the demand for southern iron is sufficient to take the entire output from week to week, and that orders ahead continue to be plentiful. Southern rolling mills are doing a large business, manufacturers of iron pipe and of agricultural implements are doing better than ever before, and with the adjustment of freight rates, the prospects for the future are good.

Among important new industries established or incorporated during the week is a $50,000 lumber company at Ozamaw, Ark., one with $40,000 capital at Hitchcock, Va., a $10,000 lumber company at Texarkana, Ark., and a $40,000 ice and cold storage company at Fort Smith, Ark. New cotton mills for the week including a mill of 15,000 spindles at LaGrange, Ga., one at Elizabethton, Tenn., a cotton thread mill at Charleston, S. C., and a cotton rope mill at Selma, Ala. Brick works are reported at Donaldsonville, La., canning factories at Aberdeen, Miss., and Alta Loma, Texas, an electrical plant at Shreveport, La., and flouring mills at Maytown, Fla., and Scapon, W. Va. Glass works to employ 235 operatives are reported at Huntington, W. V., a machine shop at Crowley, La., a stove foundry at Shreveport, La., and a rice mill at Fenton, La. Soap works and a starch mill are to be built at Little Rock, Ark., and water works at Birmingham, Ala., and Greenup, Ky. Woodworking plants are reported at Piedmont, Ala., Crandall and Pensacola, Fla., Derby and Lacey, Miss., Itasca, Texas, and Emporia, Va. Among the enlargements for the week reported are an electrical plant at Emporia, Va., the Star thread mills at Atlanta, Ga., adding $60,000 to their capital, an increase of $30,000 to the capital of the electrical plant and water works at Sherman, Texas, and a planing mill at Russellville, Ky.—TRADESMAN (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

Big Blaze at Hot Springs.

The Pacific hotel, the Jewish synagogue, Crescent hotel and five adjoining cottages were destroyed by fire at Hot Springs, Ark., Monday morning. The total loss is estimated at $50,000, and is partially covered by insurance. The fire started in the Pacific hotel, which was unoccupied, and was fanned by a high wind.

CONTROLLED BY POPULISTS.

North Carolina Silver Convention at Raleigh.

The North Carolina state silver convention met at Raleigh Wednesday at noon. James C. MacRae, democrat, was made president; Harry Skinner and J. J. Mott, former chairman of the state republican committee, vice presidents. The populists absolutely controlled the convention. About 300 delegates in all attended and five-sixths were populists.

Resolutions were offered which had been previously agreed upon at a caucus, and which were prepared by the caucus committee. These greet all the silver men in the country and declare that the only way to put an end to the evils of monometallism is to open the mints of the country to the free and unlimited coinage of silver; that the convention hails with satisfaction the indisputable evidence of returning reason in the demand of the people for the repeal of the demonetization act and calls on all bimetallists to exert themselves to restore silver to its former use as a perfect money metal. It calls on silver men in other states to hold similar conventions. Here is the part of the resolution:

"To this end we earnestly recommend to voters that hereafter they elect only such senators and representatives in congress as are sincerely in favor of the principles heretofore expressed and only such presidential electors as will publicly declare on the stump that they will vote for no man for president or vice president who is not in favor of such principles and whose record and platform are a guarantee that they will be faithfully executed."

Secretary of state Cooke offered an amendment to this as follows:

"That for the purpose of the next election the democrats for financial reform shall be confined to the restoration of silver at coinage ratio of 16 to 1."

This was overwhelmingly voted down. The convention adjourned sine die at 1:20 p. m.

WANT THEIR BEER.

Open Sunday New Yorkers Have a Big Parade.

Fully 20,000 of New York citizens, who proclaim themselves lovers of liberty and against the enforcement of excise laws on Sunday, joined in a parade Wednesday evening with brass bands and American flags, and with floats showing liberty in mourning, and a workman in the hands of the police for drinking beer on Sunday, while the millionaire tipples in his club.

The platform was crowded with leaders of the liberal Sunday law movement, including Dr. Anderson, president of the German-American Reform Union; Excise commissioner Harburger, James P. Keating and a score or more of brewers.

The head of the procession passed the reviewing stand and Commissioner Roosevelt stood with bread and reviewed the paraders. He received a hearty reception and was almost instantly recognized by the men in the line. He was frequently applauded. A number of banners carried by the paraders made caustic allusions to him and he laughed heartily at them.

Some of the devices on the banners read: "We don't drink strong tea;" "Home rule for New York;" "We prize personal liberty;" "Away with hypocricy and reform;" "Rooseveltism is a farce and a humbug."

At the end of the line of march the paraders adjourned to Sulzer's Harlem river park, where they listened to speeches in favor of more liberal Sunday laws.

The demonstration was under the supervision of the United Societies for Sunday laws. Early in last July the board of directors of the United Societies met and selected September 25th as the day when they would hold a great outdoor demonstration to show New York how many people want more liberty on Sunday.

TALMAGE ACCEPTS.

The Brooklyn Divine Goes to a Washington Church.

Rev. Dr. Talmage, of Brooklyn, has accepted the call to be co-pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Washington city. This decision was communicated by him to the special committee of elders, deacons and trustees who extended the call.

Dr. Talmage is to be co-pastor of the church, of equal authority with Dr. Sunderland and probably will preach one-half of the sermons beginning Sunday evening, October 27th. Dr. Sunderland and Dr. Talmage have long been intimate friends, and the Brooklyn preacher has many warm admirers among the congregation of the First church. Dr. Sunderland has been the pastor of the church more than forty-two years, having preached his fortieth anniversary sermon on February 5, 1893.

FIGHT LICENSE REFUSED.

Steps Being Taken to Learn What the Law Really is in Texas.

Application has been made to Comptroller Finley by the tax collectors of McLennan and Hayes counties, Texas, for prize fight licenses, which were promptly refused by the comptroller at the instance of the attorney general, who in a written opinion still contends that Judge Hurt's opinion, delivered at Dallas recently nullifying the anti-prize fight law, is not binding, and holds that Judge Hurt's opinion is in error in that it is impossible for two conflicting opinions of a statute in parti materia enacted at different times to be in force at one and the same time, therefore Judge Hurt's reference to two statutes in force at the same time, though conflicting, is not supported by any logical reason.

THE COINAGE LAWS.

In response to numerous requests the News prints the following carefully prepared synopsis of the coinage Laws of the United States since 1792, from which it will be seen that at no time has there been free coinage of silver by the Mints of the United States.

By the law of April 2, 1792, any person could take to the mint silver or gold bullion to be coined in lawful money, and when coined could receive coins of the same species of bullion, weight for weight of the pure silver or gold contained therein. The standard for gold was 11 parts pure to one of alloy, and for silver, 1,485 pure silver to 179 alloy.

Therefore, the mint retained one-twelf of the pure gold and a little more than one-ninth of the silver towards the expense of the alloy and the coinage, and in addition a reduction of one half per cent was to be made in case of immediate delivery of coins for bullion.

The ratio of gold to silver was 15 to one. Both gold and silver coins were to be legal tender for all payments.

By the law of March 3, 1795, the treasurer of the mint must retain 2 cents per ounce from every deposit of silver bullion below the standard, and 4 cents per ounce for the deposits of gold bullion below the standard, and if so far below as to require the test, 6 cents per ounce for melting, refining and toning.

By the law of April 21, 1800, there was to be retained from every deposit in the mint of gold or silver bullion below the standard such sum as should be equivalent to the expense incurred in refining the same.

By the law of May 19, 1828, it provided that when silver bullion required the operation of the test, the expense of the materials employed in the process with a reasonable allowance for the wastage should be retained from each deposit.

By the law of June 28, 1834, a deduction of one-half per cent was to be made from all standard gold and silver deposited for coinage, if paid for in coin within five days from the making of such deposit.

By the law of January 18, 1837 the standard gold and silver coin was to be nine-tenths pure metal and one-tenth alloy, and all gold and silver coins were to be made legal tender of payment for any sum whatever.

The dollar weighed 412 1/2 grains.

The only subjects of charge by the mint to the depositors were the following:

For refining when the bullion was below standard; for toughening; for copper used for alloy when the bullion was above standard; for silver in the alloy of gold and for seperating gold and silver when these metals existed together in the bullion; and the rate of these charges was to fixed so as to not exceed the actual expense to the mint of the material and labor.

By the law of February 21, 1853, the weight of the half dollar was reduced from 206 1/4 to 192 grains, and other lesser silver coins in same propotion, and these were made legal tender in payments of debts not exceeding $5.

No private deposits for coinage with these coins were to be received at the mint, and the director of the mint was authorized to purchase bullion for such coinage and to exchange such coins for gold coins at par in sums not less than 100 dollars.

In all cases, when gold or silver was deposited to be coined, there was to be a charge made for refining and parting the metals of 1/2 of 1 percent.

Blackburn & Stewart) Hey! Simson's going to pull your house from under you, Look out!

A BIMETALLIST'S OPINION.

Dr. Andrews of Brown University Answers a Pertinent Question.

Perhaps the most scholarly, intellectual and honest of the bimetallists is the president of Brown university. He was one of the delegates from this country to the international monetary conference held at Brussels in 1892 and is an ardent advocate of the wider use of silver. But he sees the folly and danger of attempting the impossible—at least when one nation attempts it single handed. The following is Dr. Andrews' reply, published in the Chicago Record, to the question, "Shall the United States attempt the free coinage of silver alone?"

"If we take up the metal alone, and that course results as I should anticipate in the expulsion of gold, we shall have in the first place a financial crisis worse than any ever suffered in the country. This because we cannot in a long time, even by working our mints day and night, coin silver enough to take the place which would be vacated by gold. Prices would surely fall. Immense numbers of failures would occur. Laborers would be thrown out of work. Altogether a dreadful paroxysm in our business would be precipitated. Slowly the gap left by gold would be filled by the mining and coinage of silver. Prices would then gradually rise. At last they would become higher than now, more and more approaching the Mexican and Japanese level.

"But a consequence far worse than any of these would be that our passage to a silver basis would erect against foreign exchange between Europe and the United States just such a barrier as now exists between Europe and Mexico. It would annihilate all fixed par between New York and London, repeating the terrible inconvenience in our European exchanges which we suffered in war times when we were upon a paper basis."

Chargeable to the Silver Agitation.

Every holder of land, bonds, notes, securities or property of any kind, which has decreased in value since Jan. 1, 1893, can justly charge the greater part of this loss to the "friends of silver." Every laborer thrown out of employment during this time, or who has suffered a reduction of wages as a result of this panic, can justly charge his loss of wages to the same source.

These disasters are made none the less real and oppressive by the fact that the silver party did not intend the result. This country has suffered as much and perhaps more from the "free silver" movement than it would have suffered from a great foreign war, excepting the loss of life. The losses of a war in a just cause might not only be borne with fortitude, but be considered glorious sacrifices. The losses of property and wages which have come from an "honest" effort to "help silver" and the silver miners are as real as those of war and must be borne under the conviction that they are the result of an inconceivable folly.—R. Weissinger in "What Is Money?"

Pennsylvania For Sound Money.

In spite of the efforts of a small clique of silverites in Philadelphia the Republican state convention of Pennsylvania adopted a platform which declares strongly and clearly against the free coinage delusion. After indorsing international bimetallism the plank reads as follows:

We oppose the debasement of the national currency by the admission of silver to free and unlimited coinage at the rate of 16 to 1, for the reason that if such a policy be adopted it will not be possible to maintain the parity of values of the two metals, and the purchasing and debt paying power of the dollar, whether of silver, gold or paper, cannot continue to be equal.

Mine Owners Versus Cotton Growers.

Two-thirds of our southern cotton crop, valued at $300,000,000, is sold in Europe to gold standard countries, and the price is mainly fixed in Liverpool on a gold basis. If the United States adopts free coinage without international agreement, the gold standard price for cotton would remain exactly the same. The southern farmer above all others is vitally interested in sound money, or the dollar that has the largest purchasing power, for his cotton is "good as gold" in Europe or America. There is 100 per cent profit in free silver to the western mine owner and 100 per cent loss in it to the southern cotton farmer.—West Tennessee Whig.

MILLS FOR SOUND MONEY.

He Refuses Longer to Be Counted With the Sixteen to One People.

Senator Mills of Texas has heretofore been classed as a supporter of free coinage at 16 to 1. If he ever believed in this doctrine, he has been convinced by study and thought of its folly and dangers. That there may be no misunderstanding he has just written a letter to the chairman of the Democratic state committee of Texas, in which he states his position clearly and forcibly. Here are some excerpts from his letter of Sept. 10:

"I object to the silver standard being adopted in lieu of the existing standard because it will defraud all creditors out of one-half the value of their debts. Every debt contracted since Jan. 1, 1879, was contracted on the gold standard. The debtor honestly owes the value of 23.22 grains of gold for every dollar promised, and the creditor is honestly entitled to receive it. When it was proposed years ago to demonetize all the coined silver of the world and suppress the further coinage of that metal, I joined with other friends of silver in denouncing the monstrous proposition, because it was an attempt to double the debts of the world, and to bring all debts in this country contracted on a paper standard, much of it at less than 50 cents on the dollar, to par with gold. Is not the proposition now to substitute the silver dollar on the silver standard for that gold dollar the same that we all condemned, except it is the creditor now who is to be the victim instead of the debtor then?

"No persons would receive the least benefit from the change of standard to silver except the man who owes 100 cents and wishes to pay it with 50. He would under the silver standard be able to discharge his debt by paying one-half of what he promised. This would be a scheme to enrich one-half of a community by despoiling the other half. Wherever there is a debtor there is a creditor, and he is entitled to the same protection as the debtor. Congress has the power to discharge insolvent debtors by a bankrupt law, but the adoption of the silver standard now would discharge all solvent debtors from one-half the obligation of their contracts, even though as a class they might be the wealthier part of the community.

"I object to the silver standard again because it is not the standard of the country with which we conduct our largest commerce. Mr. Jefferson says, 'To trade on equal terms the common measure of value should be as nearly as possible on a par with that of its corresponding nation, whose medium is in a sound state.' The reason for it is, as he says, 'being of universal value, it will keep itself on a general level, flowing out from where it is too high into parts where it is lower.' Gold is the common measure of value of the people with whom we carry on nine-tenths of our foreign trade, and, according to the principles enunciated by him, gold should be our standard, as it has been since the days of Jackson, Van Buren, Polk, Pierce and Buchanan, except during the war period from 1861 to 1879, when paper was the standard. If we supplant gold with silver, then we have two standards of value for all the articles that we export. Cotton and wheat will be bought in this country by the silver standard and sold in Europe by the gold standard. There must be between these standards constant fluctuations. Two-thirds of all our cotton must be exported and sold by gold value. The price of the whole crop at home and abroad will be fixed by the gold standard, but every pound of it will be sold by American farmers by the silver standard. When the American farmer sees cotton quoted at so many cents or pence per pound in Liverpool, he knows that it is so much in gold, but he does not know how much the silver will be worth with which he will be paid for his cotton. Instead of legitimate business exchange, where every one knows with what value he parts and what he receives, our products will be sold by a system of commercial gambling with a fluctuating standard by which the producer must in every instance be defrauded.

"Believing that the silver standard would prove injurious to the people of the United States, and especially to that part of them engaged in growing cotton, I am unwilling to take any steps in legislation calculated to imperil that great industry upon which the welfare of my constituency so greatly depends."

At the recent meeting of the Georgia Bank Association a paper was read by a prominent member of the association, in which he said; "When the business man declares against alcohol the boy pauses and ponders. He sees no motive of self-interest. He sees no religous enthusiasm, but it looks like cold, clear business, and it is influential accordingly. All of us know how we scan the column of customers as handed us by the discount clerk, when we go to arrange a line of credit; how we pause when we come to a firm that has a drinking partner, and how much longer the pause if that partner is the head of the house. Does any man think that we escape the same scrutiny when firms and individuals go to decide where they will put their money for safe keeping? The contract which a banker makes with his stockholders is a solemn one and the implied contract with his depositors and correspondents is, if any thing, more solemn. He needs every faculty constantly at its best to faithfully perform his part of the contract, and upon its faithful performance depends not only his own success and happiness, but the well being of hundreds of his fellowmen. Whisky can give no efficient aid in the in the fulfilmedt of his trust."

The Democratic papers of Alabama are showing no more sympathy now with the absurd proposition to admit all the white Populists and republicans into the Party primaries, than they showed two years ago before the same element had bolted two more Democratic tickets. Quite an array of the emphatic opinions of the State press on this subject is reprinted on this page, and here is another from The South Alabamian which pricks the bubble vigorously:

Senator Morgan's proposition to let all the "rag-tag" and bobtail" of the State participate in the Democratic primaries and conventions next year won't begin to do

If the Populite is allowed to vote in Democratic primaries, it is pretty safe to say that he will get what he wants. If he doesn't secure the nomination of a Populite, he will get his first cousin.

WHAT THEY SAY
OF THE ELECTROPOISE

The Electropoise has relieved me of a throat affection that has baffled all treatment and has annoyed me for more than forty years. Very respectfully, T. T. Tunstall.
Mobile, Ala., Oct. 22, 1894.

I commenced the use of the Electropoise when I was in a weak nervous state, lying awake night after night until 2 o'clock; commenced to sleep better almost immediately after beginning its use, and after three months felt that the Electropoise had paid for itself. Yours truly,
Mrs. J. C. Barry.
Memphis, Tenn., March 5, 1895.

A relative of mine who was wounded during the war, and who never recovered from the effects of the wound, has been using my Electropoise, and he is now as well as he ever was. I recommend the Electropoise to all my friends.
Yours truly, W. B. McGee,
Tehula, Miss., Dec. 5, 1894.

I cannot say too much in favor of the Electropoise. Yours truly,
T. S. Jones,
Fannin, Tex., June 25, 1895.

After returning from Hot Spring about a year ago without a cure and as the last resort, I applied the Electropoise, and received a prompt cure of rheumatism. This same Electropoise has made many cures of other diseases, and the instrument will do all that is claimed for for it. Yours truly,
J. T. Stout.

The summer is at hand and your wife and daughter need nice low cut shoes. W. I. Mullins is ready to supply the need.

There is no medicine so often needed in every home and so admirably adapted to the purposes for which it is intended, as Chamberlain's Pain Balm. Hardly a week passes but some member of the family has need of it. A toothache or headache may be cured by it. A touch of rheumatism or neuralgia quieted, The severe pain of a burn or scald promptly relieved and the sore healed in much less time than when medicine has to be sent for. A sprain may be promptly treated before inflammation sets in, which insures a cure in about one-third of the time otherwise required. Cuts and bruises should receive immediate treatment before the parts become swollen, which can only be done when Pain Balm is kept at hand. A sore throat may be cured before it becomes serious. A troublesome corn may be removed by applying it twice a day for a week or two. A lame back may be cured and several days of valuable time saved or a pain in the side or chest relieved without paying a doctor bill. Procure a 50 cent bottle at once and you will never regret it. For sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and McNiell and Smith, Jemison, Ala.

"Many of the citizens of Rainsville, Indiana are never without a bottle of Chamberlains Cough Remedy in the house," says Jacob Brown, the leading merchant of the place. This Remedy has proven of so much value for colds and croup in children that few mothers who know its worth are willing to be without it. For sale by Clanton Drug [Store] Clanton, and by McNeil and Smith at Jemison, Ala.

Every mother should know that croup can be prevented. The first symptom of true croup is hoarseness. This is followed by a peculiar rough cough. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given freely as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the cough has developed it will prevent the attack. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Clanton Drug Store Clanton, and by McNeil and Smith Jemison Ala.

Cotton continues to advance in price notwithstanding the shortage in the crop the price will more than make good the shortage in this section. Especially is this true of Clanton and neighboring towns. Money is going to be easier than it has been for years and the people can find no better place to spend it than Clanton.

BURROWS' POSITION.

THE MICHIGAN SENATOR ARGUES AGAINST FREE COINAGE.

It Would Expel Our Gold and Gold Paper and Cause a Disastrous Panic—Result of Having Two Dollars of Different Values—Evils of a Silver Basis.

In an address, delivered at Bay View, Mich., Senator Burrows of Michigan vigorously opposed the free coinage fallacy and upheld our present financial system. After reviewing our monetary legislation he said:

"In the first place the free and unlimited coinage of silver at 16 to 1 would in my judgment expel from our circulation not only our entire volume of gold, but every dollar of paper money redeemable in gold, and cause a contraction of the currency and a resultant panic the like of which has not been seen in this generation.

"This would follow as the inevitable result of that law of monetary science which where two moneys are issued of unequal value the cheaper will always expel the dearer from circulation. It certainly needs no argument to demonstrate the truth of the proposition that if two dollars are issued, one worth 50 cents and the other 100 cents, the 50 cent dollar will be the only dollar in circulation and the 100 cent dollar will be hoarded by the banks and individuals until the whole volume of such currency entirely disappears. This law is of universal application and has its origin in human nature itself. No debtor owing $100 would discharge that indebtedness in the more valuable of two moneys. He would surely make use of the cheaper and retain the dearer. It was the knowledge of this law that guided the fathers in fixing the ratio in the beginning at 15 to 1.

"They knew that dollars of unequal commercial value could not be made to circulate permanently side by side, and so, having ascertained that 24¾ grains of pure gold were of equal value with 371¼ grains of pure silver, they provided for the coinage of these two metals into dollars at the ration of 15 to 1. But the truth of this principle has been demonstrated over and over again even in our own history. The gold and silver coins issued at the ratio of 15 to 1 under the act of 1792 shortly became of unequal commercial value, the bullion in the gold dollar being of greater value than the bullion in the silver dollar. The silver dollar became cheaper than the gold dollar, and the consequence was that silver alone circulated and gold gradually disappeared. Indeed, and for the same reason, the coinage of gold declined, for the 24¾ grains of pure gold provided for in the gold dollar were worth more uncoined than when coined, and therefore its coinage naturally ceased, and silver bullion alone found its way to the mints of the United States.

"It remains only to be inquired what would be the probable effect of adopting the silver dollar of 371¼ grains as our single standard of value. The first and most patent result, as already noticed, would be to drive from our circulation every other dollar of superior value, whether of coin or paper. Our $600,000,000 of gold, constituting one-third of the entire volume of our money, would be quickly eliminated from our circulation by being hoarded or sent abroad, followed by the retirement of our $400,000,000 of paper currency redeemable in gold, producing a contraction of the currency, unexampled in our history, of over $1,000,000,000, to be followed by a financial convulsion unprecedented in modern times. It will not do to say that with free and unlimited coinage this vacuum would be quickly supplied, for it would require 25 years, with the present capacity of our mints, to replace this vast volume of currency with silver.

"This consideration alone ought to be sufficient to deter us from venturing upon such a hazardous policy. More than this. The silver dollar of 371¼ grains produced under free coinage and not maintained at a parity with the gold dollar, as it surely would not be, would, as we have seen, at once sink to the level of its bullion value and be worth only about 50 cents. Every depositor in savings, national and state banks, the holders of policies in life, fire and all other insurance companies, investments in loan and building associations, represented by a great body of people numbering more than 20,000,000, would be forced to receive in return for their deposits, premiums and investments a dollar of only one-half the value of that with which they parted, to the enormous and incalculable advantage of these great corporations. Suppose an importer of foreign goods should become indebted to the government of the United States in the sum of $10,000 for customs dues, what would prevent him from purchasing $5,000 of silver bullion and under free coinage converting it into 10,000 silver dollars, and with these liquidate the indebtedness to the government? Every pensioner would find his meager stipend lessened one-half, and many of them would be reduced to beggary. Not only this, but all the recipients of fixed salaries, every clerk, teacher, railway employee and receiver of a stated income would be forced to take a money which in procuring the necessities of life for himself and family would possess only one-half of its former purchasing power, for it must be remembered the price of everything would advance as the value of our money declined. But it would be an endless task to attempt to catalogue the disaster which such a step would be sure to entail."

A Silver Monomaniac.

They say a fellow in Henry county, Mo., is so cranky on the silver question that he digs up all the goldenrods and marigolds, raises white corn and won't speak to his wife because she has golden hair, is forever denouncing the gold cure, won't keep the golden rule and doesn't want to enter the golden gates. —Evanston (Wy.) What is

CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhoea and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

Dr. G. C. Osgood,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Dr. J. F. Kincheloe,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. Archer, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

Home Distilled Water.

Buy a private still—not a whisky still, but a machine to make pure water for home consumption. This is the latest fad. You can purchase such a machine for a few dollars, and it runs itself. All you have to do is to clean it out once in a couple of weeks.

Just now epidemics of typhoid are frightening people all over the country. Its sole cause is bad waer. Polluted drink is likewise accountable for malaria, the germs of which find their way from the stomach into the blood, where they feed on the red corpuscles. Public recognition of these facts has brought a rapidly increasing demand for distilled water.

The household still is inexpensive. Water from the city main passes into a reservoir, in which it cannot rise above a certain limit. There it is submitted to a process of distillation, that goes on all the time, the necessary heat being furnished by a single gas jet. The contrivance is wholly automatic.

The body of an average man contains forty-six quarts, or ninety-six pounds, of water. He drinks every day thirty-seven ounces and eats thirty-five ounces of water. Of course foods commonly hold a large percentage of water. The bones of this individual are nearly one-fourth water; his brain, muscles, lungs and heart are three-fourths water, and his blood is more than four-fifths water. Evidently water is of sufficient importance to the human system to be worthy of serious consideration. The risk of germ poisoning from this substance is greater than the danger from all other things taken in the body combined.

A Trip to the Moon.

A voyage to the moon is the latest project which is seriously put forward as the crowning point of the Paris exhibition of 1900. M. Mantois, its author, does not propose to carry passengers to the lunar regions in an aerial car, but he expects to bring down the moon to the reach of the people whose vision extends, say, six miles from the earth. The plan is to construct a telescope nearly 200 feet in length. The objective glass will have a diameter of something over four feet three inches, the largest in the world. The colossal tube will be placed horizontally, and the image of the moon will be reflected by what is termed a mirror plane, six feet in diameter and fifteen inches thick.

Small Fry Swindlers.

Some of the meanest of these are they who seek to trade upon and make capital out of the reputation of the greatest of American tonics, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, by imitating its outward guise. Reputable druggists, however, will never foist upon you as genuine spurious imitations of or substitute for this sovereign remedy for malaria, rheumatism, dyspepsia, constipation, liver complaint and nervousness. Demand, and if the dealer be honest, you will get the genuine articles.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials free. Address

Cotton Still King.

The chief value of corn is as an animal food crop, and not as a crop. The farmer's money in corn is export in putting the product into fat hogs and big mules. It is possible to make every bushel bring double the market price of corn by utilizing it otherwise than as a primary money crop. Particularly is this true in the south, where we need the bacon, and at the same time have an export crop in cotton. It will be a great oversight on the part of the Texas farmer this year if he does not raise his own hogs and mules. The huge corn crop furnishes a cheap and ready basis.

But in the meantime cotton is still king in the south. It is worth $250,000,000 to the section, as against a possible $100,000,000 from the corn crop. Other sections may crown a new agricultural monarch, but the old dynasty will continue to reign in the south. If the great staple is in superabundance the very volume brings immense returns; if the crop is short the increased price secures similar results. Corn is a good thing to have, and it is gratifying to see the southern farmer increasing its acreage. If he will continue to add to his own food crops as a possible and pleasant diversification; his cotton will be so much clear money and make him rich and prosperous only the faster.—Houston (Texas) Post.

A Lawyer Outwitted.

An old whitewasher stood before the Court as a witness. The lawyer for the defendant tried to confuse him.

"You are Friedrich Muller?"

"Yes."

"Are you the Friedrich Muller who was sentenced under mitigating circumstances for robbery?"

"No, I am not that Muller."

"You were, perhaps, the Muller who was sentenced to two years' imprisonment for theft?"

"No, I am not that Muller either."

"Were you ever in prison?"

"Yes; twice."

"How long the first time?"

"A whole afternoon."

"An afternoon? And the second time? You must make truthful statements, as you are sworn. If you were in prison for so short a time, what did you do?"

"I only whitewashed a cell for a lawyer who had cheated his clients."

The lawyer did not ask any more questions on that subject.—Texas Siftings.

Cannibal Humor.

The missionary stood before the cannibal king as the cook built the fire in the kitchen stove.

"I am greatly disappointed in you," remarked the missionary to the king.

"But, my dear boy," replied the king, playfully, "you are not in me yet," and the missionary turned away and gazed out yearningly over the placid bosom of the Pacific.

Mrs. Collins' Story.

I am thirty-three years old, have been married seventeen years and have four living children. My health has not been good since my first child was born. Twelve months ago I was confined, but my baby only lived a few days. Soon after that I was attacked with irritation of the bladder, choking spells, heart palpitation, fainting spells and great nervousness. In this terrible condition I was confined to my bed eight months. I thought I was dying many times. My dear little helpless children, in kissing me at night, often said: "Pleased don't die, mamma;" or, "Papa, don't let mamma die to-night." My little boy brought me a Ladies' Birthday Almanac one day, and after reading it I decided to try the Wine of Cardui Treatment. I have taken two bottles of McElree's Wine of Cardui and three small packages of Thedford's Black-Draught, and am better than I have been for ten years. I am visiting my neighbors on foot, doing my work with ease, and eat better than I have for years. God only knows how grateful I am for this wonderful medicine that has worked this great transformation.

Quite a Difference.

"What's the matter, William?" said the wealthy householder, "Anything gone wrong?"

"Not exactly gone wrong, sir; but I want a new understanding.

"What about?"

"My pay, sir."

"Why, you get very good wages for a cook."

"Yes, sir. They does very well for a cook, but I overheard you when you were talking to your friends, sir. You called me your chef."

"Well, you ought to be complimented."

"Yes, sir. I'm complimented. But business is business. I can't be a chef for less than $3,000 a year. Wages is all right for a cook, but a chef has to have a salary."—Washington Star.

He Was Absent-Minded.

An absent-minded young preacher in New England, wishing to address the young ladies of his congregation after the morning services, remarked from the pulpit that he would be very glad if the female brethren of the congregation would remain after they had gone home. He was almost as badly mixed, the narrator of this says, as another preacher, who, after describing a pathetic scene he had witnessed, added, huskily:

"I tell you, brothers, there was hardly a dry tear in the house."

WASHINGTON NOTES

GOSSIP OF THE CAPITAL IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS.

Doings of the Chiefs and Heads of the Various Departments.

Tuesday's statement of the condition of the treasury shows: Available cash balance $185,405,363; gold reserve $92,911,973.

A rumor has been abroad in Washington for several days to the effect that President Cleveland would in his speech at the Atlanta exposition, on October 21st, take occasion to deliver a "solemn utterance" against the third-term.

Ex-Senator William Mahone had a stroke of paralysis at Washington Monday morning. The right arm is useless and the tongue is paralyzed so that speech is impossible. Dr. Phillip S. Wales, one of the attending physicians states that the general's condition is critical owing to the severity of the attack and his advanced age.

Pension Roll Increases.

A year ago Commissioner of Pensions Lochren said that the limit had probably been reached in the number of pensions, or rather in the amount to be yearly appropriated for pensions. It was his opinion that there would be a slight reduction in the number of pensioners on account of deaths, but that the allowance of new pensions with back pay and arrearage would probably keep the amount about even.

While the amount of money paid for pensions will not be materially different from that of past years it appears that there has been added to the pension rolls during the year about a thousand names in excess of those that have dropped out, so that there has been an increase instead of a decrease.

There have been a great many outstanding pension claims adjusted during the year, and that accounts for the large increase. The year has not been very fatal to pensioners, the death rate being less than would be anticipated at the time of life at which the veterans of the late war have arrived.

Uncle Sam Stands Firm.

The attention of Attorney General Harmon was called to a dispatch from Madrid quoting Minister Dupuy de Lome to the effect that the United States had decided to confiscate arms and ammunition found upon vessels detained by the United States authorities, and which are supposed to be engaged or about to engage in filibustering expeditions to Cuba.

Attorney General Harmon stated that there had been no change at all in the position of the administration towards the Cuban insurgents. Arms and munitions of war alleged to be for the use of the insurgents had been captured by United States officials and the subject brought to the attention of the judicial authorities by United States officers. The decisions of the courts in these cases were as binding upon the government as upon those under arrest.

Acquittal of alleged filibusterers in criminal proceedings carried with it the surrender of property seized with them. In some cases this property had not been called for and still remained in the custody of the United States.

Carlisle's Estimate Was Off.

The treasury statement of receipts and expenditures for the month of September and for the fiscal year thus far was issued at the treasury department Tuesday. The figures are exclusive of postal revenues. The receipts from all sources for September were $27,549,678 and the expenditures $24,320,481, an excess of receipts of $3,229,197. Since the beginning of the current fiscal year on July 1st the aggregate receipts have been $85,572,072 and the expenditures $85,456,730, and excess of expenditures of $9,884,658.

Compared with September, 1894, the receipts for the last month were nearly $5,900,000 greater, while the expenditures were $6,000,000 less. For the three months of the fiscal year to date the receipts are more than $12,000,000 less than for the corresponding three months of 1894, and the expenditures more than $3,000,000 less.

Secretary Carlisle, in his annual report submitted to congress, estimated the total receipts for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, including postal revenues, at $476,907,407 and expenditures, exclusive of the sinking fund, at $448,092,486, giving a surplus of $28,814,920. The estimates included receipts from the income tax, which has been declared null and void by the supreme court, and the accuracy of the estimate is, therefore, somewhat disturbed. In the estimates internal revenues, including the expected revenues from the income tax, was put down at $190,000,000. At the present rate of receipts the internal revenue for the year will be about $150,000,000. The estimate of customs revenues was $185,000,000. At the present rates customs receipts will be $177,000,000. In other words, this showing is made: Estimates of receipts by Secretary Carlisle for 1896, $476,907,407. At the present rate of receipts the total for the year will be $[illegible]

AGE-HERALD CHANGES HANDS.

Hereafter It Will Advocate the Coinage of Silver.

The Age-Herald, published at Birmingham, that has been heretofore run as a single gold standard paper, has changed hands. The purchasers are mainly former stockholders of the Daily State, which was the leading free silver paper in Alabama. That paper, The State, will discontinue and The Age-Herald will hereafter be published as the State-Herald and will advocate bimetallic doctrines.

RIOT IN CONSTANTINOPLE.

Many Helpless Armenians Beaten to Death by Turks.

To add to the state of terror prevailing at Constantinople, a third slight earthquake was experienced there Wednesday. This, with the rioting and bloodshed, the imprisonment of about 500 Armenians, the killing of prisoners in cold blood and the presence of troops under arms at all points is well calculated to excite even the most phlegmatic Turk.

The rioting and blood-letting which began on Monday was renewed on Tuesday evening in spite of all the precautions taken by the authorities of the much disturbed city. On Tuesday the principal rioting was the work of the Softas, Mohammedan theological students, who chased and beat with bludgeons every Armenian they met. During Tuesday night a mob of Softas and Turks attacked the house of a leading Armenian, Kasim Pasha, storming the building and threatening its destruction and killing several persons who were unable to escape from it in time.

This mob also attacked a cafe frequented by Armenians and twenty of these unfortunate people who were found there were beaten to death with bludgeons. To the disgrace of the authorities, not a single policeman appeared on the scene, and no attempt was made to save the lives of the Armenians.

The Riot Was Deliberate.

The critical condition of affairs at Constantinople is the sensation of the day in London, and all the dispatches from that city are read with the greatest eagerness.

In spite of the assurance to the contrary of the Armenian committee of London, the belief prevails in official circles that the rioting at Constantinople was really deliberately planned, brought about by the Armenian agitators who are desirous of forcing the hands of the powers in order to bring about direct interference upon the part of Great Britain, France and Russia in the administration of Armenia.

It is now known definitely that at least five Armenians were killed after they had been arrested on Monday and this has caused great indignation.

JAPAN WANTS COTTON.

Movement to Establish a Line of Steamers to West Coast of Mexico.

Colonel John A. Cockerill, writing from Yokohama, Japan, to the Manufacturers' Record, says:

"The cotton spinners association of Osaka is now trying to induce the Japanese government to subsidize a line of steamers to ply between Osaka and Yokohama and a point on the west coast of Mexico. The idea is to secure a steamship line wholly controlled by the Japanese government and which will connect with the Tehuantepec railway.

"By this route, it is thought the cotton of the southern states can be reached cheaper than by the way of Tacoma. It is more than likely that this enterprise will be carried out, for the Japanese are giving great attention to the subject of colonization in Mexico.

"Another company has been formed here with Viscount Enomoto at its head to purchase lands in Mexico and locate thereon some of the surplus population of Japan. Japan is destined to become one of the greatest cotton spinning countries of the world. She will purchase 90 per cent of her raw material in the United States when the transportation rates are properly adjusted."

SOUTHERN'S ACQUISITION.

The Alabama Great Southern Controlled by the Southern.

A special from Birmingham, Ala., says: "At the annual stockholders' meeting of the Alabama Great Southern railroad directors were elected, a majority of whom are directors of the Southern Railway Company. This places the latter in possession of the Alabama Great Southern, extending from Chattanooga to Meridian, and in a position to practically dictate and control the Queen and Crescent from Cincinnati to New Orleans. The Southern Railway Company will begin at once to operate the Alabama Great Southern."

AN ELECTRIC PLANT.

Chattanooga Parties Get the Contract for a Street Railway.

At a meeting of the board of aldermen of Meridian, Miss., a resolution to award the franchise for the operation of an electric street railway on the streets of the city and the maintenance of an electric light plant to furnish lights for the city and motive power for the railway to W. R. Hall and associates, of Chattanooga, Tenn., was unanimously passed. The board of council has concurred with the aldermanic board in the adoption of the resolution.

Women in Kentucky Will Vote.

The women of Lexington, Newport and Covington, Ky., are registering preparatory to voting in November. This is the first opportunity offered but they are not taking to the idea to any great extent. They can only vote for the members of the board of education, which right of suffrage was secured by the untiring woman suffragist, Miss Laura Clay, the noted daughter of Cassius M. Clay.

A REMARKABLE triumph of surgery is that just completed in Philadelphia by Dr. Vischer. He removed nine inches of diseased bone from a boy's leg and grafted in its place a section of bone taken from a sheep's leg. The operation was thoroughly successful, and others of the same kind will follow.

TRADE TALK.

Bradstreet's Review of Business for the Past Week.

Bradstreet's review of trade for the past week says:

"Striking features of the week are increased demand for money east and west, the maintenance of the widespread and active demand for iron and steel, and the further upward movement of the price of raw cotton, together with advances in the quotations for wheat flour, wheat and wool. Sudden changes in the weather, affecting a wide expanse of territory, have made general trade irregular, but reports from these sections unfavorably affected are in part offset by the stimulation of the money market at Boston and New York, and demand for certain staples in other portions of the country. The improved demand for funds continues a feature of Chicago, St. Louis and other minor centers. Inquiry among bankers at cities referred to reveals a better demand from all classes of mercantile borrowers.

"Higher prices for foreign wools in London have compelled domestic manufacturers to pay more for raw material. At present quotations foreign wools in domestic markets can be sold abroad at a profit. Trade in light-weight woolens is unsatisfactory and owing to the high price and strength of cotton, caution is being exercised in buying cotton goods. The south is more bullish on cotton and the continued evidence of a short crop appears to have at last compelled recognition abroad.

"General business with the south has shown improvement at Memphis, Nashville, Atlanta and Birmingham, demand for funds is improving and all that appears needed is a freer movement of cotton. There were 9,299 mercantile failures in the United States during the past nine months as reported to Bradstreet's, only forty-eight more than in the like period of last year, which coincidence is paralleled by the total amounts of assets and liabilities of failing traders this year being substantially the same as in the like period one year ago. The feature of the failure record for the nine months lies in the relatively large number reported in the first quarter of the year, since which the totals have fallen off from week to week very sharply. Business failures in New England have decreased notably as compared with a year ago, while those at the south have increased about as much. There are more failures reported from western states this year than last, while in the northwest and on the Pacific coast there are fewer."

A NEW WAR SHIP.

The Cruiser Brooklyn Launched at Cramp's Ship Yards.

The United States armored cruiser Brooklyn was launched in the waters of the Delaware at Cramp's ship yard at Philadelphia Wednesday.

Miss Ida May Schieren, daughter of the mayor of the city from which the ship takes her name, broke a bottle of American champagne on the cruiser's bow and christened her "Brooklyn."

After the ceremonies luncheon was served in the mould loft and a number of felicitous speeches were made, among the speakers being Mayor Schieren, of Brooklyn; Assistant Secretary McAdoo, Mayor Warwick and the Messrs. Cramp.

The Brooklyn is regarded by naval experts as a marvel in the art of marine architecture. She is classed as a steel-armored cruiser, having four eight-inch barbette turrets. Her cost exclusive of armament is $2,680,000.

JACK FROST WITH US.

Cotton Not Seriously Damaged But Tender Vegetation Wilted.

Frost was found in low-lying localities Monday morning at various points in West Tennessee, northern Mississippi and eastern Arkansas. Tender vegetation was wilted, but no serious damage was done to the Irish potato crop, and cotton was not injured to any considerable extent on the uplands.

A dispatch from Duncan, Miss., reports a heavy frost in that part of the delta, which may cut the top crop of cotton short by causing immature bolls to open.

A killing frost extended all over central Kentucky. Tobacco standing in the field and much of it on the scaffold was badly damaged. Sorghum and other green vegetation was ruined. The eight weeks' drouth has dried the corn crop up so that it was out of danger.

JUDGE THOMAS SELECTED

As Temporary Commissioner to Succeed Mr. Finley.

Judge William Bailey Thomas has been appointed temporary commissioner of the Southern Passenger Association to succeed Mr. W. W. Finley, who was recently elected third vice-president of the Southern Railway Company. When asked about the appointment Mr. Finley said:

"The executive board of the Southern Passenger Association, at its meeting in New York, Saturday, appointed Judge M. Bailey Thomas to fill the office of commissioner temporarily, or until a permanent choice can be made. The meeting adjourned Saturday without setting a date for the selection of a permanent commissioner, and it is impossible at present to gain any definite idea of what will be done in the matter. Judge Thomas will act as commissioner until such time as the executive board of the association may make another change."

Harry Hayward's Case.

The supreme court of Minnesota has set the hearing in the appeal of Harry T. Hayward from the death sentence for murder for November 4.

PREACHERS TO PRAY

For the Success of Governor Culberson's Call on the Legislature.

Work on the amphitheater, intended for the Corbett-Fitzsimmons' mill, has not been resumed, and the building stands as the mechanics left it Saturday evening. President Stuart, of the Florida Athletic Club, says work on the structure costs him $1,500 a day, and he does not consider it good business judgment to take any chances on what the legislature may do.

The Pastors' association has called a special prayer meeting to pray for the success of Governor Culberson's call upon the legislature to pass the emergency law. The people of Dallas believe the chances of beating the emergency clause are even.

PREACHER IN STRIPES.

Sent Up for Life for the Murder of His Wife.

A dispatch from Danville, Ind., says: Rev. William E. Hinshaw, who was indicted for the murder of his wife at Belleville, January 10th, and has been on trial for the last five weeks, was found guilty of murder in the second degree and sentenced to life imprisonment. Three members of the jury were in favor of hanging the divine. The minister never flinched when the words which consigned him to a felon's cell the remainder of his days were read.

DIRECTORS INDICTED.

Chattanooga Grand Jury After Members of Underwriters' Association.

The indictment brought by the grand jury now in session at Chattanooga against the Kentucky and Tennessee Underwriters' Association for maintaining a trust is still something of a sensation. It has been impossible to learn the names of the gentlemen indicted, but one of the members of the grand jury said that every man on the executive committee of the association would be pulled up before the court at its January term.

MAHONE'S CONDITION HOPELESS

Resting Easily But Physicians Say There Is No Chance for Him.

A Washington special says: General Mahone rested easily Tuesday afternoon and evening and at midnight was better than at any time since his collapse. He is, however, in a precarious condition, and his physicians gave no hope of any possibility beyond a short prolongation of his life.

A Missouri Bank Fails.

The Farmers' and Merchants' bank, of Creighton, Mo., has made an assignment for the benefit of its creditors. The statement filed shows assets to the amount of $124,000, and liabilities amounting to $60,000, mostly in real estate paper. The officers of the institution say that the suspension is only temporary and that the depositors will be paid in full. The cashier of the bank, D. B. Wallis, is designated as assignee.

Judge George S. Bryan Dead.

Ex-United States Judge George S. Bryan died at Flat Rock, N. C., Saturday afternoon, aged eighty-seven years. Judge Bryan belonged to the old whig party in the state before the war and in 1880 was appointed by the president district judge for South Carolina, which office he filled until his retirement in 1886, when he was succeeded by Judge Simonton.

Electricity for Dentists.

A new machine has been introduced for the purpose of safely and conveniently adapting the power of electricity to the uses and requirements of dentistry. The operation of a small electric motor enables the dentist to dispense with the foot lever commonly used, and to concentrate all his attention to the work in hand. In the filling and stopping of teeth the electric dental engine is specially serviceable, as the various mallets used can be run from a slow to the very highest speed.

It was noted as curious that a large number of the early orders for this device came from seaside places. Upon inquiry it was found that many city people realize their need of a dentist only after they have left their homes. As soon as they reach the seaside their teeth begin to throb with pain. The reason given by the dentist is that the change of air and the invigorating outdoor life which the summer idlers lead strengthen and stimulate them. Their hearts have a stronger beat, and if there is a weak spot anywhere about them the pressure of the quickened circulation finds it out. Thus it happens that teeth which gave no trouble in the city bring grist to the mill of the seaside dentist.

An American Joke in Turkey.

Some time ago an Englishman visited Caifa, an out-of-the-way place within the dominion of the Sultan of Turkey. He flew into a rage when, just before leaving he was presented with a hotel bill charging outrageous prices for very sorry accommodation, but on the advice of his wife he paid the amount asked. A few days afterwards the hotelier received a letter saying "Your prices are too high!" A few weeks later a parcel arrived; the innkeeper removed wrapper after wrapper—100 of them—and at last came to a card on which was written: "Your prices are too high!" A few months after that, quite lately, a large box was delivered to him—after he had paid a goodly sum for freight charges. On opening it, and after doing a tremendous amount of unpacking, he found another card: "Your prices are too high!" Since then the unhappy man has refused to accept either letters, parcels or boxes.

WARSHIP WRECKED.

A Spanish Cruiser Driven on the Reefs by a Cyclone.

News has been received from Havana of the wreck by a cyclone and probably total loss of the Spanish warship Christobal Colon, a second-class cruiser of about twelve hundred tons displacement and sixteen hundred horse power. The Christobal Colon formed part of the fleet of Spanish warships detailed to watch the coast of Cuba in order to prevent the landing of filibustering expeditions from the United States and elsewhere.

The cruiser carried four twelve centemetre Honotoria guns; two seven centemetre guns and two rapid fire guns. Her crew is estimated to have about two hundred officers and men, but the exact figures are not known at present, as she had on board men intended for the smaller patrol vessels of the Spanish fleet and may have detailed men ashore.

The station of the Cristobal Colon was the waters about Cape Antonio, off the western extremity of the island of Cuba, her commander having particular instructions to watch the gulf of Correntes and Gaudiana, south and north of Cape Antonio. The disaster occurred off Colorado Point, in the gulf of Gaudiana, south of the town of Mantus, in the province of Pinar del Rio, near which territory Havana is situated.

Crew of a Storm Swept Barge Lost.

The barge Elma, which broke loose from her tow during the recent storm on Lake Superior, has been picked up and taken to Grand Island, Mich. She will prove a total loss. About 200,000 feet of her cargo of 520,000 feet of lumber remained on the broken barge. The crew of six men and a woman and child have not been found and are undoubtedly lost.

THEIR DOORS OPENED

To Union Men, but They Will Not Sign the Amalgamated Scale.

The mill of the Oliver Iron and Steel Company at Pittsburg, Pa., is declared open to union men. This action, which is satisfactory, to the company and the men, has been taken by the Amalgamated Association lodge at that mill. When D. B. Oliver refused to recognize the Amalgamated Association or to sign its scale a strike was declared. The mill has been successfully operated, however, and without union rules. During the past year a lodge was formed in the mill without objection from the company. Many urgent requests have been made to the national officers to declare the mill open so that union men could go to work. Union wages have been paid by the company which has not, and likely will not, sign the amalgamated wage scale. Many former employes will now return, but no skilled worker will be removed to make place for the men who have been on a strike for two years.

BOARDING-HOUSES FOR PLANTS.

Flowers Cared for While Owners Are Out of Town.

Boarding-houses for plants are a novel institution, designed for the housing of plants for families who close up their city houses for several months during the summer. Every woman who loves flowers is at her wits' end to devise a means of having her plants cared for when she goes away. In the case of a large and valuable collection this becomes a serious matter.

It is up on Columbus avenue that the plant boarding-houses abound. Often in the spring and summer any one passing a florist's may see in his window a strip of painted glass, or some other sign bearing the words: "Boarding House for Plants, 50 cents apiece." A few of the establishments offer accommodations for 25 cents. This price covers a month's board and lodging for a single potted plant.

None of these boarding houses seek winter patronage, as the florist would hardly be paid for his trouble in caring for other people's plants, since at that time they would occupy hot house space which could be turned by the proprietor to greater advantage in raising flowers of his own. Then, too, in winter it is the custom of the florist to put in a stock of hot house plants for sale, that being the time when most flower fanciers think of increasing their collections, and naturally the profits on sales is larger than could be expected from these frail boarders that require unusual watchfulness on chilly days. In summer, however, the rate of board is an ample return for the small outlay of time and attention, when plants need only such trifling attention as being supplied with water.

Sometimes it happens, the men in the business say, that the caretaker finds that the soil in which one of his boarders stands rooted has become impoverished. In such a case he immediately sets to work to repot the plant. All such bits of necessary care are undertaken without extra charge, being covered by the regular board bill. There is also a boy, whose duties consist in walking up and down among the boaders and seeing that they are not molested by bugs.

"I'd much prefer to keep a flower sanitarium," says a caretaker, "than to perpetually have to follow up that boy and see that he isn't napping. It would'nt be half the trouble. And those boys are all alike. But it's a class of work that only a boy would consent to do. However, on the whole, I must confess that the plant boarding house business is rather too good to give up on account of so insignificant a drawback as a lazy boy, especially when it furnishes occupation and income in what would otherwise be a dull season for the florist."

NOT IN TEXAS

WILL CORBETT AND FITZSIMMONS HAVE THEIR BOUT.

The Legislature Passes an Anti-Prize Fight Law.

A Special from Austin, Texas, says: Corbett and Fitzsimmons must find another place than Texas to pull off their fight for the proposed championship of the world.

The legislature by a vote that was practically unanimous in the senate and only a little less in the house, passed the bill prohibiting prize fighting, and thus accomplished the purpose for which the governor assembled them in special session.

The vote by which the bill was carried furnishes the strongest proof of the sentiment of the state with reference to prize fighting. The only rallying point of the minority was opposition to the emergency clause which carried the bill into immediate effect. Certain of the members honestly regarded this as an injustice to such of the citizens of Dallas as had spent large sums in anticipation of the fight and opposed it for that reason alone.

Their arguments were not effective, however, and the vote in the house on the final passage of the bill showed but five votes in opposition with 107 in its favor. In the senate the bill was carried with only one negative vote in the twenty-seven that were cast. The senate made quick work of the measure. It had taken a recess until 3 p. m. in order that Dallas people might be given a full hearing by the judiciary committee. Within fifty-five minutes after reassembling the bill was passed.

The bill makes prize fighting a felony and imposes a punishment upon the principals for every infraction of the law by imprisonment in the penitentiary for a term of not less than two and not more than five years.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Condition as Reported for the Past Week.

The Chattanooga Tradesman reports the following new industries incorporated or established in the southern states during the past week:

Newport Grain and Milling Co., of Newport, Ark., and the Thompson Oil and Gas Works, of Wheeling, W. Va., each with $100,000 capital; a sash and door factory to be built at Palatka, Fla., also with $100,000 capital; a manganese mining company at Roanoke, Va., capital $50,000; a $50,000 cotton oil company at Brownwood, Texas, a $40,000 construction company at Columbia, S. C., and a $40,000 oil and gas company at Wheeling, W. Va. A cotton mill with 150 tons daily capacity at Greenville, Texas, and a 30-ton oil mill and oil refinery at New Orleans, La.

There is also reported an electrical plant at Canton, Miss., a 50-barrel flouring mill at Madisonville, Tenn., an ice factory at Biloxi, Miss., and an oil and fertilizer company at Anderson, S. C. A knitting mill is to be established at Brunswick, Ga., and woodworking plants at Piedmont, Ala., McAlpin and Williston, Fla., Athens, Ga., Trenton, Tenn., and Orange, Tex. Waterworks are to be built at Eufaula, Ala., and Canton, Miss.

The enlargements for the week include brick works at Harriman, Tenn., iron and steel works at Houston, Tex., an increase in the capital of the Gaffney cotton mills at Gaffney, S. C., from $200,000 to $600,000, and an enlargement of the Woodstock woolen mills at Woodstock, N. C.

SYMPATHY FOR CUBA.

Monster Mass Meetings Held at Chicago and Resolutions Adopted.

Surrounded by patriotic mottoes, with the American flag as a background, the declaration of independence as a textbook and the spirit of liberty as inspiration, 4,000 persons yelled themselves hoarse at Chicago Monday night in the cause of Cuban independence. There could scarcely have been more enthusiasm had the meeting been held in Cuba itself. Central Music hall was not big enough to hold all the sympathizers and there was an overflow meeting in the auditorium of the Young Men's Christian Association building. At both meetings the same resolutions were adopted and speeches were made by men prominent in civic affairs, all of whom uncompromisingly favored the freedom of the little island in the thraldom of Spain. The resolutions express sympathy for the revolutionists, call on the United States to recognize them as belligerents and ask other countries to join in making this demand. They begin with the best known paragraph in the declaration of independence and end with a determination to continue the work thus auspiciously begun.

NO LOWER RATES.

Western Railroad Officials Refuse Further Reduction.

A Chicago special says: Atlanta exposition rates from the west will be no lower than 25 per cent of the double locals unless developments arise to change the minds of western passenger officials. They have reaffirmed their former decision to make no more than the 25 per cent reduction and also agreed to ignore the greater reduction made by the Kansas City, Fort Scott and Memphis from Kansas City. The officials say that in no case would they be justified in making a further reduction to last the three months of the exposition.

BANANA skins are said to put a fine polish on tan or russet shoes.

"[illegible] consist of only one of [illegible] kinds. First, that [illegible] as a common [illegible] equivalent of value. [illegible] second, that which is relative in its character, and [illegible] its market value as [illegible] convertable at par [illegible] of the first kind. It is [illegible] that gold alone is sound [illegible] of the first kind, and legal tenders, national bank notes, [illegible] money of small change, [illegible] silver, nickel and copper coins, are sound money of the [illegible] kind. It is also obvious so long as the government of [illegible] is able to redeem [illegible] in gold at par, [illegible] silver dollars are sound money of the second kind, for their [illegible] value is dependent, not [illegible] market value as bullion, [illegible] exclusively upon their convertibility at par in gold. It is [illegible] equally obvious that if [illegible] were to be admitted to free coinage at the legal rate of 16 to 1 under the independent action of the government, it would not be able for this government to continue to redeem its silver dollars at par in gold, and such silver dollars would, therefore, not be sound money."

Thanks to a kind Providence, prosperity's flag is afloat in the [illegible]. The great blessings that have fallen from the Almighty's hand upon our common country [illegible] the heretofore disheartened people to take heart again. [illegible] twelve months ago depression and poverty held sway to such an extent that the wheels of [illegible] had stopped, and the [illegible] masses, who theretofore had doubted the goodness of God and His ability to supply their wants, was almost gone, now, the merchandise of the world's trade and commerce have started anew the wheels of factory, shop and store, and from the bosom of mother earth has come forth a harvest [illegible] moneyed value reaches into [illegible] millions of dollars; these things [illegible] to make stronger the faith of the people in Him who [illegible] "Seed time and harvest shall [illegible] cease", and have driven [illegible] that bitterness which [illegible] was their's, and caused them [illegible] with the spirit and understanding, "Praise God from whom [illegible] blessings flow".

The editor of the View trusts [illegible] to make satisfactory arrangements for conducting this [illegible] that its power for good [illegible]. The necessary [illegible] incident to removing his family [illegible] and getting the [illegible] work there has [illegible] time to attend to [illegible] the past few weeks; [illegible] will do the best possible to [illegible] give a Democratic paper [illegible] Chilton County.

A day or two ago the Atlanta Constitution published an interview with Mr. J. C. Lewis, a well known cotton dealer of New Orleans, which contains the prediction that the price of cotton will go higher and the Constitution [illegible] its prefatory remarks [illegible] very cheerily of the prospects of 10 cent cotton in the near future.

It is grateful to see our [illegible] getting circulation to [illegible] views.

It has been telling us for [illegible] that we are walking [illegible] vale of tears and that the [illegible] of prosperity can never [illegible] unless we scramble into the [illegible] silver chariot. The Constitution has proclaimed to the [illegible] that the South is a stricken [illegible], but the value of its property is declining and that only by free and unlimited coinage of silver can the price of Southern products be improved. It told the farmers last winter that cotton was 5 cents a pound because silver was so low. Now it predicts 10 cent cotton, though the price of silver has not budged. We hope the Constitution will stop its whining and take an honest joy in prosperity which is coming to the whole country and especially to the South, even though we are not having the free and unlimited coinage of silver.

SEDUCING THE SOUTH

[illegible] STORIES REGARDING THE REFORM CLUB'S WORK.

Its Real Object Is Education and Not Corruption—Small Fund Magnified Into Millions—How It Spreads Information. Influence and Scope.

We clip the following from The Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin of Sept. 9. This is the leading commercial journal of this country, and its statements show that the Reform Club, instead of having millions of dollars, which it is spending for corrupt purposes, really has a small fund which it is spending for educational purposes. It is, in fact, supplementing the work done by our schools and colleges—or rather it is doing work that they should have done:

A Texas paper is manifesting great distress over a corruption fund of $1,-[illegible] said to have been raised by the Chamber of Commerce or the Reform Club, or each of them, for the purpose of weaning the south from its loyalty to the long suffering and down trodden white metal." This money, it represents, is being disbursed to secure the control of newspapers and to buy votes for sound money candidates for legislatures and for congress.

This corruption fund is a mere nightmare. It does not exist. It is as baseless as the cargo of gold that Ernest Seyd was declared, in a Colorado affidavit, to have brought from London and used in bribing congressmen to commit "the crime of 1873." Children and savages easily believe in fairies and spooks and the supernatural in various manifestations, but why will grown men, who wish to be reputed intelligent and sensible, disgrace themselves by repeating such nonsense?

The Reform Club has not yet succeeded in raising $50,000, and it has not spent quite all it has raised. All its disbursements have been in support of its publication office, except a trifle that has defrayed the expenses of some public meetings. The Chamber of Commerce committee has probably raised less money, and its expenditures have been of the same general character.

The Reform Club has bought or hired no southern paper. Much less has it bought or hired any southern politician. The belief in the Reform Club is that the southern silver men are honest, but misinformed, and that any attempt to influence them by money would be futile and resented as an insult. The southern papers that are printing the literature issued by the Reform Club are doing it because they believe or their readers believe in sound money. The matter is supplied to them, and they print it if they wish it, and it does not cost them anything. But they are not paid to print it.

The Reform Club has issued more than 1,500,000 copies of the 19 numbers of its regular publication, "Sound Currency," in editions varying from 20,000 to [illegible],000, according to the adaptability of the various numbers for popular reading. It has prepared "broadsides," which have been folded into country newspapers and issued as supplements to 23[illegible] papers, having an aggregate circulation of 2[illegible],240, which gives an average of [illegible]. This is getting sound currency literature into the hands of the farmers in the back counties, who [illegible] only one newspaper and do not often get to public meetings. This is getting back of the local boss or the leading politician to the sovereign voter himself. Of these papers 2[illegible]0 are published in the southern states, including Kansas in the southwestern group, and these papers have an aggregate circulation of [illegible] and an average circulation of 741. In the middle west and [illegible] these supplements are used by [illegible] age circulation is a[illegible] 1,000.

Sound currency literature already [illegible] and stereotyped, what is called "plate" matter, has been supplied to and used very freely by 563 papers with an average circulation of 1,400 and an aggregate circulation of 7[illegible], and of these there are in the southeast and southwest 296, with an aggregate circulation of [illegible],000. A large supply of cartoons has also been prepared and is being freely used. The majority of the publications of the club have been illustrated, and less than a third of them have been of that literary or statistical character which is supposed to be unacceptable to the average man. The publications, as a whole, have been of a very popular character. Their numbers are summed up as follows:

Sound Currency series	[illegible]
"Broadside," pages	1,[illegible],000
Plate matter, pages	2,500,000
Reprints and miscellaneous documents through supply bureau	125,[illegible]
Speeches of Carlisle and others, not including the much greater number lately furnished at the expense of other parties	[illegible]
Total	[illegible]

The influence of this work on the public sentiment of the south and west is already apparent. The literature of the club has been reproduced at second and third and fourth hand and is found in papers that probably are not aware that they are using portions of Reform Club documents.

The Reform Club has not insulted the south by trying to subsidize its papers or buy up its politicians. It has sought to give information to the people, and it has certainly succeeded remarkably in the wide and effective distribution of sound currency literature.

"How Would That Help You?"

Free coinage would make the silver mine owners rich. How would that help you?

Fifty cent dollars will enable debtors to pay their creditors in depreciated money. As you are an honest citizen, how would that help you?

The adoption of the silver standard, which is what the free coinage advocates really want, would drive $600,000,000 of gold out of the country. How would that help you?

Putting the country on a silver basis would double the price of everything you buy. How would that help you?

The first result of free coinage would be a widespread panic, through the calling in of loans by lenders who were afraid of cheap money. A panic means business depression, bankruptcy and poverty. How would that help you?

The agitation for cheap money is hampering trade and industry by making owners of idle capital afraid to invest their money in business. How does that help you?

If you have money in the savings bank, or loaned out at interest, the value of your deposit or loan would under free silver be cut [illegible] of what it is now. How will that help you?

Adopting the silver standard of China and India would unsettle our trade relations with the leading commercial nations, which are all gold standard countries, and would diminish our foreign commerce. How would that help you?

Where All Things Are Known.

"Yes, brethren and sisters," said the western minister in the course of the funeral sermon, "our dear brother has gone to the land where all things are known—even the truth about the coinage question perhaps."—Indianapolis Tribune.

SING A SONG OF SILVER.

Sing a song of silver,
A pocket full of rye,
Four and twenty blackbirds
Baked in a pie.

Sing a song of silver,
Poorest kind of money,
Dollars worth but fifty cents,
Wouldn't they look funny?
When the silverites get in Prices will be high,
Everybody kicking then
When they go to buy.

Sing a song of [illegible],
Thirty-two to one,
Piled up in the treasury,
[illegible]
With the [illegible]
Isn't Uncle Sam
Just a little bit ashamed
Of the silver sham?

Sing a song of silver,
Fiat money, too,
Populists want both kinds,
Neither worth a sou.
Every man with savings
Sees them melt away,
And of all debts only
The Devil is to pay.

Sing a song of silver,
A song is all it's worth,
Greedy silver barons
Thought they owned the earth,
But the honest people
Beat down sixteen to one,
And the silver shouters

THE ONLY WAY.

The only way a news paper can get up the local news is for the readers and the people to tell the [illegible] what they know, and as some people don't seem to know what things would make interesting reading matter we have made the following that you may paste in your hat for reference:

If you have any visitors at your house, your friends and neighbors would be pleased to hear it. If the visitor is a new comer the news will be all the more interesting.

If your baby swallows a box of tacks and the head of the family has to walk the floor all night, be sure you have some sympathetic friends who would be glad to hear of the news.

When you get on a regular razzle-dazzle-high-lonesome drunk and tear all the skin off your head trying to dodge the trees, lamp-posts and side-walks as they go [illegible] around, go home, sober up and then write an article on the consequences of riding a bicycle at night without a light.

If any of your friends die, don't forget to notify the editor for it gives him real pleasure to say something nice about departed friends.

If you steal any thing you needn't say anything about it because we always hear of such things soon enough.

There is no medicine so often needed in every home and so admirably adapted to the purposes for which it is intended, as Chamberlain's Pain Balm. Hardly a week passes but some member of the family has need of it. A toothache or headache may be cured by it. A touch of rheumatism or neuralgia quieted. The severe pain of a burn or scald promptly relieved and the sore healed in much less time than when medicine has to be sent for. A sprain may be promptly treated before inflammation sets in, which insures a cure in about one-third of the time otherwise required. Cuts and bruises should receive immediate treatment before the parts become swollen, which can only be done when Pain Balm is kept at hand. A sore throat may be cured before it becomes serious. A troublesome corn may be removed by applying it twice a day for a week or two. A lame back may be cured and several days of valuable time saved or a pain in the side or chest relieved without paying a doctor bill. Procure a 50 cent bottle at once and you will never regret it. For sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton and McNeill and Smith, Jemison Ala.

Among the unique tokens of business revival furnished by the telegraph news is the announcement from New Haven, Conn., that a company of that city just received from its Chicago agency an order for 100,000 alarm clocks. From which it is plain that the whole west is preparing to wake up early in the morning to make the most of its day of Democratic prosperity.

Many of the citizens of Rainsville Indiana are never without a bottle of Chamberlains Cough Remedy in the house, says Jacob Brown, the leading merchant of the place. This Remedy has proven of so much value for colds and croup in children that few mothers who know its worth are willing to be without it. For sale by Clanton Drug Co., Clanton, and by McNeil and Smith, Jemison, Ala.

Every mother should know that croup can be prevented. The first symptom of croup is hoarseness. This is followed by a peculiar rough cough. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the rough cough has developed it will prevent the attack. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and by McNeil and Smith Jemison, Ala.

FREE SILVER SAM, THE BOY BIMETALLIST;

or,

A RATIO OF 16 TO 1.

BY CAPTAIN MAINE READE, JR.,

[illegible] Single Scout, the Smelle Scout; or, [illegible] of the Plains [illegible] Bloodhound [illegible] Brave [illegible] the Bowery Brave, or, The [illegible] Black Bart, the Border Bloodhound; or, The Vampire's Vengeance," etc.

CHAPTER I.

THE POPULIST'S PRIDE.

It was a broiling hot day in July, but despite the torrid rays of the sun and the blasting hot prairie winds the farmers for miles around Saharaville, Sockless county, Kan., had gathered at the great free silver convention.

Who is it they regard so intently on this day of all days, marking point by point his arguments—that slight, boyish figure that is the cynosure of all eyes? It is he, our hero, Free Silver Sam, the Boy Bimetallist. He is rushing in where presidential candidates fear to tread!

The careless onlooker, if such there was, noting the superb whiskers of Free Silver Sam, that swept the ground as the impassioned orator piled argument upon argument, instance upon instance and precept upon precept, would hardly think that but 16 scorching Kansas summers had passed o'er his head.

Yet it was only too true!

Listen! He is speaking.

"And, after all this, President Cleveland claims that silver is not sound money. Hear this"—

On the small slab of marble on the table top before him he drops a large cartwheel dollar. With a clear "cling" it rings clear as a bell, spins a moment and then settles with a "clink."

"There, if that isn't sound money, what is?"

That was his peroration. [illegible] grand, stupendous!

CHAPTER II.

THE ARCH CONSPIRATORS.

"It is!"

The dark scowling face of Goldbug Ben, the tool of the Rothschilds, lit up with savage glee.

"We have him now!"

The two men addressed were both emissaries of Wall street, minions of the money power, as vile and despicable as himself.

"I have the proof that this graduate of Coin's Financial school is an impostor!"

His hearers can scarce restrain a start.

"Yes," continued Goldbug Ben. "Those whiskers, which the free silverites swear by, that beard, whose silken superfluity has almost secured him the coveted place of Peffer, are"—he paused a moment, noting the open mouthed amazement of his accomplices—"false!

"And, furthermore, he holds a mortgage on my farm, payable only in gold!"

CHAPTER III.

THE DAY OF RECKONING.

Another meeting of the Populists of Kansas. But this time there were ominous looks and fierce gestures on all sides. For was it not rumored that their idol, Free Silver Sam, wore false whiskers and held gold mortgages?

Calmly the Boy Bimetallist faced the angry throng.

"Friends," he said, "it is true I wore false whiskers, not with any intention of deceiving you, but as a disguise beneath which I could better track and bring down the game I sought, Goldbug Ben and his gang, the tools of the Rothschilds and the minions of the money power."

"And the gold mortgages?" clamored the crowd.

"That," and Free Silver Sam paused impressively, "was so that, like our great leader, Senator Steward, I might pay back the goldbugs in their own coin."

Building and Loan Associations In Danger.

A remarkable feature of the past 20 years has been the great increase in the number of associations formed by workmen for the purpose of securing houses, or for investing their savings in improved real estate. This method of utilizing a series of weekly or monthly payments for the purchase of property has proved so successful that there are now thousands of loan associations, with hundreds of thousands of members.

To every man who has invested his savings in a building and loan society the threat of free silver coinage is of the greatest importance. Openly advocated as a method of enabling debtors to cheat their creditors out of half their debts, the evil of 50 cent dollars would prove especially severe on those whose little capital is loaned out through these associations. Under free silver the borrowers would pay off their debts in dollars worth but half of those loaned. This would mean the practical confiscation of one-half of all the money which the workingmen have with years of self denial managed to save. Do the American people wish to enact a law which would perpetrate so great an injustice?

CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

Dr. G. C. Osgood,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Dr. J. F. Kinchelof,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. Archer, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

WOMAN'S WORLD.

PLEASANT LITERATURE FOR FEMININE READERS.

TRUNKS LIKE DRESSERS.

A new trunk that is finding favor with many women who dislike the lifting of heavy trays or the turning of the contents of a carefully packed trunk topsy-turvy in order to reach something placed in the middle or bottom of it is constructed like a dresser, with the trays like so many drawers that can be drawn out as easily as the drawers of a well made bureau. It has not the appearance of a piece of bedroom furniture, however, when closed, as the lid forms part of the side of the trunk, locking near the bottom. These trunks are very strong and light, being clamped with iron and made of cellulose fiber, with the woodwork a three-ply veneer. The drawers run on metal slides.—St. Louis Star-Sayings.

FLAT BRAIDS FOR LONG HEADS.

Flat braids are used in new styles of coiffures. This is a revival of the peasant mode of arranging the hair which was in vogue fifteen or twenty years ago. It is especially effective in warm weather, because it always carries with it such an air of neatness. Fluffy hair, when loosely coiled, will become ruffled and make its wearer look warm and uncomfortable, while if it is done up in flat braids, which are laid smoothly around the back of the head, it will stay in place and make one appear cool and comfortable.

The fashion also permits variations enough to make it becoming to all faces. For a perfectly round head it should be made to look as much like a mat as possible, while a long coiffure is suited to an oval or long face. If the hair is not sufficiently heavy to make a good showing, quite young women may eke out nature's niggardliness by wearing a bow of ribbon at the back of the head.

SECRETS OF THE VEIL.

The strongest defense a woman has, be she distinctly pretty or fascinatingly plain, is her veil. Ever since the world began she has been wearing some sort of tissue face covering, thick or thin, large or small; in this day and generation refined down to a mere gauze face mask, yet likely to remain the dearest and most important possession in her wardrobe till the millennium arrives, so says a writer in the Boston Globe.

It is a barrier between herself and prying eyes, through which very little can be read by the uninitiated gaze; but nothing can escape her keen glance.

Of course, veils are not hygienic—any woman will admit that—but they are necessary, and if you want to know how youthful a woman believes she looks, notice what sort of a net she uses.

In the language of veils, only fresh-faced girls can afford to wear the plain, filmy, undotted tulle that for comfort is the one to be preferred; yet, on any but a tender, peachy young face, it seems to curiously fetch shadows that look terribly like wrinkles; consequently, when a woman sees in her handglass that her ephemeral girlishness of complexion is slipping from her she begins to buy dotted nets.

At first the tulle is very fine and the dots far apart. That's the sort of a veil a woman affects on the days when she looks her best, discreetly resorting to a very closely speckled affair on other days, when her cheeks lacks their accustomed color; or there are plaintive blue shadows under her eyes.

To and from the dentist's she is likely to adopt a veil with a deep lace edge that hides the poor, suffering mouth, and makes the eyes all the brighter, for the lower face is thrown in soft eclipse.

Besides these is the sunburn and freckle veil of silk tissue, white and brown or dark blue, liberally peppered with wee dots, behind which the most doubtfully pretty face takes on a sort of mysterious charm.

But outside this given list there are veils that particularly become certain faces, as the milliners have discovered, who drop a blue, check-woven gauze over the face of a blue-eyed, retroussé-nosed little person, who is trembling on the verge of indulgence in her third or fourth spring hat.

That veil clinches the bargain, and a sallow, brown-eyed girl buys a wide, black straw because the artful saleswoman flung over the front a breadth of the new, very smart, gray tuxedo net, bearing at short intervals big gray velvet spots.

The creed of the milliner runs that almost more on the veil than on the hat depends the becomingness of one's headgear.

It is a little New York maker of irresistible bonnets that has taught Fifth avenue women the true coquetries of the veil. That the charm of it lies in its exceeding freshness; no veil should be worn more than six or eight times; that it should be adjusted with most exquisite neatness and care, tucked in a bit of a knot just under the bonnet's back, without any pinning, and drawn smooth and close over the features, and when not in use rolled and pinned in a satin envelope case, perfumed ever so faintly with orris. She has not failed in finding apt pupils.

FASHION NOTES.

The narrow, double ruffle is used to a large extent in the decoration of thin frocks.

A few yards of new lace and crisp ribbon transform an evening toilet into a fresh looking gown suitable for any occasion.

Newest backhair combs are of tortoise shell and have the effect of a coronet. They are not only worn, but they come high.

French alpaca is very beautiful in texture, and is so glossy and silky and hangs in such beautiful folds that it is a delight to artistic eyes.

Grass linen embroidery will continue its popularity throughout the fall. It will be used as a trimming on many of the cloth dresses.

Lace flounces made in a sort of festoon arrangement are stylish for thin dresses. White lace looped up in scallops, with bows at each corner or point, is a popular trimming.

WORDS OF WISDOM.

Life is half spent before we know what it is.

Self love is not so great a sin as self-forgetting.

He who hath most of heart knows most of sorrow.

Night brings out stars as sorrow shows us truths.

Rigid justice toward men is the greatest injustice.

One-half the world knows not how the other half lives.

Everyone complains of his memory and none of his judgment.

Who hath not known ill-fortune never knew himself or his own nature.

He who is most slow in making a promise is most faithful in its performance.

Long is the night to him who is awake; long is a mile to him who is tired; long is a life to the foolish.

There is very little influence where there is not great sympathy. Hence we are seldom influenced much by those who are our seniors in age.

Let a wise man blow off the impurities of his self, as a smith blows off the impurities of silver, one by one, little by little and from time to time.

Never hold anyone by the button or the hand in order to be heard out; for if people are unwilling to hear you, you had better hold your tongue than them.

Look not mournfully into the past; it comes not back again. Wisely improve the present; it is thine. Go forth to meet the shadowy future without fear and with a manly heart.

He that wants good sense is unhappy in having learning, for he has thereby only more ways of exposing himself; and he that has sense knows that learning is not knowledge, but rather the art of using it.

As the lily will grow full of sweet perfume and delight upon a heap of rubbish, thus the disciple of the truly enlightened shines forth by his wisdom among those who are like rubbish among the people that walk in darkness.

Got a Valuable Pearl in His Lunch.

David Hirsch, the assistant cashier of the Excise Board, bought a half dozen clams at a saloon in Second avenue on Friday night. The price was nominal, for clams on the East Side are cheap. But even had Mr. Hirsch's meal cost very much more he would not have objected to the bill, for he had captured a prize in one of the shells which would have paid the reckoning a dozen times over. Mr. Hirsch cannot remember how far he had progressed in his repast when he struck luck, but he thinks it was when he was about to demolish the fifth bivalve something held his teeth apart.

He thought he had hit upon a stone picked up the clam in the sandy shore of Blue Point Bay. Had it been somebody not possessed of the luck of Mr. Hirsch, this might not have been so, but Mr. Hirsch, having been born under a lucky star, could not thus accidentally bite upon anything of less value than a pearl. And, sure enough, it was a pearl, and a big one at that. One side was opalescent, the other a clear blue, with intervening tints of purple. There was just one flaw in the gem, caused by Mr. Hirsch's eye tooth, but the flaw is only the size of a pin head, while the pearl has a diameter of more than half an inch.

As the lucky cashier rolled the prize around in his hand and uttered an exclamation of exultant surprise, the proprietor stepped up and without further investigation flashed out $25 and offered it for the pearl. The offer was refused.

At the office of the Excise Board yesterday the assistant cashier displayed his find to his many friends, some of whom declared it was worth a fabulous sum.—New York Herald.

Perpetual Motion Solved.

A. C. Mott, of Plymouth, Mich., representative of several farm machinery concerns, has studied perpetual motion for several years, and, according to the verdict of expert machinists, has succeeded in making an effective machine. His machine not only runs itself, but develops power to some extent. The machine consists of a shaft, upon which is a balance wheel. Connected with one end of the shaft by hinged joints are two frames, carrying arms, which radiate nearly to the circumference of the balance wheel. The ends of these frames form the arms, and are slotted where they pass the shaft. To each set of arms are attached, by elbow joints, the weights which furnish the motive power. Each ball as it reaches the top of the circle is thrown to the extreme limit of its reach, the one opposite being drawn by the same mechanical device closer to the shaft. It is believed to be a practical solution of the much-vexed question, although its utility is another question.—Chicago Times-Herald.

A Cat's Jealousy.

May I add to your animal stories a striking instance of that spirit of jealousy which insist on all or none? I had a cat which had long been an inmate of the house, and received all the attentions which it is well-known old maids lavish on such animals. Finding the mice were more than one cat could attend to, I secured a kitten, and wished to keep the two. My cat was indignant, and in very plain language requested the kitten to go. I endeavored to make peace, lifted both on to the table, and expostulated with puss. She listened with a sullen expression, and then suddenly gave a claw at the kitten's eye. I scolded and beat her, upon which she left the house, and I never saw her again.—London Spectator.

Birds Flee. o. Wing.

Two of the carrier pigeons owned by the Badger Flying Club which were liberated at Scotland, South Dakota, a distance of 500 miles from Milwaukee, Wis., have returned to Milwaukee. One of the pigeons covered the distance in exactly twenty-four hours and fifty-five minutes, or at an average speed of 532.3 yards a minute, which is fast time considering that the pigeon was out over night. This is said to be the fastest time ever made west of Philadelphia.—New York Press.

HOUSEHOLD MATTERS.

TO KEEP THE SILVER BRIGHT.

Various methods are recommended from time to time for keeping the silver clean and bright. But few seem to understand how to pack away silver plate that is not to be used for some time. Silver plate should always be cleaned with prepared whiting made into a thin paste with a little spirits of wine and the same quantity of water. When the silver is to be put away this same mixture should be carefully rubbed over it with a chamois leather and the plate enveloped in green baize bags, and if kept in a dry place in a good box it will be ready for use at any time, merely requiring to be carefully dusted when taken out of the bags until all the white powder is removed.—St. Louis Star-Sayings.

WASH CHALLIES IN RICE WATER.

Challies can be beautifully washed in rice water. Boil half a pound of rice in rather more than two quarts of water. Let the water become tepid and then wash the fabric in it, rubbing it with the rice, as if it were soap; rinse two or three times in rice water, from which, however, the rice has been strained, and used the last rinsing water well diluted, so that the material may not become too stiff. Iron while slightly damp. Silk stockings should be washed and rinsed in lukewarm water and wrung between towels. Woolen and silk underwear should be washed in warm soap suds, to which a little ammonia has been added. The silk garments may soak for a quarter of an hour in this preparation before being rubbed between the fingers. Rinse twice through tepid clear water and hang to dry with great care, pulling out all wrinkles. Iron under a cloth before quite dry.—Boston Cultivator.

CLEANING KITCHEN WOODWORK.

A housekeeper with half a century's experience says that cleaning kitchen tables and sinks with soap is a great mistake. It disintegrates the fiber of the wood and turns it yellow. She says that very hot water and borax, or very hot water alone with plenty of strength, will give the very best results. This is all very true, provided one uses cheap soaps made of chemicals and all sorts of abominations, but home made soap, which should abound in every well regulated kitchen, will not produce this effect; and the work is much more easily and quickly done than with simple hot water and scrubbing.

One of the points of grace in women's work is to have learned to do things easily as well as thoroughly. A woman might, with much more profit, occasionally buy a new table than to wear her strength and life out cleaning the old one, when by a little knowledge of science and chemistry she could neutralize the grease and wash off the compound of oil and alkali with a few dashes of boiling water.—New York Ledger.

FIVE-MINUTE GINGERBREAD.

There are a few suggestions which have occurred to me while I have been reading a number of recipes, and I am going to pass them on for the benefit of those who have not had any experience, says a teacher of cooking. I was reading a recipe this morning where some milk was used. If the best results are to be obtained, never use soda alone, but take an equal quantity of cream of tartar, also be sure that your milk is firm and solid, not too sour and therefore watery. Then some one says "use either kind of flour, Eastern or Western." While, of course, you can use either, you will find that the Eastern will never give the excellent results which you can obtain from the Western, except when used for gingerbeer and bread.

For gingerbread the Eastern is far superior. Use 2 cups Eastern flour, 1 cup molasses, 1 teaspoonful soda (level), 1 teaspoonful ginger (level), ½ teaspoon salt; 1 tablespoon of shortening will give a perfect gingerbread, if baked in a moderate oven. If people realized how many preferred gingerbread to cake for common use and how much better it was for them, there would be a great reformation begun in the line of sweet cake and pastry, and one of the duties which take so much of our time would be done away with. It takes me about five minutes to make this gingerbread and my family prefer it to ordinary cake.

RECIPES.

Ginger Snaps—One cup of molasses, one cup of sugar, one-half cup of lard; let them boil and stir; add one cup of flour, three tablespoonfuls of vinegar and one tablespoonful of soda in the vinegar; stir all together and add flour enough to roll.

Apples, Steamboat Style—Pare and quarter some tart apples, place them in a long, shallow pan, sprinkle with sugar, cinnamon and flour. Dot the whole with small pieces of butter; pour a little water in with the apples and bake. Serve warm.

Cocoanut Pudding—Beat four eggs until very light, add three-fourths of a cup of sugar, a pint and a half of milk, one grated cocoanut and a teaspoonful of vanilla; stir all together until well mixed and set in a moderate oven to bake for half an hour. Serve very cold with vanilla sauce.

Chocolate Pie—One teacup of milk, one-half cup of sugar, yolks of two eggs, two heaping teaspoonfuls of corn starch, two large tablespoonfuls of chocolate; cook in double boiler until it thickens; pour into crust already baked and beat whites of the eggs and put on top; brown.

Crumpets—Set sponge of three cups of warm milk, half-cup of yeast, one saltspoonful of salt and flour to make a stiff batter. When very light beat in two tablespoonfuls of melted butter and stir in a saltspoonful of soda dissolved in hot water. Fill muffin rings or watty tins, let stand fifteen minutes then bake.

Potato Roll—Put one cup of cold mashed potatoes into a saucepan, add two tablespoonfuls of milk; season with pepper and salt; add a well-beaten egg; mix thoroughly, take from the fire and beat until light. Put a tablespoonful of butter in a fry-ingpan, when hot put in the potatoes, spread evenly over the pan; cook until a golden brown; roll like omelet and serve smoking hot.

High Prices for Rare Coins.

During the recent session of the fifth annual convention of the American Numismatic Association, at Washington, coins of almost priceless value were displayed. As viewed from a numismatic standpoint it is the condition of a coin which fixes its value. It is not the date, nor age, except in less than thirty instances, that is sought for at the big quoted premiums. Pierced, plugged, badly worn, scratched coins, or those on which the dates are illegible, have no particular value.

For gold there is but a limited numismatic demand, and the supply is greatly in excess of that demand. The double eagle of 1849 is worth about $300. All gold dollars are at a premium and worth from $1.20 to $1.40 each. Those dated 1863, 1864 and 1865 command from $2.50 to $4 each, and those dated 1875 are worth $6.

The bulk of numismatic transactions are in silver coins. A dollar of 1804 is worth $400, a half dollar of 1797 brings $40, and a quarter of 1827 demands $40. The dime of 1804 is the most valuable, being worth $10, and the half dime of 1802 easily holds the record at $63. A large copper cent of 1799 would bring $25, and a half cent of 1796 is in demand at $30.

A thin silver half dime of 1802 was bought by its present holder for $63, and has sold for $75.

Even Then.

Adam stood at the gate of Eden, looking out steadily at the new world.

"Why don't you hurry up?" he shouted. "I can't for the life of me see why a woman never is ready in time. What the—serpent—is keeping you?"

"I—I can't get these fig leaves pinned straight," was the reply of Eve in a voice that warned him to carry the discussion no further.

All Broke at Once.

"So you took your family to the seashore?" said the facetious man.

"I did," was the melancholy reply.

"Where there is such grandeur in the breaking of the waves—"

"Yes."

"And the breaking of the engagements—"

"Yes, and of the $20 bill."—Washington Star.

STOMACH AND HEAD PAINS.

A REMEDY.

Women Are Subject to Both, on Account of Tight Lacing.

From the Evening News, Newark, N. J.

One of the happiest women in this city is Mrs. George G. Reiss, of 29 Montgomery Street.

"No one to look at me now," said Mrs. Reiss to a reporter, "would think for a moment that I was so ill that the doctors said I could not possibly be saved. About three years ago I began to suffer from terrible pains in my stomach and it was almost impossible for me to do any work. Then I had severe headaches that almost distracted me and altogether I was in a very sad condition. Of course I wanted to be well again, and like most people in such cases, I consulted a doctor, spent money for medicine and took it faithfully. To my infinite regret I got no better, and another doctor was called in. More medicine was prescribed and this I took, but it did no good. Those terrible pains continued to make life miserable for me. The doctors blandly told me that I could not be cured entirely, if at all. Pleasant news, wasn't it? Well, I continued to work about the house here and suffered untold agonies. I did not give up hope but did all I could to relieve my misery. Nothing gave me any relief, however, and I had begun to think that all hope must be abandoned, when, in reading the Evening News, I saw Dr. Williams' Pink Pills advertised. The printed testimonial coming from a resident of this city led me to believe that I, too, might be benefited by these pills and not without some misgivings I bought a box of them.

"Almost as soon as I began to take them I felt relieved and the first marked indication of improvement was when that tired, weary, don't-care feeling disappeared. This was in itself something to be grateful for, but other and more pleasing results followed after I had taken more of the pills. My headaches ceased entirely and the pain in my stomach troubled me no more. Now once in a great while I have an occasional ache or a pain, but I know the cure. Out comes the Pink Pills, and after taking one or two of them, away the pain goes. It all seems so good to me that at times I can scarcely believe that it can be true and yet I know that if I had not used those Pink Pills I would still be suffering agony such as few people do in this world."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effect of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, all forms of weakness either in male or female. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, (50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50—they are never sold in bulk or by the 100) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Tennessee's All-Negro Town.

There is an odd little town on Johnson island, in the Mississippi river, just north of Memphis. It is a negro town and is owned by a negro planter. The island is eleven miles in area and it is under the Tennessee statutes. The town is a taxing district and not incorporated. Judson is the name of the place, named after the white planter whose son is the mulatto owner of the island. The case in which the morganatic son won the rich property in contesting the will of the dead planter is well remembered, and the courts duly allowed him part of the inheritance, since he was the only living issue of Judson.

So far as known, Judson is the only negro town in America where there is not a white man. Elmer Judson, its wealthy owner, allows no white man to come except on a visit. The town has 450 inhabitants and is well organized, since Judson is a highly educated and progressive man. He owns everything on the island and most of the inhabitants are his tenants. He is a justice of the peace and has provided happy homes for the men who work for him and enjoy his bounty. The island is about eight miles in length and in a few places is not more than sixty yards wide. The land is unusually rich and fine crops are produced every year. There are six stores in the place, with a few shops, two churches and a school.—Chicago Record.

Sorry Not to Oblige.

Poole, the tailor, was a most accommodating gentleman, and was often invited to the houses of "the great." When staying with a certain nobleman, he was asked, one morning, by his host, what he thought of the party who had assembled at table the night before. "Why, very pleasant, indeed, your grace; but perhaps a little mixed." "Hang it all, Poole!" responded the jovial peer; "I couldn't have all tailors!"—Argonaut.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

Mexican Water Jars.

The Mexicans do not use ice; but nevertheless there is no country where a man can get a glass of cool, sweet water than in Mexico. The water jars are made of porous pottery which allows the water to ooze through the material of the tanks, and the evaporation keeps it always cool. It is not cold like our ice water, but it is all the better on that account, as a man can drink twice as much and never feel in the least injured, no matter how large his drafts. Australian stockmen frequently put water into skin bottles which they suspend from the verandah, and the air swaying the skins back and forth cools the water and renders it more palatable.

Seemed Too Extortionate.

A middle aged man of tall, slender build and earnest cast of countenance stepped into a hatter's shop and removed the wrappings from a soft felt hat he carried in his hand.

"How much will it cost to have this dyed a light gray, to match my hair?" he inquired.

"It will cost you at least $1," replied the hatter.

The caller wrapped it up again.

"I won't pay it," he said decidedly. "For 35 cents I can get my hair dyed to match the hat. Good day, sir."—Chicago Tribune.

GOSSIP OF WASHINGTON IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS.

Doings of the Chiefs and Heads of the Various Departments.

[illegible] the city of Washington, this month, the first annual convention of the National Mission Union will be held. It will be a notable gathering of [illegible] workers from all parts of the [illegible]

Justice Hagner has rendered the decision of the supreme court of the District of Columbia in two cases involving title to the Potomac flats and [illegible] gave full effect to the government title to those lands.

Receipts of the government for the last [illegible] days of the current month aggregated $1,157,668 and the expenditures $[illegible],000, deficit, $7,-[illegible]. This deficit will probably be reduced during the remainder of the month.

Mrs. U. S. Grant will make her future home in Washington. She has purchased the residence which Senator Edmunds, of Vermont, built some years ago, and in which he was living when he retired from public life. It is located near the western boundary of Massachusetts avenue, one of the fashionable residence streets of the city, and has been occupied for the past two years by Secretary Olney.

The district grand jury began its consideration Wednesday afternoon of the case of Miss Elizabeth M. Flagler, who shot and killed a twelve-year-old colored boy, August 23, last. Neither Miss Flagler nor her friends appeared before the grand jury, but it is understood that the statement made by her before the coroner's jury was placed before the members. There is a strong impression that an indictment will not follow.

Attention is called to a very important but much neglected source of national wealth by United States Consul Chancellor at Havre in a report to the state department upon the peat industry. As America possesses an inexhaustible supply of peat, the consul points out how, in view of recent developments in Europe, it may some day open up an extensive field for the employment of capital and labor. The [illegible] of this substance seems to [illegible] endless.

It is understood at Washington that President Cleveland will leave Gray Gables for the capital on the 17th instant, but his custom of not making public his movements in advance prevents securing any confirmation of this [illegible]. In [illegible] report to the state department the [illegible] this tobacco is suitable for [illegible] in Lower California and on the southern coast of the United States. Consequently he has addressed himself to the task of procuring [illegible] and finding it impossible to obtain [illegible] through official channels, owing to the reluctance of the Dutch [illegible] he has procured a supply [illegible] sources and will forward [illegible] the agricultural department. Carlisle and Harmon Confer.

[illegible] Carlisle called on Attorney General Harmon Thursday and handed him several telegrams received by him from collectors of customs and others [illegible] the movements of alleged filibustering parties along the gulf coast. [illegible] cabinet officers discussed the [illegible] some length. United States collectors of customs, United States marshals, and United States attorneys have all received necessary instructions how to deal with intended filibustering expeditions. It was agreed that nothing should be left undone to prevent violations of the neutrality laws. What constituted a violation is not easy to determine, but the matters are put in the hands of United States district attorneys to determine at their discretion. The fact [illegible] all proceedings to detain [illegible] filibustering expeditions have [illegible] out of the United States [illegible] the administration to [illegible] and thus avoid the possibility [illegible] or damages.

DOES DEATH END DIVORCE?

An Interesting Point To Be Raised in a Methodist Conference.

One of the most sensational questions which will be considered at the approaching session at Richmond, Va., next month of the Southern Methodist conference will be the case against Rev. Dr. George Carter. Dr. Carter, who is widely known in the south, a few months ago married a prominent young society lady of Lynchburg, Va.

The husband had been divorced, but his divorced wife was dead at the time this union took place. Dr. Carter, it will be remembered, was at one time secretary to Pinchbeck in reconstruction days. No minister of the Methodist church may, under the church law, perform the marriage ceremony in a case where either party to the contract has been divorced, the husband or wife so divorced being then alive. It will be charged, so The State is advised, that notwithstanding this law of the church, Dr. Carter himself contracted a marriage, being a divorced man. It is further said that Dr. Carter will plead that he was not a divorced man in the eyes of the law at the time that his last marriage was contracted and will raise a very nice question of law which will perplex the conference. An interesting feature of this case is that Rev. Dr. Alex G. Brown, who was an able champion of Dr. Carter when he applied for readmission into the conference, will take sides against him in this matter and will vigorously assist in the prosecution.

GOV. CLARK IS WILLING

That Corbett and Fitz Fight Anywhere in Arkansas.

It looks now as if the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight will be pulled off at Hot Springs, Ark. If it is decided that the present organic laws of Arkansas are unable to prevent the fight it is pretty certain that Governor Clark will let the pugilists punch each other to their heart's content.

In speaking of the affair to a newspaper reporter, Governor Clark said: "You can say for me that I would not convene the legislature in special session to stop it if they were to fight in the statehouse yard."

His manner was so deliberate and emphatic that there could be no possible doubt of the earnestness of the governor. Governor Clark was in a most amiable frame of mind and talked freely concerning the latest phase of the situation.

"I do not really know anything about it," he began, "but I have heard a great many rumors about schemes to hold the contest in Arkansas. It looks, though, as if they mean to bring it off at Hot Springs sure enough. The fact that Mayor Waters and City Attorney Martin, of Hot Springs, are in Dallas negotiating with the managers of the affair indicates beyond a doubt that Hot Springs wants it, and they will very likely get it."

GEN. EVANS SPEAKS.

He Talks of the South's Record to Old Comrades.

General Clement A. Evans, of Atlanta, was the orator of the annual meeting at Richmond, Va., Thursday night of the Virginia division of the association of the Army of Northern Virginia. He spoke in the hall of the house of delegates before an audience that packed the room and galleries. Many of his hearers were men who fought from Mannassas to Appomattox. General Evans' theme was "The Contributions of the South to the Greatness of the American Union," and his treatment of the subject was a masterly effort. He was tendered a great ovation as he was escorted to the chair of the speaker of the house.

In the audience were the Richmond Howitzers and the Henrico Light Dragoons. Prominent among the veterans were: Generals Hunton, Mudford and Bolling, Colonel E. M. Henry, Colonel William A. Smoot and Rev. Dr. J. William Jones.

TAMMANY HALL TICKET.

Platform Calls for Better Sunday Excise Laws.

The New York democratic county convention met Wednesday night at Tammany hall and nominated the following ticket:

Justices of the supreme court, Charles H. Truax, Fredrick Smith and Charles F. McLean.

For Judges of the court of general sessions, Joseph E. Newberg and General Martin T. McMahon.

For justices of the city court, Robert A. VanWick, John P. Schuman and Edward F. Dawyer.

For county clerk, Henry D. Purroy.

For register, William Sohmer.

William Sulzer was temporary chairman and made a brief speech in which he advocated a liberal platform, "a platform without race, without creed, without bigotry, without puritanism and without Rooseveltism either."

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Condition as Reported for the Past Week.

The reports as to industrial conditions all over the south for the week ending Oct. 7, show that the condition of the southern iron markets has been strengthened by favorable reports from tests made of southern low grade basic iron in making steel. Adding another grade of pig iron to the grades already in the market, will increase business at the furnaces and sustain the iron manufacturers in their efforts to enlarge the business. Coal mining is active and the demand is fully equal to present supplies with no sign of falling off in production or prices. Lumber operators are doing a good business. Railroad orders are coming in quite freely, and the expert demand grows larger from week to week.

General business is active and prices are firm. Reports as to the condition of the cotton crop give no encouragement, and the reports as to its amount add nothing to previous reports. Existing high prices for cotton are partly owing to speculation and are in fact caused by the certainty of a short crop. Cotton planters are in no haste to market their crops. There is a general belief that the market will not depreciate materially during the season. Merchants report that there is less outstanding indebtedness among the planters than has ever been known.

Among important new industries incorporated or established during the week in the southern states are the Tygert River Manufacturing Company, of Woodruff, S. C., capital $200,000, to build a cotton and woolen mill; a rope and twine mill at Bennettsville, S. C.; the Big Stone Gap Iron Co., chartered at Louisville, Ky., capital $150,000, and the Texas Briquette and Coal Company, of San Antonio, Texas, with a capital of $100,000. The Pioneer Tobacco Manufacturing Company, capital $50,000 is reported as incorporated at Goldsboro, N. C., the Lone Star Ice Company, capital $50,000, at Austin, Texas, and the Winston-Salem Granite Company, with the same capital to open quarries near Winston, Va. There is also reported the organization at Waco, Texas, of the Improved Cotton Condenser Company, capital $30,000, and the Scarcritt Gold Mining Company, at Petersburg, Va., with $20,000 capital.

There is also reported the establishing of a foundry and machine shop at Shelby, N. C., of agricultural implement works at Little Rock, Ark., and Dallas, Texas, of fertilizer works at Charleston, S. C., and of flouring mills at Winter Garden, Fla., and Faith, N. C. Glass works are to be built at Fairmont, W. Va., an ice factory at Rock Hill, S. C., and a brown stone quarry is to be opened at Greensboro, N. C. Cigarette machine works are to be established at Richmond, Va., a tobacco granulating machine factory at Roanoke, Va., and woodworking plants at Little Rock Ark., Moss Point, Miss., Black Mountain, N. C., Georgetown, S. C., Berkley and Houston, Va. Car works with a capital of $500,000 are reported as in contemplation at Macon, Ga.

Water works are to be built at Dublin, Ga., Greenup and Paducah, Ky. The enlargements for the week include the Knoxville, Tenn., electric light company, which adds $30,000 to its capital, and the San Antonio sewer pipe works, of San Antonio, Texas, whose capital is increased to $200,000. —Tradesman (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

OFFICIAL RETURNS

Of the Election in the Tenth Georgia District.

The official returns from the election in the tenth district have been filed in the governor's office. The official vote as it was received and consolidated is as follows:

	Black.	Watson.
Columbia	223	839
Glascock	128	443
Hancock	826	247
Jefferson	861	946
Lincoln	183	832
McDuffie	251	926
Richmond	5,504	923
Taliaferro	207	581
Warren	262	809
Washington	1,124	1,836
Wilkinson	624	755
Totals	10,193	8,637

Black's majority, 1,556.

Will Contest the Election.

Chairman James Barrett, of the populist executive committee, held a conference with Thomas E. Watson and other prominent populists and states that Mr. Watson will contest the election.

WILL CARRY THE MAILS.

The Steamer St. Paul Makes The Required Speed.

In her trial run of four hours between Cape Ann, Mass., and Cape Porpoise, Me., a distance of 44.96 knots, the International Navigation Company's new steamer St. Paul averaged 20¼ knots per hour for that time and earned the privilege of carrying the United States mails to Europe. According to the terms of the mail subsidy act the St. Paul had to make 20 knots an hour for four consecutive hours to carry the mails and to receive the $4 a mile paid for doing so. The engines and boilers worked as smoothly and easily as if they had been running for months, and not a hitch or accident of any kind occurred.

Alabama Mills Burned.

The Bullock county, Ala., oil and cotton mills have been destroyed by fire. Fifty bales of cotton and between ten and twelve thousand dollars worth of seed were consumed. Insurance carried amounted to $2,000 on seed and $7,000 on building.

BELL OF LIBERTY

WELCOMED WITH OVATIONS OF JOY AND GLADNESS.

Its Arrival in Atlanta After a Triumphal Southern Tour.

The triumphant southern tour of Liberty Bell ended at Atlanta, its destination, at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. As the train bearing the precious treasure rolled into the city its advent was heralded by the booming of cannons, the ringing of bells, the blowing of whistles and an ovation from loyal citizens, which was a fitting climax to its grand southern journey, which was a series of patriotic demonstrations.

The patriotism of a people was expressed in the reception accorded the Liberty bell and it was a reception that sprang from the hearts of southerners, the hearts of Georgians and the hearts of Atlantians. Every yell, no matter how discordant, every lifting of the hat and every bit of applause was intended as a tribute to the honored and revered relic.

The innate spirit of patriotism and freedom was abroad in the land in magnified quantity. The presence of a bell that once inspired a nation, brought about an inspiration for the people of the present and made the spirit of the occasion one which was worthy of the welcome that the great bell deserved. Every bell in the city rang out in glad unison, and whistle after whistle sprang into activity and made the very welkin sound and resound with the varied and melodious noises that heralded the incoming of the bell.

That it is revered and loved by all the people of this land has been demonstrated by its triumphant tour from Philadelphia to Atlanta. It came through as a conquering hero. Everywhere, at every little station, it was received with enthusiasm never given to king or conqueror.

When the bell reached Atlanta it was carried to the Air-Line shops and was retained in the possession of the railroad until Wednesday morning.

Although the great demonstration in honor of the bell's arrival did not occur until Wednesday the special train bearing the bell and its distinguished escort was grandly received. When the train reached the city limits it was met by the mayor and council, the exposition directors, many prominent citizens and the Atlanta Artillery. A salute of thirteen guns was fired.

Children Kissed the Bell.

The gates at the union depot did but little to keep the crowds out. They found entrances at various places and the famous old bell was quickly surrounded. Several children, held up by their parents, kissed the revered bell and happily patted its great brazen sides, hardly knowing what they were doing or why, but feeling, as all present did, that electric thrill of self-satisfaction and national pride.

Guarded by Special Men.

The old bell was on a platform car which had been especially built for it. The bell stood in the center while at each corner of the car stood its guard, Officers Robert Moffitt, James A. Robinson, Harry Heteroth and Francis Westphal. These men are reserve policemen of Philadelphia, and they will remain with the bell until it returns to the Quaker City.

The four great guards were most lenient and many slipped a flower here and a ribbon there. The guardians of the bell have come to feel an intense personal interest in the bell outside of that general feeling of ownership and they were immensely pleased at the greeting that had been given.

Wednesday was a red letter day in the history of the exposition. The old bell of '76, the now silent messenger of liberty and peace, was placed in the Pennsylvania building with fitting exercises.

Early Wednesday morning the car was brought into the city and stopped at the Pryor street crossing, where it was delivered by the road to the joint committee from the exposition and the city council. It was unloaded and placed on a carriage that transported it to its temporary resting place in the Pennsylvania building.

At 10 o'clock the parade moved forward up Wall street, into Peachtree and then out to the grounds. As the procession passed the corner of Wall and Peachtree it was saluted by Mayor King and Mayor Warwick, of Philadelphia. Then the carriages fell into line and brought up the parade.

School children by the thousands flocked through its gates and welcomed the bell. Citizens saluted it, and distinguished state officials greeted the symbol with cheers. Governors did the bell honor and soldiers patted it lovingly and shed a manly tear on its copper sides.

Everywhere on the route the wildest enthusiasm was manifested and the Pennsylvanians who escort the bell say that never, on any of its other trips, has it been given such a reception. Since the minute the bell crossed the Georgia line the enthusiasm has been unbounded. The demonstrations at many of the places where the bell stopped were unique and the official escort is more than pleased with the trip.

From the moment that the bell appeared at the union depot thousands pressed close to the wagon on which it was placed, cheering and trying to touch the sacred relic. When the bell reached the exposition grounds the police had to force a passage for it through the assembled thousands. The procession to the grounds was a remarkable one in many respects. The line was moved promptly and no delays were encountered. The bell will remain in the Pennsylvania building at the exposition until the fair closes on the 31st of December.

The exercises at the grounds were opened with prayer. At the conclusion of which came the singing of "Columbia," by the army of school children, fully 2,000 strong.

They were massed together behind the speakers on the raised platform, and were in charge of Professor B. C. Davis. Master of Ceremonies Campbell then announced they would sing "America."

Two thousand childish voices joined in singing the great patriotic air. Gilmore's band accompanied the singers, and the rendition of the soul-stirring piece of music was inspiring to a degree. The sweet voices of the 2,000 enthusiastic children, just from their studies, rang loud and clear across the open plaza, stirring the soul of every man and woman whose ears they reached.

When the song was finished Mayor King welcomed Mayor Warwick, the escort of the bell and the bell. Mayor Warwick responded to the welcome of Mayor King in a glorious peroration.

After Mayor Warwick's address the children again contributed to the delightful exercises. Assisted by Gilmore's band they sang the "Star Spangled Banner." This was followed by a medley of southern airs—"Dixie" and the "Suwanee River," by Gilmore's band.

After the music the children were dismissed. They filed down past the speakers and left the crowd, going to all parts of the the exposition grounds. It was a happy group of 2,000, and they were gladly given room to pass.

Governor Atkinson was the next speaker. His effort was a happy one, especially his eloquent reference to Cuba and Venezuela. This reference was the signal for a grand demonstration. "Bravo! Bravo!" shouted Mayor Warwick waving his silk hat, and the great audience cheered and cheered.

President Collier had the disadvantage of being the last on the program. He followed all the speakers, but was given a splendid hearing. His speech was received with enthusiasm by the audience and was frequently cheered.

When Mr. Collier finished Gilmore's band struck up "Dixie" amid the cheers of the great gathering. When the music was finished Master of Ceremonies Campbell dismissed the audience, thanking them for their attention and interest.

Over in the plaza the Atlanta Artillery had two guns stationed, and as the audience was dismissed the guns commenced booming the salute to the bell. Thirteen guns were fired as the great audience slowly dispersed. The bell had been received. It was Georgia's for the time.

TRADE TOPICS.

Bradstreet's Review of Business for the Past Week.

Bradstreet's review of business for the past week says:

"Seasonable weather has stimulated sales of merchandise and increased the prospects of a favorable fall trade generally. Among the less favorable features are a moderate demand in staple lines on the Pacific coast, a reaction in the volume of business at Baltimore, and the check to the advance in prices of iron and steel, with with a reaction of about $1 per ton at Ohio valley and Pennsylvania centers.

"Prices for iron and steel at western centers are firm, and dealers are said to be sold eight months ahead. Mercantile collections are very generally improved, more particularly south Georgia and Texas merchants and farmers being conspicuous for liquidating indebtedness and anticipating payment of commercial paper.

"Price movements this week present as marked contrasts as preceding weeks. A further advance in cotton has pushed up prices for cotton goods, notably the print cloths. Coffee and sugar are higher, and resin tends upward. Another advance for anthracite coal is coupled with the announcement of fractional increases of copper, tin and lead. On the other hand, the three cereals, wheat, corn and oats, have all gone off again, while heavy receipts of live hogs have further depressed pork and lard. There are 239 business failures reported throughout the United States, as compared with 198 last week, 215 in the week a year ago, 365 in the first week of October, 1893, and 198 in 1892.

"The general dry goods trade has improved with more seasonable weather, larger eastern jobbers reporting a material increase in the demand. The unfavorable spot is in men's wear—woolens—the spring sale of which was unsatisfactory, owing to foreign competition. Wool remains active and strong on heavy demand abroad and a firm London market. Sales of wool at Boston this week are the heaviest on record, amounting to 12,000,000 pounds, 500,000 of Montana having been sold to Bradford, England.

"Trade conditions south are improving with the free movement of cotton and the high price of that staple. With some exceptions, leading southern points report improving trade and advancing prices for dry goods, hardware, leather and shoes."

A KILLING FROST.

Seventeen Days Earlier Than Usual Throughout the Memphis District.

There was a killing frost Wednesday throughout the Memphis district which comprises West Tennessee, Eastern Arkansas, North Alabama and North Mississippi. This is seventeen days earlier than the average date of the first killing frost, which for the last twenty years has been October 26th. Not much damage has been done to cotton, except where the crop was planted later than usual, but the second crop of potatoes is considerably injured.

CAPT. ARMES IS FREE.

General Schofield's Action Denounced by Judge Bradley.

A Washington special says: Judge Bradley of the district supreme court ordered the discharge from custody of Captain George A. Armes, who was arrested on the order of Lieutenant General Schofield, just prior to the latter's retirement from command of the army for having written him an insulting letter.

Judge Bradley scored the action of the late general of the army, characterizing it as unlawful, tyrannical and capricious.

In discharging Captain Armes, whose arrest and confinement General Schofield had ordered by virtue of his position as acting secretary of war, Judge Bradley says:

The arrest and taking of Armes into custody, taking him away from his home to barracks and holding him in close arrest without any antecedent charge of crime preferred in any way against him was and is unjust, unlawful, arbitrary, tyrannical and capricious on the part of General Schofield in whatever capacity he acted, whether acting as lieutenant-general or acting secretary of war. The petitioner is discharged."

The judge then went into the matter at considerable length and said:

"No charge was preferred against Armes at the time of his arrest, no crime has been charged since, and for the offense charged no arrest was necessary. The arrest and confinement was unlawful and oppressive. As the offense charged would upon substantiation result only in reprimand, suspension or dismissal, the possession of the body of the accused was not necessary to carry out the charges, as would have been the case if imprisonment or death were involved."

In speaking of the president's power in army matter, the judge said:

"The president of the United States is commander-in-chief of the officers on the retired list of the army. This function of the executive, however, is unaccompanied by harrowing cares of weighty responsibility. His title of commander-in-chief, so far as it relates to retired officers, is shorn of all power to impose duties, and appears to be an empty name."

The judge advocate general's office of the war department has determined to take an appeal from the decision of Judge Bradley. This will carry the matter to the court of appeals of the District of Columbia.

A. P. A'S. WIN THE DAY.

Elect Their Ticket in Nashville by Several Hundred Majority.

Nashville was the scene Thursday of one of the hottest municipal elections in its history. The American Protective Association had a superb organization in every way, while in a number of wards the democrats were deficient in this respect. The American Protective Association has been laying plans all the summer for this election, and the democratic workers could not budge them from their allegiance to the order. There was a big falling off in the vote in a number of strong democratic wards. Nevertheless over 8,000 votes were cast out of a total registration of over 14,000. There were numerous fights at the polls, but no serious difficulty was reported. The feeling is very high, however. Sheriff Sparks had deputies at a number of the wards, although the election was altogether under the city marshal's jurisdiction.

At 11 o'clock p. m. it was conceded on all sides that the American Protective Association's ticket had been elected. McCarthy's majority will be about 800, while the councilmanic ticket will have majorities of from 500 to 1,000. The ticket elected is as follows:

Mayor, William McCarthy; councilmen, General T. Steir, T. J. Robertson, J. H. Bruce, J. Ellis, J. I. Vandegrift, A. F. Howell, A. J. Allen, Jesse R. Foreman, A. F. McConnell and Albert S. Williams.

NEW STATE PROPOSED.

Wisconsin and Minnesota May Give Up a Slice of Territory.

In accordance with a resolution introduced by Senator Mills, of Superior, and adopted at the last session of the Wisconsin legislature, Governor Upham has appointed James Bardon and John T. Murphy, of Superior, and ex-Lieutenant Governor S. S. Fifield, of Ashland, a committee to confer with the Minnesota committee concerning the proposition to form a new state out of portions of northern Wisconsin and Minnesota, with the capital at Superior-Duluth.

Forty Buried in the Ruins.

Advices from Cologne state that a spinning factory at Bocholt, forty-five miles from Manchester, Westphalia, has collapsed and buried forty workmen in the ruins. Of this number ten were killed outright and nine were seriously injured. The remaining workmen escaped with slight injuries.

May Yet Have Races.

Chances seem to favor holding of the racing meet at Macon, Ga., after all. A citizens' committee, headed by Mayor Horne, B. W. Sperry, Alex. Block and others, have taken hold in earnest. They say they intend to carry out the enterprise, even in the face of such a backset.

Want a Successor for Mahone.

A special from Richmond says: The Virginia republicans are entirely at sea as to what they will do about filling the vacancy in the national and state committee of their party, occasioned by the death of General Mahone.

THE CENTRAL SOLD.

BOUGHT IN BY THE REORGANIZATION COMMITTEE.

The Price Paid Was $2,000,000--The Property Now Free.

Monday at noon, in front of the Central passenger station in Savannah, Ga., the property of the Central Railroad was sold at auction by the special master, Colonel A. E. Buck, of Atlanta, and Captain George W. Owens, of Savannah, and bid in by the reorganization committee represented by Samuel Thomas, Thomas F. Ryan and others of New York city.

The road brought $2,000,000 and was bid in by counsel representing Ryan and Thomas and the members of the reorganization committee.

The Savannah and Western railroad was sold at Birmingham Saturday, at a special master's sale, and the price paid was $1,500,000. The road was bid in by the bondholders of the corporation and will be conveyed by them to the Georgia Central people after the latter has been reorganized.

The sale of the Central and its purchase by the reorganization committee wipes out all the old securities on the property, and there is nothing now whatever in the way of reorganizing it. It is confidently expected that the new company will have its charter and be ready for operation as the Central of Georgia Railway Company by November 1. At least, this has been calculated on by the committee, and it does not appear that there is anything in the way of the plans being carried out.

There appears to be little doubt that Receiver Comer will be the first president of the reorganized company, though Mr. Thomas F. Ryan states that nothing can be said on that line until the sale is ratified, as the final arrangements of the new company will not be made until then.

All of the railroad magnates declare that in their opinion brighter days are dawning upon the south than have ever yet beamed down upon this favored section. They say the south is too rich in natural resources to lie undeveloped, and they are of the opinion that the recent uplifting of the various old bankrupt railroad properties in the south has meant more of promise than anything that has yet happened for the material development of the country between the Mississippi and the Potomac.

PREACHER GIBSON TESTIFIES.

His Handwriting Compared with that on the Wrapper.

In the Durrant case at San Francisco, Friday, the Rev. John Gibson was placed upon the stand and the defense made its assault on him. Mr. Gibson was not very severely handled, but it was more than implied that it was the minister's lettering which was found on the package of Blanche Lamont's rings sent to her aunt after the murder. The examination consisted of having Mr. Gibson identify some of his writing, among it the same names that were written on the paper in which the rings were wrapped, which he wrote for the defense at the preliminary examination. Mr. Gibson was very cautious and did not go further than to say that the specimens shown him looked like his writing. The defense got several specimens of his writing in evidence, among them being a slip of paper with the address of Mrs. Noble, to whom the rings were sent. This was in printed letters, as was the address on the package. At the request of the prosecution Mr. Gibson wrote a communication containing all the figures and names found in and on the package. The manuscript on one of his sermons was also introduced. The resemblance between the chirography of the minister and that of the papers of the package was strong.

The defense places emphasis on this feature of its case. The prosecution says it will show that the similarity was due to the murderer having imitated Mr. Gibson's writing. The specimens produced show that the minister pens a round hand, the letters of which are of the character of printing and with scarcely any individuality.

SUGAR PLANTERS MEET.

They Fail, However, to Harmonize Their Differences.

A meeting was held in New Orleans Wednesday of the sugar planters who went over to the republicans last year. There was also an attendance of the regular republicans, who likewise held a meeting.

The object of the two meetings was to come to some sort of an agreement whereby the two elements might work harmoniously in the future.

As was generally anticipated nothing came of the attempt to harmonize. The negro is the irreconcilable difference between them. The majority of the sugar planters declare they will have nothing to do with the negro politically, while the old timers, like H. Dudley Coleman and others, say they will have nothing to do with any party or faction which refuses political recognition of the man in black. It is not believed this difference will ever be adjusted.

Gas Explosion Kills Seven.

A terrific explosion of gas occurred in the Dorrence mine at Wilkesbarre, Penn., operated by the Lehigh Valley Coal Company. The bodies of the three engineers and the fire boss were recovered and it is believed the list of dead will reach a total of seven.

Why I Love the South.

I love the south. I love its traditions and its usages. I love its dauntless chivalry and its unselfish philantnropy. I love it because it is the home of honor, and the abode of manhood. I love it because in the late war between the States it bled for human freedom and suffered for human liberty. I love it because in prosperity it was unostentious, and in adversity it was unyielding. I love it because in its bosom sleep the ashes of my ancestors. One great thought upon which my soul reposes, is that the spirit that animated the fathers is the heritage of their descendants. I honor her because amid the contumely and insolence of her foes, she was serene and dignified; and the bleeding of her wounds was known only to herself and such spirits as valued human exaltation and human worth. The blood of her heroes that fell at Shiloh, at Cold Harbor, at the wilderness and at Gettisburg, in al ages to come, will plead for freadom of thought, freedom of action and freedom of the press. May the germs of sel gov. ernment find its preservation here. Around these centers may constitutional government revolve till time is no more.

HOW CONGRESS STANDS ON FREE SILVER

A very important poll of Congress has just been taken by the New York Chamber of Commerce, and the result will be hailed with delight by all the friends of honest money. Of the 356 members of the House of Representative, only eighty-eight declared themselves in favor of free silver, while 216, or more than a majority, wrote that they were opposed to free coinage. The eighty-eight free silverites were composed of the following: Free silver Republicans 30; free silver Democrats, 51; free silver Populists, 1. Of these free silverites, fifty come from the Southern States.

In the Senate free coinage is stronger, but it is not as strong as sound money. Only 39 of the 88 members of that body declared themselves for the free and unlimited coinage of silver. Forty-three Senators are against free silver and six are doubtful. It is not known how Utah's two new Senators will stand, but they are generally counted for free silver. It can thus be seen that free coinage has lost ground wonderfully within the past year. This is a good cause for congratulation.

A DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM.

The Enter-Sun published an outline of the platform of the New York Democracy before it was adopted at the Syracuse convention.

There is much in the platform to command the approval of Democrats in all the States, and they can hardly do better than follow in line. The Syracuse platform includes and emphasizes nearly all the time honored principles of the grand old party, for which they have fought many a battle, and won their greatest political victories.

With this issue of the View my connection with it as editor and manager ceases. The demands of my business in Tuskegee make it necessary for me to concentrate all my time and efforts there. The View has been leased to Mr. E. M. Barrett, who is well known to our readers, and I bespeak for him the cooperation of the citizens of Chilton County.

All of my legal business will be attended to by Messrs. Adams and Mapin who will have in hand all papers & etc.

Sensible of the many kindnesses shown me, and grateful for the confidence placed in me, while in Chilton County I herewith return my thanks to one and all.

Respectfully

Oct. 15, 1895. C. W. Hare.

The Fayette Sentinal says:

Alabama's Governor has the credit of delivering the speech at Chattanooga. Of the twenty five Governors who delivered addresses, the one delivered by Governor, Oates was the most applauded, not only by the boys of Dixie Land, but by the most conservative and best people of the North.

BUNYAN ON SILVER.

Now, at the further side of that plain was a little hill called Lucre, and in that hill a silver mine, which some of them that had formerly gone that way, because of the rarity of it, had turned aside to see; but, going too near the brink of the pit, the ground being deceitful under them broke, and they were slain. Some, also, had been maimed there and could not to their dying day be their own men again.

Then I saw in my dream that a little off the road, over against the silver mine, stood Demas, gentlemanlike, to call to passengers to come and see, who said to Christian and his fellow, "Ho; turn aside hither, and I will show you a thing."

Christian—What things so deserving as to turn us out of the way?

Demas—Here is a silver mine and some digging in it for treasure. If you will come, with a little pains you may provide richly for yourselves.

Then Christian called to Demas, saying: "Is not this place dangerous? Hath it not hindered many in their pilgrimage?"

Demas—Not very dangerous except to those that are careless.

But withal he blushed as he spoke.

Christian—What is thy name? Is it not it by the which I have called thee?

Demas—Yes, my name is Demas. I am the son of Abraham.

Christian—I know you. Gehazi was your great-grandfather and Judas your father, and you have trod their steps.

WHICH IS RIGHT?

Two Assertions of the Silverites That Are Sadly Conflicting.

The two legs on which the free silver argument lamely limps are two assertions which flatly contradict each other. The first is the statement that with free coinage at 16 to 1 the commercial value of silver will advance until 16 ounces of silver will equal in value one ounce of gold. This claim is backed up by the oft repeated charge that it was the alleged demonetization of silver in 1873 which caused the value of that metal to fall, and it is urged that free coinage would at once restore its old value.

The second assertion of the silverites is their claim that free coinage would stop the fall in prices which they all insist is due to our financial policy. They have won the support of the farmers solely because they denounced our present currency system as one which makes money scarce and dear and have promised that free coinage will make money cheap and plentiful. In fact, their very strongest plea for unlimited silver is their claim that it would double the prices of farm products by measuring them in cheaper money. And if it would not do so it certainly could not help the farmer.

Here then are the plain statements of the silverites:

Free coinage will increase the value of silver so that it will be twice as dear as it is now. Putting the government's stamp, "One Dollar," on 412 grains of silver will make it equal in value to 25 4-5 grains of gold.

Free coinage will double the prices of all products by measuring them in the cheaper and more plentiful metal and will enable debtors to pay their debts with one-half of the goods they would have to give now.

Which is right?

Rhyme of the Ancient Populist.

It was an ancient Populist,
His beard was long and gray,
And punctuated by his fist
He had his little say:
"This is the age of gold," he said.
"'Tis gold for butter, gold for bread,
Gold for bonds and gold for fun,
Gold for all things neath the sun."
Then with a smile
He shook his head.
"Just wait awhile,"
He slyly said.
"When we get in and run the state,
We'll tackle gold, we'll legislate.
We'll pass an act
And make a fiat
By which these goldbugs will be whacked
Till they're as cold
As is their gold.
We're going to make a statute law by which
'twill be decreed
That standards are abolished, for a standard favors greed.
This is the country of the free, and free this land shall be
As soon as we, the 'people,' have our opportunity,
And he who has to pay a bill
Can pay in what'er suits his will.
The tailor? Let him take his coats
And pay his notes,
Or if perchance
He's long on pants
Let trousers be
His £. s. d.
The baker? Let his landlord take
His rent in cake
Or anything the man can bake.
And if a plumber wants a crumb
He may unto the baker come
And plumb.
A joker needing hats or cloaks
Can go and pay for them with jokes,
And so on. What a fellow's got
Shall pay for things that he has not.
If beggars' rags were cash, you'd see
No longer any beggary.
In short, there'd be no poverty."
"A splendid scheme," quoth I.
"But stay!
What of the nation's credit, pray?"
"Ha, ha! Ho, ho!" he loudly roared.
"We'll leave that problem to the Lord.
And if he fails to keep us straight
Once more we'll have to legislate
And so create,
Confounding greed,
As much of credit as we need."

MUTINY IN THE SILVERITE ARMY.

The Several Factions Are Each Pulling In Different Directions.

It is amusing to watch the struggles of the silverites with their friends and allies, the Populists and other fiat money advocates. As the men who believe in making a dollar half silver and half fiat find their principal support among believers in dollars wholly fiat, they try to avoid offending the latter by opposing unlimited greenbacks and similar cheap money schemes. But an attempt to convert the Populist party to a platform of the single plank of free coinage at 16 to 1 has split that party in two wings, which are now getting ready to fight each other. The men who want government loans on land and farm products will not be satisfied with a currency scheme which will only benefit the silver mine owners. While the silverites fear to indorse the wild money notions of the Populists lest they drive away supporters who are not ready to swallow all the third party's nostrums, the Coxeyites are poking fun at them as men who have not the courage to follow their cheap dollar arguments to their logical end—Populism.

The result will be that the silverites will have to decide between such of their followers who really believe that free silver would give us sound money and those who want unlimited issues of cheap money based on nothing. If they decide for the latter, they will lose the support of all the believers in common honesty and property rights who have been deceived into favoring free coinage. If they go against fiat paper money, they will lose the aid of the Populists. In either case the cause of sound money will gain.

The Safe Basis For Silver Coinage.

A sign that the silverites are beginning to realize that free coinage at 16 to 1 is an impossibility is found in the demand by some silver organs for the coinage at that ratio of all silver produced in the United States. But this scheme is just as absurd as the proposal to open our mints to the world's stores of silver. No tariff would be able to keep foreign silver out of this country if it was valued here at a higher rate than its commercial value. Even though the importation of bullion was prohibited, it would be easy to bring in silver tableware, etc., which would be melted down. The idea of coining all United States silver will not stand examination. The only safe basis is to coin as much as can be maintained at a parity with gold. As soon as our supply of the latter metal increases to a proper amount we may venture to coin more silver. But not till then.

Want Silver Monometallism.

Some of the silverites are profuse in their protests that they only want bimetallism and do not wish to cease using gold as a standard of values or to drive it out of circulation. But it is only necessary to read the papers and speeches in which the free coinage doctrine is preached to see that, while pretending to favor using gold, they really want silver alone. The wholesale denunciation of gold as "money of the rich," as "a standard which robs debtors for the benefit of creditors," etc., shows that it is not merely love of silver, but hatred of gold, which inspires these attacks. Why not be honest, Messrs. Silverites, and admit that in advocating a policy which, on the confession of that eminent bimetallist, President E. B. Andrews, "would drive all our gold out of the country," you are working for the silver standard?

OUT OF A JOB.

Mr. A. J. Thorne's Family Physician No Longer Derives Any Revenue From Mr. Thorne.

This is to certify that we have used the Electropoise in our family for three years, and, as I have written you before, it has done my wife more good than all the doctors in the country. She was confined to her bed thirteen years prior to my getting the Electropoise, and during that time I had had all the doctors in this part of the country to visit her, seven or eight having treated her in that time; and none of them doing her any good. All of them found her in bed and left her there. When I got the Electropoise she could not turn herself in bed, while now she does all her housework, and is still gaining. She has been using the Electropoise a little more than three years, and since that time has not taken a single dose of medicine.

Since I have had the Electropoise none of the family have taken any medicine, and the instrument is our family physician for we have had no physician in my family since I got the Electropoise. I would not be without the Electropoise, and it is worth all the doctors. Yours truly

There is no medicine so often needed in every home and so admirably adapted to the purposes for which it is intended, as Chamberlain's Pain Balm Hardly a week passes but some member of the family has need of it. A toothache or headache may be cured by it. A touch of rheumatism or neuralgia quieted. The severe pain of a burn or scald promptly relieved and the sore healed in much less time than when medicine has to be sent for. A sprain may be promptly treated before inflammation sets in, which insures a cure in about one-third of the time otherwise required. Cuts and bruises should receive immediate treatment before the parts become swollen, which can only be done when Pain Balm is kept at hand. A sore throat may be cured before it becomes serious. A troublesome corn may be removed by applying it twice a day for a week or two. A lame back may be cured and several days of valuable time saved or a pain in the side or chest relieved without paying a doctor bill. Procure a 50 cent bottle at once and you will never regret it. GREENBACK CRAZE RELIC.

Maybe a Hint or Two in This For Other Cheap Money Philosophers.

An object lesson in currency is displayed in a Beekman street restaurant window. It consists of two imitation greenbacks pasted so that both obverse and reverse sides are shown. The greenbacks are beautifully engraved and were issued in 1880 for use in the antigreenback campaign. With them in the window is this placard, devised by the proprietor of the place:

FREE SILVER VERSUS SOUND MONEY.
Why not compromise on this? It would satisfy even the worst men in all parties, might make us secretary of the treasury and incidentally make this the last known as it is the best lunchroom in the city.

The imitation greenback is of the $1,000 denomination. On the obverse side in the center is this inscription:

No. 986548720895674821098. Series 596457020562311987.

A mortgage on all property in the United States.

Swindleville avenue, Washington City, July 24, '80.

Absolute money for the sum of 1,000 dolls. Redeemable nowhere in nothing and by nobody. The law directs that this money shall circulate freely. When this note has been spent, another may be had upon application at the United States treasury.

Eternal damnation to any man who refuses to take this bill at par for all debts.

At the left is a picture of Uncle Sam turning the crank of a machine which grinds out thousand dollar bills, the devil passing on the bills with a pitchfork as fast as they are turned out. In the background is seen the capitol with the statue of America toppling from its dome. A skeleton holds up the warning but disregarded signal "Stop!" and a track on a broken trestle, on which the whole rests, points "To the devil." These mottoes decorate the illustration: "Full tender for debts, public and private," and "Death to any man who refuses to give us more credit." At the right side appears Uncle Sam holding out depleted pockets, while a scrawny eagle gapes hungrily at a serpent coiling out from the fold of a fiat bill. A shattered and empty barrel represents the treasury.

The reverse of the greenback is mostly printed mottoes. In the center is a big "$1,000," hemmed in by these four sentiments: "Burn the bonds," "Shoot the bondholders," "Down with capital," "Vive la commune." Around the side are printed statements of a satirical nature. These are some of them:

The poor man's money. The more a man has the poorer he is.

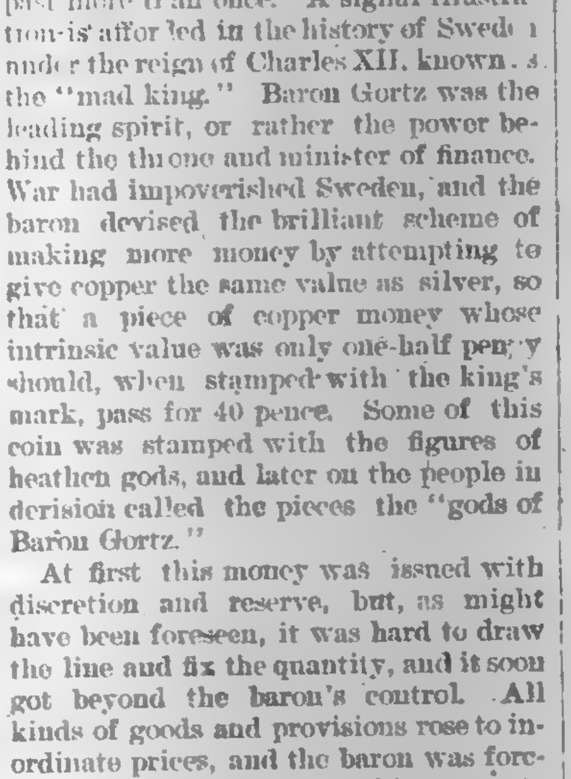
No more work. No more interest to anybody. Divide all property equally.

Gold is a coward.—H. B. Wright. This money is not afraid of anybody.

Civilization demands money representing no artificial value.—F. W. Hubbes. This is just the thing—represents no value whatever.

When the government has completed its work of issuing one of these notes to each individual in the nation, every person will be worth $1,000.

Many people crowded about the window the other day and scanned the bills. Some of them asked the proprietor for copies of them, but he had no more and said he believed them to be quite rare. In workmanship, though not in design, they are a fairly good imitation of a greenback.—New York Sun.



Uncle Sam—How can I use both?

Sweden's "More Money" Experiment.

The theory that a decree of the government can give intrinsic value to money metals has been exploded in the past more than once. A signal illustration is afforded in the history of Sweden under the reign of Charles XII, known as the "mad king." Baron Gortz was the leading spirit, or rather the power behind the throne and minister of finance. War had impoverished Sweden, and the baron devised the brilliant scheme of making more money by attempting to give copper the same value as silver, so that a piece of copper money whose intrinsic value was only one-half penny should, when stamped with the king's mark, pass for 40 pence. Some of this coin was stamped with the figures of heathen gods, and later on the people in derision called the pieces the "gods of Baron Gortz."

At first this money was issued with discretion and reserve, but, as might have been foreseen, it was hard to draw the line and fix the quantity, and it soon got beyond the baron's control. All kinds of goods and provisions rose to inordinate prices, and the baron was forced to increase the value of his money to meet the demand and volume of trade, but the more it was increased the less was its value and purchasing power, and the people finally rose in their indignation and destroyed the financial plan of this early Napoleon of finance. Charles and others lost their heads, as a good many seem to be doing now on the money question.—T. L. Mathews in Fremont (Neb.) Tribune.

Changes All One Way.

Congressman George W. Cooper of Indiana, a sound money Democrat, said in a Washington interview the other day: "In Indiana I know hundreds of men who have been free silver men, but who have declared themselves for sound money. On the other hand, I cannot recall one instance in which a man has favored sound money and has then gone over to the free coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1 without any restrictions as to an international agreement."

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

ORDERS FROM RUSSIA.

Baldwin Works Making Locomotives for Russian Railroads.

The increasing ability of American manufacturers to compete successfully in the markets of the old world has just been demonstrated by the Baldwin locomotive works of Philadelphia, whose managers are rejoicing in a large contract for engines for Russian railroads. For many years the Baldwin people have been able to sell their engines in Central and South America, in Australia and Japan and other distant countries, but they have never been able to secure a sure foothold in European countries where the English type of locomotive has always been preferred to the American.

This prejudice has at last apparently been broken down. Contracts just received by the Baldwin works call for forty locomotives, twenty each for passenger and freight service. They will be delivered with the least possible delay and with the orders already on hand will keep the big Baldwin establishment busy for the rest of the year.

The names of the Russian railways for which the engines are to be built have been withheld by the firm, but as the government controls practically all the railways of that country the contract may be said to have come from the government. This order, taken in connection with that given to the Bethlehem Iron company for large quantities of armor plate for Russian warships, shows the friendly feeling of the czar for American manufacturers. The Baldwin locomotive works recently built several engines for the Trans-Caucasian railroad, which is also controlled by the Russian government. The forty more engines to be constructed will be of the heaviest type, and will be Vanclain's compounds. As petroleum is used principally for fuel in southern Russia, the locomotives will be adapted for the burning of oil instead of coal.

A MOB'S FURY.

Convict Assaults a Young Lady and is Lynched.

Miss Maggie Henderson, aged 16 years, the pretty daughter of W. A. Henderson, was outraged by a negro convict, near Cole City, Ga., and was found unconscious and bleeding by a searching party by the side of the road. The convict confessed and a lynching could not be averted.

Two hundred and fifty armed undisguised men went to the stockade and demanded him. The guards refused, and the mob covered them with Winchesters. Resistance was useless, so the guards gave him up. The mob took him to the place of the crime and shot him to death with fifty-two bullets. The crowd quickly dispersed.

An eye-witness of the lynching of the convict, Smith, says that when Smith was first taken to the scene of his crime W. A. Henderson, father of the outraged girl, who headed the mob, cut off Smith's ears for souvenirs and mutilated him otherwise in a horrible manner, and then, while the negro's hands were held on a piece of railroad iron, his fingers were smashed, joint by joint, with a blacksmith's hammer until the hands were a shapeless mass of flesh and bone.

The screams of the negro and the sight of so much blood frenzied the mob, and they emptied their pistols and Winchester's into Smith's body. They then threw the remains on a brush heap, fired it and piled on fuel until all were consumed, even to the larger bones.

Miss Henderson, when assaulted, fought desperately, and had the left index finger bitten off at the second joint, the pelvic bone cut horribly, her skull fractured and one eye gouged out. She is still alive, but there is no hope of recovery. A strong feeling against negroes generally prevails.

Will be Investigated.

A rigid investigation is to be made into the lynching by Principal Keeper Turner of the Georgia penitentiary department, who has wired his assistant, Mr. Jake Moore, to go at once to the mines, make the investigation and report to his office. Mr. Moore is now engaged on this work. As soon as he makes a report Judge Turner will make his report to Governor Atkinson and some action will be taken. The burden of the investigation will be to show why such a man as Neal Smith was made a trusty. The convict was known to be one of the most unreliable men in the mines, and has spent nearly all of his life for ten years working in the garb of a convict.

GENERAL MAHONE DEAD.

The Noted Virginian Succumbs to a Stroke of Paralysis.

General William Mahone, of Virginia, died at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at Chamberlain's hotel, Washington city. He was stricken with paralysis October 1st, and has been gradually growing weaker. He lost consciousness last Sunday and never rallied. The end came peacefully and almost imperceptibly.

All members of the family were about the bedside when the end came, including Mrs. Mahone, the two sons, Butler and William Mahone, Jr., Mrs. McGilt, a daughter, Mr. L. L. Maury, of Virginia, a nephew, and Captain Rogers, an old friend of the general and present chairman of the Virginia republican committee. The watchers had been at the bedside continually for many hours, and were prepared.

There will be no public funeral at Washington, as, in accordance with the wishes of the widow, the remains will be borne quietly to the general's home at Petersburg, Va.; where the service and interment will occur.

HINSHAW STARVING HIMSELF.

The Indiana Preacher Convicted of Wife Murder Will Not Eat.

Since his conviction and sentence to life imprisonment at Danville, Ind., for the murder of his wife, Rev. William Hinshaw has eaten nothing, and it is believed he is deliberately starving himself to death. A sensational feature of the case has come to the surface by the attorneys for Hinshaw announcing that they are in possession of three notes passed to the jury during the trial. While the contents of the notes are yet a secret, it is believed that they will aid Hinshaw is getting a new trial. During the absence of juror Hunt, who was ill, a man representing that he came from Judge Hadley, called at the house and had a long talk with Hunt about his duty in the case. Judge Hadley knew nothing of this event and was much disturbed when he learned of it. The defense has been given until October 12 to file exceptions.

BOONE IS BROKE

And the Macon Races are Declared Off.

Ninety days racing meet of new Southern Racing Association at Macon, Ga., has come to entirely an abrupt end. There will be no more races at the park and purses for Monday and Tuesday's races, amounting to over $2,000, will remain unpaid. Manager Boone, sole projector, proprietor and survivor of the New Southern Racing Association, has flunked.

It has transpired, as many thought it would, that Manager Boone hasn't the money, has never had, and not likely to have. Consequently Manager Boone is unable to continue the 90 days' race meet which was to do such wonders for Macon and depopulate northern tracks instanter.

Demand Higher Wages.

The employes of the Belfast shipbuilding yards have given notice to their employers that they will strike on Thursday next if their demands for higher wages are not conceded. The Clyde shipbuilding unions will co-operate with the Belfast hands. It is the intention of the Clyde unions to bring out 25 per cent of their men. This will throw 50,000 men into idleness.

Missouri Bank Fails.

The Greene county, Mo., bank at Springfield, failed to open its doors Thursday morning, having been ordered into the hands of a receiver by State Bank Examiner Jones. The bank is closed to protect the stockholders. The deposits in the bank are small, something over $50,000, and the cash on hand exceeds $20,000.

STRIKE ON THE WORLD.

All Employes in the Mechanical Department Go Out.

Promptly at 12 o'clock Tuesday night the entire force of compositors, pressmen, stereotypers and other attaches of the mechanical departments of the New York World went on a strike, causing consternation to the management.

The strike appears to be sympathetic with the employes of George R. Read, who has charge of the Pulitzer building and hires the elevator men, engineers and electricians. The trouble started several weeks ago, when several elevator conductors struck on account of a reduction in their salaries from $12 to $10 a week. The trouble was apparently settled at the time, but since then there has been growling among the other employes of Read, and they succeeded in enlisting the sympathy of the members of Bix Six and other labor organizations represented in the building.

The engineers and electricians in the World building who belong to labor unions assert that non union men have been placed at work with a view of taking their places. The strike was started shortly after 12 o'clock, when the engineers and electricians, about fifteen in number, left the building. It was stated that non-union men were secured and hurriedly put in their places. When this fact became known it is said the compositors refused to work until they were removed and they were followed shortly afterward by the others.

The management at once made endeavors to settle the trouble and about 1 o'clock the men returned to temporarily in order to enable The World to get out its morning edition.

It was stated that the compositors and other employes of The World did not strike but were forced to quit work on account of the firemen and engineers stopping, which shut off the light and the power operating the typesetting machines.

DID NOT INDICT BUTLER,

And the Grand Jury Feels Called Upon to Explain Its Action.

A New Orleans special says: The extraordinary special report of the grand jury in the case of the district attorney is the subject of much comment, mostly unfavorable to the grand jury.

It will be remembered that Judge Ferguson, at the request of the grand jury, prepared a clear and able special charge, which practically, with the facts before them, ordered an indictment against District Attorney Butler.

Its failure to find the indictment is, therefore regarded as an insult to Judge Ferguson. The grand jury brought into court the following communication addressed to the judge:

"The grand jury, fearing that you may be under the impression that insufficient weight and consideration were given to your very clear, able and comprehensive charge as to the law in regard to the nolle prosse fees, beg to state that they were fully convinced of the correctness of and guided by your charge, but that the law governing other points on which you were not requested to charge influenced their action.

REUBEN G. BUSH, Foreman."

District attorney Butler has resumed control of his office. It is said articles of impeachment against him are now being prepared.

AN ELEVATOR FALLS.

Four Persons Injured, Two of Them Fatally Hurt.

An elevator in the building of the National Tailoring company, in Franklin street, Chicago, fell 100 feet Tuesday, fatally injuring a man and a boy and seriously injuring two other passengers.

The victims were all tailorshop employes. The car had reached the fourth floor when the cable snapped. The elevator was an old and rickety freight lift.

LADIES IN AN OPIUM DEN.

A Sensation in Toledo When the Discovery Was Made by Police.

The police of Toledo, O., have discovered an opium joint in the heart of the city. It was conducted by a Chinaman and seven American inmates were found in the den. Among them were two young girls, said to be the daughters of prominent citizens. Their names were suppressed, but it is learned that one is the daughter of a leading capitalist and the other a well known railroad man. Considerable of a sensation is the result.

DURANT ON THE STAND.

The Accused Tells the Story as Outlined By His Counsel.

Theodore Durant took the stand in his own behalf at San Francisco Wednesday. He told a story precisely as outlined by his counsel of accompanying Blanche Lamont to the school on the morning she disappeared. In the afternoon, Durant described his movements, detailing his route and arrival at the church at 5 o'clock, where he says he set about repairing the electric light fixtures and was overcome by gas that had escaped.

INDIANAPOLIS DEMOCRATIC.

The Entire Ticket Elected by 3,200 to 4,000 Plurality.

In the municipal election at Indianapolis the democratic ticket was chosen by a plurality of from 3,200 to 4,000. Two years ago the republicans carried the city by 3,100 and last year the city went republican by 2,479 on the state ticket. The republicans attribute their defeat to the enmity that the late administration has aroused by the rigid enforcement of the liquor laws.

Colonel Coit on Trial.

The case of the state of Ohio against Colonel A. B. Coit, charged with manslaughter, was called by Judge Walters in common pleas court at Circleville Monday morning. There are 139 witnesses subpœnaed. Colonel Coit, while defending a prisoner who was in the courthouse, which was being attacked by a mob, fired into the crowd. Several were killed.

The longest, largest and most expensive railway bridge in Continental Europe, which, of course, excludes those of Great Britain, is that across the River Vistula, between Forden, in Prussian Poland, and Culmsee, in Germany. It was opened for traffic in December, 1893, and is 1450 yards in length. It was begun in 1889, and cost 8,000,000 marks, exclusive of the piers.

Gigantic remains of elephants have been found in a new railroad cutting in the department of the Charente, France. Besides two tusks, one of the extraordinary length of 9½ feet, there are elephants' molars and bones, remains of mammoths, teeth of rhinoceros, bison, and hippopotamus, and a large number of flint implements. The discovery of human relics with remains of such antiquity is very unusual.

Cooking in Electric Ovens.

English electricians deserve much credit for the practical way in which they have solved many of the problems arising out of developments in electrical cookery. A well known writer on the chemistry of cookery has given it as his opinion that the perfect arrangement of an oven would be the radiation of its heat from all sides. This is now done in an electric oven which is having a large sale in London. The process is said to produce a cooked meat, absolutely wholesome and extremely appetizing. There is no combustion whatever in the oven, and the food, being cooked in a pure atmosphere, cannot possibly be tainted. The heat is turned on at any part merely by the movement of a switch. It is produced inside the oven, and it is so conserve that after the oven is once made hot what is required to carry on the process is little more than sufficient to make up for slight leakages. The electric oven can be put on the kitchen dresser when needed, and it throws practically neither heat nor smell. Tabulated lists are provided from which, the weight and description of the joint being given, full instructions are derived as to the time and temperature of the required cooking. Roast mutton takes a temperature of 330 degrees Fahrenheit, beef 340 degrees and veal 350 degrees; and a heat of 370 degrees is needed to give puff pastry its desirable tint and consistency. The comparative coolness of the outside of the oven is a singular feature, as the chef remarked at a recent dinner: "You could sit down on the oven while you roast inside."—Picayune.

An Odd Nesting Place.

If you walk along the road in Loch Sheldrake you will observe in the garden of one of the residences a pair of boys' weatherbeaten trousers hanging on the clothesline. This, in itself, is no curiosity, but if you knew that in one of its legs a bird had built its tiny nest and reared six little ones, you might open your eyes.

This is the case, and as the owner of the trousers is too humane to disturb the ingenious little builder, the trousers remain there in all sorts of weather. In showing them to visitors the owner tells how the bird, while they were still damp, carried in its little sticks and threads and arranged them inside, and, when not disturbed, brought its mate and reared their little brood.

The trousers will probably adorn the garden until the snows fall. Perhaps some belated sparrow may then find a cozy home in the forsaken nest and bring its family to occupy it for the winter.

Hereditary Tuberculosis.

Mr. Stalker, State Veterinary Surgeon of Iowa, has been experimenting to determine the relative transmissibility of tuberculosis in cattle by heredity and by the use of milk from tuberculosis cows. So far as the examinations have been conducted, it is found that the milk had all to do with it. Healthy calves were taken from tuberculosis cows and fed on milk of healthy cows for three months. When killed there was no evidence of disease. The reverse was the case when healthy calves from healthy cows are fed on the milk from infected animals. —New Orleans Picayune.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

FOR SUPERSTITIOUS WOMEN.

These may be interesting to superstitious women:

Monday's child is fair of face.
Tuesday's child is full of grace.
Wednesday's child is born for woe.
Thursday's child has far to go.
Friday's child is loving and giving.
Saturday's child must work for a living.
But the child that is born on the Sabbath day,
Is bonny and happy and wealthy and gay.

Of the month in which one is born it is said:

If a girl is born in January, she will be a prudent housewife, given to melancholy, but of good temper.

If in February, a humane and affectionate wife and a tender mother.

If in March, generous and impulsive, but apt to be headstrong.

If in April, inconsistent, not very intelligent, but likely to be good-looking.

If in May, handsome, amiable and likely to be happy.

If in June, impetuous, will marry early and be frivolous.

If in July, passably handsome, but with a sulky temper.

If in August, amiable and practical, and likely to marry rich.

If in September, discreet, affable and much liked.

If in November, liberal, kind and of a mild disposition.

If in December, well-proportioned, fond of novelty and extravagant.

The Carnegie Steel Plant.

The great Carnegie steel works at Homestead, Pa., cover 300 acres of ground, represent a developed machinery force of 80,000 horse power, pay men five times the wages paid in Germany, turn out in a day more freight than is carried on the entire Boston and Albany system, and produce, with 4,000 men, six times the output of the Krupp works in Germany, which employ 12,000 men. All the fuel used is natural gas, but for minor operations a central station operates in various departments 390 electric motors.

Money In the West.

Returned Wanderer (gloomily): "All this talk about money in the west is nonsense. I lost every cent I had."

Stranger: "That's because you didn't manage right. I went west with only a few hundred in my pocket, and made a fortune in three months."

Returned Wanderer: "My stars! How did you do it?"

Stranger: "I bought a drug store for $500. Three months after that the state went prohibition, and I sold out for $100,000.—New York Weekly.

A Happy Woman.

At last I am a well and happy woman again; thanks to McElree's Wine of Cardui. I have suffered for four years from womb trouble of the most horrible kind. Twelve years ago I went to the San Antonio Hospital, where they performed an operation, but it left me in a worse state than ever. I went to Dr. Kingsley and Dr. D. Y. Young, but they gave me little relief. After spending $125.00 I was not able to leave my bed, and most of the time suffered pains to equal a thousand deaths. On the tenth of last October my friend Mrs. Stevens, advised me to try McElree's Wine of Cardui. The first bottle did me good, and I got more, and to-day I am a new woman; am able to do all my cooking and house-work. I am running a boarding-house and doing all the work myself. I still use the Wine, and always keep it in the house—it saved my life.

The Last Cuban Rebellion.

In 1868 the Cubans made an effort to secure their independence, and their struggle lasted about ten years. They were not defeated, but were induced to yield by promises of reform, which the Spanish government has never carried out, and this fact is the leading cause of the present formidable revolution.

In the last rebellion Cespedes started with a force of 147 men, and in two days he was at the head of an army of 4,000. In a month he had 12,000 men and had captured several important towns.

In the first three years Spain sent 100,000 soldiers to the island and eighty-two armed vessels, and yet the insurgents were able to hold their own. At the end of three years the Spaniards had lost 68,000 men against 13,000 on the Cuban side in battle, but it should be stated that 43,000 Cubans were arrested, many of whom died in prison. The Spaniards murdered thousands without regard to age or sex.

Mexico and the South American republics recognized the Cubans as belligerents, and in this country a Cuban league was organized with the governors of all the states except one as vice presidents. Among the atrocities committed by the Spaniards was the murder of twelve students who were charged with desecrating the grave of a Spanish writer. The Spaniards also captured the Virginius, which sailed under United States colors to aid the insurgents, and fifty-three of the crew and passengers were shot at Santiago, including the commander, Captain Fry. Others would have been shot but for the threat of the captain of a British gunboat to bombard the city.

The present rebellion appears to be even more promising than the one in 1868, and it is doubtful whether Spain can send a force strong enough to suppress it.

Coffee.

An expert tester gives the following directions for detecting adulterated coffee. Rub a handful of coffee between the fingers. If it hardens or cakes, it is adulterated, probably with chicory. Another test is to place a sample of the coffee on the top of a wineglassful of water. If part of it floats and part of it sinks, it is undoubtedly adulterated. Pure coffee contains an oily enveloping substance that keeps out the water, or at least does not quickly absorb it.

CAPITAL NOTES.

GOSSIP OF WASHINGTON IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS.

Doings of the Chiefs and Heads of the Various Departments.

Mrs. Cleveland and party arrived in Washington Wednesday night at 11:30 [illegible] a private car attached to the [illegible] express, from Boston, Mass., over the Pennsylvania railroad. Mrs. Cleveland looked well as the result of her vacation.

There are at present indications that [illegible] adjustment of the strained relations between Great Britain and Venezuela may yet be effected and that at no distant date. If this result be reached it will be due wholly to the [illegible] of the United States and to [illegible] persistent tender of its good offices [illegible] states.

For the half month of October the receipts of the treasury have been [illegible] and the expenditures [illegible], making the net deficit for the half month $9,481,667. The deficit for the fiscal year to date is $19,[illegible]. The deficit for the month will probably be reduced at its close to [illegible],000 and for the fiscal year at the close of October to $16,000,000. For the fifteen days of October the treasury paid out $752,579 in gold in redeeming United States notes and treasury notes and for the fiscal year to date, $[illegible]4,355,997 in gold.

The solicitor of the state department has concluded his examination of the accounts against the Mora claim and finds that after all of these are paid there will be due Mr. Mora about [illegible],000, for which amount, less $11[illegible], Secretary Olney will give his check on the assistant treasurer of the United States. The $118,000 will be reserved for the liquidation of the claims of certain attorneys, the payment of which Mr. Mora wishes to [illegible] will be returned to him [illegible] department settles with the [illegible] attorneys under the original [illegible] made by them with Mr. Mora.

Attorney General Harmon has telegraphed H. E. Latham, United States [illegible] Delaware, to return to the [illegible] arms and ammunition [illegible] the tug Taurus, which was [illegible] about September 1st near [illegible], Del., for intended violation of the neutrality laws of the United States. Some thirty men were on board, and the men and the [illegible] the subject of a trial at Wilmington, and the men were acquitted [illegible] tug released. The arms and [illegible] on board have since been in custody of the United States marshal. The action of the attorney general closes the incident.

Rioters to be Executed.

Minister Denby and the British minister to China, have succeeded in overcoming the obstacles which rendered the Ku Cheng mission a partial [illegible]. At one stage the commission [illegible] hindered in prosecuting its [illegible] the local Chinese officials, [illegible] viceroy of the province of [illegible] Chuen himself has stood in the [illegible] punishment of the guilty. Finally appeal was made to [illegible]-li-Yamen, directly, and that [illegible] acceded to the demands of [illegible], as is evidenced by a cablegram which says:

"[illegible]venteen criminals will be executed [illegible] Ku Cheng [illegible] all leaders shall be executed [illegible] no participants sentenced [illegible] implicated shall be tried."

Carlisle to Speak.

[illegible] Carlisle has accepted an [illegible] to attend the annual dinner [illegible] New York chamber of commerce [illegible] 18th next. Mr. Carlisle [illegible] the principal address. It [illegible] the administration's financial [illegible]. He declined to accept an invitation [illegible] deliver an address at the [illegible] hall ratification meeting in [illegible], October 22d, as on that day [illegible] be en route with the president [illegible] Atlanta exposition. He [illegible] an invitation to address [illegible] organizations at [illegible] December 10th, on [illegible] sound money. Mr. [illegible] about that time come [illegible] and his presence in [illegible] will be necessary. He [illegible] he may find an opportunity [illegible] an address before the [illegible] of Chicago on the [illegible].

[illegible] to Hear Sugar Men.

[illegible] Manderson, of Nebraska, [illegible] a hearing by Secretary [illegible] the question raised by him [illegible] bounty case as to the [illegible] the control of the treasury [illegible] Comptroller Bowler's de[illegible] the case to the courts of [illegible] that he would hear them [illegible] the question [illegible] the ex[illegible] that the court [illegible] would send the [illegible] court. The Secretary [illegible] Mr. Manderson [illegible] request for a hearing and [illegible] that the time be fixed for some [illegible] November 10. In his telegram Mr. Manderson declares that the [illegible] neither had jurisdiction [illegible] right to send the cases to the [illegible] claims without the consent of [illegible].

To Be Investigated.

[illegible] F. Parkhurst, counsel for Morris [illegible], of Bath, N. Y., has received word from Secretary Olney that instructions had been given to the United States ambassador to Germany [illegible] the Rothschild case before the imperial government at Berlin. Mr. Rothschild left the United States in May for Germany to visit his father, taking with him his naturalization papers and the regular United States passport, signed by Secretary Gresham. Shortly after his arrival he was arrested and imprisoned as a deserter from the German army. After two days in jail he was brought before the military court and allowed to pay a fine of $75 and give bail pending a decision of the matter by the military officials at Berlin. He did not wait for a decision, but left Germany. Later the German authorities remitted his proposed imprisonment of six weeks, but retained the fine, thus asserting their claim upon a United States citizen to serve in the German army.

Morgan Line Steamships Withdrawn.

The state department has received from B. B. Seal, United States consular agent at Bluefields, Nicaragua, a report relative to the withdrawal of the Morgan Line steamships from that port which shows that the Morgan company was not satisfied with its treatment by the Nicaraguan government. Mr. Seal learned from the agent of the company at Bluefields that after the company had rendered a prompt steam service between Bluefields and New Orleans for eight years, and after having contributed so liberally to the development of trade and improvement of the country, the government of Nicaragua had manifested a want of appreciation of its efforts, and that in view of the company's losses on fruit during the past year, the company thought it best to withdraw its ships and seek service where it can secure greater encouragement and have the prospect of adequate remuneration for service rendered.

TILLMAN BALKED.

Convention Delegates Refuse to Do His Bidding.

In the South Carolina constitutional convention, Wednesday, Senator Tillman introduced, as an amendment to the legislative article, a section providing that the general assembly in the year 1916 and every 20th year thereafter should refer to the people the question of holding a constitutional convention and permitting such convention to be held upon a majority vote.

The convention once again sat upon the senator, killing the amendment by a vote of 65 to 47. The legislative article after much talk has been completed, save two sections, that relating to homesteads and that relating to intermarriages. Before the recess the convention passed an amendment providing that no marriage should be allowed between a white person and a person possessing any negro blood.

Judge Frazer offered a further amendment to preserve the status of all such marriages, now existing as to property, etc. "Uncle George Tillman" made a powerful speech on the subject, advocating and showing the necessity of saying "one-eighth" of negro blood, instead of negro blood.

The whole matter was recommitted to the committee.

The sections providing for the adoption of general laws for the chartering of cities, towns, villages, manufacturing enterprises, etc., and prohibiting special legislation thereon were adopted.

THE CHALLENGE ACCEPTED.

Race for America's Cup for Next Year Formally Arranged.

The special meeting of the New York Yacht Club, called to take action on the challenge of Charles Day Rose for the America's cup, was held at the Madison avenue clubhouse in New York city Monday evening. The challenge was accepted and the cup committee of 1895 reappointed to take charge of the arrangements. The formal reply to Percy Thellusen, secretary of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, was cabled and the races are assured for 1896.

TRAIN HELD UP,

But the Robbers Failed to Open the Safe With Dynamite.

Northbound passenger train No. 1 on the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad was held up by two masked men near Temple, Texas., Wednesday night. The robbers uncoupled the express car from the train and compelled the engineer to draw the car to a point nearly a mile away. They forced open the door of the express car and used dynamite in an attempt to open the safe. Their efforts were ineffectual.

LADIES IN AN OPIUM DEN.

A Sensation in Toledo When the Discovery Was Made by Police.

The police of Toledo, O., have discovered an opium joint in the heart of the city. It was conducted by a Chinaman and seven American inmates were found in the den. Among them were two young girls, said to be the daughters of prominent citizens. Their names were suppressed, but it is learned that one is the daughter of a leading capitalist and the other a well-known railroad man. Considerable of a sensation is the result.

Sale of the Model Battleship.

The model battleship Illinois, built of brick and piles, which was one of the objects of interest at the world's fair, has been sold to junk dealers. It was constructed as part of the government exhibit at a cost of $115,000, and after the fair it was turned over to the state. It was sold for a few hundred dollars, in order to get it out of the way, and it will be removed at once.

THE SULTAN YIELDS

WILL SIGN THE PLAN OF REFORM IN ARMENIA

As Demanded by England, France and Russia.

A special cable dispatch from Constantinople is to the effect that Said Pasha has accepted the scheme for reform in Armenia drawn up by Great Britain, France and Russia, and it now awaits the signature of the sultan. The scheme is almost identical with the proposals of last May, in substance, that the governors and vice governors of Van Erzeroum, Sivan, Kharut and Trebisond, be Christians or Mussulmans, according to the inclination of the population; but either the governor or vice governor is to be a Christian, and the appointments are to be confirmed by the powers. Local and state officials are to collect the taxes and enough money is to be retained before it is forwarded to Constantinople to pay the expenses of the local administration. Complete changes will be made in the judicial system. Torture will be abolished.

The police will be composed of Christians and Turks equally, and the laws against compulsory conversions to Islamism will be strictly enforced.

The ambassadors of the powers expect that the whole question will be finally settled during the course of the week by the promulgation of an imperial decree. Contrary to general expectation the high commissioner who will be charged with the execution of this scheme of reform will be a Christian. This was the hardest pill for the Porte to swallow and for a long time it threatened to bring about the most serious complications.

BANKERS IN SESSION.

Their Twenty-First Annual Convention in Atlanta.

The twenty-first annual convention of the American Bankers' Association was called to order at Atlanta Tuesday morning. The bankers carried through the published program as quickly and as thoroughly as they calculate the interest on a short time note. They are business men and they conduct their proceedings in a manner befitting them.

An address of welcome on behalf of the city by Mayor King; another one on behalf of the Georgia State Bankers' Association; the response and annual address of President Odell, of the National Association; and two addresses on financial themes by ex-Governor W. R. Merriam, of Minnesota, and Mr. William H. Rhawn, of Philadelphia, completed the salient features of the first day's session. Governor Atkinson was ill and could not be present. Mayor King included the state in his speech.

USED A COWHIDE.

Lawyer Brown, of Atlanta, Whips Two Newsboys.

The publication in last week's issue of the Kansas City Sun, a paper devoted to scandals, of an alleged libellous article reflecting upon Mr. Julius L. Brown, of Atlanta, caused that gentleman to administer a cowhiding to two news venders who, it is said, had sold the papers in question on the streets.

"Roxie" Callaway and Joe Bowers were the victims of Mr. Brown's wrath and indignation. Both were thoroughly chastised and show marks of the whip. Roxie Callaway has employed the firm of Glenn & Rountree to represent him, and that firm will institute a suit for $10,000 damages in his behalf against Mr. Brown. Roxie also declares his intention of prosecuting Mr. Brown for assault with intent to murder.

GLOOM and sadness are poison to us, and the origin of hysterics. It is right to think that this disease is in the imagination.

THE PULITZER-JONES MUDDLE.

Some Interesting Developments in the Newspaper War.

As a result of the legal differences between Mr. Joseph Pulitzer and Colonel Charles H. Jones, in the control of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, the special service which existed between The New York World and The Post-Dispatch was suspended last week. This service consisted of news proofs, illustrations, correspondence, etc., together with a special wire from New York to St. Louis. This action, it was stated, was taken by Mr. Pulitzer in order to get even for a temporary restraining order which Colonel Jones had secured to prevent the former from interfering with the latter's editorial policy and management.

In retaliation Colonel Jones has set the official guillotine in operation and the figurative heads of Managing Editor Florence D. White, Advertising Manager C. Steighers and Cashier Edward Buttell dropped in the basket. As Mr. White is treasurer of the company, and his signature is necessary on a check to negotiate its payment at the bank, some interesting complications are looked for.

BACK AT WASHINGTON.

The President and His Party Reach the Capital Safely.

The president arrived in Washington at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. He was accompanied by private secretary Thurber and E. C. Benedict, who has been for the past four days his host on board the steam yacht Oneida.

The president was met at the wharf by his carriage, which drove him rapidly through the city to the white house. The president has improved notably in appearance during the summer and is evidently in excellent health. In addition to the recreation he secured at his seaside home, he managed to keep up with all current business which demanded his attention, and in consequence he returns to find no accumulation of work on his desk, except a great number of vacancies created during his absence, and for which, in most instances, he has practically determined on the appointments he will make.

CLEVELAND COMING SOUTH,

Together With all the Cabinet Members and Their Wives, Except Olney.

Definite arrangements have now been concluded at Washington for the president's trip to Atlanta. It has been decided that the president will leave Washington at 11 o'clock next Monday night on a special train over the Southern railway. He will reach Atlanta at a little after 4 Tuesday afternoon. He has accepted the invitation to dine with Mayor Porter King at Atlanta Tuesday night, and the entire program suggested by the exposition committee will be carried out up to 12 o'clock Wednesday night.

The president will be compelled to return to Washington after the reception Wednesday night at the Capital City Club. All the members of the cabinet with their wives, except the secretary of state, Mr. Olney, will be in the party.

FORAKER CHALENGES BRICE.

Is Ready to Open Debate at Any Time or Place.

A dispatch from Eaton, O., says: Ex-Governor Foraker has openly challenged Senator Brice or any of his followers to a joint debate to be held at any place and at any time. The reason for this is on account of an editorial in a morning paper entitled "Where Is Brice?"

Foreaker answered that he knew he did not have a head of hair like Brice, but he did have his "political convictions," and that if there was a representative of the paper in the audience he wanted him to state to that paper that he was ready at any time for a joint debate, where he would answer all of Brice's questions, and then he would have some to ask Brice.

OHIO FIREMEN WIN

The Handsome Diamond-Studded Belt in the National Tournament.

Ohio, the Buckeye state, captured the gold diamond-studded belt offered, with the $250 in gold, as the first prize in the firemen's tournament which took place at the exposition grounds at Atlanta. The Independent Hose Company, of Martin's Ferry, Ohio, which was considered not in it by several crack teams before the contest, made the quickest time in the race and walked off with the belt and the large purse in a canter.

Ordered to Their Own Schools.

At Perry, Okla., Wednesday, all of the colored children, accompanied by their parents, went to the white school and demanded admittance, but Superintendent J. A. Augustine ordered them to their own school rooms. The president of the school board has been served with a mandamus petition and the case set for a hearing on November 11th.

Navigation Suspended.

A Wheeling, W. Va., dispatch says: The Ohio river reached the lowest point Wednesday it was ever known to be at this time of the year. The marks showed eleven inches, within two inches of the lowest stage on record. Navigation is completely suspended, an unparalleled condition for October.

Increased Wages for Iron Workers.

The Thomas Iron Company at Allentown, Pa., has gladdened the hearts of their 250 employes by voluntarily increasing wages 10 per cent. This is the second advance within a few months.

CLARKE IS FIRM.

DETERMINED THAT THERE WILL BE NO FIGHT IN ARKANSAS.

Hot Springs Sports Misrepresent His Position in the Matter.

Governor Clarke took his departure from Hot Springs for Little Rock Thursday morning. The governor talked freely to a correspondent relative to the present aspect of affairs regarding the Corbett-Fitzsimmons contest. He was asked whether or not the press dispatches correctly reported his position. He replied that he was not responsible for the reports, and that he had found nothing during his visit to the Springs to cause him to change his mind about the contemplated prize fight.

"Is it a fact, governor, that you have promised the citizens' committee that you would let the local authorities cope with the matter and under no circumstances would you call out the militia of the state to suppress the fight if the Florida Athletic Club insisted on going on with it?"

"There is no foundation for such rumors," replied the governor. "The dispatches that have appeared in the press of this morning attributing these promises to me are incorrect. I made no such assertions, either privately or publicly, and I regret very much that they have been allowed to appear in print."

"Have your views in regard to the contest been modified in any way?"

"They have not. I came over to Hot Springs to see if there was not some common ground that we could find to stand upon, but after thoroughly investigating the matter I could find none whatever. I entertain the same views that I did prior to my visit and cannot see how I can permit anything savoring of a prize fight to be pulled off in Arkansas's territory.

The governor talked pleasantly but firmly and the impression he left was that he meant every word he said and that unless something intervenes to prevent him from so doing he will declare martial law. He paid Judge Duffie a high compliment, saying: "He stood like an old Roman in the committee room and would not consent that the proposed contest should go on, refusing to yield or to withdraw a word or a syllable."

Corbett to be Jailed.

A line of action seems to have been agreed upon in the Corbett-Fitzsimmons matter. Thursday afternoon Prosecuting Attorney Teague had a warrant issued for the arrest of James J. Corbett on a charge of conspiring to commit a breach of the peace by entering into an agreement to do bodily harm to one Robert Fitzsimmons.

A SHAM FIGHT

Arranged to Test the Arkansas Law Against Pugilism.

According to the opinion of the best legal talent in Arkansas, there is nothing in the laws of the state by which the contest between Corbett and Fitzsimmons can be prevented. The matter was submitted to two of the best lawyers in the state and they have given their opinions.

In order to clinch the matter and prevent any interference on the part of the legal authorities, the officials of the Florida Athletic Club arranged for a glove contest to take place at once. It is their purpose to have the contestants arrested and taken before Judge Duffie to determine the matter in the courts.

The decision of Judge Duffie will probably be given out immediately. If he agrees with the opinions given by the lawyers, the fight cannot be stopped. If he decides against the Athletic club an appeal will be taken to the supreme court. It is believed by those interested, however, that Judge Duffie will render a favorable decision.

Will Call Out Troops.

Brigadier General George P. Taylor, of the Arkansas state guards of Forest City, reached little Rock Tuesday morning, being summoned by the governor for consultation. He had been closeted with the governor all the morning and it is impossible to foretell the result of their interview. The governor is planning for radical action toward the prize fighting crowd now at Hot Springs, and it is said by those who ought to know, that if Corbett comes into the state the governor will execute the power vested in him by the constitution and banish the entire mob row at Hot Springs, and warn others against coming into the state.

CUBAN REBELLION EXTENDING.

Three More Bands of Insurgents Make a Strike for Liberty.

Passengers arriving at New York by the steamer Yumuri from Havana say that the rebellion is spreading westward. Three bands of insurgents have appeared in districts which have hitherto been quiet. One party of 200 men, half of whom were said to be Spaniards, rose in the vicinity of Batatino, twenty-five miles from Havana and the southern terminus of railway which runs across the island from Havana. Another party has risen in Melena Del Sur. It has 300 men and the third party is at Ybarra, the place where the rebellion first broke out, and where quiet was restored last February. In the last party there were 150 men. The news of these risings have caused some excitement in Havana. It is also reported that Maximo Gomez has left 2,500 men in Camaguey and with 2,000 is marching toward Las Villas.

A. P. A'S. MEET.

National Convention Held by the Order at St. Louis.

The national conference of the American Protective Association met at St. Louis, Mo., Monday morning. All of the supreme officers and most of the state presidents were in attendance and the hall was packed. The object of the meeting was to organize the national advisory board which was appointed last year at the Milwaukee meeting of the supreme council and to outline a plan of action with regard to the next national campaign.

After the conference was called to order by President W. J. H. Trayner, of Detroit, Mich., Mayor Walbridge was introduced and made a welcoming address. Other addresses followed and the conference became executive.

At the afternoon session the work of the credentials committee was ratified and a resolution passed congratulating the members in Nashville, Tenn., upon their recent victory. It is possible that Judge Stevens, of Michigan, will be chairman of the advisory board.

Speaking of the proposed national political movement President Trayner said: "It is not our intention to form a third party or independent movement. All we want is recognition from the national political parties. The party that recognizes us will get our support. The advisory board, when organized, will evidently appoint a committee to present our principles to each national party, and demand recognition. Ours is a representative body, composed of all nationalities. Nationality or creed is no bar to membership. Our organization is working more openly now than ever before and if I had my way about it all our sessions would be public. We have nothing to hide."

INSURANCE MEN ARRESTED.

A Bitter War Is On Between Them at Chattanooga, Tenn.

Eight members of the executive committee of the Knoxville, Tenn., board of underwriters who arrived at Chattanooga Tuesday afternoon to arbitrate the long standing differences between the board and the local agent, met with a very warm reception. Capiases were served on them as they walked into the corridors of the Read House, charging conspiracy against the Chattanooga public by means of a trust to control rates. They found no trouble in securing bondsmen and marched in a body from the courthouse to the appointed meeting place, where they found all the local agents except the three prosecutors awaiting them.

The arrested officials were President J. A. Thomas and Charles Matthews, of Nashville; W. H. Wheeler, J. C. Johnson, Frank Snyder and J. H. Curry, whom they propose to make manager at Chattanooga to see that the terms arrived at are observed by the agents, all of Louisville. C. B. Thompson, of Covington; W. J. Dean, of Atlanta, and C. T. Band, of Louisville, were given similar treatment on a former visit.

It seems inevitable that the obstinate agents will be frozen out and their companies forced out to other agents, though the prosecutors of the suit are among the first insurance men of the city.

SOUTHERN COTTON MEN

Invited to the Meeting of New England Cotton Men at the Exposition.

Southern cotton manufacturers have been invited to attend the sessions of the New England cotton manufacturers next week. The following letter has been addressed to them:

"Boston, Mass., Oct. 14th, 1895.—To the Southern Cotton Manufacturers. Gentlemen: The fifty-ninth meeting of this association will be held in the auditorium on the grounds of the cotton exposition, Atlanta, on Thursday and Friday, October 24th and 25th.

"You are cordially invited to attend the sessions and participate in the discussions, trusting that such an affiliation will be of mutual benefit to all interested in the cotton production and manufacture. Yours truly,

S. M. GOODALE,
C. H. J. WOODBURY, President.
Secretary.

RESPITE FOR KEENER.

The Rabun County Murderer May Get a New Trial.

The Rabun county murderer, Seymour Keener, who on the 23d of last June killed Lenoia and Arizona Moore, his cousins, because of his jealousy for Arizona, was tried, convicted and sentenced to be hanged on Friday, October 18th. But Keener will not hang yet awhile. A motion for a new trial was made and Judge Kimsey refused to grant it. An appeal was carried to the supreme court and the decision of the circuit judge reversed. The story of the crime is yet fresh in the minds of the people of Rabun county, where murder trials have not been frequent and where there was never a legal execution.

Governor Turney Commends the Judge

Governor Turney, of Tennessee, has addressed a letter to Judge L. P. Cooper and Attorney General M. R. Patterson, of Memphis, expressing his pleasure at the stand they had taken in opposition to having the Corbett-Fitzsimmons prize fight in Shelby county, and stating that he stands ready, as chief executive, to give every aid in his power to prevent the violation of law.

ONE WAS LYNCHED

ALTHOUGH RECOMMENDED TO THE MERCY OF THE COURT.

Jury's Verdict Unsatisfactory and a Mob Does the Work.

The Hampton, S. C., Guardian, in an extra edition issued at 10 o'clock Thursday night, gives the following account of the trial, conviction and lynching of one of the four negroes who so brutally murdered Mr. E. R. Mears on August 9th for the purpose of robbery:

"Court convened this morning at 2:30 o'clock. Judge Buchanan presided. The case against William Blake, Sr., Jason Blake, Prince Graves and William Frazer for the murder of Mr. Raymond Mears was taken up. About fifteen witnesses were examined and a strong case was made out against the defendants.

"The testimony of Frazer, Jason, Blake and Graves was sufficient to satisfy all who heard them that they were a cold-blooded set of murderers, and that they went to Mr. Raymond Mear's house on the night of August 9th for the purpose of murder and robbery. William Blake, Sr., denied any part in the crime, but it was very plain that he was lying. The gold watch and pocketbook of the murdered man which were found in his possession were against him.

"Mr. W. H. Townsend, the acting solicitor, was assisted by Major W. S. Tillinghast. The prisoners had no counsel and the judge appointed Messrs. Youmans and Hamilton. After argument by counsel and the charge of Judge Buchanan, the jury retired. They were in the room twenty-two minutes, and on their return Clerk Causey read the verdict of 'guilty' and recommending William Blake to the mercy of the court.

"The judge ordered Prince Graves, Jason Blake and William Frazer to stand up, and they were sentenced to be hanged within the walls of the county jail on Friday, December 6th. William Blake, Sr., was then directed to stand up, and he was sentenced to the penitentiary for the rest of his natural days. All was quiet in the courtroom, but several murmurs of disapproval were heard and it was evident that the recommendation of mercy of Wm. Blake, Sr., was not approved. The convicted murderers were then handcuffed and the sheriff and his constables proceeded to the jail. Court then adjourned, the hour being 7:30 o'clock. Judge Buchanan, the solicitor, and several of the attorneys had reached the street, when Sheriff McTeer was seen to hurriedly push through the crowd and ask for the solicitor. In a few words the sheriff said that himself and his constables had been overpowered and he, himself, had been picked up bodily by several men and carried several hundred yards. Wm. Blake, Sr.; and William Frazer, who were handcuffed together, were forced from the custody of the constables and taken off in the woods. The sheriff, after giving this information, returned to the jail, and it was then ascertained that the handcuffs had been loosened in some way and Frazer, who was linked to old man Blake, had been returned to the custody of the jailer.

"The crowd, numbering about fifty men, proceeded to a dense piece of woods about half a mile from the courthouse and swung Wm. Blake, Sr., to a pine tree.

Trial Justice Murdaugh, acting coroner, had the body cut down and brought to the courthouse square, where a jury was impaneled and an inquest held. The verdict of the jury was that Blake came to his death from the effects of a gun-shot wound, the ball passing through the heart, the party or parties being unknown to the jury.

THE SALE CONFIRMED.

Decree Rendered in the Central and the Savannah and Western Deals.

The sale of the Central Railroad and Banking Company of Georgia and the Savannah and Western railroad was confirmed by Judge Don A. Pardee in the United States circuit court in Atlanta Thursday morning. The counsel interested were all present in person or by proxy.

Judge Pardee looked into the terms of the sale and finding that it was made in accordance with the terms of the decree, confirmed the sale of both roads, and ordered that the special masters who made the sale, Messrs. E. A. Angier, of the Savannah and Western, and A. E. Buck and George W. Owens, of the Central, execute a deed conveying the property to the purchasers of the two roads. The Central was sold for $2,000,000 and the Savannah and Western for $1,500,000.

This action of Judge Pardee completes the last act in the drama that began when the Central was put into the hands of a receiver two years ago. The property has passed out of the hands of the parties who built up the old road, and it now becomes an outside corporation.

The question of attorney afees did not come up, and it is not probable that it will be decided while Judge Pardee is in Atlanta, as the counsel have not put in their applications as yet.

Bank Shuts Up.

A special from Fort Scott, Kan., says that the State bank of that city has closed its doors. The following notice posted on the front door of the bank explains the matter: "This bank has been closed to await the action of the bank commissioners; depositors will be paid in full. Defalcation of the cashier is the cause."

CHILTON VIEW

E. M. BARRETT,

Editor.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY

CLANTON, ALA., Oct. 24, 1895

SALUTATORY.

As was announced in last week's VIEW, for the future I will take charge of this paper and I respectfully solicit the patronage of the people of Chilton county. For the benefit of those who do not know me I will state that THE VIEW will be run in accordance with strict democratic principles. While I do not intend or desire to antagonize or dictate any one's politics, and have the highest regard and respect for those who differ with me honestly, I believe the principles of democracy, as are now carried on by the present administration, to be correct, and the policy of this paper will be upon that line. So, then, it will be needless for me to say that I am in favor of sound money and opposed to that fetich known as the free and unlimited coinage of silver.

I intend to run this paper not only in the interest of the democratic party, but also in the interest of the county. No county in Alabama, perhaps, possesses more advantages than this; the soil being naturally adapted to the use of fertilizers, and the water and climate of such excellence as to make it preeminently the home of the white man who wishes to follow the vocation of small farming.

A colony of Scandinavians are now settling here, and these are the forerunners of more to come. While these people may, in the beginning, find it difficult to farm in a new country, they will soon learn from our people, who, in turn, will gain new ideas from them. It shall be the policy of THE VIEW to encourage all decent immigrants to settle here, and the hills of Chilton may soon be made to blossom like a rose.

I cordially invite all people, whether or not they agree with me in politics, to visit me at THE VIEW office. People living in other parts of the county will confer a great favor by sending me the local happenings of their respective communities.

I believe this county needs a democratic newspaper and I intend to give them one.

Very respectfully,
EUGENE M. BARRETT

The world's trotting record for two year old's was recently lowered to 2 15¼, by Tommy Britton. The grand sire of this promising youngster was the famous Bell Boy.

The American Kennell Club is now considering an amendment to its bench show rules, prohibiting the cropping of dogs ears. This will be hailed with delight by every humanitarian—and especially by the dogs.

Will the calamity howlers, who insisted last year that the low price of cotton was not due to the laws of supply and demand, but especially attributable to Grover Cleveland, please give the democratic party credit for our present prosperity?

The celebrated Wiley Trott, who was convicted in Bibb county two years ago for the murder of Sheriff Jones, of Louisiana, and who subsequently escaped from the jail in Birmingham, where he had been placed for safe keeping, has been captured.

Preaching must be lucrative in New York; according to the New York World, the Rev. Dr. Jno. Hall, of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church, receives $15,000 per annum, besides an equal amount in donations from the millionaire members of his congregation.

Electricity is now being used in France to fertilise the ground. The method employed is similar to that of the lightening rods; poles are planted in the earth, which are connected by several small wires, and attached to these are longer wires which run down the poles into the ground.

The war departments is now experimenting with compressed food, and if the scheme becomes feasable, our soldiers will soon be able to carry around in their pockets all sorts of eatables, packed in capsules. We would recommend this method for taking boarding house butter.

Millionaires are becoming common, as they are springing up every day, yet a few of them are of interest on account of the enormous wealth they are said to possess. Barney Barnato is one of these. He was formerly a street fakir and circus performer, and is now said to be worth $500,000,000, the sum possessed by his Li Hung Chang, the premier of China.

The editor of the Guntersville Democrat is evidently an honest man, as is evidenced by the following:

"How many country newspapers in the state understand the financial question? We don't, and feel sure there are many others in the same category. Then why spend so much time and space discussing something of which we know so little."

As there is considerable wrangling among the state paper as to what resolution was adopted by the Farmers Congress, we insert it here for the benefit of our readers, resolved:

"That we favor the free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver at an agreed ratio, guarded by an import duty upon foreign bullion and foreign coin equal to the difference between the bullion value and the coinage value of the metal at the date of importation, whenever the bullion value of the metal is less than its coin value."

If there is any place on earth where you can be suited or fitted in a suit of clothes it is surely at ALEX RICE'S, Montgomery.

WITH OUR EXCHANGES.

There is cheer in the land yet. The farmers are smiling over their big treasury—crowded corn cribs and smokehouses—and the fair prices paid for cotton. The goose hangs high with the merchant and the editor is promised a new shirt. The preachers are getting comfort out of a new silk hat, and the lawyers and doctors are training for millionaires. The politician has been relegated like the razor-back swine, and the man who got left has gone in a hole and is enveloped in the shades of oblivian. Why should we not give thanks?—Alexander City Outlook.

NEWSPAPER ENGLISH.

To the Editor of the Register:

I note that the Register, sometimes a model of style in composition, usually correct in grammatical construction of its contents, frequently uses the form "is being done." "is being finished," "is being erected," etc. Does the use of these sentences clearly express the writer's meaning? Are they correct? Is either sentence expressed in good English? I think that grammatical analysis will indicate that they are faultily constructed, weak and wrong. Taking the last, the grammar tells me that:

"Is"—is third personal singular, present tense, indicative mood of the verb to be, or exist.

"Being"—(in the sense intended in the sentence) objective mood, active voice; perfect tense of the verb to be—existing.

"Erected"—past participle of the verb erect; to raise or build; showing that in the sentence, translated by the grammar, the writer says the structure exists existing completed, using the present, perfect and past tense to express continuing action which is not what he means. He wants to say "the pole is erecting," or "the house is building."

I do not find the form criticised used in the Bible, nor in Shakespeare, and our translations of the former, and the writings of the bard are regarded as models of forceful, vigorous English. Will the writers who use this form, or the editor who permits it, defend its use? A STUDENT.

Mobile, October 17.

So far as the Register is concerned it tries to use the best English it has in the shop. Some of our writers say the "house is building," which is correct, and some, "the house is being built" which is incorrect. We do not kill those who make this error, but simply gaze upon them reproachfully. They will cross our dead line, however, if they use an expression we find in our esteemed morning contemporary of Birmingham, namely, "Mr. Smith happened to a serious accident yesterday."—Mobile Register.

There seems to be a determination on the part of a certain populist element to do your Uncle Reuben. Bowman and Skaggs and some others have united their forces to fix the "old man" in the coming conference to be held at Birmingham. They charge him with having sold out his party or trying to sell it out to the free silver democrats. Senator Goodwyn's paper, or the paper edited by his son, is leading a terrific fight on the Genial. It charges him with getting money from improper sources with which to keep on foot and going The People's Tribune, of Birmingham. Uncle Reuben tells them that they slander him, and his son, business manager of The Tribune, politely informs the detractors of his father and the paper they lie wantonly and maliciously. This is not our fight; but if it was we would tie onto the coattails of the old man, dead sure and dead certain. He has given the party his all, his standing in the Democratic Party and his allegiance to that organization. He has fought for Populism early and late and has given to the cause much of his strength. When the votes have been counted it was Reuben's fight and not Skaggs, Bowman or Goodwin's. He was worth them all in the canvass! It it was our fight we would stand by the "old man" to the last ditch.

We shall give Goodwyn's side of it when we get his paper and continue to give the Captain's—Eufaula Times.

The Gold Indorsement Sustains Silver.

The theory that we have lately had bimetallism is as baseless as the suggestion that we had it in the early part of the century. If I offer my note when my credit is not good, no one will discount it; if I procure the indorsement of one whose credit is good, it will be discounted at once. It would be the indorsement, however, and not the note which would have passed current. For a generation our half dollars, quarter dollars, etc., have nominally passed current. Actually, however, it is the gold indorsement of the government that has been accepted. A silver dollar today consists of half a dollar's worth of silver. With the gold indorsement of a solvent government it passes for a dollar. That is, the gold indorsement passes for the remaining 50 cents that is not in the coin. To say that we have bimetallism, and that silver coins pass on a par with gold, is just as sensible, and no more so, as to state that my note for $1,000,000 is as good as Mr. Astor's simply because that when I have gotten him to indorse mine it is discounted at the same rate as is his. And just as even Mr. Astor's paper would be promptly refused were it found that he had presented me with a ream of blank checks indorsed by him, which I proposed to sign and use, so the gold indorsement of the government would be promptly discredited should it bind itself by law to give its gold indorsement to an unlimited quantity of silver. The silver dollars with the federal indorsement would then be worth the silver in them—only this and nothing more.—Hon. John De Witt Warner in Forum.

CHEAP MONEY DELUSION.

False Doctrines Spread Abroad by Demagogues In Times of Depression.

The cheap money delusion only flourishes in time of depression. These are not times of depression, nor is there that prospect ahead. In time of depression demagogues can always find a constituency for the wretched delusion that to make good times it is only necessary for the government to set a lot of printing presses at work turning out paper money or to set all the mints at work coining silver dollars. Somehow or other the idea prevails among the dupes of the demagogue that when the government has printed or coined money it is going to make a present of it to the people. Nobody gets money in that way.

Money has to circulate before it can get into people's pockets and to make it circulate there must be business, trading, commercial activity, the investment of capital, the opening of new enterprises, and before there can be such commercial and financial activity there must be confidence in the future that legislation will not destroy the value of investments made. There must be an assurance that when a dollar is let out for use it will come back whole and not clipped of half its value. In no other way can people get money in their pockets. No government has attempted such a foolish thing as to give the people money, and the mere manufacture of money at the mints would do nobody any good.—St. Joseph Herald.

Steadily Losing Ground.

The Hon. Tom L. Johnson of Ohio, who has taken the trouble to inform himself on the currency feeling in the west, recently expressed the following opinion:

"I look for a short, sharp fight between the forces of cheap money and sound money and the utter defeat of the silverites. Free silver people never had the strength they boast of. There is a good deal of noise, it is true, but when it comes to counting noses, they are generally in the minority. The fact is, each successive congress since the Fifty-first shows a great falling off of free silver followers. In the Fifty-second congress there was a tie vote in the popular house on the Bland bill, and this was the zenith of the silver craze. Its nadir is in the future. The improvement in business conditions is not calculated to support the claims of the silverites. They have based their agitation mainly on discontent springing largely from the unemployed class, and now that these are becoming fewer every day the silver followers grow beautifully less."

Silver Would Replace Gold.

Question.—Would there be more money in the country with the free coinage of silver?

Answer.—There would at first be very much less, owing to the withdrawal of gold. After values became adjusted to the silver basis silver would be coined here as it is in Mexico. There would be no demand for silver on account of its coinage, nor would it then go up in price, because silver bullion would be worth the same after coinage as before, just as gold is now. Men would sow and reap and buy and sell as they do now. Whoever got a silver dollar would have to work for it as he must now work. Our stock of money would be less efficient because we would not have the standard of the leading civilized nations, and our money would have its price in gold, fluctuating from day to day, as is now the case with the money of Mexico, Japan, China and other countries. To understand the result we have but to study the conditions found among the silver using nations.—R. Weissinger in "What Is Money?"

Mistaking Effect For Cause.

The fall in the price of silver is to be explained in the same way as the fall in the price of wheat and cotton by an enormous increase of production. While demonetization may have to some extent influenced the price of silver, yet the fall in price was the cause of demonetization, and not its result.—R. Weissinger in "What Is Money?"

WHAT THEY SAY
OF THE ELECTROPOISE

The Electropoise has relieved me of a throat affection that has baffled all treatment and has annoyed me for more than forty years. Very respectfully, T. T. Tunstall.

Mobile, Ala., Oct. 22, 1894.

I commenced the use of the Electropoise when I was in a weak nervous state, lying awake night after night until 2 o'clock. I commenced to sleep better almost immediately after beginning its use, and after three months felt that the Electropoise had paid for itself. Yours truly,

Mrs. J. C. Barry.

Memphis, Tenn., March 5, 1895.

A relative of mine who was wounded during the war, and who never recovered from the effects of the wound, has been using my Electropoise, and he is now as well as he ever was. I recommend the Electropoise to all my friends.

Yours truly, W. B. McGee,
Tehula, Miss., Dec. 5, 1894.

I cannot say too much in favor of the Electropoise. Yours truly,
T. S. Jones.

Fannin, Tex., June 25, 1895.

After returning from Hot Spring about a year ago without a cure and as the last resort, I applied the Electropoise, and receved a prompt cure of rheumatism. This same Electropoise has made many cures in other diseases, and the instrument will do all that is claimed for for it. Yours truly,

J. T. Stout.

Mobile, Ala., Sept. 22, 1894.

Rental terms, $10 cash for four months, with privilege to purchase by paying $17.50 additional at the expiration of four months.

There is no medicine so often needed in every home and so admirably adapted to the purposes for which it is intended, as Chamberlain's Pain Balm. Hardly a week passes but some member of the family has need of it. A toothache or headache may be cured by it. A touch of rheumatism or neuralgia quieted. The severe pain of a burn or scald promptly relieved and the sore healed in much less time than when medicine has to be sent for. A sprain may be promptly treated before inflammation sets in, which insures a cure in about one-third of the time otherwise required. Cuts and bruises should receive immediate treatment before the parts become swollen, which can only be done when Pain Balm is kept at hand. A sore throat may be cured before it becomes serious. A troublesome corn may be removed by applying it twice a day for a week or two. A lame back may be cured and several days of valuable time saved or a pain in the side or chest relieved without paying a doctor bill. Procure a 50 cent bottle at once and you will never regret it. For sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton and McNeill and Smith, Jemison, Ala.

LOCAL BREVITIES

Did you trade horses with the gypsies?

Dr. Stewart visited Montgomery this week.

Mr. W. J Martin visited Jemison last week.

Miss French Evans has gone to the Atlanta exposition.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Sampey visited Montgomery Tuesday.

Mr R. L. Culp, one of Chilton's successful farmers, paid us a visit Saturday.

Mrs. B. F. Rasberry and daughter, Miss Eula, of Mulberry, visited Clanton last Friday.

A number of prominent Clantonians went down to see the Buffalo Bill show at Montgomery.

Mr. Leonard Gullahorn, formerly of Clanton, but who is now living in Birmingham, paid us a visit.

Little Sam Johnson, son of Dr J. S. Johnson, was thrown from a horse Saturday, but fortunately received no serious injuries.

You are throwing money away if you miss this great sale. We have the largest Clothing stock in Alabama, and our prices are the lowest ever seen on earth. Alex Rice, Montgomery.

Owing to a misunderstanding with the Atlanta Newspaper Union, the name of Chas. W. Hare appears as editor of this paper instead of E. M. Barrett.

If Clanton does not take the premium for being the healthiest place on earth it is a crack-a-jack, nevertheless; we are informed by a prominent physician that there is not a sick person in town.

The place to get your money's worth
And certainly a little more,
Is the place where people flock to
And is called Alex Rice's store,
at Montgomery.

The gypsies, like the Arabs, "have folded their tents and silently stolen away." For some time this nomad tribe has been camped in the neighborhood of Clanton, swapping horses by day and painting the town by night.

We bought a stock of Clothing, Shirts, Hats, etc., at about half its value and we offer it to you at the same proportionate figure. ALEX RICE, Montgomery.

Mr. T. J. Henderson, of Mountain Creek, paid our office a visit last Friday and renewed his subscription to THE VIEW. Mr. Henderson is one of the staunchest democrats in the county and can always be depended on to work in the interest of his party.

It is easier to pay too much than it is to pay too little. But there are times when too little is asked for goods—and this is one of them. A glance through our stock will demonstrate that our prices are very low.

ALEX RICE,
Montgomery.

Owing to the necessary trouble in getting out a paper, with which we have not been heretofore connected, the county news in this week's issue is rather meagre, but we will soon have correspondents in every portion of the county, and we ask the public to indulge us until we can perfect these arrangements.

It is easier to pay too much than it is to pay too little. But there are times when too little is asked for goods, and this is one of them. A glance through our stock will demonstrate that our prices are very low Alex. Rice, Montgomery.

Last Friday night, some one broke into the post office here.

They broke open the cash box, but did not get any money. They also broke into the telegraph office from which they got 21 cents in coppers. They battered the iron safe so in trying to get into it that it can't be opened. They also broke a chisel to pieces endeavoring to get into Mr. D. I. Deramus' store, but did not succeed.

Verbena can boast of one of the finest bicycle tracks in the State.

Mrs. Jno. J. Fontes has returned from a visit to the Capital City.

Miss Sallie Barnett is visiting friends in Montgomery.

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Farley have returned from a visit to Montgomery.

Capt. C. L. Brown, who has been visiting relatives here, has returned to his home at Chapman, Ala.

Dr. B. J. Baldwin, of Montgomery, who has been visiting his father, has returned home.

Mrs. E. H. Wingate is visiting relatives in Birmingham.

Miss Inez Northington, who has been quite sick with pneumonia, is a great deal better.

JEMISON DOTS.

Hand Bros. report the lumber business good—they have all they can do at both mills.

Business here is better than it has been for years. Our merchants report collections extremely good, and that more cotton was bought here this season than ever before.

Our worthy townsman, doctor R. B McNeil, left Sunday for Mobile to take a course of lectures in the Mobile Medical College. We predict a bright future for the doctor in his intended profession. Mr. Lindsey Smith, his partner in business, will assume control of the drug store during the doctor's absence.

Owing to the continued drouth more sickness has been reported in our community than ever known before and our wide awake, trusty and skilled physicians deserves great praise for their constant and careful attention, for outside of a few colored people they have not lost a single patient this fall.

Among those who are convalescent are Misses Mattie Hand, Jennie Bristow, Prof. H. L. Hicks and little Walter, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. McMeans.

Although Prof. H. L. Hicks has been on the sick list for the last ten days, our school is in a flourishing condition under the management of Mr. T. C Hann and his sister Miss Belle, the Prof. can rest assured that his school will not be found wanting.

Only a short time now, before the Swede Colony near here will be one of the most noted places in Chilton County and, in fact, in the State. Quite a handsome hotel is now being completed, besides in the last two months three new dwelling houses have been built. We learn also that preperations are now being made to at once erect a large two story business house, and on its completion will be occupied by a company, who will open one of the largest general merchandise stores in the county. There will also be built between now and January 1st several more residences and business houses.

Seaeral families from the North have already moved, and others will follow as rapidly as houses are built for them.

From indications, our Northern people are now realizing the fact that Chilton County is the garden spot of of Alabama.

Here is a chance if there ever was one: a chance you can't afford to neglect. Alex Rice, of Montgomery, will save you one third to one-half on any suit of clothes you need, and all because he bought the entire stock of a house in Rochester, N. Y. for about half price.

Walnut Creek Gossip.

The people of this vicinity have decided to come together on the school question and the indications are that we will have a successful school.

Rev. E. M. Bell preached his farewell sermon, at Walnut Creek, last Sunday.

The farmers here report a good crop. They are gathering double the amount of corn and potatoes they did last year.

O'possum hunting is much in vogue in this section of the country.

Peavine

Notwithstanding our extremely low prices this season on all our merchandise, we will continue to give away (free) with every $20 cash purchase, a watch guaranteed for 12 months. Alex Rice, Montgomery.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher is on every wrapper.

Do Fishes Talk?

A naturalist has been making some investigations in the fish ponds at Guilford, with regard to the much debated question as to whether fish can communicate a notion of their experiences to other fishes. The experimenter, when he had caught a trout, threw it back alive into the pond. Then he put in a freshly baited hook, and only two or three trout came after it. By experimenting in another pond, equally well stocked, and not throwing back any fish, Mr. Field found that he could catch trout without any trouble. This seems to show that captured fishes, when released, may communicate their sufferings to their neighbors in the pond.

The Gramophone.

The gramophone, a talking machine, much simpler and cheaper than the phonograph, invented by Dr. Berliner, the famous electrician, will soon be put upon the market. Its record of human speech and of music, it is said, are indestructible, and can be cheaply multiplied to an indefinite extent by simple mechanical means. What it has to say or sing can be heard all over an ordinary-sized house. So devoid of complexity is its construction that the complete apparatus will cost only $18, and a smaller edition intended for the use of children will be sold for $5.

The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Age.

KENNEDY'S Medical Discovery.

DONALD KENNEDY, OF ROXBURY, MASS.,

Has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures every kind of Humor, from the worst Scrofula down to a common pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases (both thunder humor). He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston. Send postal card for book.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the right quantity is taken.

When the lungs are affected it causes shooting pains, like needles passing through them; the same with the Liver or Bowels. This is caused by the ducts being stopped, and always disappears in a week after taking it. Read the label.

If the stomach is foul or bilious it will cause squeamish feelings at first.

No change of diet ever necessary. Eat the best you can get, and enough of it. Dose, one tablespoonful in water at bedtime. Sold by all Druggists.

WOMAN'S WORLD.

PLEASANT LITERATURE FOR FEMININE READERS.

Always soften water before using. A little borax, a bit as big as a pea, will give your face bath a velvety feeling, very agreeable.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

MORE WOMEN PAINTERS.

The increase of women painters in Europe has recently been attracting a considerable amount of attention. The men painters are in great consternation, as they allege that theirs practically is the only profession, excepting the stage, which is open to women. In 1875 the number of women who exhibited works at the Salon in the Champs Elysees was 312. This year the number has more than doubled, no fewer than 751 women exhibiting. On reckoning the number of works exhibited, the increased artistic activity of women is even more remarkable. Thus, only since last year, the number of their united contributions to the Salon has more than doubled.—New York Mail and Express.

HOSPITAL FOR BICYCLERS.

There is an emergency hospital in San Francisco for the benefit of bicycle riders who are reckless or merely unfortunate and come to grief through the thickness of their steel horses. The physician in charge is of a scientific turn of mind and has collected all sorts of interesting statistics, according to the Argonaut.

Ninety per cent. of the men who are injured succeed in saving their faces; almost without exception they bear the marks of their falls upon the palms of the hands, the knees and the legs, below the knees.

Women, on the contrary, possess a fondness for bruising their faces and prefer their noses as a part to be smashed. When they do bear marks of mishap on their hands it is invariably on the backs of their hands rather than the insides.

This is queer, as a woman naturally would think of her face. It shows that the man when falling instinctively throws out his hands to break the force of the blow and draws up the legs under the body so the brunt of the blow comes on the knees. Women, on the contrary, make little or no effort to save themselves.

In roller skating the facts are exactly opposite. Women struggle when they fall and men do not.

A PRETTY GERMAN CUSTOM.

One of the interesting functions of the up-to-date betrothal is the shopping expedition, where the two mothers and father-in-law to be, with their respective son and daughter, go out on an appointed morning and bring home a broom, a carving knife and fork, a salt cellar, a Bible, a brass door knocker, a candle stick and pair of bellows. This is a revival of an old German custom of presenting a young pair with what were considered the emblems of those virtues that go to make up a perfect household. The shopping party is concluded by a luncheon to the united families, and nowadays, instead of spreading forth the wedding gifts for inspection the day of the ceremony, the bride's mother, two days beforehand, issues cards for an informal evening reception, where the presents are exhibited in the drawing room. As every one of these are received thanks should be immediately rendered in the bride's handwriting and at once and recently has been issued the edict that good form commands the bride to address all her own wedding invitations and personally superintend their posting, sealing the envelope flaps with white wax, showing the impress of her initial alone, wreathed with the tiny orange blossoms. This seal is a little souvenir that falls to the share of her mother, just as her white silk wedding stockings are given to her youngest sister, and from her private purse she is expected to send a fee to the cook who bakes her wedding cake.—Atlanta Constitution.

FASHION NOTES.

Parasol covers of black lace are are much in demand.

Very little jewelry is worn this season except in full dress.

Most styles of evening bodices admit of short empire puff sleeves.

The narrow, double ruffle is used to a large extent in the decoration of thin frocks.

The gauzy lawns, besprinkled with tiny flower designs, were planned for use over silk of a shade to match the dominant color in the design. These dresses are not pretty if the least tumbled, and they won't go to the washtub.

The success of the fancy satin boots embroidered in beads is not at all assured, although the wily shopman gives them his hearty indorsement. They are to be worn in place of slippers. The heels are quite high, the toes silver tipped and ornamented with tiny silver buckles.

Duchesse satin continues to be a great favorite for evening toilets and for dress accessories. It is popular for three very good reasons. It is extremely pliable, yet is very rich and heavy in effect, quite unlike many of the soft satins now in use. It has a lustrous surface, and again, it wears better than most of the satins now manufactured.

Judging by manufacturers' samples, there will be great use made this season of pretty checked goods in two contrasting colors and two different weaves. The checks vary in pattern from the pin-head or shepherd's weaves to those from half an inch to an inch and a half wide. These checks will appear in satins, silks, all-wool stuffs, and silk and-wool mixtures.

Crepons will not lose favor yet. On the contrary, they are likely to be in high vogue for the seasons to come—gauffre, creped and relief effects with high raised designs will be among the novel patterns that will take the lead, not, however, to the forsaking of the plainer crepons which very many women prefer. The handsome crepons are high-priced, and the inferior grades soon show wear, the cheap-priced varieties being a most undesirable and unsatisfactory purchase.

WORDS OF WISDOM.

The pleasures of sin are only pleasures for a season.

Love never finds a burden that it does not try to lift.

Some shepherds try the hardest to feed the fattest sheep.

Gratitude can sing songs of praise with an empty pocket.

The man who lives a solitary life will die a stranger to himself.

A tombstone never makes the recording angel a good slate.

Put a smile on your face when you go out for a walk, and somebody will be helped.

The man who shrinks from self-denial pushes the cup of happiness away from his lips.

Purity don't stop working at the trade because somebody swears to a lie and sends it to prison.

The man who does not love his neighbor as himself still throws banana skins on the sidewalk.

The man who claims that there is no such thing as an honest man, tells others what he thinks of himself.

There are too many people who are willing to do all the shouting and let somebody else do all the work.

There is still a good deal of religion in the world that consists in putting the big sound apples on the top of the basket.

A snowflake is a very weak thing. But a great many together could stop the progress of the most powerful locomotive. A feather is a very light thing. But a great many together could make a load too heavy for the most powerful locomotive to move. "Union is strength."—Ram's Horn.

Curiosities of War in Cuba.

A New York man, whose business brought him into close contact with the insurgents and regulars during his recent visit in Cuba, said to a Sun reporter:

"The Spanish troops in Cuba are more incapable than anybody who has not seen them can imagine. They are undersized, poorly drilled and equipped with rifles of a good enough pattern, but enormously heavy for campaigning in such a hot climate. They look like mere boys, especially those who have been sent out in the last levies from the Continent. They are left without proper care in the field, as the officers are too busy looking after their own wines and table delicacies to pay much attention to their men. Even in Santiago the privates often have hard work to get one meal a day.

"The insurgent armies, with their numerous officers, are really no armies at all. The insurgents have no military organization, from the American or European point of view. If 500 or 600 insurgents are ordered to a certain point, they simply go there as fast as they can, riding or walking in a crowd, like a big picnic party. They make no attempt at forming in lines or columns. They carry on their guerrilla warfare very skilfully, however. Their attacks and retreats are so sudden that usually the Spanish soldiers did not have a chance to do much execution with their rifles. By the time the regulars get their hollow square formed and begin volley fire the insurgents are out of sight, although the regulars always keep up fire until their amunition is exhausted.

"The relations of the opposing forces in the field are amusing. There are no 'lines' to pass through, although you read about them in the cablegrams. You never meet a picket or a scout when you pass from one camp to another. There is, consequently, no difficulty for a neutral non-combatant in learning all he wishes to know about the progress of the campaign on each side."

For business reasons the man who gave this information did not wish to have his name used. Many of his statements, however, are confirmed by the Cuban correspondent of the Berlin Tageblatt, who says in his last letter that, as long as the Spanish Government send nothing but half-trained and undersized youths to do its fighting in Cuba, it must resign itself to defeat, if not disaster.—New York Sun.

Possibilities of Ramie Culture.

The plant yielding a very strong white fibre, widely known in commerce as ramie, was introduced into this country many years ago and widely distributed for experimental purposes. It was found to succeed admirably in moist, rich soils all through the Middle and Southern States, but was not quite hardy in the North. The difficulty, however, and cost of extracting the fibre from the stalks has prevented the cultivation of this plant extensively, and the people are waiting for somebody to invent a machine that will overcome the great obstacle of what is termed decortication. From a recent bulletin devoted to the subject, by Director W. C. Stubbs, of the Louisiana Station, we learn that quite a number of new machines for this purpose have been tested. One is reported to have worked 1000 pounds of green stalks in sixty-five minutes, and several others were nearly as efficient, but there is probably something as yet needed, for the report of their trial closes with the remark that "the outlook for obtaining a successful ramie machine is regarded as promising."—New York Sun.

The Interesting Clam.

Do you know that the common, uninteresting soft clam is really an object of much scientific interest? Its Latin name is Myra arenaria and its manner of obtaining its food uncommon and curious. It has a long double tube, through which the food-bearing current flows. This tube is furnished with a delicate, pretty white fringe, which acts as a filter, preventing the passage of any objects too large to be received into the stomach. Under a microscope this gentle current is easily detected by the flow of particles in the water.

Few people who enjoy a delightful clambake or see the shells of the hard clams strewn upon the beach know that the ordinary and very plain shell has a name that would indicate much beauty. Venus mercenaria is its Latin name. Long Island fishermen call the clam by its Indian name, "quahog."—New York Times.

Remedial Foods.

This list of food remedies compiled by The Housekeeper is well worth consideration and preservation for reference:

Celery is invaluable as a food for those suffering from any form of rheumatism; for diseases of the nerves and nervous dyspepsia.

Lettuce is useful to those suffering from insomnia.

Water cress is a remedy for scurvy.

Peanuts for indigestion; they are especially recommended for corpulent diabetes. Peanuts are made into a wholesome and nutritious soup, are browned and used as coffee, are eaten as a relish, simply baked, or are prepared and served as salted almonds.

Salt to check bleeding at the lungs, and as a nervine and tonic for weak, thin blooded invalids. Combined with hot water is useful for certain forms of dyspepsia, liver complaint, etc.

Onions are almost the best nervine known. No medicine is so useful in cases of nervous prostration, and there is nothing else that will so quickly relieve and tone up a wornout system. Onions are useful in all cases of coughs, colds and influenza; in consumption, insomnia, hydrophobia, scurvey, gravel and kindred liver complaints. Eaten every other day, they soon have a clearing and whitening effect on the complexion.

Spinach is useful to those suffering ing with gravel.

Asparagus is used to induce perspiration.

Carrots for sufferers from asthma.

Turnips for nervous disorders and for scurvy.

Raw beef proves of great benefit to persons suffering from consumption. It is chopped fine, seasoned with salt, and heated by placing it in a dish in hot water. It assimilates rapidly and affords the best nourishment.

Eggs contain a large amount of nutriment in a compact, quickly available form. Eggs, especially the yolks of eggs, are useful in jaundice. Beaten up raw with sugar are used to clear and strengthen the voice. With sugar and lemon juice the beaten white of egg is used to relieve hoarseness.

Honey is wholesome, strengthening, cleansing, healing and nourishing.

Fresh ripe fruits are excellent for purifying the blood and toning up the system. As specific remedies, oranges are highly recommended for rheumatism.

Watermelons for epilepsy and for yellow fever.

Cranberries for erysipelas are used externally as well as internally.

Lemons for feverish thirst in sickness, for biliousness, low fevers, rheumatism, colds, coughs, liver complaint, etc.

Blackberries as a tonic. Useful in all forms of diarrhœa.

Tomatoes are a powerful apperient for the liver, a sovereign remedy for dyspepsia and for indigestion. Tomatoes are invaluable in all conditions of the system in which the use of calomel is indicated.

Figs are apperient and wholesome. They are said to be valuable as a food for those suffering from cancer; they are used externally as well as internally.

Bananas are useful as a food to those suffering from chronic diarrhœa.

Grapes dilute thick blood, send the circulation to the surface, remove obstructions from liver and lungs, dissolve and dislodge gravel and calculi and bring the stomach and bowels to a healthy condition.

A NEW LEASE OF LIFE.

IN GOOD HEALTH AT SEVENTY-THREE YEARS OF AGE.

Miss Cornwall's Wonderful Recovery of Health—Became Well in Two Months After an Illness of Six Years.

From the Register, New Haven, Conn.

In this rapid age of ours when so many men and women are old at fifty, one who has lived three-quarters of a century, and then, after debility and suffering, regains health and vigor, must be regarded with a feeling akin to wonder. A New England lady has been found who has had this remarkable experience.

In the family of Clarence Williams, a Cheshire farmer on the Meriden road, Cheshire, Ct., lives Miss Cornelia Cornwall, a lady seventy-three years of age. For several years Miss Cornwall's health has been declining very rapidly, caused by a general debility. Her friends feared that the respected lady had not long to live; but a kind Providence directed the aged lady, and in a newspaper advertisement Miss Cornwall read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—a few boxes of which she procured at once, and with the result that is best told in her own words.

"About six years ago," Miss Cornwall began, "my health commenced to fail. I suffered from loss of appetite and pains in different parts of my body. My condition gradually grew worse until my limbs were apparently unable to bear my weight, and I could no longer go up stairs without the assistance of some one.

"I consulted physicians who prescribed medicines for my blood. These I continued to take for several months, but without any effect. The sense of feeling in my lower limbs seemed to be leaving me, and I began to fear that it was hopeless to look for a cure. I was still suffering terribly from the pains through my body, when I chanced to read the story of a cure that had been effected with the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I discovered that the town druggist here had none on sale, so I sent immediately to the headquarters in Schenectady, N. Y., and secured two of the boxes of the pills.

"Last December I commenced using the pills regularly, and a month after I had been taking them, I felt greatly benefited by their use. The feeling in my limbs came back again, and in two months I was able to go about the house as I had been accustomed to a year before. Now, as you can see, I am enjoying good health. The pallor in my face was removed by the pills. A number of my friends in the neighborhood were complaining of symptoms somewhat similar to my own, and I recommended that they take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They did so, and they tell me that they have been very much benefited by their use. I still continue to take the pills, though there is not so much necessity for them at present. As a purifier of the blood, I consider the Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a wonderful medicine."

Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, (50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50—they are never sold in bulk, or by the 100) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

A Good Law.

The New York law in regard to the maintenance of secrecy by telephone employes as to messages passing over the wires went into effect September 1st. It requires the staff of telephone companies to be as secretive regarding the nature of their business as are the operatives who handle telegraphic messages. A person who either wrongfully obtains or attempts to obtain any knowledge of a telegraphic or telephonic message by connivance with a clerk, operator, messenger or other employe of a telegraph or telephone company, or, being such operator or other employe wilfully divulges to anyone but the person for whom it was intended the contents or the nature of a telegraphic or telephonic message intrusted to him for transmission or delivery, or of which contents he may in any way have become possessed, is punished by a fine of $1,000 or six months' imprisonment, or both. The same penalty attaches to neglect or refusal to transmit or deliver messages, except when they are intended for illegal purposes. Long distance telephone lines are being so rapidly extended and the substitution of the telephonic for the telegraphic message that such an excellent protection as the New York law provides should be universally provided. The telephone companies would do wisely in promoting the adoption of such law in every state where their lines extend.

The Private Secretary.

"Henry!"

"Yes, your excellency!"

"A great deal of curiosity is manifested about my wishes in regard to a third term."

"Yes, sire."

"Henry, I wonder why people do not ask whether or not you would like a second term?"—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Safety on Railways.

It is stated that Peter Styers, an engineer on the Lehigh Valley railroad, who died recently at Bethlehem, Pa., aged seventy-three years, has traveled during his forty-six years of service as engineer, at least 1,000,000 miles. During that time he has never had an accident.

When silk looks greasy, remove the grease by spreading magnesia on the wrong side.

Economy.

It is a duty to be economical. At the great feeding of the 5,000 from bread, miraculously furnished, the Christ commanded that all the fragments be saved. He was more careful than many a servant who will throw away slices of good bread and many a slatternly housekeeper who will let bread mould, rather than take care of it, although, the household provider may be breaking his back and heart in trying to keep the wolf from the door; but the Lord of all who could produce bread by the ton with a prayer, saved all the pieces. Economy is a duty, a very important duty; it should be taught to all and be practiced by all.—Womankind.

Any Convenient Night.

"Lucy," said an Allegheny mother to her daughter, in a severe tone, "you must not let George remain again as long as he stayed last night. It must have been nearly midnight when he left."

"But, mamma, we were watching the eclipse."

"Watching the eclipse! What nonsense! The eclipse occurred on Tuesday night."

"I know, mamma, but George could not come that night. He had to work."—Pittsburg Chronicle.

germ=life

The doctors tell us, now-a-days, that disease germs are everywhere; in the air, in the water, in our food, clothes, money; that they get into our bodies, live there, thrive and grow, if they find anything to thrive on.

Consumption is the destruction of lung-tissue by germs where the lung is too weak to conquer them. The remedy is strength—vital force.

Scott's Emulsion, with hypophosphites, means the adjustment of lung strength to overcome germ-life. It is fighting the germ with the odds in our favor. These tiny little drops of fat-food make their way into the system and re-fresh and re-invigorate it. Whether you succeed with it or not depends on how good a start the germs had, and how carefully you can live. The shortest way to health is the patient one. The gain is often slow.

[illegible] came on the Southern's vestibule [illegible]. It reached the city on [illegible] owing to the departure of [illegible]. Ever it came into the depot [illegible].

[illegible] private car, Wil[illegible], [illegible] the president and his [illegible] party, was stopped across Loyd street. Here the exposition committee [illegible] and Mayor King were in waiting. [illegible] after the train came [illegible] committee, headed [illegible] Chairman Hemphill and Mayor [illegible] the car.

[illegible] followed and a minute [illegible] the party emerged and walked to [illegible] carriages which were waiting a few [illegible] away.

There was no attempt at a demonstration, [illegible]. There were cheers as [illegible] party appeared.

A great multitude was massed in Wall street and along Pryor as far as [illegible] building. Every window [illegible] upon these two streets was filled. Over seventy-five police [illegible] back the crowd with great difficulty. It was a huge crowd, surging constantly forward to get a good view of the open street along which the president would pass.

The crowd gathered early and the street was filled at 3:30 o'clock. The crowd waited patiently until the commotion at the Loyd street end of the depot indicated that the distinguished party had arrived.

There was but a brief wait before the several carriages containing the party moved forward. They turned up Wall street toward the Kimball and passed between two solid walls of humanity to Pryor street.

The party was driven up Pryor to the Aragon. Thousands of people were crowded upon the sidewalks on both sides of the street. They surged forward eagerly as the carriages containing the distinguished party passed.

The people were kept back by mounted officers as the carriages rolled by. President Cleveland frequently lifted his high silk hat to the great multitude as he passed.

The drive to the Aragon was quickly accomplished. It was the president's wish that it be made without any attempt at an ovation. There was no music or soldiers. Only the exposition committee met the nation's chief and [illegible].

The president and his cabinet retired to their apartments immediately [illegible] their arrival at the Aragon. They [illegible] fatigued with their long journey [illegible] remained in retirement until 9 [illegible], when a public reception was [illegible] in the parlor.

At 10 o'clock the president and [illegible] were guests at Mayor King's elegant dinner in the dining room of the Aragon. Quite a number of guests [illegible] present and the event was a no[illegible] every respect.

AT THE EXPOSITION.

The President Speaks and Fifty Thousand People Cheer.

When the president awoke Wednesday morning between 8 and 9 o'clock [illegible] the brightest of suns shining [illegible] of skies, and he must [illegible] thought that even the elements [illegible] to him, for a more ideal day [illegible] at the exposition grounds [illegible] was in store for him could not [illegible] been chosen.

[illegible] president and the cabinet members and the ladies of the party breakfasted at 9 o'clock and were driven to [illegible] exposition grounds immediately after.

[illegible] as 8 o'clock the crowds began thronging to the exposition [illegible]. Every vehicle that could be [illegible] was pressed into service, and [illegible] exposition gates there were lines [illegible] people a block long.

When the president and his party arrived on the grounds the incoming crowds were gradually growing larger [illegible] walking around any of the entrances was very difficult.

The president's carriage came in at the main gate at 10:30 o'clock and [illegible] driven at once to the government [illegible]. There preparations had [illegible] made to receive the presidential [illegible].

With Mr. W. C. Dabney, Jr., as his guide, and Governor Atkinson as an escort, President Cleveland went through many of the exhibits.

President Takes the Stand.

Two reviewing stands had been erected in front of the government building. One immediately on the steps of the building and a larger one just opposite it. These were draped with the colors of the country in very handsome style.

President Cleveland and his party, after leaving the government building, were escorted by directors of the exposition to the reviewing stand. All the members of the presidential party, the governors and a number of exposition directors were [illegible] seats on the large stand [illegible] the members of [illegible] the exposition [illegible].

As the president entered the stand a salute of twenty-one guns was fired on the [illegible]. As the [illegible] the [illegible] reviewing [illegible] arose [illegible].

First came [illegible] with [illegible] Anderson came next. They were followed by Colonel W. L. Kellogg, of the Fifth regiment of regulars, and then came [illegible] companies of the regiment of United States soldiers with their band.

As the troops passed the president they came to present arms and [illegible] that position until they had gotten beyond the reviewing stand.

After [illegible] Governor O'Ferrall of Virginia and his staff appeared [illegible]. The governor was [illegible] parade [illegible] after passing [illegible] Governor O'Ferrall was followed by the V. M. I. Band, [illegible] and the four companies of Virginia Military Institute Cadets, under the command of [illegible] C. A. Nash [illegible] Virginia [illegible] regiment, [illegible] followed by Grimes Battery [illegible] Virginia. The Asheville Light Infantry, forty strong, marched ahead of the Gate City Guard. The latter company turned out all of its members, and their new uniforms and soldierly bearing caught the crowd's [illegible]. Governor Coffin and his staff, the first and second companies of Governor's Foot Guard, commanded by Majors [illegible] and B. F. Br[illegible], [illegible] Colts' and Reeves' Bands were the next in the line. The last in the line was the Atlanta Artillery, with all their guns.

As the last [illegible] passed the stand the crowds rushed in behind the military and pushed towards the reviewing stands. The crush was terrific, several ladies fainted and with difficulty were taken through the crowds.

After several minutes surging President Collier walked to the front of the stand and holding up his hands to quiet the crowds, announced that Dr. I. S. Hopkins would offer a prayer, immediately every head in the vast crowd around the stand was bared.

The President's Speech.

At the conclusion of Dr. Hopkins' prayer, Mr. Collier arose amid [illegible] cheers and introduced President Cleveland in a neat speech.

The president was greeted by an ovation which lasted for several minutes. Hats were thrown into the air and boundless enthusiasm was manifested. He spoke as follows:

Mr. President [illegible]

But we are [illegible]

While my fellow citizens of Georgia and her neighboring states may felicitate themselves to the fullest extent upon such evidences as are here found of the growth and prosperity of interests and enterprises in which they are especially concerned, I cannot [illegible] the enjoyment afforded [illegible] the work they have done emphasizes in the sight of the world the immense resources and indomitable thrift of the people of the United states.

It seems to me the thought may be suggested as not inappropriate to this occasion, that what we see about us is an outgrowth of another exposition inaugurated on American soil more than a century ago, when a new nation was exhibited to the civilized world, guaranteed and protected by a constitution which was ordained and established by the people of the United States, with the declared purpose of promoting their welfare and securing the blessings of liberty to themselves and their posterity. The success which has attended this exposition of products and manufactures is not altogether due to the quality of the soil or character of the people in any of the contributing states, but it rests largely upon the fact that these states are members of a beneficently governed nation, whose natural resources and advantages everywhere have been developed and improved by the influence of free institutions, and whose people have been stimulated and encouraged by the blessings of personal liberty.

A contemplation of the benefits vouchsafed to us by our government easily reminds us of the importance of a hearty and united co-operation in its support and protection. We should lovingly watch and guard it, not only because we are recipients of its precious gifts, but of its own sake, and because it has been put in our hands in sacred keeping, to prove to the world that we can be trusted with self-government.

We shall walk in the path of patriotic duty, remembering that our free institutions were established to promote the general welfare, we strive for those things which benefit all our people, and if each of us is content to receive from a common fund his share of the prosperity thus contributed, we shall sadly miss our duty and forfeit our heritage if, in narrow selfishness, we are heedless of the general welfare and struggle to wrest from the government private advantages which can only be gained at the expense of our fellow countrymen.

I hope I may, therefore, be permitted in conclusion to suggest, as a most important lesson taught by this occasion, the absolute necessity to our national health and welfare, and [illegible] plenty to our individual happiness [illegible], of a careful discrimination, [illegible] of policies and in our advocacy of [illegible] doctrines between those which promote the promotion of the public welfare and those which simply seem to serve [illegible] interests.

If we are [illegible] government was fram[illegible] we shall [illegible] a spirit of [illegible] American [illegible] such [illegible] spirit of the [illegible] welfare.

The president's speech, though short, took some time for its delivery, so great was the enthusiasm.

The Public Handshaking.

Immediately after the conclusion of President Cleveland's speech it was announced that he would hold a reception, and the crowd was asked to move back to give room for the handshaking process.

For five minutes he grasped the hands of great American citizens at the rate of 103 per minute, then the number per minute gradually lowered until he was shaking hands at the rate of one every second. In fifteen minutes the president's face was covered with perspiration and he was evidently tiring. For thirty-three minutes he continued to shake hands with the throng and to speak a pleasant word to many. He finally announced that he was tired and this part of the ceremony was cut short. The carriages for the party were driven to the stand and all were taken to the Piedmont [illegible], where an elegant luncheon was served.

After the luncheon the president began a tour of the grounds, visiting the government building, the main building, the negro buildings, and inspecting the exposition throughout.

Homeward Bound.

President Cleveland and the members of his cabinet left on a special train over the Southern railroad for Washington at 12:58 o'clock Thursday morning. As the train moved off the crowd cheered and the president walked to the car window, bowing to the crowd outside.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Condition as Reported for the Past Week.

Favorable reports as to southern industrial conditions during the past week indicate that the large speculative movement in cotton has kept the market very active. Good judges believe that cotton is really worth from 8½ to 9¼ cents, because of the short crop, the reports as to which are more unfavorable from day to day. Iron is steady and less active. The sales and deliveries have prevented any accumulation of pig iron in southern furnace yards, and the visible supply is not in excess of the regular wants of the trade. Reports are current as to large additions to the number of furnaces in the Birmingham district, and furnaces continue to blow in, the furnace capacity not seeming to be larger than is required. Active speculation in southern iron is much less noticeable than it has been, and the regular trade is doing a very large business. Coke and coal are growing steadily in demand. A firm coke and coal market is taking all shipments as sent forward, and the great bulk of business is based on favorable contracts. Textile mills are renewedly active. The week's report contains reference to a $500,000 cotton mill at Newport News, Va., of three additional ones to a cotton mill plant near Atlanta, Ga., a $150,000 mill at Austin, Texas, a large mill at Rome, Ga., a $50,000 cotton and woolen mill at Cedartown, Ga., and a woolen mill at Atlanta, Ga.

Among the important new industries established or incorporated during the week are the Marietta Paper Manufacturing Co. at Marietta, Ga., capital $150,000; the Consumers' Brewing Co. of Norfolk, Va., also with $150,000 capital, and the Planters' Commission Co., limited, of New Orleans, La., to engage in molasses reboiling, capital $100,000. The Calhoun Cotton Seed Oil Co., capital $100,000, has been chartered at Piedmont, Ala.; the Perfection Cigarette Machine Co., capital $50,000, at Richmond, Va.; the Berliner Gramophone Co. at Roanoke, Va., with $50,000 capital; the Columbia Guano Co. of Norfolk, Va., capital $25,000; the Allen & Cram Machine Co. of Raleigh, N. C., and the Tazman Oil Co. of Lynchburg, Va., each with $10,000 capital.

There is also reported a large brewery at Waco, Texas, a distillery at Wetumpka, Ala.; an electric plant at La Fayette, La., and flour and grist mills at Cushman, Ark., and Waverly, Tenn. Ice factories are to be established at Hammond, La., Galveston and Hillsboro, Texas; woodworking plants at Woodstock, Ala., Carey, N. C., and Salem, Va., and water works at La Fayette, La., Greenwood and West Point, Miss.

The enlargements include a cotton mill at Raleigh, N. C., a silk mill at Fredericksburg, Va., and waterworks at Charlotte, N. C. Among the new buildings of the week are business houses at Macon, Ga.; a $40,000 club house at New Orleans, La.; court houses at Paris, Tenn., to cost $40,000, and at Galveston, Texas, to cost $375,000, and hospital buildings, each to cost $10,000, at Galveston, Texas, and Richmond, Va.—Tradesman (Chattanooga, Tenn.

Governor Clark is Happy.

Governor Clark says he feels greatly relieved over the news from Hot Springs to the effect that Corbett will depart for St. Louis, the other members of his party going to New York. The governor says he is still governor of Arkansas and he feels good to think the supreme court is in accord with him.

CAPITAL NOTES.

GOSSIP OF WASHINGTON IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS.

Doings of the Chiefs and Heads of the Various Departments.

President Cleveland and party reached Washington Thursday night at 8:12 o'clock from the Atlanta exposition, eighteen minutes ahead of schedule time. The trip was made without the slightest [illegible] delay and Postmaster General Wilson said they were greeted [illegible] in Atlanta and had a delightful time. Crowds met the president at [illegible] Salisbury, Greensboro, Danville and Lynchburg. Every member of the president's party was delighted with the trip and is loud in praise of the perfect service of the Southern railway.

The members of the cabinet pursued no formal method of visiting the Atlanta exposition, some going with one party [illegible] escorts, some with another, but wherever they were they expressed themselves pleased with the efforts of the southern people and of Atlanta to make a splendid [illegible] of southern resources. [illegible] the grounds the president, the vice president and the members of the cabinet were surrounded by great crowds, and those who were [illegible] to get through the crush of the public handshaking, sought [illegible] at the distinguished party.

Will Talk of Seals.

It is stated [illegible] that Hon. Mackenzie Bowell, [illegible] of Canada, and Sir Charles Tupper, minister of justice, in the Canadian cabinet, will arrive in Washington within a few days to [illegible] the Behring seal convention. The meetings of the convention will be held at the state department, Secretary Olney representing the United States and Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British embassador, representing her majesty's government. The two [illegible] the Canadian cabinet will [illegible] advisory capacity to Sir Julian. [illegible] assure a strong presentation of the British position. Sir Charles Tupper was minister of marine and fisheries at the time the Canadian sealers were seized by United States revenue cutters and [illegible] information of the [illegible] Julian and the Canadian [illegible] have had long experience with the question.

Sensation in Naval Circles.

A sensation in naval circles has been caused by the announcement that Rear Admiral W. A. Kirkland, commanding the European naval station of the United States, has been detached from duty and ordered home. It is expected that Admiral Kirkland will apply at once to be placed on the retired list. Commodore Henry O. Selfridge, Jr., will succeed [illegible] commanding officer of the European station. For some time past it has been rumored that Secretary Herbert was not pleased with the conduct of Admiral Kirkland. Dissatisfaction was first caused by the action of the admiral in sending a letter of congratulations on his election to President Faure, of France. Secretary Herbert construed this as entirely wrong, holding that the official position of the admiral, representing the dignity of the United States navy in European waters, precluded him from making any comment whatever with reference to politics and sent a letter of reprimand.

American Students Barred.

Lieutenant Commander Cowles, the naval attache of the United States embassy in London, has informed the navy department that the Royal School of Naval Architecture at Greenwich will hereafter decline to receive any constructors of the United States navy. No reason for this action is assigned. Post graduate courses for American constructors are still open at Glasgow and Paris and Cornell university has recently added a similar course to its curriculum. The Glasgow school is a private institution and several members of the construction corps of the United States navy received advance training in naval architecture there. At the navy department several reasons are attached to the action of the Greenwich establishment, which is a government affair. It is believed by some that the real cause of the declination to receive any more constructors of our navy is a desire on the part of the British government to prevent the United States from obtaining plans from British ship builders.

During the past twelve years the United States government has sent to the Greenwich school graduates of the naval academy at Annapolis who were given appointments as assistant naval constructors. These have received valuable training and returned to the United States thoroughly equipped for the work of designing war ships.

Boston Men Get the Option.

A Denver dispatch says: D. Y. Moffat denies the report that he, Eben Smith, and C. G. Hathaway, have bought the Raven mining property in Cripple Creek. He says they assisted in obtaining an option on the property for J. P. Whitney and other Boston capitalists the price being in the neighborhood of $500,000.

Miners Returning to Work.

The miners of the Massillon, O., district who have been on strike have been returning to work for several days without the consent of the organization leaders and the strike is practically ended. Work has been resumed at the same terms as those at which the miners of the state at large have been at work.

A VICTORY FOR FOSTER.

Controls the Louisiana State Democratic Committee.

The democratic executive committee of Louisiana met at New Orleans Thursday with a full attendance and all the prominent democratic leaders from all over the state in attendance. Those friendly to Governor Foster's renomination held a caucus as also did those opposed to him, but the deliberations of both factions were secret. It was pretty obvious that the governor's friends had things their way.

After roll call and preliminary work of organization the committee proceeded to business. E. Howard McCaleb read a resolution calling for the holding of a democratic primary election on a future agreed date and place. The list as proposed was seconded by Mayor Fitzpatrick. It was proposed to accept the last United States census as a basis of population, one representative for every 2,000 and fractions over 500.

Mr. Bostner moved an amendment, making the basis of voting the vote cast at the election of March, 1892, on the white democratic votes cast and that the result be faithfully abided in by all and the successful candidate receive the entire support of the party. A spirited debate followed, but Mr McCaleb's resolution prevailed by a large majority. This is a preliminary victory for Governor Foster.

DROPPED THEM OVERBOARD.

Novel Plain of the Sultan for Suppressing Sedition.

The London Standard publishes a dispatch from Constantinople confirming the reports of the summary disposal of many of the young Turkish party who were arrested on the charge of seditious practices. After trial they were conveyed at night to the beach and thence to a warship. The boats of this warship then took the prisoners to the place in the Bosphorus where the current runs the strongest and they were then dropped overboard. The dispatch also confirms the report that the severe measures taken by the porte has broken the spirit of the revolutionists. Hassan Pasha, the minister of marine, is under suspicion and he is kept under close surveillance at his residence at Ortakent.

TALMAGE IN WASHINGTON.

He Will Act as Co-Pastor With Dr. Sunderland.

Rev. Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage, whose reputation as the pastor of the great Brooklyn tabernacle has spread over the civilized world, has bid New York state adieu and enters upon his new labors as co-pastor with Dr. Sunderland at the First Presbyterian church in Washington.

Dr. Talmage said farewell to his old flock in Brooklyn at the Central Presbyterian church Sunday and Sunday evening in the Madison Avenue Presbyterian church in New York. He plunged abruptly from a characteristic gospel sermon to a vivacious address of farewell, and at the conclusion amid tears and "God bless you," shook hands with every person in the large congregation.

ACCIDENT TO BRIDAL PARTY.

The Bride Thrown from a Carriage and Her Skull Fractured.

George D. Massengill, Jr., and Miss Inez Jobe, a young lady belonging to a prominent family of Johnson City, Tenn., were married Wednesday. Thursday afternoon as they were driving to the station, expecting to start on their bridal trip to Washington, the team became frightened and ran away. Mrs. Massengill, the bride, was thrown heavily to the ground and received a fracture of the skull. She was unconscious at last accounts, but physicians believe the wound will not prove fatal. Miss Henry, of Paris, Tenn., who was an occupant of the carriage, had an arm broken. John Garrell, driver, was also seriously injured. Massengill was not injured.

MISS HENDERSON DEAD.

Assaulted by Neal Smith, the Coal City Convict.

Miss Henderson, who was so brutally assaulted several days ago by Neal Smith, a negro convict, died at Cole City, Ga., Tuesday morning. Miss Henderson never regained sufficient consciousness to speak of the assault, which was perhaps the most brutal in the criminal annals of Georgia, and she died unconscious of the fact that her assailant has been tortured and killed near the spot where she was attacked by the convict brute.

OHIO TOWN BURNED OUT.

Every Business House in Gibsonburg Now in Ashes.

Shortly after midnight Thursday morning fire broke out in the rear of the Weitney & Powers' grocery store at Gibsonburg, O., spread rapidly and burned two squares, containing twenty buildings, including all the business places in town. The north side of Madison and part of the west side of Main street were burned to the ground. Several estimate the loss all told at $250,000 to $300,000. A call for aid for those burned out will no doubt be made, as everything was destroyed.

Will Not Be Plough.

A. B. Plough, vice-president and general manager of the St. Paul and Duluth railroad, was seen by the Associated Press representative in regard to the report that he had been appointed manager of the Central Railroad of Georgia and denied it flatly.

Cabinet of Chili Resigns.

A cable dispatch from Santiago de Chili, is to the effect that Chilian cabinet has resigned.

COTTON TUMBLES.

PANDEMONIUM IN THE NEW YORK COTTON EXCHANGE.

Fortunes Made and Lost Within a Few Hours.

Monday was a day of intense excitement on the New York cotton exchange. Fortunes were made and lost. Southerners were the chief losers. The market dropped so fast that it threatened to go out of sight. The New Yorkers were after some of the New Orleans bulls with a long pole and northern bears knocked the persimmons during the day.

The market opened over [illegible] points below Saturday's official closing figures. The decline was accompanied by great excitement. January futures opened at 8.54c against 8.8[illegible] Saturday's close. Wednesday last the same futures sold at 9.44c, or 90 points above Monday's opening. This is equivalent to $4.50 per bale. The immediate cause of the great smash was the opening decline in Liverpool market of 10@11-64d. This decline as a whole, however, has been occasioned by the reported collapse of the bull campaign, which has been engineered from New Orleans for several months past.

In the early afternoon January cotton touched 8.27. This was a decline of 117 points from Wednesday, or equivalent to $5.85 a bale. In the early afternoon, however, conservative traders were counselling that there should be a reaction or serious results might follow.

Some prominent operators are said to have come in as buyers. A New Orleans dispatch reported the failure of Emmett & Buech, a cotton house there.

Up to 1 o'clock the sales on New York cotton exchange aggregated for the day 600,000 bales—the largest on record. At 1:45 o'clock January's price was 8.40.

The tremendous break in cotton and the wild, unprecedented scenes on the floor of the cotton exchange were the talk of the street. Stock operators left their favorite speculative commodities to discuss cotton and its downward career.

One of the best known cotton brokers in the city, when asked to give an opinion on the market, said hurriedly: "The break had to come, and was looked for, but it was not expected all at once. The truth is that the reaction in cotton is taking place in days instead of months. This tremendous drop should have extended over two months. We are doing the business of liquidating in three days. The market, in consequence, is in a condition little short of a panic, and real values are not considered."

The New Orleans bull clique was last week reported to be liquidating its holdings of cotton and this quickened the decline in the New York market. Business was very heavy during morning and fluctuations were very violent. Within thirty seconds the market moved five points. January, which had opened at 8.54, rallied to 8.65 and then weakened again with quick rallies to 8.65 and recovered during the first hour. Sales on opening call were on an enormous scale.

When prices reached what appeared to be the bottom John H. Inman, who [illegible] 25,000 bales of January at 9.37 last week, became bull and bought back what he had sold at 1 cent less. His profits are reported to be enormous on the transaction. Mr. Inman is said to have cleared over $300,000 on the drop in cotton in the past four days. There was a report late in the day that the governors of the cotton exchange were investigating reports that several cotton brokers made sales on the curb after the closing of the exchange on Saturday, and that they would be called to account for violation of the rules.

It is by a strange law of mind that an idea long overlooked and trodden under foot as a useless stone suddenly sparkles out in new light.

MYERS A FUGITIVE.

THE YOUTHFUL CRIMINAL ESCAPES FROM JAIL.

Under Sentence of Death for the Murder of Forrest Crowley.

Will Myers, under sentence of death for the murder of Forrest Crowley, escaped from the Fulton county jail at Atlanta Monday afternoon. Myers was seated in the rear of the [illegible], engaged in conversation with a lady, a devoted friend of Myers' mother, who has visited him frequently, when suddenly he jumped to his feet, pushed by Jailor H. Pollock, the only man in the office at the time, and dashed out of the door to freedom.

Jailer Mardis had left the [illegible] to attend to some duties in the [illegible] and Assistant Pollock was left in the room with the prisoner and [illegible]. Suddenly Myers leaped to his feet and with a marvellously swift movement, brushed Pollock aside and sped through the door leading to the street. He stumbled and fell at the foot of the step, but regained his feet quickly and ran down Fraser street to [illegible] and up Fair to Capitol avenue, and made good his escape.

The city, county and surrounding country was notified of the escape at once and probably a hundred men scoured the country for the most noted criminal in the state. The search continued all night and so far as known the whereabouts of Myers remains a dark mystery.

$500 Reward Offered.

Five hundred dollars reward was offered for the capture of Myers Monday night, which gave an incentive to the pursuers. Every [illegible] within twenty-five miles of Atlanta was notified of the escape of Myers and every outgoing train and every road leading from the city was searched and watched.

Two hundred dollars of the reward was offered by Governor Atkinson. The governor was greatly surprised and indignant at the strange escape of the murderer, and when it was brought to his attention he quickly issued an order offering the amount stated as a reward. To the amount offered by the governor Sheriff Barnes added $300, making $500 offered for the capture of the murderer.

It seems that Myer's escape was premeditated on his part. Whether or not he had outside assistance is not known. There are many who believe that Myers was aided by friends outside who knew of his plan. Certain it is that he made a miraculously successful break for liberty if he did so without aid and assistance from friends.

Myers' second plea for a new trial was argued before the supreme court during the morning and the utterances of the justices led to the belief that the petition would be finally denied. It is learned, however, that Myers had not heard of the matter at the jail and that he had not received any message at all from his attorneys during the day.

THE ATLANTA EXPOSITION.

What It Costs to See It. The Conveniences and Cheap Prices Offered to Visitors.

An erroneous idea is abroad to the effect that it costs a great deal to see the exposition. This is a mistake. You can see the exposition itself for fifty cents if you are over twelve years of age, or for twenty-five cents if you are under twelve. There is absolutely no charge to enter any of the exposition buildings. Various shows on the Midway Heights will charge you from ten cents to twenty-five cents admission, but that is a separate matter and does not belong to the exposition company. It is simply extra fun, of which you can take on as much or as little as you please. Stories to the effect that water cannot be had on the exposition grounds are absolutely untrue. Water has been placed at various points all along the avenues, and cups have been chained to the founts, so that all visitors may drink as much water, and as often as they please, free of charge. If you are hungry and want a light lunch, you can get a hot roast beef sandwich, as fine as you ever tasted, for ten cents, and you can get a glass of Jersey milk, as fine as you ever drank, for five cents. If you are fastidious, you can go to the restaurants and pay for your dinner anywhere from twenty-five cents up, according to what you order.

The restaurants keep all plain dishes, and also high priced ones. At a popular lunch stand you can get hot buckwheat cakes, or hot pancakes, with maple syrup, for ten cents, and a cup of coffee for five cents more.

You can get a room in the city for a dollar, or for seventy-five cents each where two persons occupy the same room, and this, at one of several good hotels just completed, and with new furniture, all nicely kept.

Stories about extortion in Atlanta are ridiculously absurd, as any intelligent person will discover when he visits the city.

TENNESSEE MIDLAND SOLD.

Bought in On Behalf of the Trust Company for a Million Dollars.

The Tennessee Midland railroad was sold at Memphis Thursday under an order of the United States circuit court, in a suit brought by the St. Louis Trust Company, for foreclosure on one million dollars of first mortgage bonds, which the company holds. The property was bought in by J. W. Phillips, of St. Louis, on behalf of the Trust Company, at the upset price of one million dollars. This was the only bid.

CLANTON, ALA., Oct. 31, 1895

Mrs. Jas. B. Eustis, wife of the United States Embassador to France, died Saturday.

Mr McMillan has been appointed probate judge of Shelby county. He is a democrat.

We return thanks to brother N. A. Graham, the efficient editor of The Shelby Sentinel, for his kind wishes.

The main building of the historic old University of Virginia was destroyed by fire last Sunday. It will be rebuilt.

Mr. W. H. Lawrence, the former owner of THE VIEW, has purchased the Livingston Journal, which he will conduct for the future.

The 213th anniversary of the landing of William Penn was celebrated by 13,000 public school pupils last Monday in Philadelphia.

The difference between Barney Barnato, the Kaffir King, and Jerry Simpson is that Barney is partial to white silk socks and Jerry to none at all.

Miss Margaret O'Brien, whose talent is so widely known, is going to publish a society and literary paper in Birmingham. We wish her much success in her enterprise.

Judge W. S. Thorington, who is so well known to the people of this county, has been appointed to fill a temporary vacancy in the office of judge of the city court of Montgomery.

If Corbett and Fitzsimmons are really anxious to fight, why don't they imitate the example of those Huntsville editors, only if their markmanship is no better, the country will not be benefitted.

Wm. Morris, of DeKalb county, who is nearly one hundred years old, has been sentenced to the penitentiary for counterfeiting. He is a veteran of the Mexican war and was formerly a preacher.

Admiral Crichton, accuses us of wanting to get nearer to the Banner. Our esteemed contemporary is correct, and we will soon be near enough to witness its death struggles.

The would be assassin of R. F. Renfro, the Russell county merchant and farmer, has been captured and placed in jail. He is a negro named Reddie Adams. The people of the vicinity wanted to lynch him.

The Montgomery and Prattville railroad is finished, and hereafter Clanton can make direct connection with Prattville. The town of Autauga is no more, the name having been changed to Prattville Junction.

Captain G. D. Parse, of Savannah, Ga., is in possession of the original duplicate copy of the thirteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which abolished slavery. He is exhibiting it at the Atlanta Exposition.

Since the silver craze has been quietly laid away, with no headstone to mark the place of its eternal rest, and cotton continues to sell for good prices, the country is restored to a feeling of tranquillity, unmarred by the shriek of the calamity howler.

The New York World publishes a list of American heiresses who have married foreign noblemen in the past twenty five years. Their combined dot amounts to one hundred and sixty one million one hundred and fifty three thousand dollars. The nobility comes high, but we must have it.

Compulsory insurance, according to the Literary Digest, has been in operation in Germany for some years. The laboring classes are compelled to take out insurance, so as to provide a fund against illness, accident and old age. According to statistics, much good has been done, and the charity organizations have been greatly relieved.

Fort Deposit takes the cake on the baby record. Last Tuesday Mrs. Hattimer, of that place, gave birth to two boys and a girl, the following day Mrs. Hunter was the happy mother of three boys, and later on Mrs. Champion broke the record by bringing into the world two boys and two girls. The mothers and children are all doing well.

The people of Portland, Indiana, are nervy folks. They have decided to return to the primitive method of using candles in order to thwart the avariciousness of the Portland Natural Gas and Oil Co., who raised prices on them. The company was served with notice to turn off the gas from the entire town.

It seems to harrow the soul of the editor of the Banner because democrats are coming to this county, and especially because the VIEW, a democratic newspaper, which has been in existence for over eighteen years, and is the representative paper of the county, can not be made to die. This is a clear indication that public opinion is changing. Only a few years ago the Banner was launched on a wave of fanaticism, and has only been kept alive by breeding discontent among those who formerly were friends and neighbors. But the conditions, which made this would be newspaper, have undergone a radical change, and the Banner man is mad because the people are tired of dissension and strife and desire to return to the democratic party, which has always befriended them. It is well known, the Banner is a mere plea in abatement, to postpone the inevitable end, and the time is not far distant when it and the populite party will be things of the past in Chilton county. We are sorry for this quondam editer, but the people want rest and quiet, which they cannot obtain in the populite ranks. We came here to run a newspaper in a decent way, and not be abusing those who differ with us. We are perfectly satisfied with the condition of things, and are having more success with our enterprise than we hoped for. We did not start this fight, and it may not be amiss to say the hit dog always howls.

We fit our customers or we den,t sell, We are a little cranky on this fit question and we are still looking for some we cannot fit. Suits altered and pressed in our Tailoring Department free of chaage. ALEX RICE, Montgomery.

WITH OUR EXCHANGES.

It is possible the Monroe doctrine will at last furnish something upon which President Cleveland and The Democratic party can get together.—Huntsville Tribune.

No there are some "Democrats" who would refuse a free ticket to Paradise if they thought they were to travel in company with the President. So much for prejudice. —Montgomery News.

The dearest wheelwoman that we see is she who rides the U. S. model of the $ denomination and keeps abreast of the times with lovely grace. She don't wear bloomers either.—Alexander City Outlook.

Yes, Grover Cleveland did it. Of course he did. Just as soon as he left his fishing and came South, the great slump in the cotton market followed on his heels, and somebody lost about $4,000,000.—Alexander City Outlook

We sent the "devil" out the other day to make a small purchase and he was gone about forty-five minutes. We were giving him a raking over when he returned, and he gave as his reason that the house was so busy he had to wait all of that time for one of the clerks to get at leisure. We might have expected that, for it is a house that advertises—Union Springs Herald.

The latest effort to distribute the population of the globe according to religions has been made by the Deutsche Kirchenzeitung, and results as follows:

Protestant Christians, 200,000,000 Roman Catholic Christians, 195,000,000; Greek Catholic Christians, 105,000,000; total Christians, 500,000,000. Jews, 8,000,000; Mahomedans, 180,000,000; heathens, 812,000,000; total non-Christians, 1,000,000,000. The total population of the earth is estimated at 1,500,000,000 distributed as follows: Europe 381,000,000; Africa 127,000,000; Asia 854,000,000; Australia 4,730,000; America, 133,670,000; total, 1,5000,000.

The welcome given by the Atlanta Constitution in 1887 on the occasion of the visit of the president of the United States was cordial, and the tribute paid to his merits was true. That tribute is just as true to-day, for Grover Cleveland has not changed. We print it elsewhere. Again the president has come to Atlanta. He is the nation's president, a man who would be conceded a great character at any time or place, but above all he is the chief citizen of this republic. The Constitution gives him the welcome of silence, thus proving that its peanut soul is just big enough to cause it to be a disgrace to Atlanta, to Georgia and to the South. The painted savage, the swarthy Hotentot, the untamable Bedouin—all these, wretched as they are as specimens of the human race, have and obey laws of hospitality, and whoever comes as guest, whether friend or foe, may count upon their courtesy. How brilliant is the conduct of these Ishmaelite outcast of the world in comparison with that of this misrepresentative of Southern journalism!—Mobile Register.

One of the most interesting exhibits in the exposition is that of the Alabama Fruit Growing and Nursery Association, of Fruithurst, Ala., in the west wing of the Alabama building. This association shows a complete miniature 10 acre vineyard, 20x12 in size, made entirely of earth, real vines trellised, etc, it being a reproduction of their ten acre tracts that pay from one to two thousand dollars income yearly, yet sell from four to five hundred dollars less than the cost of a reasonable sized farm. Those interested in a home in the south, at a small cost, should see their fine exhibition of the possibilities of fruit culture in eastern Alabama, in the Alabama building, east of the government building.—Atlanta Constitution.

One Bob Cornelius, who has been working for Mr. R. J. Stephenson, near Danville, for three years or more, and who married Miss Letsy Colquit last December, soon became jealous of her, and within five months drove her from his home. On Monday the 14th he borrowed a gun and intercepting his wife on her way from Danville home, forced her into a thicket and throwing her on the ground attempted to cut her throat. He no doubt thought he had killed her, as the wound reached from ear to ear. The unfortunate woman is now believed to be recovering. Cornelius passed through Moulton the day following the act, and is now supposed to be in Sheffield.—Moulton Advertiser.

Mrs. Callahan, widow of the late Griffin Callahan, living some eight miles southeast of Evergreen, is a woman of a thousand. For two years her husband, until his death, a few weeks ago, was a helpless invalid. During that time Mrs. Callahan was only nurse and support. She patiently and lovingly ministered to all his wants, day and night, and with that same hand, so fair and tender when he won it, which portioned his medicine, and smoothed the hair from his fevered brow, she found time to plant the garden and till the field. Last year, all alone she made and harvested a bountiful support, and this fall she has gardened more than a years supply of corn, peas and potatoes, and other products of farm and garden. In the mean time she has kept up the farm and recovered the house without the assistance of a day's work.—Evergreen Courant.

A close observer of contemporary history has noticed that nearly all the sovereigns of Europe rise early. It may be that, in these days of revolution and the spread of Democratic ideas among the masses, the crowned heads are anxious each day to see by the dawn's early light if their crowns are still there.—Baltimore American.

Application to sell lands.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County, Probate Court.

To whom it may concern whereas Wm. Lawrence Administrator of the estate of W. S. Lawrence deceased has filed his application in said court for a sale of the lands described therein belonging to the estate of said decedant for the purpose of paying debts upon the grounds that the personal property of said estate is insufficient for the payment of the debts thereof and the 6th. day of November 1895, has been appointed for the hearing of said application.

You are therefore hereby notified to appear before said court on said 6th day of November 1895 to contest said application if you think proper.

Witness my hand this the 7th day of Oct. 1895.

Measures of Values.

A dollar is not a measure of length, breadth, thickness or weight, but of value. A measure of length, breadth and thickness must have standard length in order to be a true measure. A measure of weight must have true weight, but when it comes to considering what shall be the requisite quality of a measure of value the free silver people say that value is of no moment, remarks the Mobile Register; that if it have a certain name stamped on it and be called a true measure of value it will be a true measure of value. This is as absurd as would be an attempt to call a yard stick of 30 inches a true measure of length, or a pound of ten ounces weight a true measure of weight. The only true measure of value is a measure which contains full value. Any other sort of a measure which is offered as a true measure is false and will be rejected by the people.—Floridian.

Money Only a Tool.

"Money is the lifeblood of trade" is a favorite fallacy of the silverites and fiat money inflationists. This idea arises from ignorance of the real nature of the operations of industry and commerce. Money is merely one of the tools of business. Its functions have no resemblance to that of the blood in the human system. It does nothing to replace goods which have been consumed, nor does it of itself produce anything or add to the wealth of the country. The real lifeblood of business is the volume of the products of farm, mine or workshop continuously flowing all over the country. They furnish us with the means of subsistence, renew our strength and minister in a thousand ways to our necessities and comforts. They are the true lifeblood of trade.

Result Would Be Disaster.

The Richmond Dispatch (Dem.), which favors international bimetallism, declares that "unlimited free coinage at a ratio of 16 to 1 of all the silver which would under the operation of such a ratio be carried to the mints for recoinage would result in universal disaster."

Cotton is advancing and the free silver craze is declining.

The Free Silver Chimera.

The ridiculous attempt of the silver contingent to commit the United States to free coinage—to the exchange of 50 cents' worth of silver for a dollar in gold—rivals in its absurdity and enthusiasm the wildest chimera of romantic fiction. It carries us back to the fond but futile search for the fountain of everlasting youth, to the medieval alchemists theory of the transmutation of metals and to the beautiful mythological story of Midas and the golden touch.—Philadelphia Record.

WHAT THEY SAY
OF THE ELECTROPOISE

The Electropoise has relieved me of a throat affection that has baffled all treatment and has annoyed me for more than forty years. Very respectfully, T. T. Tunstall.
Mobile, Ala., Oct. 22, 1894.

I commenced the use of the Electropoise when I was in a weak nervous state, lying awake night after night until 2 o'clock. I commenced to sleep better almost immediately after beginning its use, and after three months felt that the Electropoise had paid for itself. Yours truly,
Mrs J. C. Barry.
Memphis, Tenn., March 5, 1895.

A relative of mine who was wounded during the war, and who never recovered from the effects of the wound, has been using my Electropoise, and he is now as well as he ever was. I recommend the Electropoise to all my friends.
Yours truly, W. B. McGee,
Tehula, Miss., Dec. 5, 1894.

I cannot say too much in favor of the Electropoise. Yours truly,
T. S. Jones,
Fannin, Tex., June 25, 1895.

After returning from Hot Spring about a year ago without a cure and as the last resort, I applied the Electropoise, and received a prompt cure of rheumatism. This same Electropoise has made many cures in other diseases, and the instrument will do all that is claimed for for it. Yours truly,
J. T. Stout.

There is no medicine so often needed in every home and so admirably adapted to the purposes for which it is intended, as Chamberlain's Pain Balm. Hardly a week passes but some member of the family has need of it. A toothache or headache may be cured by it. A touch of rheumatism or neuralgia quieted. The severe pain of a burn or scald promptly relieved and the sore healed in much less time than when medicine has to be sent for. A sprain may be promptly treated before inflammation sets in, which insures a cure in about one-third of the time otherwise required. Cuts and bruises should receive immediate treatment before the parts become swollen, which can only be done when Pain Balm is kept at hand. A sore throat may be cured before it becomes serious. A troublesome corn may be removed by applying it twice a day for a week or two. A lame back may be cured and several days of valuable time saved or a pain in the side or chest relieved without paying a doctor bill. Procure a 50 cent bottle at once and you will never regret it. For sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton and McNiell and Smith, Jemison, Ala.

LOCAL BREVITIES

Mr. Tipton Mullins was in town this week.

Miss French Evans has returned from the Atlanta Exposition.

Quite a number of our citizens went down on the excursion Sunday.

Look out for the clown in Hall and Showers' great 25 cent show.

Miss Blanche Foshee had the misfortune to fracture her arm Sunday.

Mr John Gullahorn, who has been living at Eufaula, in the Indian Territory, has returned home.

The trained horses and dogs will perform at Hall and Showers' 25 cent show.

Our former townsman, Mr. Joe Hester, who is now night operator at Helena, was visiting relatives in Clanton, Friday.

If you haven't the money to pay for a paper, bring something else, we believe in exchanging what we have to sell for something we want to buy

The admission price to the show next Tuesday will be only 25 cents, every body should attend.

Clanton has a new railroad agent. Mr. W. W. Dunkin having accepted the agency at Prattville, Mr. Geo. H Greene, who was at one time located at Verbena, will fill the vacancy here.

Those who paid railroad fare to Montgomery to see a show are now regretting it as they will have a chance to see one equally as good if not a better one for only 25 cents.

You are throwing money away if you miss this great sale. We have the largest Clothing stock in Alabama, and our prices are the lowest ever seen on earth. Alex Rice, Montgomery.

Mr. Sam Serratt, of Montgomery, the most popular man, perhaps, connected with the L. & N. railroad, is soon to be married to Miss Alita Barr..., one of Montgomery's fairest daughters.

The place to get your money's worth
And certainly a little more,
Is the place where people flock to
And is called Alex Rice's store,

The bicycle track at Verbena is a daisy and no mistake. The editor of THE VIEW was taken out to see it, by Mr. Jno. Forniss, who had it made, and it is a credit to Chilton county. It is as hard as asphalt, and its shape is such as to make it the fastest track in the State. Montgomery and Birmingham "scorchers" may be induced to race there and this would be mutually advantageous as Verbena is about half way ground.

What is
CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
DR. G. C. OSGOOD,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
DR. J. F. KINCHELOE,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. ARCHER, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

IF A MAN OFFERED YOU
GOLD DOLLARS AT 50 CENTS
APIECE, WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

OUR Buyer had a similar question to answer recently. The stock of several manufacturers had to be converted into cash. It did not take us long to make a trade. We bought about Forty to Fifty Thousand Dollars' worth of new, desirable merchandise for less than half its real value.

The goods are all in stock now; it is a case of Manufacturer and Importer paying the piper, and YOU enjoying the dance. Otherwise we couldn't afford to give you Two or Three Dollars' worth of Merchandise for One Dollar in CASH. If you can't save big money here, money can't be saved anywhere on earth, that's all. Remember that anything you buy of us and are not thoroughly satisfied with, we will cheerfully refund your money.

Force of Example.

"Like mistress, like maid," is a saying that is probably oftener true than "like master, like man." The story is told that Mdlle. Augustine Brohan, a celebrated French comedienne, who was extremely humane to all animals, no matter how humble, one day found a fly caught on her plate. She took it up tenderly with her thumb and finger and called her maid.

"Marie," she said, "take this fly—be careful, now, don't hurt him—and put him outdoors."

The girl took the fly and went away, but presently Mdlle. Brohan saw her standing near with a troubled expression on her face.

"Well, Marie," she said, "did you do as I told you?"

"No, mademoiselle, I've got the fly still; I couldn't venture to put him outdoors—it was raining and he might have taken cold!"

Electric Pugilist.

An electric device has been brought out for use in boxing, and is described as a registering armor for boxers. This device is a simple arrangement of belts which are strapped over the face and about the body. These straps contain electric push-buttons located at certain points, which are connected by wires to a register apparatus. In this way the practice of boxing can be reduced to a very scientific basis, and every hit scored when a point is made. The belts and buttons, of course, are cushioned, so that no blow can harm the body, and thus the practice of boxing has many unpleasant features eliminated therefrom.

VICTORIA AND HEALTH.

The Queen has taken a great fancy to Mme. Calve, the famous singer, and has, I hear, invited her to spend three days at Osborne House during the summer. As is very well known, Her Majesty is much interested in all matters connected with health, and the legend runs that, at their first interview, the Queen and the prima donna conversed, not about music, but invalidism, hysteria and the best methods for preserving the body in the finest condition. Her Majesty declared that the best air, and plenty of it in all weathers, was the speific for most of the ills that flesh is heir to, and Mme. Calve was of the same way of thinking.—The Gentlewoman.

FASHION NOTES.

Black soutache braids are the new trimmings for blacks wool gowns of serge and similar materials.

Box pleats are taking the place of godets to considerable extent, but not to the exclusion of the latter.

Golden brown camel's hair and turquoise blue silk are associated in a very stylish waist just completed.

When you wear one of those square collars, be sure it is fastened in place and not go about with it all askew.

Fancy crepes continue to be all the vogue. The latest is an airy nothing of lace, spangled with mock jewels.

Black, golden brown and dark green velvet capes of moderate length will be very much in evidence this autumn.

Crooked parasol sticks are out of date. The popular stick is long and slender with a small knob on the end.

Black mousseline de soie frills are used to trim the neck, flaps and wrists of white pique dresses for mourning wear.

Pale golden green will be a favorite tint among evening toilets. The taffetas in this shade are called Chartreuse silks.

Some of the new black hose are shot with different colored silks. Some of the tan color are also shot with green, blue or rose.

Large black velvet hats will be much worn this season. They will be trimmed with many patterns and also with flowers.

Velvets of every kind, plain, plaided, striped, chameleon, repped and moired, will all be in use for two seasons to come.

The jet passementerie Vandykes of the present season differ from those of the season just passed in that they are wider at the base.

Some of the latest costumes for the wheel are of dust-colored mohair and the leggings are of the same color. The costume is lined with silk.

Crush belts and collars made of richly colored plaid satin or taffeta silk will be very fashionable accessories on bodies of dark gowns.

American Wild Lilies.

The lily tribe has become so large and magnificent from the constant introduction of handsome varieties from Japan and elsewhere that we are inclined to overlook our beautiful native varieties. So many species found scattered all over Europe and Asia have been successfully grown in the United States that it is difficult to discover which of the species generally known really belong to the United States. The great popularity of this flower has induced dealers and growers to subdivide the species and multiply varieties to such an extent as to bewilder the amateur in making a selection. For instance, Henderson says that a prominent European house offers sixty different varieties of L. Thunbergium alone, and nearly as many of L. Candidum; L. Umbellatum has about thirty varieties, any one of which would well represent the family; and it is the same with many others. And taking the sixty or more species now well known, and subdivide these into from thirty to sixty varieties, and we can have a general idea of the great extent of this beautiful family. But, in spite of all this confusing beauty, we are ever ready to recognize the merits and admire the sturdy worth of our native lilies growing in wild profusion at this season. One of the prettiest August lilies is the dainty pink-and-white sort, which belongs to the speciosum family, with rose-colored petals, striped with white and spotted with crimson. Another well-known sort found growing wild is the yellow lily, commonly known as the tiger lily, which is in reality the native variety pardalinum, or leopard lily, found in both scarlet and yellow, spotted with rich brown. Our beautiful scarlet variety, the native Canadense, sends out numerous bright flowers of beautiful scarlet, with yellow throat, spotted with black.—Philadelphia Record.

The Egg Dance.

One of the most wonderful of the many feats performed by Hindoo jugglers, so the Philadelphia Times tells us, is the egg dance.

Usually it is executed by a girl, fantastically dressed. She makes use of the willow wheel, around which at equal distances are threads, and at the end of each thread there is a noose, held open by a bead.

This wheel the girl places on her head, while she carries a basket of eggs on her arm. When the music strikes up she begins to dance, and the wheel begins to spin around. She then takes an egg from the basket, places it in one of the thread nooses, and throws it from her with sufficient force to draw the knot tight. The spinning of the wheel keeps the thread stretched with the egg at the end of it.

She then takes another egg from the basket, places it in another noose, and repeats it until there is an egg in every noose. Her fantastic costume, her perfect motion and all the eggs swinging on the stretched thread at once, present a very pretty sight indeed. It requires much art to execute the dance, for at one false step the eggs would be dashed together, the dance spoiled and the dancer thereby disgraced.

After dancing for a time with all the eggs swinging around her head, she takes them out of the noose one by one, all the time keeping the wheel balanced and in motion, and again places them in a basket on her arm.

When the dance is finished the spectators are allowed to examine the eggs to see that they are real.

Dug Up a Jar Containing Old Coin.

Thomas Moore, Jr., and two other workmen, while excavating for pipe connections in Market square, in Chester, Penn., on Thursday morning, unearthed a small preserving jar, containing gold and silver Spanish coin, estimated to be worth at least $150. Some of the coin bore the date of 1800 and other pieces a later date. An old market house, erected in the last century, stood on the site where the money was found, and it was torn down in 1857. It is thought the money was buried by one of the marketmen.—Philadelphia Ledger.

HOUSEHOLD MATTERS.

HOW TO MAKE AN OMELET.

Three eggs separated, one tablespoon of flour, one small cup of milk, salt, pepper and either a finely chopped onion or parsley to the taste. Beat flour smooth in milk, add beaten yolks, and last of all stir in the whites beaten to a stiff froth. Have melted butter in a hot pan on top of stove and pour batter into it. When it is set and seems thick put it in the oven on the slide and let it finish baking. This is excellent.—St. Louis Star-Sayings.

BACON AND LIVER STEW.

Pour boiling water over a beef or calf liver, let stand one-half hour, then cut the liver with deep gashes, insert thin slices of bacon in these cuts and fasten in with tooth picks. Have three or four slices of bacon in the pot over a hot fire frying with an onion cut fine; when fried to a crisp put the liver in, cover tightly, let cook about ten minutes, turning often, then dredge well with flour, pour boiling water over till the liver is covered, put on the top of the stove where it will cook slowly. Cook three hours, a nice brown gravy will be done with the liver.—Womankind.

CONSOMME.

Four pounds beef, one ounce suet, one small onion, three quarts cold water, four cloves, one small carrot, a piece of celery, one egg white. Cut into dice four pounds of lean beef from the round, put suet and onion sliced into the soup kettle and cook until a good brown, then add the meat, cook without covering thirty minutes. Add the cold water; cover the kettle and simmer gently for about three hours; at the end of this time add cloves, carrot, celery. Simmer an hour. Strain and cool. Remove all grease. Turn the consomme into a kettle, beat the egg white with half a cup of water; add; boil; strain; season; serve.

EGG AND FISH SANDWICHES.

To make an egg and fish sandwich pound the yolks of five hard-boiled eggs and the white of one in a mortar. Add about as much anchovy as you have eggs, and mix in the mortar. Add to this mixture a teaspoonful of butter to every yolk of egg. When it is a smooth mass spread it on brown bread cut to the regulation thickness of an eighth of an inch. The Norwegian anchovies that come in a keg are considered better than those that come in a bottle, already boned. Take the little fishes out of the keg, a few at a time, soak them in cold water for two hours or longer, open them and remove the backbone. After cleaning them well lay them in a dish covered with sweet oil until needed.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Vaseline makes the best dressing for russet shoes.

Dust may best be removed from silk by a soft cloth.

To destroy flies use strong, cold, sweetened green tea.

Before boiling smoked ham soak it in cold water for twenty-four hours. It should be entirely covered.

One of the errors of womankind, particularly the busy housewife, is the depriving herself of plenty of fresh air and sunshine.

With a nice, clear fire five minutes is sufficient time for broiling a beef steak one inch thick. It should be turned several times during the process rather than but once.

Wash your flannels when the sun shines and in cold water and they will be sweet and will not shrink. After they are thoroughly rinsed (and in cold water, too) hang them up to dry without wringing at all.

French toast is a delectable item of the breakfast menu. It is prepared in the following way: Beat two eggs to a froth, add half a cup of milk and in this dip slices of stale white bread; brown in butter and serve hot with maple syrup.

For salmon patties, served in china cases, take half a can of salmon, flake, and mix with half a pint of cream thickened with a spoonful of butter rolled in corn starch; season with salt, pepper, lemon juice and a few olives chopped fine.

Wash one gallon of green grapes. Cover with water and cook till you can mash them; pour into your jelly bag and strain. To each pint of juice add one pint of granulated sugar; boil ten minutes, very fast, and it is ready to pour into glasses.

The outside fat of mutton and lamb should be shaved away, after it is cooked and before it cools, if the strong taste that is peculiar to this meat is not liked. It is the oil of the wool, whose roots are in this fleshy part, that produces this unpleasant flavor.

A sign of advancing age almost as inevitable as the crease in the neck is the gradual receding of the gums from the teeth. To counteract this tendency an astringent tooth wash should be occasionally used. The teeth should, moreover, be brushed crosswise and down rather than up.

Apple float is most appetizing. It should be made of tart apples. After they are stewed thoroughly press them through a sieve and add sugar, being careful not to get in too much. When cold, to a quart of fine pulp add the well beaten whites of four eggs and whip until light. Flavor with lemon and serve with cream.

A good drink for persons troubled with prickly heat is made by pouring a pint of boiling water on two teaspoonfuls of cream tartar and adding sugar to suit the taste. If this agrees with the system drink frequently of it. One excellent cook puts half a dozen green grapes into her huckleberry pie to make it a trifle more tart.

Every careful housekeeper has on hand a quantity of salted cucumbers for use in winter in making salads and for filling meats and sauces. When packing place at the bottom a layer of grape leaves and then alternately a layer of cucumbers and a layer of spices. For the brine allow one pound of salt to seven quarts of water.

Telephone Newspaper.

The telephone newspaper organized at Pesth, Hungary, has now been working successfully for two years. It is called the Telephone Hirnondo, or Herald, costs 2 cents, like a printed paper, and is valuable to persons who are unable or too lazy to use their eyes, or who cannot read.

It has 6,000 subscribers, who receive the news as they would ordinary telephone messages. A special wire 168 miles long runs along the windows of the houses of subscribers, which are connected with the main line by separate wires and special apparatus which prevents the blocking of the system by an accident at any of the stations. Within the houses, long, flexible wires make it possible to carry the receiver to the bed or any other part of the room.

The news is not delivered as it happens to come in, but is carefully edited and arranged according to a printed schedule, so that a subscriber at any time knows what part of the paper he is going to hear.

It begins with the night telegrams from all parts of Europe. Then comes the calendar of events for the day, with the city news and the list of strangers at the hotels. After that follows articles on music, art and literature.

The staff is organized like that of any other newspaper, and is on duty from 7:30 in the morning until 9:30 o'clock at night. After the copy has passed through the editor's hands, for the paper is subject to the same restrictions as ordinary newspapers, and is liable for its communications, it is given to the "speakers." These are ten men with strong voices and clear enunciation, who work in shifts of two at a time and talk the news through the telephone.

There are twenty-eight editions uttered a day. Additions to the first edition are announced as news items.

To fill the time when no news is coming in the subscribers are entertained with vocal and instrumental concerts. These were at first given for them especially in the office of The Hirnondo, but now the wire is in communication with the opera house and the music halls, and on Sundays and saints' days with the churches.

The music is transmitted at times to other places in Austro-Hungary, and recently The Hirnondo michrophone was connected with the circuit going from Trieste, through Vienna, Bremen and Pesth to Berlin, the music being heard in all these places with equal clearness and force.

The happy Hungarian can lie abed all day and hear everything that is going on his town.—New York Sun.

Lead Us Not Into Temptation.

First Brother (at Ocean Grove)—Good morning, brother! What a perfect divine Sabbath morning! What a truly religious feeling pervades this holy spot! It was a heaven-born idea for the founders to lock the gates on the Sabbath morning, and thus shut out sin and worldly business.

Second Brother—Amen, Brother! Amen! But whither dost thou journey?

First Brother—Oh, I'm going over to Asbury Park to purchase milk and Sunday papers. Where do you go?

Second Brother—I'm going over there, too. I want to get some bread for breakfast.—Puck.

European Railways.

The British public and press are highly incensed at Andrew Carnegie's statement that it would pay England to burn up her railroad equipment and replace it with American models. European railway managers are also commencing to wake up to the necessity of contributing somewhat to the comfort of their passengers, but unfortunately commence where the Americans left off a dozen years ago, as is instanced by the following extract from an exchange:

"Having long recognized the inadequacy of foot-warmers as a means of heating railway carriages, says The London Daily Telegraph, the directors of the Great Western railway determined when building their first corridor train in the spring of 1892 to provide it with appliances for warming the vehicles by the employment of steam from the locomotive. This train has been running on the Paddington, Birmingham and Birkenhead service for more than two years, and the improved system of warming having proved entirely successful, the additional corridor trains which have subsequently been provided and are now running between London and Torquay and Plymouth and Penzance, and between London and South Wales, have been similarly fitted with equally satisfactory results."

Nothing to complain of —the woman who uses Pearline. Nothing to complain of in the washing and cleaning line, anyway. And certainly the proprietors of Pearline can't complain. If you only knew how many women, every day, are making up their minds that the old, wearing, tearing, tiresome way of washing doesn't pay!

It's growing bigger than ever—the success of Pearline; though it has to fight not only against all kinds of poor imitations, but against a sort of superstition that anything which can save so much labor must be harmful in some way.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled; if your grocer [illegible] you an imitation, be honest—send it back. 480 JAMES PYLE, New York.

CHAPTER I.

[illegible] this [illegible] upon the [illegible] I [illegible] the [illegible] turned [illegible] right [illegible] better view [illegible]

[illegible] and for the first [illegible] stood near

[illegible] Back again, [illegible] flesh."

[illegible] interested.

[illegible] the detective, together [illegible] things that could [illegible] seemed to [illegible] beyond [illegible]

[illegible] pale [illegible] curiosity, I would [illegible] showing Mr. Ketcham [illegible]

[illegible] for you, Doctor, that [illegible]."

"[illegible], sir."

"[illegible] Dr. Seabury?"

[illegible] heard much of [illegible] personal acquaint[illegible]

[illegible] the name of a physician [illegible] knowledge in the [illegible]

[illegible] had been any case in [illegible] present or ancient, [illegible] to him, could not be [illegible]

[illegible] said no more.

[illegible] left to take it for granted that I [illegible] a co-laborer with the great [illegible] Seabury upon some intricate [illegible]

[illegible] thought flattered me.

[illegible] I had never had any personal acquaintance with the old gentleman, I was following in his footsteps, having [illegible] toxicology or the science of poisons [illegible] relation to the human body my [illegible]

[illegible] must have heard of me, then, and [illegible] assistance on some point on [illegible] he was not positive, had sent for [illegible]

[illegible] see Mr. Ketcham's eyes upon me every little while.

[illegible] he wondered why I refrained [illegible] asking questions; but I had read my [illegible], and knew that the easiest [illegible] his regard was silence and self-possession at all times.

[illegible] I determined to be surprised at nothing, no matter what might happen.

[illegible] rattle and bang caused by such [illegible] progress over the stony streets was [illegible] being conducive to comfort, [illegible] if one were inclined to talk.

[illegible] length the vehicle drew up close to the [illegible]

"Here we are, Doctor," said the detective, as he opened the door he had been nervously fingering, and leaped out.

I followed more sedately, as I had a couple of small cases to look after.

Glancing up, I discovered that we were before a house that was peculiar, not only in itself but because its class is almost obsolete in New York, where every foot of ground is worth a great deal of money.

The house fronted on the street, but it had a side yard, which was, I had no doubt, a garden, although a high wall prevented me from making sure of this.

I could just catch a glimpse of a stable in the rear.

We walked up the steps.

Mr. Ketcham opened the front door in a free and easy manner that told he was perfectly familiar with its working.

There was not a soul in the hall.

The gas burned dimly.

A glance around showed me that it was the abode of one who certainly possessed wealth, and who had traveled a great deal, for every foot of space seemed to have some valuable [illegible] lot of bric-a-brac, [illegible] taste and [illegible] during years spent abroad.

"Upstairs, Doctor," [illegible]

I followed.

My feet [illegible] carpets [illegible] passing [illegible] of the popular Eastern [illegible] seemed [illegible] more than Oriental [illegible]ish taste.

Mr. Ketcham [illegible]

The chamber was [illegible] being around [illegible] me at first.

A soft light [illegible] apartment [illegible]

[illegible]

I started [illegible]

[illegible]

I scarcely [illegible] ness when [illegible]

He dropped [illegible]

"Turn the lamp up, Doctor."

I examined the remarkable lamp; it certainly had been [illegible], for its [illegible] I had never before seen [illegible]

"Now, [illegible] draw [illegible]"

His voice was [illegible]

Mr. Ketcham's words were [illegible] as curtains to the bed.

What was about to meet my gaze?

Was there a horrible sight [illegible] behind that screen?

The rich Oriental [illegible] try to my excited [illegible] be as a writhing mass of [illegible] serpents twining about [illegible] the rustling of the autumn-tinted leaves outside the open window [illegible] into their hissing.

With an effort of my will I laid hold upon the curtains.

"Draw it back, Doctor," said Mr. Ketcham, quietly.

I did so.

The curtain was hung upon rings that glided along a silver rod attached to the sides of the canopy overhead, [illegible] a rough massive and richly carved [illegible] antique pattern.

It was occupied.

Upon the pillow rested the head of an elderly man, with a snow-white [illegible] and a grand face, which seemed stamped with the seal of death.

In that moment of silence I felt that I could hear the beating of my heart, while the ticking of the little ormolu clock upon the ebony secretary in one corner of the chamber sounded as the pounding of a great hammer.

For a short space of time I gazed almost in stupefaction at the face of the dead.

Then, breaking from the spell that had come upon me, I started back with a low cry.

Mr. Ketcham sat there by the table, his hand toying with a paper cutter in the form of a dagger, and his eyes fixed, not on me, but upon a certain spot upon the ceiling.

This was a favorite attitude of his, and he assumed it generally when cross-questioning a man.

Then, again, he had a way of bringing those keen orbs of his suddenly to bear upon the face of the party opposite him, and at such times they seemed to blaze and pierce into the very soul, as though he strove to read one's thoughts.

Controlling myself as well as I was able under the peculiar circumstances of the case, I walked toward the table and quietly sat down in a chair that seemed to invite occupancy.

"Doctor, you are surprised?" he said, at last, coolly, as he turned his head and looked at me with a smile.

I might have denied the soft impeachment, but of what avail?

"Mr. Ketcham, I admit it. I am both surprised and mystified."

"You are no worse off than myself. Remember what I told you. There is a strange marvel here that will require much hard work to solve it."

"Will you throw some light upon the subject—why am I brought here?"

"All in good time, Doctor. You have seen the old gentleman who lies yonder?" with a motion of the thumb toward the bed.

"I have."

"Do you recognize him?"

"Certainly."

"Beyond all reason of doubt?"

"It is Dr. Seabury himself."

Mr. Ketcham rubbed his hands and smiled.

CHAPTER II.

In the daily pursuit of his business the old detective saw so much of death that he was not apt to be deeply impressed in the presence of the grim monster.

I soon discovered this fact.

"When you mentioned the name of the old Doctor, I thought you were taking me to have a consultation with him."

A dry chuckle was the only answer.

"If he is dead, I do not see what good a doctor would be. A detective might prove of more assistance to you, sir."

His eyes were searching the figures of the paper on the ceiling.

"That's where you mistake, Doctor. I [illegible] called on a detective to aid [illegible], but more than once I have [illegible] assisted by a lawyer or a doctor. [illegible] present instance you have [illegible] which I hasten to correct. [illegible] call you in to consult [illegible] physician, nor even to ad[illegible] antidote, as you may have [illegible] asking you to fetch [illegible], for even at that moment [illegible], beyond all shadow of [illegible] renowned old Dr. Seabury [illegible] man."

"[illegible], Mr. Ketcham, but [illegible] did you call me in for? [illegible] after death comes."

"[illegible] to save, perhaps, but not to [illegible] arm of legal vengeance."

[illegible] words sounded like the [illegible]

[illegible] something back of this. I [illegible] natural death, or, at [illegible] de. His words suggested [illegible]

"[illegible] am I to infer that a [illegible] committed here?"

[illegible] for evidences of murder.

[illegible]

"[illegible] must tell me [illegible] strange thing, [illegible] in the dark."

"[illegible] mean you shall, Doctor. [illegible] little things which you [illegible] out the main part [illegible] yours. Sit down [illegible] enough for work."

[illegible] in the easy chair, and [illegible]

[illegible] was a good story-[illegible] slow and impressive, [illegible] strong points in [illegible] that forced [illegible]

"I [illegible] Seabury for some [illegible] office one [illegible] personal acquaintance, [illegible] I had made use of him [illegible] capacity on several [illegible] had come to respect him [illegible]

"[illegible] had thrown myself on a [illegible] without more than kicking [illegible], so that in one minute I [illegible] street and running for all [illegible] this direction.

"[illegible] time, and in not more [illegible] reached the house.

"[illegible] Doctor had shown me how to [illegible] and I entered quietly.

"[illegible] still as a graveyard, and to [illegible] suggestive.

"[illegible] in the lower hall was always turned low all night, so I easily [illegible] way up stairs.

"[illegible] which we used in entering, [illegible] on the inside.

"[illegible]stened, but could not hear even the [illegible] sound.

"The Doctor had shown me a means of [illegible] his office and study adjoining [illegible] by way of a closet in an old [illegible] room next to it.

"When I entered here that window was open as you see it, the lamp flared and flickered in the draught, and the old [illegible] lay there—dead.

"At first I thought he might have felt the pangs of approaching dissolution, and, lacking the power to cry out, had pressed the knob in the wall beyond the [illegible], which sounded the alarm in my den.

"A minute's examination convinced me that such was not the case, for in his other hand, tightly pressed, he held this odd little flask—a miniature phial."

He handed it to me.

It was made of crystal, and contained a few grains of powder.

I drew out the stopper and smelled of the contents, feeling rather than seeing the eyes of Mr. Ketcham upon me.

"You recognize the scent, Doctor?" he asked, somewhat eagerly for him.

"I do, emphatically."

"It is an odor which, once caught, can never be mistaken. Am I right?"

"Perfectly so, Mr. Ketcham."

"What is it that crystal phial contains?"

"I am almost ready to swear a few grains of a most singular and deadly poison found in the Pyramids of Egypt—a poison that has baffled the known world to tell the origin of or find an antidote for. Dr. Seabury himself offered no means of determining its origin, which is lost in mystery."

"I thought so. Just such a poison, then, as a man might take if he desired to baffle the skill of the best physicians?"

I shrugged my shoulders.

"It is certain death."

"Go near the bed again and bend over the dead man. See if you can detect this odor about his lips."

I did so, and reported in the affirmative.

Dr. Seabury had undoubtedly taken this most fatal of poisons with suicidal intent.

As this fact became apparent to me, I began to feel master of the situation. All that Mr. Ketcham had said now dwindled into insignificance before the report of my superior wisdom.

For the moment I was puffed up with a sense of my importance. Mr. Ketcham did not glance at me, but I knew he was well aware of my condition.

Afterward, looking back, I wondered how it was he did not literally jab a knife into the balloon of self-importance I had inflated, and allow it to collapse.

I was indebted to him for letting me down easy.

"Doctor, how about this poison; does it leave any traces behind?" he asked.

"That is the peculiar part of it, Mr. Ketcham. It assimilates with the blood, and passes at once into the system; while it kills the action of the heart in from ten seconds to a minute. It would be impossible for the most learned physician to state positively that the man had not died from a natural cause—disease of the heart."

The old detective gave a whistle.

"A most dangerous dust to fall into the hands of an unscrupulous man."

"He would become a modern male Borgia, undoubtedly."

"Still the odor seems to linger, Doctor."

"It will for some time; but it would not be recognized by any physician who had not received a special training in this line of his business."

"I presume, Doctor, on the face of this matter, you are disposed to call it a suicide?"

"Undoubtedly, sir."

"And would return home with that conviction."

"If you are done with me."

"I might get on without your assistance from this point on, but for several reasons, which I will not state, I prefer that you remain with me."

"As you will, sir."

"To begin with, Doctor, how about this poison—I have known those that clogged the action of the heart to discolor the skin upon the left chest, as the returning blood failed to find an outlet from the pumping ventricle of the heart."

"I have never heard of that being the case with this poison, sir."

"It would surprise you then to find that such was the case?"

"Very much, indeed."

"Perhaps another thing would astonish you considerably. Listen to me, Doctor. When Dr. Seabury snatched up that crystal phial and swallowed a small part of the contents, his horrified eyes rested upon the face of the party he had so long feared, and who had followed him about over most of the world."

His voice was calm, his words impressive.

They struck me forcibly, and I looked at Mr. Ketcham with great wonder.

"Are you sure of that, sir?"

"I am in possession of facts which warrant me in saying, beyond all shadow of doubt, that some agile party climbed up the vines clinging to the side of the wall of the house, and crept in at the window.

"When the old Doctor saw them, the scare caused him to swallow the poison, which he kept near him for the purpose, and then striking the electric bell in the wall, summoned me to avenge if too late to save."

"Avenge! Why, sir, you say he died by his own hand. Then how could you avenge such a work? The deed is beyond your reach, even did the law allow it."

"It all depends whether the poison had time to kill him. Please be so kind as to look for the dark traces above his heart, of which I spoke."

I jumped to my feet, feeling that there was a hidden meaning in his words.

A minute later I gave vent to a low cry that told of amazement.

I had made a discovery.

CHAPTER III.

Mr. Ketcham did not leave his chair. His positive gaze was fastened upon the ceiling, as though those mystic lines and writhing serpents held him enthralled.

I had found the old Doctor's night-dress opened at the throat, and when I bared his left chest, according to directions, I made the discovery that brought forth the low cry from my lips.

"Ah, Doctor, is it as I mentioned?" asked the detective, calmly.

"No, sir."

"Still you seem to be much perturbed over something."

"I have come upon a fact that I fancy must have been known to you, sir."

"Indeed; what is that?"

"I see upon the white garment, just over his heart, what appears to be a drop of blood, hardly dry."

"Examine it closer, Doctor."

"Great heaven! Sir, the garment has been punctured by some small weapon, not much thicker than a darning needle."

Still he was unmoved.

His eyes persisted in remaining glued upon the fantastic figures above.

"It stands to reason, Doctor, according to my idea, that any weapon to have punctured the linen and drawn blood must have entered the flesh."

I bent my head lower to examine.

Not satisfied, I went over to my case, and, taking out a probe, proceeded to investigate more fully.

The case was certainly becoming more intensely interesting as we proceeded, and I could now confess that there was, indeed, more about it than had appeared on the surface.

I vividly remembered what this old and veteran detective had declared with regard to the mystery—that it gave promise of proving the most remarkable one that had ever crossed his path.

In two minutes I had arrived at a certain conclusion.

"It is as I suspected, sir."

"Ah! Doctor, tell me what you have discovered."

"There is a small but deep puncture of a peculiar nature just at this point."

"From your observations, what would you imagine had caused the wound?"

"I have seen a dagger, called by the Malays a creese, that would be apt to make such a wound."

He smiled broadly at my words, and I knew I had echoed some thought of his.

"Doctor, you builded better than you knew that time. Do you know whether the weapon went into the heart?"

"Of course only a post-mortem examination could prove that, but I have no reason to doubt it."

"Then why did not the blood gush out?"

"The strange weapon was immediately withdrawn, and, the lips of the wound closing, the blood flowed inwardly."

"My conclusion exactly, Doctor. Now, I wish to put a question which will require a moment's thought on your part to answer. Are you ready?"

"Proceed, Mr. Ketcham?"

"According to your professional knowledge, keeping all the facts of the case before your mind, is there any positive way of learning this important point, viz.:"—and his quick eyes were glued upon my face—"had the deadly poison time to work before that Malay creese was buried momentarily in his heart?"

This was a technical problem, but I had already solved it to my own satisfaction.

AN Indiana couple were engaged for seventeen years, and three days after the marriage ceremony applied for a divorce. This is marrying at leisure and repenting in haste.

EARTH TREMBLED.

EARTHQUAKE SHOCKS FELT FROM OCEAN TO OCEAN.

People Rush From Their Houses in Alarm--Damage Very Slight.

Earthquake shocks were felt throughout the United States from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Maine to the Gulf at about five o'clock Thursday morning. At many places three distinct shocks were felt. The first was preceded by a mighty roar like that of distant thunder. This shock lasted fully 20 seconds, and a second and third, not quite so violent, lasted about 12 seconds. The vibrations were from southeast to northwest.

Advices received from nearly every city in the United States show that the disturbance was general over a large area of country. In the larger cities tall buildings were rocked and violently shaken, causing the inhabitants to rush from them in alarm. Although the quake caused considerable fright and apprehension the damage was very slight. The only report of a serious nature was received from Gadsden, Ala., which was to the effect that several houses were wrecked and a number of people injured.

A special from Jackson, Miss., states that the force of the shock was so great that a number of buildings were rocked perceptibly. Should the shocks occur again it is feared that the capitol building will collapse, there already being some cracks a foot wide in the walls of the third story, and the building generally is in a state of decay and a constant source of danger to the employes.

FAILED TO FIGHT.

Gov. Clarke Balks the Pugilists--Corbett Claims the Forfeit.

A special from Hot Springs says: The long looked for day has come and gone and still the championship of the world is in doubt. Corbett and Fitzsimmons did not fight Thursday nor Thursday night and the chances are not at all favorable for a fight.

Corbett is in Hot Springs and Fitzsimmons is in Little Rock. While it is true that the Australian has a long reach, he cannot reach to Hot Springs. Governor Clarke pulled Fitz and Julian in at Little Rock Thursday morning.

Corbett was driven out at 11:30 a. m. to Whittington park. As he stepped from the carriage upon the temporary stage he announced to the birds in the trees that he had fulfilled his share of the agreement to the letter and claimed the forfeit from the Florida Athletic club. Then he re-entered the carriage and went back to the town, still claiming to be the heavyweight champion of the world.

The present programme is for them to fight next Wednesday. But Governor Clarke expects to wear them out and make them so disgusted by prosecutions that they will hunt another state for the fight or give it up altogether.

From all appearances Fitzsimmons will not be at liberty to participate in a prize fight for several days to come. The legal proceedings indicate that while Judge Martin will not strain the law against the lengthly Australian neither will he hurry the proceedings along in order to oblige the pugilistic contingent. If this view of the case is correct, Fitzsimmons may be detained for a week while the attorney general and the lawyers for the Hot Springs Athletic Club argue the legal points.

SPENCER AT SAVANNAH.

Making Preparations for Transferring the Central to New Owners.

President Samuel Spencer, of the Southern railway, arrived in Savannah Tuesday night to confer with Receiver Comer with regard to the transfer of the Central railroad system to its new owners. The transfer will take place, according to the order of the court, at 12 o'clock on the night of October 31st. The necessary circulars will be issued in accordance with that order. The receivers will issue a circular announcing the transfer and stating that they have discharged every person in their employ, and the new company will issue a circular announcing that it has taken charge of the property and re-employing everybody that the receivers discharge.

OWNED TOO MUCH LAND.

Thorpe Bought 1,400 Acres and the Enraged People Burn His Houses.

William Thorpe, a wealthy railroad contractor, with an office at 45 Broadway, New York, recently purchased fourteen hundred acres of land in the lower part of Luzurne county, Pa.

He erected a number of buildings, planted trees and built fences. The buildings have been destroyed by incendiaries, the trees torn up, and the fences destroyed.

Detectives are now at work on the case. It is alleged that some people living in the vicinity said after Mr. Thorpe had made his purchase that fourteen hundred acres of land was too much for one man to own.

MORE LINES TO BE BUILT.

Rio Grande Western Company to Construct Extensions in the Spring.

General Manager Dodge and Traffic Manager Babcock, of the Rio Grande Western, announce that their company has decided to resume building operations with the opening of spring. The road will be built to Los Angeles, on the line originally surveyed.

"ATLANTA DAY."

The Whole City Turns Out to Take In the Exposition.

Not in the history of the city of Atlanta has there ever been such an outpouring of her population as on last Thursday, "Atlanta Day." Whitehall street, always the gayest thoroughfare of the city, presented only a long series of barred and locked doors, and the patrolmen along the retail street street were trying the doors, just as they do when coming in on the night watch. The only place where the usual life and stir was seen was in the neighborhood of the union depot, where steady streams of people poured out into Wall street from the main entrance, and where the call and cry of the porter was heard as loud and boisterous as usual. Alabama street, the street of banks and wholesale stores, was deserted.

No smoke came from the tall chimneys of the cotton factories, and the hum of industry was hushed, and throughout the city the trip hammers, the forges, the lathes were still, and a silence like that of Sunday hung over the city.

When the weather man announced over the telephone in the early morning that he was unable to announce anything favorable in reference to the weather, one was inclined to believe him. When the daylight opened it was one of the dampest, most disagreeable, most penetrating days that Atlanta had seen in a long time—and as it turned out, Atlanta day, the day of all days, proved to be the most disagreeable since the exposition opened.

And yet there was every indication at noon of the largest attendance which has yet favored the exposition. When the people awoke on the murky morning, they found out that the day would not be postponed and they determined to make the most of it.

The Crowds Poured Out.

They had a holiday on their hands, they knew that the great buildings would be ample to shelter them, and with the true Atlanta spirit they made for the exposition gates. The weather did not affect the crowds as much as one might suppose and while, of course, on a bright and cloudless day many more would have gone, the people poured in steady streams through the entrances, and the great obstacles notwithstanding, Atlanta day was, indeed, the red letter day of the fair.

CULBERSON IS INDIDNANT.

Tells the Sheriff He Should Prosecute the Lynchers of the Negro at Tyler.

Governor Culberson was very indignant over the news from Tyler of the burning of the negro there last Tuesday. He received a telegram Wednesday night from the sheriff giving meagre details of the affair and the governor sent a caustic reply, saying:

"It was your duty to protect this prisoner at any cost. Why did you not do so? Having failed in this affair in so violating all law and so subversive of civil order, nothing should now deter you from the prompt performance of the duty to promptly prosecute all persons engaged in this homicide and report them to the grand jury. In this you should not hesitate or falter and if any aid is needed from me in the discharge of this duty it will be furnished to the limit of my authority. The crime of the prisoner, if guilty, is the most revolting known to us, but the law provides adequate punishment and a safe and orderly method of determining guilt."

READY FOR THE JURY.

Closing Argument Made in the Durant Murder Case.

District Attorney Barnes made the closing argument in the Durant case, Wednesday morning. He said: "The individual who perpetrated the hideous murder with which the defendant stands charged, and which has harrowed the soul and frozen the blood of this community is no ordinary criminal; and his crime in every aspect in which it may be considered, is without a parallel."

Mr. Barnes, after hurling the most scathing invectives upon the prisoner's head, closed with an eloquent appeal to the jury to avenge the murder of Blanche Lamont and protect the women and girls of the state by returning a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree, with the penalty of death.

A. P. A. FIXED PLACES.

Candidates for Office First Applied to the Order's Secret Junta.

The Omaha (Neb.) Bee has created a political sensation in that city by publishing fac simile copies of the secret correspondence and archives of the executive council of the A. P. P., in which candidates for positions before the conventions and applicants for clerkships under city officers applied directly to the secret junta of the order as the initial step toward securing places. All the original rosters of the council and accumulated correspondence have been secured and the A. P. A. members are demoralized.

RIOT AMONG NEGROES.

Two Participants Were Killed and a Number Injured.

A bloody riot occurred among a crowd of negroes in Bossier Parish, La., fifteen miles from Shreveport, in which two were killed and several injured. A negro implicated in the killing has been arrested. He stated that his name was Albert Hicks and that he shot one of the negroes in self-defense. The shooting occured at a negro cabin at a plantation near Houghton, La. The cause of the trouble was a family row which ended in a general riot in which pistols were freely used.

CAPITAL NOTES.

GOSSIP OF WASHINGTON IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS.

Doings of the Chiefs and Heads of the Various Departments.

The president and Secretary of War Lamont have changed the name of Sandy Hook to Fort Hancock in honor of the late General Hancock. This action is taken on the recommendation of General Miles, commander of the department of the east.

Secretary Herbert has decided that in view of the agreement between the United States and Great Britain in respect to war vessels on the great lakes he could not award the contract for the construction of one of the gunboats authorized by last congress to the Detroit Dry Dock Company.

President and Mrs. Cleveland, their children and several servants moved from the white house Tuesday, bag and baggage, to Woodley, the president's country place, near Washington. They will make it their home until the social season begins. The president will go to the white house every day when his presence is necessary there.

Secretary Herbert has decided to build 100 rapid-fire naval landing guns, of the [illegible] pattern, at the Washington navy yard. This action was taken on the recommendation of Captain Sampson, chief of the bureau of ordnance, and against the protest of the [illegible] Ordnance Company. The ordnance company in its protest claims to have distanced its competitors in the trial conducted for the purpose of selecting a gun, and also in prices, it being the lowest bidder.

United States Consul Stephan, at Annaberg, in a report to the state department, quotes Ernest Faber, the well known pencil maker, as deploring the condition of the lead pencil industry in Germany. He complains that the barbarous destruction of valuable cedar forests in America without replanting, has greatly increased the price of wood suitable for pencil making, while the Americans have literally swamped the British and Mexican and Indian markets with cut pencils.

Secretary Morton is enthusiastic over the Atlanta exposition, which, as an educational institution, he says is incomparably superior to the Chicago world's fair. He says President Gilman, of Johns Hopkins university, who sat next to him at dinner in Atlanta, told him he had visited all the great expositions and none of them equaled Atlanta educationally. The president's party was deeply impressed with the evident prosperity of the southern country through which their train passed and the rapid improvement shown on every hand. There were as many more new cotton mills in process of erection along the line, as there were completed ones a year ago.

Church Centennial.

The centennial anniversary of the foundation of the First Presbyterian church of Washington and of the beginning of Presbyterianism in that city, will be celebrated during the week commencing Sunday, November 17. The First Presbyterian is what is known as the president's church, of which Rev. Byron Sunderland is pastor, and Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage and Rev. A. Allen co-pastors.

All persons who in former years have been connected with the historic church, either as communicant members or members of the congregation, but now not identified with it, are invited to attend the anniversary exercises, or to send some communication addressed to Mr. Theodore F. Sargent, one of the elders, No. 322 E. street, northeast, and also to send to him their present postoffice address.

The Alaskan Line.

The report of the joint commissioners appointed under the convention made in 1892 between Great Britain and the United States for the survey of the territory of the United States and Canada, adjacent to the boundary line dividing Alaska and Canada, will be made in the course of the next three months.

General Duffield, chief of the coast and geodetic survey, is the commissioner on behalf of the United States, and D. F. King serves in a like capacity for Great Britain. The purpose of the survey is to furnish a basis for the determination of the line from altitude 54 degrees 40 minutes north, to where the boundary line encounters the 141st degree of longitude, which runs northward, making the eastern boundary of Alaska.

The Sugar Claims.

Mr. R. T. Hill, of New Orleans, representing the executive committee of the sugar planters of Louisiana, called at the treasury Tuesday to confer with Secretary Carlisle in regard to separating the Louisiana sugar claims from the Nebraska beet sugar claims, represented by the Oxnard Beet Sugar Company, of Nebraska, upon which the decision of the comptroller of the treasury was based. The Louisiana claimants take the ground that their case is stronger than the beet sugar claims of Nebraska and they want Secretary Carlisle to hear them separately as to sending their claims over to the court of claims for adjudication. Mr. Carlisle, as he was on the point of leaving for Kentucky, could not consider the matter sufficiently to decide. The Louisiana people say if Secretary Carlisle will not send their claims to the United States court of claims they will test the constitutionality of the law in the United States court of Louisiana first, and then, if the decision be adverse, will carry it up to the supreme court of the United States.

CHILTON VIEW

E. M. BARRETT,
Editor.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY

CLANTON, ALA., Nov. 7, 1895

A thief broke into the Methodist church at Attalla and stole a clock. He should be compelled to do time for his act.

The earth quake did not produce near as great a shock upon us as did the delinquent subscriber who said he never heard of paying for newspapers.

Oklahoma, which was opened to settlement only six years ago, now has a population of 275,000 and the taxable valuation of the property is over $40,000,000.

A gentleman from Stanton sent us two dollars in payment of his subscription, and told us to stop his paper. If all subscribers who wish their papers discontinued would follow his illustrious example there would be gladness in the heart of the editor.

Miss Vanderbilt must have a very poor opinion of her future spouse as a provider. She has bought herself forty five pairs of shoes, so that she may feel independent.—Montgomery News.

But the poor girl can't make a hit in society with only shoes.

Holmes has been convicted of murder in the first degree. This, of course, was the natural sequence of such a life as his, yet our jury system is so imperfect that not a few were afraid that he would go unwhipped of justice. The law, however, has been vindicated, and thus ends the career of a villian almost without parallel.

Georgia is trying to get some free advertising. It has harrowed her soul that Texas and Arkansas have received so much attention by the press on account of the Corbett-Fitzsimmons mill, and now another effort is being made to have bull fighting at the Atlanta Exposition. This, of course, will be stopped by the governor. The people of the cracker state are very enterprising.

Turkey will soon be subdued. President Cleveland issued a proclamation assigning Thursday, November 28th., as the day on which we shall give thanks.

The news comes that Czar Reed will unquestionably be the next speaker of the house. It is to be hoped that there will not be another force bill to legislate on while he occupies that position.

Gee Whiz! where are we "at"? New York, 80,000 Republican plurality, Ohio 90,000, and Kentucky and even Maryland, my Maryland, gone to swell the terrible landside; Virginia and Missippi are still left to us. This is simply the result of the action of some of our politicians, who believing themselves bigger than the party, for some time past have been fighting the administration.

There is a man in Mobile named Damrich. There are numbers of them up north who are not named that, but they are just the same.—Montgomery News.

Yes, and they have a Damrich way of scattering some Damrich broadsides in order to control the votes of some people who are not Damrich.—State-Herald.

These are supposed to be Damrich jokes, but the man who thinks so has little knowledge of what constitutes humor.

At least a dozen candidates were on the streets Saturday "talking at 'em." They are getting numerous, and if the present ratio is kept up there will be very few left to vote.—Colbert County Banner.

Heaven help us from the early candidate. The first man to show himself for office next year we will stripe with some remarks. Lets postpone the evil day and elect the last man that enters the race.—Eufaula Times.

Unfortunately candidates, like the poor, are always with us.

The state papers are advocating the erection of a reform school, and give as an argument that the state owns 1000 acres of land near Mobile, upon which the school could be erected with little cost. While this argument is undeniable, yet if we had no land and were compelled to buy some for the purpose, this much needed institution should be built. One of the crying evils of our country is that we send young men, who are mere neophytes in criminality, to the penitentiary, where they are hardened in vice by association with old offenders. Let the good work go on.

WITH OUR EXCHANGES.

The populite papers keep calling on the populites for aid and this reminds us that the Democrats should stick up for their own papers. When a campaign is on and you want anything done it is well to chin the local newspaper, but when the war is over benefits are soon forgotten.—T'loosa Gazette.

If you ask some men for an advertisement they will tell you that they don't believe in advertising, that newspapers are never read. Let the same man be caught kissing his neighbor's wife or trying to hold up a building some dark night and if the printing office is in the seventh story of a building he'll go to it and beg the editor to keep the thing quiet "Don't publish it in your paper you know."—Alabama Enquirer

Joe Howard, the veteran journalist, after much looking around the habitable world, concludes that wealth does not bring happiness. We early realized this truth, and studiously avoided the embarrassment of riches. A man, too, may be worth untold millions and have a fool horse fall down with him and fatally break him up, just as was the case with young Mackay, in Paris, the other day—Huntsville Tribune.

ADVETISING AS A SCIENCE PAYS.

Some people say that advertising is all a matter of luck; that you cannot tell what advertising is going to do, or whether or not it is going to pay. This may be true; but it is very strange that the man who gives intelligent thought to his advertising, and it in an intelligent, earnest, straightforward way usually has the luck on his side. He is lucky in his advertising, because he reduced it to a science. Advertising is just as certain as paying rent. Advertising is governed by the same common sense business lines that govern buying lot of tomatoes or codfish.—Grocery World.

Yesterday was a shocking day. To begin with the earth was shocked. Governor Clarke shocked Fitzsimmons by putting him under arrest. Corbett shocked the birds in the tree at Whittington Park, Hot Springs, by declaring himself champion of the world, although he had not whipped Fitzsimmons. Judge Arnold shocked the prosecutors of Holmes by refusing to allow them to drag all the murders he had committed into his first trial. Campos shocked the Spanish newspapers by declaring that it would require 150,000 troops to quell the Cuban rebellion, and that half of that number must perish. But the greatest shock comes to-day when the bill collector makes his monthly visit.—B'ham News.

A member of the tramp fraternity of Wandering Willie Association, called on us a few days ago and left the following publication, which he said often described his feeling:

"Backward, turn backward, oh, time in thy flight, feed me on gruel just for tonight. I am so weary of sole leather steak, petrified doughnuts and vulcanized cake; oysters that sleep in the watery bath, butter as strong as Goliath of Gath; weary of paying for what I can't eat, chewing up rubber and calling it meat. Backward, turn backward for weary I am, give me a whack at my Grand-mother's jam; let me drink milk that has never been skimmed; let me eat butter whose hairs have been trimmed; let me once more have an old fashioned pie, then I'll be ready to curl up and die."—Exchange.

It makes us tired when we see the goldbug press giving the credit for 8 1-2 cents this fall to Grover Cleveland instead of to God. It was not the single gold standard that increased the price from 5 to 8 1-2 cents, but the conditions of the weather and the seasons—in other words God himself—which cut the yield fully one-third, and thus made two-thirds of a crop equal in value a full crop.—North Alabamian. Old Holiness comes forth again. Now be wants the good Lord given "credit" for bad seasons and ugly weather. We hope it will dawn upon our good brother that if the Lord is to have credit for bad seasons and ugly weather in 1895 he ought to have credit also for good seasons and fine weather in 1894 when cotton went to 4 1-2 cents. Grover Cleveland furnished the weather and the prices in 1894 according to some authorities.—Eufaula Times.

Application to sell lands.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County, Probate Court.

To whom it may concern whereas Wm. Lawrence Administrator of the estate of W. S. Lawrence deceased has filed his application in said court for a sale of the lands described therein belonging to the estate of said decedant for the purpose of paying debts open the grounds that the personal property of said estate is insufficient for the payment of the debts thereof and the 6th. day of November 1895, has been appointed for the hearing of said application.

You are therefore hereby notified to appear before said court on said 6th day of November 1895 to contest said application if you think proper.

Witness my hand this the 7th day of Oct. 1895.

AN INTERESTING PAPER.

Mr. H. B. Hillyer, of Benton, Tex., read the following paper before the Bowie Horticultural society, which we deem of interest to our readers;

"One of the greatest misfortunes that can befall a country, is for a town to outgrow the necessities of a country. A man comes to your town with twenty thousand dollars cash capital to engage in the mercantile business; he is hailed as a good acquisition. Not so. He produces nothing. He cannot increase the trade of the city one dollar. He simply divides up with the other merchants, and if by superior tact, energy or money power, he succeeds in building up a large trade, it is at the expense of his less favored competitors and will surely result in driving some of them to the wall. Large wealth and hoarded wealth are ever selfish, and of but small benefit to any community.

"A man comes in, buys a large farm, puts one thousand acres in cultivation, produces ten thousand dollars worth of cotton. It is sold. The country's wealth is increased just that much. His family spend one thousand dollars; the rest is hoarded. The community is benefited only by the amount he spends. But suppose ten men come in and buy and cultivate one hundred acres each, and produce one thousand dollars each, and these spend all it is upon their families. They are of ten times more value to your country than the one rich land lord. Hence your best interest lies in settling your county with small land owners—farmers, truckers or stockmen.

"Again a man raises a load of melons, brings them into town. They are sold and consumed in the place. No wealth has been produced. Commodities have been exchanged. Let the trucker ship his melons to Denver, sell them for money and bring it back to your county, and he has become a producer of wealth—hence your best interest is subserved by shipping these products to distant markets, and thus exacting tribute of other people to add to your wealth and prosperity. Merchants have but half learned their trade until they can take these products from the farmers and act as shippers and mediums of exchange. Farmers have done their full part to produce these commodities, and it is an adverse criticism upon your community for a farmer to be compelled to become his own shipper in order to convert his own products into cash.

"But of all farming, trucking and fruit growing are by all odds the most pleasant and profitable, the least laborious, and thus give opportunity for higher intelligence and better morals."

VETERAN'S BUTTON.

The United Confederate Veterans, an organization of which Senator J. B. Gordon, of Georgia, is general commanding and J. F Shipp, of Chattanooga, Tenn., is quartermaster general, has recently adopted a new design for the badge of the society. The old design was a square, upon which, in red, white and blue, were the crossed bars and stars of the Confederacy. Owing to the indiscriminate use and sale of the button it fell into disfavor. In consequence of criticism and complaint Quartermaster General Shipp, who, with General Gordon, is custodian of the society badge and button, prepared a new design and button, and this was protected by the patent office and is to be retained for the exclusive use of Confederate Veterans

The new button is described in the application for a patent as being, in itt main characteristics, an arrangement and combination of colors, and they are well adapted for the purpose for which the button is intended, viz, the insignia of an association of Confederate Veterans, the arrangement and combination of colors being red, white and red, known as Confederate colors; it also, contains the national colors of red, white and blue, thus combining in the design the colors of a heroic past and the national colors of a reunited people.

In the illustrations the shaded triangles of the old design were red, the crossed bars were blue, and the stars white. In the newly adopted design on the right the outer square is red, with gold inscriptions; the inner square is red, with blue crossed bars and gold stars, and the space between the outer and inner square is white.

These buttons are not to be offered for sale, and can be obtained only from Quartermaster General Shipp, at Chattanooga, upon requisition from the commander, quartermaster or adjutant of a camp or association of the United Confederate Veterans in good standing of the general organization. the new button was supplied to some of the Confederates who attended the recent ceremonies in connection with the dedication of the Chickamauga-Chattanooga National Military Park, but the supply then on hand was exhausted by veterans in attendance and others who gave orders for them. The supply has now been replenished, and the buttons have been sent to those who have applied for them and who are entitled to receive and wear them—N. Y. Times.

WHAT THEY SAY

OF THE ELECTROPOISE

The Electropoise has relieved me of a throat affection that has baffled all treatment and has annoyed me for more than forty years. Very respectfully, T. T. Tunstall.

Mobile, Ala., Oct. 22, 1894.

I commenced the use of the Electropoise when I was in a weak nervous state, lying awake night after night until 2 o'clock. I commenced to sleep better almost immediately after beginning its use, and after three months felt that the Electropoise had paid for itself. Yours truly,

Mrs. J. C. Barry.

Memphis, Tenn., March 5, 1895.

A relative of mine who was wounded during the war, and who never recovered from the effects of the wound, has been using my Electropoise, and he is now as well as he ever was. I recommend the Electropoise to all my friends.

Yours truly, W. B. McGee,

Tehula, Miss., Dec. 5, 1894.

I cannot say too much in favor of the Electropoise. Yours truly,

T. S. Jones.

Fannin, Tex., June 25, 1895.

After returning from Hot Spring about a year ago without a cure and as the last resort, I applied the Electropoise, and receved a prompt cure of rheumatism. This same Electropoise has made many cures in other diseases, and the instrument will do all that is claimed for for it. Yours truly,

J. T. Stout.

Mobile, Ala., Sept. 22, 1894.

Rental terms, $10 cash for four months, with privilege to purchase by paying $17.50 additional at the expiration of four months.

There is no medicine so often needed in every home and so admirably adapted to the purposes for which it is intended, as Chamberlain's Pain Balm. Hardly a week passes but some member of the family has need of it. A toothache or headache may be cured by it. A touch of rheumatism or neuralgia quieted. The severe pain of a burn or scald promptly relieved and the sore healed in much less time than when medicine has to be sent for. A sprain may be promptly treated before inflammation sets in, which insures a cure in about one-third of the time otherwise required. Cuts and bruises should receive immediate treatment before the parts become swollen, which can only be done when Pain Balm is kept at hand. A sore throat may be cured before it becomes serious. A troublesome corn may be removed by applying it twice a day for a week or two. A lame back may be cured and several days of valuable time saved or a pain in the side or chest relieved without paying a doctor bill. Procure a 50 cent bottle at once and you will never regret it. For sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton and McNiell and Smith, Jemison, Ala.

OUT OF A JOB.

Mr. A. J. Thorne's Family Physician No Longer Derives Any Revenue from Mr. Thorne.

This is to certify that we have used the Electropoise in our family for three years, and, as I have written you before, it has done my wife more good than all the doctors in the country. She was confined to her bed thirteen years prior to my getting the Electropoise, and during that time I had had all the doctors in this part of the country to visit her, seven or eight having treated her in that time, and none of them doing her any good. All of them found her in bed and left her there. When I got the Electropoise she could not turn herself in bed, while now she does all her housework, and is still gaining. She has been using the Electropoise a little more than three years, and sin that time has not taken a single dose of medicine.

Since I have had the Electropoise none of the family have taken any medicine, and the instrument is our family physician for we have had no physician in my family since I got the Electropoise. I would not be without the Electropoise, and it is worth all the doctors. Yours truly

EDITOR VIEW:—I want to tell the readers of THE VIEW what Mr. F. W Johnson has done here this year. He came from Chambers county, rented one of the poorest places in Chilton, and went to work. He brought his cotton seed with him, but bought everything else on credit. He paid two bales of cotton rent, made twelve bales, besides enough peas, oats, etc., to run him through the year. He and his family did the entire work themselves, with the assistance of a horse and an ox. His main help, his oldest son, had the misfortune to break his foot early in the season and was not able to work until the crop was gathered. Mr. Johnson speaks well of Chilton as the place for small farmer.

The farmers have about finished gathering their crops. The cotton crop is about half, corn and potatoes are good.

The farmers will all pay out of debt this year and have corn sufficient to run them through the next, besides a majority of them have plenty of hogs.

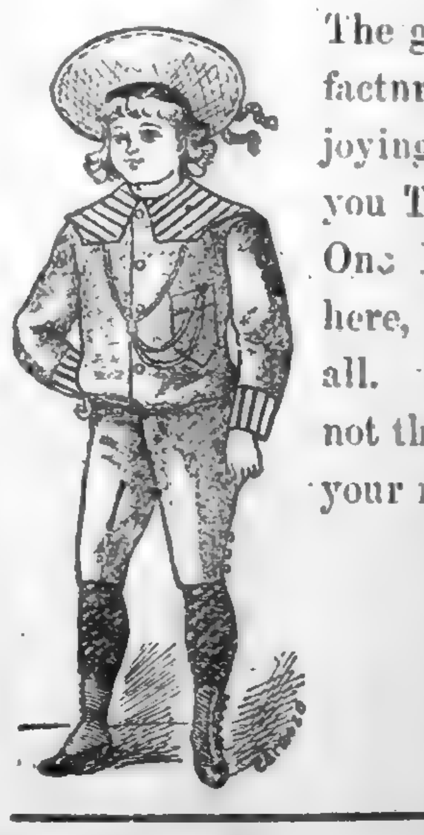
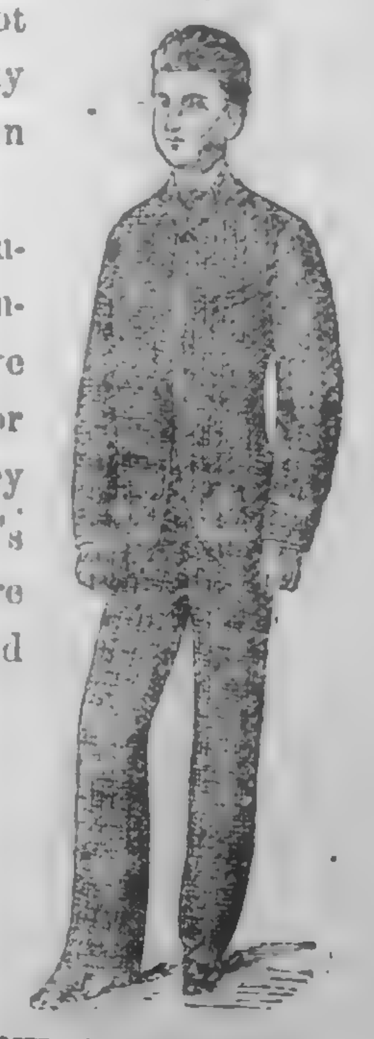
APIECE, WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

OUR Buyer had a similar question to answer recently. The stock of several manufacturers had to be converted into cash. It did not take us long to make a trade. We bought about Forty to Fifty Thousand Dollars' worth of new, desirable merchandise for less than half its real value.





The goods are all in stock now; it is a case of Manufactnrer and Importer paying the piper, and YOU enjoying the dance. Otherwise we couldn't afford to give you Two or Three Dollars' worth of Merchandise for One Dollar in CASH. If you can't save big money here, money can't be saved anywhere on earth, that's all. Remember that anything you buy of us and are not thoroughly satisfied with, we will cheerfully refund your money.

A Big Regular Army.

The mightiest host of this sort is the army of invalids whose bowels, livers and stomachs have been regulated by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. A regular habit of body is brought about through using the Bitters, not by violently agitating and griping the intestines, but by reinforcing their energy and causing a flow of the bile into its proper channel. Malaria, la grippe, dyspepsia, and a tendency to inactivity of the kidneys, are conquered by the Bitters.

A DIVER'S EXPERIENCES

SENSATIONS FELT WHILE WORKING IN THE SEA'S DEPTHS.

The Dress That is Worn—Breathing Without Effort—Method of Signaling—A Diver's Renumeration.

THE best way for any one to acquire the diver's art is to put on a diving dress, go down into the depths and learn the diving business for himself. That's the way I learned it, says Captain Anthony Williams in the New York World.

I was originally a wrecker—that is, I would purchase sunken ships, raise them and sell them. In the summer of 1863, off the Massachusetts coast, I was raising a sunken ship. The diver who was working for me seemed a very lazy, careless sort of fellow. I was paying him by the day, and at length, when he came up on one occasion and reported very little progress in his work, after having been under water for a long time, I was angry and expressed myself strongly. He retorted with, "Try it yourself if you can do any better."

"All right," said I. "Let me have your diving dress and I will try it myself." He thought I was only joking, but I was not. Thinking to see me back out, and that I would not dare to venture down below into Davy Jones's locker, he took off his diving dress and I put it on.

Now, a diving dress is really two dresses, one within the other, and both of india-rubber. The stockings, pants and shirt are all made together as one garment, which the diver enters at the neck, feet first. The hands are left bare, the wristbands of the rubber shirt-sleeves tightly compressing the wrists. There is a copper breast-plate bearing upon its outer convex surface small screws, which are adjusted through holes in the neck of the shirt, which, by means of nuts fastened upon the screws, is held so firmly in place as to render the entire dress from the neck downward absolutely air and water tight.

Fitting with equal closeness to this breast-plate is the helmet. It completely incloses the head and is supplied with three glasses, one in front and one at each side, to enable the diver to look in any direction. The diver's feet are incased in a pair of very thick leather shoes, made to lace up the front and supplied with heavy leaden soles to prevent him from turning feet uppermost in the water.

When I had donned this dress I placed across my shoulders ropes sustaining two leaden weights, one hanging at my breast and the other at my back. Sometimes in very strong currents it is necessary to make the weights which the diver carries extraordinarily heavy, and such was the case with those hanging over my shoulders on the occasion of my first dive, but greatly to my surprise, though the diving dress I wore weighed of itself nearly two hundred pounds. I did not feel the great burden I sustained in wearing it any more than I did that of my ordinary clothes when out of the water.

It also seemed marvellous to me that though I was ten or twelve fathoms under water my breathing was wholly devoid of effort as if I had been walking about on dry land. Perhaps some of my readers may know that by means of an air-pump, worked by two men, the diver is supplied with air, which passes into his helmet through a hose at its back. Near the place of its entrance is a spring valve for its escape. This valve can be controlled by the diver, but he usually sets it before going into the water and seldom disturbs it afterward. The pressure of the air being greater than that of the water a surplus of the former readily escapes.

When the valve proves insufficient to permit the escape of a superfluity of air the diver can open in his breastplate a similar spring valve intended only for such an emergency. He can also regulate the amount of air pumped to him by signals upon the air-hose to the men engaged in pumping. One pull upon the air-hose means "more air," two pulls, "less air."

The signals by means of the air-hose are generally used by all divers, but each one of the fraternity has also his own private code of signals upon the life-line, which is always fastened to the diver's waist and by which he is drawn up out of the water. These signals each diver writes down very carefully and gives to the man in charge of the life-line. By means of these he can send for tools, material, etc.

When a lengthy communication is to be made the diver sends up for a slate and writes all he wishes to say. It is just as easy to read and write under water as it is out of it, all objects being greatly magnified.

The only unpleasant sensation I ever experienced during my whole career as a diver—even on the occasion of my first dive—was a drumming in the ears. This will sometimes destroy the hearing if the diver remains too long under water.

Four hours—two in the morning and two in the afternoon—comprise a day's work in the diving business, and if a diver always restricts himself to this limit there is little or no danger of his becoming deaf, but if he goes much beyond it he is almost sure to injure his hearing. I once remained under water for nine hours and as a consequence completely lost the use of my left ear for a period of three months, during which time I suffered agony with earache. Eventually, however, my hearing became normal again.

So far as remuneration is concerned diving is a good profession. Divers generally work by the job, and when they do they sometimes make it pay very well. A diver will go down, look at a sunken vessel and then state what he will charge to raise her. I raised the schooner Dauntless in two days and received $750 for my time and trouble. The steamer Mederith, ashore at Jeremie, in Hayti, I repaired with iron plates and raised in fourteen days, receiving $7500 for the work, but I had to employ two assistants.

A woman about forty years of age, a person of education and some culture, was converted at a late meeting in Kentucky and made the statement that that was the first sermon she had heard in all her life.

WISE WORDS.

Genius is the soul in blossom.

A tramp cat purrs the loudest.

It is never too late to mend a boy's clothes.

The proof of the pudding is in the heating.

So few of us know when we have said enough.

If you explain you might as well acknowledge.

There is many a shrewd woman posing for a simpleton.

A man likes to feel that he is loved; a woman likes to be told.

Dress is a revelation not only of our tastes, but our bank account.

There is nothing better for a child than a little wholesome neglect.

The woman of the world is an April day; the sunshine successfully hides the tears within.

On the most commonplace level and within the narrowest limits men and women love and suffer.

Some people are so fond of butter that they would rather have poor butter than none. Same with music—Judge.

When a man seeks a woman's society it is because he has need of her—not because he thinks she has need of him.

If it be a fine art to wear your best clothes unconsciously it is a still finer art to wear your old clothes as though they were your best ones.

According to the quality of the waters on which we cast our bread, it returns water-logged and uneatable, or spread with butter and jam.

To Utilize the Sun's Rays.

England has been contemplating the time when her fuel centres will have become diminished and the burrowed catacombs reaching far out beneath the ocean's bed will have been emptied of coal. Then the miner will take his pick and shovel and mount upward to the air and glistening sunlight. The heat of the sun, the living, reviving rays of our parent planet, will yield its energy for countless years to come to warm our bodies and light our homes. John Ericsson invented a machine with which he believed people would be independent of the coal supply, and make direct use of the heat rays of the sun. It might have been called a sun steam engine—a steam engine heated by sunlight. The vast tracks of the Sahara or the deserts of Asia can supply heat that would generate millions of horsepower in Ericsson's solar engines. The torrent of Niagara is not comparable to the incalculable waste of power on the scorching surface of the enormous plains. The engineering schemes of to-day will fade into insignificance in comparison with those that the fierce cry of future necessity will force men to execute. It would be a curious sight to see a fully equipped power station situated in the centre of a dreary waste sending its threadlike lines across the desert to heat and light some distant town, thus guiding the warm sunlight that it may glow and glitter in the mosques and minarets of the far east.—New York Telegram.

His Stomach Collapsed.

Colonel Benjamin F. Norton, well known in Chicago politics, who is at the home of his daughter in New York, has rallied from one of the most remarkable operations known in surgery. Colonel Norton, when he came here, began to have intense pains in his stomach. A stricture formed in the gullet and communication between his mouth and stomach became impossible. Despite the best medical skill he was slowly starving to death. Physicians were called in. An operation was decided upon. It was performed July 27. A hole was cut in his stomach about two inches above the navel, large enough for a hand to be inserted. It was found that the walls of the stomach had collapsed, and lay flat against the spine. Dr. Weir pinned the forward wall to the intestines with two gold pins, each four inches in length. The stomach was stitched to the intestines on August 1, and the pins were withdrawn. Then a silver tube was inserted in the wound, a piece of rubber tubing attached to it, and through this canal food was forced into the stomach. A daily wash of nitrate of silver cured the ulcers. A sounder, consisting of a jet bulb on the end of a whalebone rod, was inserted once a week. This operation will have to be kept up for a year or more to keep the passage from growing together again.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

An Olive Orchard.

Near Guerneville, says the Oroville (Cal.) Mercury, is the largest olive orchard in Sonoma County, and probably in the State. It is owned by Dr. Prosek. There are one hundred acres of orchard with 8500 trees, all in bearing. The crop last year was ten tons; this year it will be about thirty. The orchard contains about thirty-five varieties, the earliest and best being the Nevadello Blanco, Rubea and Manzanillo, while the Polymorpha produces the largest olive and best for packing. Dr. Prosek built the first olive mill in the county in 1894. It is forty feet wide and sixty feet long, with an engine house fourteen by twenty feet. After pickling, the olives are put in a crusher with two granite wheels weighing fifteen hundred pounds each and revolving on a flat granite slab. The wheels are reversible and can be raised or lowered, according to the size of the olive. The crusher has a capacity of two or three tons daily, both first and second grinding. A hydraulic press receives the paste, the juice goes into a separator where the vegetable water is divided from the oil. When settled and clear the oil is filtered and bottled and is then ready for market.

Penetration of Water.

So penetrating is water at high pressure that only special qualities of cast iron will withstand it. In the early days of the hydraulic jack it was no uncommon thing to see water issuing like a fine needle through the metal, and the water needle would penetrate the unwary finger just as readily as a [illegible] one.

CONNECTICUT BLUE LAWS.

Some of the Restrictions That Environed Our Ancestors.

The story of the so-called Connecticut "Blue Laws" is told in a history of colonial times written by the Rev. Samuel Peters, once pastor of a church in Hartford in revolutionary days.

Here are some of Peters' bluest laws, all of which are identical, in a vital sense, with old colonial enactments:

No. 1—"The governor and magistrates convened and in general assembly are the supreme power under God of this independent dominion."

No. 2—From the determination of the assembly no appeal shall be made."

No. 10—"No one shall be a freeman or give a vote unless he is converted and a member in full communion of one of the churches allowed in this dominion."

No. 12—"Each freeman shall swear by the blessed God to bear true allegiance to this dominion and that Jesus is the only king."

No. 13—"No Quaker or dissenter from the established worship of this dominion shall be allowed to give a vote for the election of magistrates or any other officer."

No. 14.—"No food or loding shall be afforded to a Quaker, Adamite or other heretic."

No. 15.—"If any person turns Quaker he shall be banished, and not suffered to return, under pain of death."

No. 16.—"No priest shall abide in this dominion; he shall be banished and suffer death on his return. Priests may be seized by anyone without a warrant."

No. 18.—"No one shall ride on the Sabbath day or walk in his garden or elsewhere, except reverently to and from meeting."

No. 19.—"No one shall travel, cook victuals, make beds, sweep houses, cut hair or shave on the Sabbath day."

No. 20.—"No woman shall kiss her child on the Sabbath day or fast day."

No. 21.—"The Sabbath day begins at sunset on Saturday." Mr. Newton, commenting said: "The twenty-first blue law, making the Sabbath begin at sunset was, of course, the law of the New Haven Colony, and the law of our forefathers down to a comparatively recent period. Under the Mosaic law Sabbath begins at sunset, and such has been the law of the Sabbath since the evening and the morning of the first day."

No. 22.—"To pick an ear of corn growing in a neighbor's garden shall be deemed a theft."

No. 27.—"Whosoever publishes a lie to the prejudice of his neighbor shall sit in the stocks, or be whipped fifteen stripes."

TO GAIN WEIGHT.

PALE, THIN PEOPLE USUALLY ARE DISEASED.

The First Thing Necessary to Gain Flesh is Health, Then Proper Food for Both Body and Nerves.

From the Journal, Kirksville, Mo.

Henry Gehrke is a thrifty and prosperous German farmer living four miles south of Bullion, in this (Adair) County, Mo. Mr. Gehrke has a valuable farm and he has been a resident of the county for years. He is very well-known hereabouts and well respected wherever he is known. Last week a reporter of the Journal stopped at Mr. Gehrke's and while there became much interested in Mrs. Gehrke's account of the benefit she had not long since experienced from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. She said she wanted everybody to know what a great medicine these pills are, but as so many people are praising them now-a-days, she modestly doubted whether her testimony could add anything to what others had already said of them. Her only reason for talking for publication about Pink Pills was that the people of Adair and neighboring counties might be convinced, if any doubted that oft-published testimonials concerning Pink Pills were genuine statements from the lips of persons who have been benefited by the use of them. Speaking of her own interesting experience, Mrs. Gehrke said:

"A little over a year ago I was completely broken down. I had been taking medicine from a doctor but grew worse and worse until I could scarcely go about at all. The least exertion or the mere bending of my body would cause me to have smothering spells, and the suffering was terrible. I thought it was caused by my heart. When everything else had failed to relieve me and I had given up all hopes of ever being anything but a helpless invalid, I chanced to read some testimonials in the Farm, Field and Fireside, also in the Chicago Inter-Ocean, and the suffering of the people who made the statements were so nearly like the suffering I had endured that when I read that they were so greatly benefited by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People I did not hesitate to go at once and purchase two boxes. I took them according to directions and before the first box was used I felt a good bit better. Really the first dose convinced me that it was a great remedy. Before the two boxes were used up I sent my husband after three more boxes, so I would not be without them. When I had used these three boxes I felt like a different woman and thought I was almost cured.

"Since that time I have been taking them whenever I began to feel badly. When I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People I weighed only 113 pounds and after I had been using the medicine for about six months I weighed 122 pounds. I have had a good appetite ever since I commenced taking Pink Pills and instead of mincing along, picking such food as I could eat even with an effort, I eat most anything that comes on the table. I am not the invalid I was. I do not have to be waited upon now as if I was a helpless child, but I work all the time, doing the housework and ironing and working in the garden without that dreadful feeling which comes over a person when they are afraid they are going to have one of those spells that I used to have.

"Work don't hurt me any more. I honestly believe that had it not been for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I would now be in my grave. I still have what the doctor calls bilious colic, but the Pink Pills have made me much better and the spells are not so frequent and are nothing like as painful as before I began to use them. I would not be without the Pink Pills for that disease alone under any circumstances to say nothing of the other diseases for which they are especially recommended. I take pleasure in telling my neighbors the benefits I have received from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and know of several who have taken my advice and have been greatly benefited by them."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are considered an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, that tired feeling resulting from nervous prostration; all diseases resulting from vitiated humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities, and all forms of weakness. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork, or excesses of whatever nature. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, (50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50—They are never sold in bulk or by the 100) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

THE OLD HOME.

BY J. P. HOWARD.

The old home is deserted,
Its walks are covered o'er
With greensward and with wild weeds
They ne'er did wear before;
And nettles now are growing
Along the yellow brook,
But still it ripples down the rocks,
With old-time spray and look.
The spring is clear and cool,
The trout swims as of yore,
Or, with a glint, beneath the rocks
Is lost as heretofore.
The dove its wings has folded,
No dog sleeps in the barn;
A stillness, like the "morning watch,"
Has settled o'er the farm.

And thus the home deserted,
Its walks all covered o'er
With greensward and with wild weeds,
Is home to me no more.

A WEIRD MYSTERY

—OR—

Tracing a Dark Crime.

BY ALEXANDER ROBINSON, M. D.

CHAPTER III. (Continued.)

"I am convinced, Mr. Ketcham, be[illegible] all shadow of doubt, that the [illegible] did not have time to work be[illegible] the dagger was used: at least, that [illegible] Dr. Seabury was yet alive when [illegible] thrust was made into his [illegible]."

[illegible] nodded his head.

"Doctor, I am glad to see you so posi[illegible]. It has a decided bearing on the [illegible] that has been thrust before us."

"I don't understand exactly. What possible difference can it make to Dr. Seabury, or any one else, whether that [illegible] passed into his heart five seconds before or after the poison had done [illegible]. He was a doomed man anyway."

"Doctor, that is where the value of [illegible] testimony comes in—that is why I warned you to go slow and sure. If he was already dead when the blow struck, it was a case of suicide—we could not prove that the would-be assassin had taken that which the old Doctor had not—his life.

"On the other hand, if you can swear [illegible] the creese was used while Dr. Seabury was yet breathing, and that it [illegible]ed the action of his heart, it is a case of murder!"

I drew a long breath.

"Quite a fine point of distinction, sir."

"And yet some one's life hangs upon it. If you raise a plea in court that the man [illegible] slew in cold blood had hasty consumption, and must die shortly at any rate, that won't save you. The court doesn't take into consideration the state of health of your victim. It seeks a motive and result. That is all."

"According to that, then, Mr. Ketcham, there has been a crime committed here."

"Undoubtedly."

"And Dr. Seabury was murdered."

"Resting upon your evidence, I can positively swear in the affirmative."

I began to feel a second growth of importance. This time, however, I did not [illegible] myself with pomposity. The manner in which I had been lowered before was a warning to me.

I saw that I could really be useful to [illegible] old detective if I went about my work in a quiet way, and I determined to do everything in my power to retain [illegible] respect of Mr. Ketcham.

"I still hold to my conviction," I said, [illegible]ly and positively.

"Can you explain to me without the [illegible] of any technical language upon what you base your conviction?"

"Look here a minute, sir, and I will [illegible]avor to make it clear to you, though I can hardly hope to put it as strongly into words as I feel it.

"You see the spot of blood upon the linen? This poison is very peculiar in [illegible] action. This is why I said it would surprise me to find the blood gathered at [illegible] heart as you suggested."

"Ah, Doctor, that was a mere subterfuge to draw your attention to that matter."

"I have since suspected it. Now the [illegible]ly qualities of this drug, found in [illegible] tomb of some old Pharaoh of Egypt, and secured in a hermetically sealed [illegible], consist in paralyzing the heart and its tributaries, so that they cease their [illegible]on instantly, and the blood coagulates.

"I solemnly believe that, had that dagger been thrust into his body after the [illegible] had gotten in its work, if any [illegible] had issued at all, which I seriously doubt, it would have been as black [illegible] instead of crimson as you see this."

Mr. Ketcham had stood by my side while I was speaking.

He now took my hand.

"Doctor, you have made it clear to me. I [illegible]ly hope you will let me have an opportunity to tell the same story to an intelligent jury."

"Meaning, I suppose, that you only hope the murderer will be caught."

He gave me a peculiar look.

I had cause to remember it afterwards [illegible] fact, before we left that room.

"Yes, if it is in mortal power, the [illegible] that sent the vengeful steel into [illegible]eart of that venerable man shall [illegible]y the penalty of murder."

He was deeply in earnest.

Doctor Seabury had inspired respect [illegible]ever he was known, and I was heart [illegible] soul with the detective in his desire to have justice done.

Would it be asking too much if I inquired whether you have any idea as to the identity of this loathsome criminal?"

"Doctor, you have done me a good turn [illegible]night, and one which no other physician could have brought about. Because of that and the fact of my having taken a fancy to you, I shall indulge your curiosity to a certain extent."

"Thank you, Mr. Ketcham, but don't do it unless you think it politic. I know how to keep a close mouth, and if I can be of any use to you, command me."

"A word dropped sometimes gives me an idea or a clew. I generally work on the principle that a secret is better kept with one than with two. At the same time I have seen occasions where two heads were better than a single one."

"So have I, sir."

"If you will glance at the face of the deceased you will see that the eyes are bulged out, although closed. I lowered the lids when I first came. The jaw is rigid, showing that he died in an agony, although the expression of his face now is rather peaceful.

"Notice his hands. One has a death grip on the coverlet yonder. The other clutched this crystal phial convulsively.

"The staring, sightless eyes were fixed upon a point that would cover me as I stand here now. If my invention were perfected I would be able to take from those sightless eyes the photograph of the face that bent over Doctor Seabury in his dying seconds—the face belonging to the arm that drove the awful weapon home. That is a triumph reserved for my future. When I perfect it crime must go down before the march of improvement."

I was astonished at his words.

They gave me subject for further thought when I could ponder upon the range and possibilities of an invention such as that he mentioned.

"Being without such a little detector I am obliged to depend upon other sources for my clews. I examined the vines outside the window and discovered that in places they were torn, showing that some one climbed up the trellis.

"I also made up my mind that this person was light of build, much more so than either you or I, for those vines would swing loose under our weight.

"Having traced my assassin to the window I look further for evidence.

"On the sill I find certain scratches on the paint that seem to tell of a human foot having scraped across.

"Thus I follow the trail into the room. Imagine the horror of the old Doctor's soul when, aroused from his slumber by some sound, perhaps a chuckle of satisfaction from the devil who stood here, his eyes rested upon the face that had haunted him sleeping or waking for years."

I could imagine it, and I shivered with the realization.

What could not these mute walls have told had they been gifted with tongues?

"I imagine that Dr. Seabury, as soon as he could command himself, seized the little crystal phial, swallowed its deadly contents, and then as he struck the electric bell in the wall, received the steel."

I could see it as the old detective spoke—the swarthy villain bending over the bed, his evil face aglow with hate and triumph.

"It is terrible to think of, sir. Now, if you had some idea of this bloody assassin's personal appearance, we might hope to get on his track."

"I believe I can show you the face that bent over Dr. Seabury while he expired."

"Show me? Is it possible?" I exclaimed.

"See here."

He took a photograph out of his pocket, and passed it over to me.

As I took it I turned so that the light from the lamp might fall upon it.

Had some one struck me I could not have been more staggered than when my eyes fell upon the object I held in my hand.

Mr. Ketcham watched me closely

"Gracious heaven! a woman!"

CHAPTER IV.

It was a face to fascinate one.

I gazed upon it as though some subtle charm had bound me.

There was a dusky shade to the rounded cheeks, and a midnight darkness in tresses and eyes, that told of life beneath the sun of some warm clime.

I remembered what the detective had said about the Malay creese.

It was used to a great extent by the thugs of India, in connection with their nefarious cord.

Could it be possible that one so lovely would stoop to such base passion?

What wrong had this learned physician done her to induce such an action?

I could see that there was a depth of feeling in those fathomless eyes, a power that had not been fully developed when this picture was taken, but which might have been brought out.

At last I looked up.

Mr. Ketcham had been observing me closely.

"Well?"

I understood that he wished for my opinion.

"It seems impossible to me, sir, that the original of this picture should be the terror of Dr. Seabury's life."

"And yet you will acknowledge, Doctor, that even there, in a picture taken some years ago while Seabury was in India, one can see remarkable power in that face. If that girl made anything a life work, she would carry it out."

"I grant you that, sir. Now, will you kindly tell me what makes you think this is the assassin of Dr. Seabury?"

"Readily. First of all, let me state plainly that this is not a positive but a negative case. In the absence of other clews, I have decided to test this one first.

"To begin, then, I was not long coming to the conclusion that the enemy the good Doctor feared was a woman.

"Although he did not state so plainly himself, I inferred as much from his words, and one of the earliest things I did was to cast around to see if I could make this out to be a fact.

"Here you will see the positive evidence, which I think can not be refuted."

Again he drew out something from the pocket of his coat.

This time it was an envelope.

He opened it and placed the contents in my hands.

It was nothing except a few shreds of hair about a foot long.

They were of sable hue.

Instinctively I turned again to the picture.

Such hair as that would correspond with the owner of this dazzling face.

Somehow it made me sick to think of this; but mastering that feeling, I turned once more to the old detective.

"Mr. Ketcham, where did you get this tress of hair?" I asked.

"Guess, Doctor!"

"From some projecting nail that stole it as the owner passed."

"Try again, Doctor."

"Was it wrapped up with this picture?"

"No, sir. This hair was taken from the head of the assassin as she bent over the bed yonder."

"Ah!"

"I see you have guessed it now, Doctor," with a grim smile.

I silently pointed to one of the white hands of Doctor Seabury.

"Yes, I found these strands of hair fastened about the fingers that now clutch the coverlet so intensely. They were snatched from the head of the party who bent over him, and who, there is at present every reason to believe, was the original of that photograph."

I caught at a straw, as very often a man who has about given up hope will.

"But, my dear sir, having found that picture among his papers, as I presume you did, what tangible evidence have you to connect her with the case? This is a most brutal crime. The fact of this hair resembling hers in color would hardly warrant the suspicion that she is the guilty party."

He smiled at my earnestness and I half imagined he believed I was in love with the photograph.

"Hardly, Doctor. To begin with, I don't think you have examined that picture as thoroughly as you might."

I started and looked at it again.

"Turn it over. Upon the back you may discover something."

Sure enough I did.

In a man's handwriting I found a few words, as follows:

Lenore! The cause of my sleepless nights and watchful days.

There was no getting around that—it must mean that this girl was the party whom Dr. Seabury feared.

I could not but admit that the case seemed dark for her, but why need I care so deeply—that picture was some years old, and its original might now have been transformed into an ugly woman by reason of passion.

"By the way, Mr. Ketcham, what family has the old Doctor?"

I was beginning to wonder why he had not aroused some member of his own household when danger threatened; also how it was we had not met with or heard a living soul.

It was now early morning, and I could see the gloom of night giving way to the light of day.

"I cannot answer that question fully, for on my visits here I saw no one save an old woman servant named Ursula, and his aged man of all work, Peter, who sleeps in the stable.

"Stay—once I did catch a fleeting glimpse of a lady's silken gown just vanishing through one door of the library as I entered the other, but I did not see her face."

"I believe the Doctor was a bachelor."

"Report said so, but we don't know how true it was. The Doctor was one of a few men in New York who could keep their own secrets. This lady, however, may have been a patient, or even a distant relative."

"I hear sounds out in the stable. Peter is up and at work."

"I will go out and inform him of the sad event that has taken place within these walls last night."

"Leaving me here?"

"You can stay here, or go down to the library. There is smoke coming from the kitchen chimney, so the old woman must be up, too. I see they're early risers here."

He passed out of the door.

I was alone with the dead.

This in itself was not a very terrible thing, seeing that I was a doctor, and used to scenes of dissolution.

The consciousness of the fearful mystery surrounding Dr. Seabury's taking-off served to make me feel uncomfortable in the presence of that cold form.

I busied myself in looking around, wondering if I could not find some trace of the assassin that had slipped even the vigilant eye of Mr. Ketcham.

While engaged in this laudable bit of entertainment I heard the sound of wailing from the direction of the kitchen, and knew that Mr. Ketcham had imparted the sad news to old Ursula while passing through.

I went to the window and looked out.

The vines were torn as he had said, showing that some one had made use of them to enter the room.

A little experiment proved to me that Mr. Ketcham was right also in declaring that the party who had ascended must have been lighter than either of us, as the vines would not have borne up our weight.

Then the thought struck me that perhaps I might make some discovery by going below.

Leaving the room, I made my way down stairs, and finding the side door passed out into the garden.

Here there were walks and rose bushes, with many beds of rare flowers, and a glass conservatory near by, connected with the library.

Evidently the Doctor or some one else in the house had been passionately fond of flowers.

I walked about a few minutes, and then made my way to the foot of the vines that clambered up the side of the house.

The yielding soil might tell a story.

I found footprints.

They seemed to be those of a small man, but of course that was not positive, for if the assassin were a woman she might have been in disguise.

Ha! what was this?

I picked up a peculiar piece of steel that stood up in the earth, having evidently fallen from above.

To my unsophisticated eyes it was a puzzle, but I had an idea that it was some species of burglar's tool.

Undoubtedly Mr. Ketcham could throw some light on this subject.

I placed it securely in my pocket and continued my investigations.

There was nothing more to find, and I amused myself by following the trail of the assassin through the garden to the point where he had scaled the wall, both in coming and going.

I saw that it was the lowest point in the wall, and judged that the assassin had made previous observations in order to so ably locate this.

Then I returned once more to the house.

The bustle of New York streets could be plainly heard upon the morning air.

I managed to find the library, and, entering, looked around.

It was a singularly pleasant place, and the great cases of books, instead of being arranged in stiff rows, filled niches, and gave the room the appearance a Gothic cottage might have beside one of the angular buildings of the past.

I sat down in a chair, and waited for the coming of my friend, the detective.

Presently I heard the door open, and my ears caught the rustle of silken skirts.

I remembered what Mr. Ketcham had said about one of his visits, and sprang to my feet.

As I turned to face the person who entered, I felt the blood rushing to my heart, while my hands clutched the top of the chair in front of me, for I gazed upon the countenance of Leonore, the dusky beauty upon whom had fallen the suspicion of this terrible crime.

CHAPTER V.

Leonore stood there looking upon me with an expression of surprise marking her beautiful countenance.

I was like one enchanted.

For the life of me, I could not have moved just then, even had the fate of an empire depended upon it.

The photograph, taken some years before, scarcely did her justice.

She was as beautiful as an houri, just such a woman as I have often seen in the harems of Constantinople, and yet far more intelligent-looking.

I was too surprised just then to make a deliberate note of her charms. Later on they floated before my mind as a dream.

I could only realize that her presence cast a subtle spell over me, which at first I did not even care to resist.

Then like lightning leaping from the storm clouds came the awful thought that this wonderful girl stood before the sight of Abner Ketcham a criminal—that her dainty hand it had been which drove the murderous Malay creese home to Dr. Seabury's heart before the deadly poison had been given time to work.

Terrible though the thought was it brought me to my senses.

I was no longer in a dazed state, but wide awake, ready and eager to grasp the situation and wrestle with it.

"Are you waiting for the Doctor, sir?"

Her voice was musical. It sounded to me like the tinkling of silver bells. I had never heard a voice like it.

At the some time her words told me that she meant to appear ignorant of what had occurred, however much that feeling might be assumed.

It occurred to me to watch her while I imparted the news.

Already her presence was having an effect upon me in this way: Instead of an eagerness to bring her to justice as the criminal, I was eager to find a possible flaw in the indictment of the detective.

"I beg your pardon, miss; I am a doctor, Vance Burton. I was sent for on professional business."

There flashed across her face a look of genuine alarm.

"Not for guardy—is he sick?"

The little dusky hands which I had been admiring came together in what I took to be a sudden fear.

How could I tell her?

Still, innocent or guilty, she must hear the news soon—why not now?

"You are Leonore?" I asked.

"Yes; I am Leonore. What has happened to my uncle, sir?"

"Be seated, my dear young lady. I have something to tell you that may prove a shock."

She sank into a chair. Her large black, lustrous eyes were fixed upon me. I could not help but think of a frightened gazelle.

Could it be possible that this innocent-looking girl was the female demon the assassin had been pictured by Ketcham?

Heaven forbid!

I could not and would not believe it unless stronger evidence was put forward.

"Tell me the worst, sir."

Her white teeth were pressed into her lower lip, and I could see that she was possessed of hidden powers for which I had not given her credit.

No danger of her fainting away.

"Dr. Seabury was your guardian, as I understand it?"

"Yes, yes! why do you say was, sir? Has anything happened to him?"

"I am sorry to say there has. You have met with a heavy loss. During the night the good old Doctor has passed away."

"Dead, sir."

"Yes; Dr. Seabury is dead."

As I expected, she did not fall. All the color forsook her face, and her eyes seemed blacker than ever by contrast. Her hands were tightly clenched, until the nails seemed to almost pierce the flesh.

Was this counterfeit agony?

If such it should prove to be, then all I could say was that it had never been equaled as acting in my experience.

"Sir, you are not deceiving me?" she at length breathed.

"My dear young lady, heaven forbid that I should mock your affection for the good Doctor. He has passed away, and is now at rest."

"From what did he die, sir?"

I hesitated.

This was a direct question, and I might be hurting Mr. Ketcham's case if I gave too much information.

I would be conservative, and allow him to run his own business.

"Sad as it may seem, a phial was found in the Doctor's hand which had contained a deadly poison."

"Then he took his own life?"

"So it seems."

"Why was not I made aware of this terrible calamity sooner? Why did not Ursula come to me before sending for a stranger? My position in this house is such that I should have been consulted."

"Miss Leonore, Ursula has only learned the truth in the last ten minutes."

"Then who sent for you, Doctor? Peter?"

"No; he, too, has been in complete ignorance of the truth. You look puzzled. Perhaps I can enlighten you a little.

"Dr. Seabury was connected with the office of a friend of mine by a telegraphic instrument. He feared sudden death, and had made arrangements with this friend to come the instant he was summoned.

"This morning, about two o'clock, this friend of mine received the summons. He hastened here at once, let himself in with a key the old Doctor had given him, and found Dr. Seabury dead, his hand still grasping the fatal phial which he had pressed to his lips.

"In the hope that an antidote might be of some use, and knowing that I was skilled in the use of poisons, this friend took a cab and got me here.

"It was of no avail; the old Doctor had passed to that bourne from whence no traveler returns. I was waiting here for my friend, who had gone to break the sad news to Ursula and Peter, when I was surprised by your entrance."

"It is hard for me to believe, you, sir. My dear, good guardian dead! Oh, what shall I do now! I am alone, alone, with his faithful arm to stand no more between the blackness of the past and my heart! Woe is me!"

Suddenly she seemed to remember my presence and ceased moaning. When she looked at me I could see stern lines near her mouth—lines that seemed foreign to a woman's fair face, and which spoke plainly of determination.

She was no ordinary woman.

No matter what the misty future had to unfold in connection with this case, I was bound to believe this fact.

Innocent or guilty, Leonore was a revelation to me.

"You speak of a friend, Dr. Burton. Pardon me, but is he not a detective?"

I could not help answering in the affirmative.

"A Mr. Ketcham?"

True, Miss Leonore. He has never seen you. May I ask how you know him?"

"I have heard my poor guardian speak of him, and I know the arrangement he made with the detective. Doctor, have you told me all?"

"Are the winters cold in Arkansas?" "I'm not sure; but they always have Hot Springs."

REPUBLICANS WIN.

NEARLY EVERYTHING GOES THEIR WAY.

MISSISSIPPI AND VIRGINIA HOLD THEIR OWN,

WHILE MARYLAND LOSES AND KENTUCKY SEEMS FATED.

Many Democratic Stronghold Captured by the Republicans.

The result of Wednesday's elections is no great surprise. Of the twelve states where a general vote was cast only four could reasonably have been considered doubtful. These were New York, New Jersey, Maryland and Kentucky. In every one of these doubtful states the democrats were defeated. The dispatches below tell the tale of the battle of ballots:

Kentucky's Tale of Woe.

The story of Tuesday in Kentucky was very much like that of a year ago. It was something in the nature of a landslide. Old democratic strongholds have gone republican, while others have suffered a serious diminution of their accustomed majorities. The returns from one hundred and five of the one hundred and nineteen counties give Colonel William O. Bradley, republican candidate for governor, a majority over P. Wat Hardin, the democratic candidate, of 3,965 votes. The other fourteen counties, estimated according to the vote cast at the last gubernatorial race, will swell this majority to nearly 5,000. The Courier-Journal says: "Democrats of Kentucky are asking where they stand today. It was an avalanche. The governor's race is in doubt. The legislature is in doubt. Democratic majorities in democratic strongholds have been shaved to almost nothing. As it stands, with reports from about eight counties, Bradley has a lead of about 4,000 votes for governor. There may be better news to come from the unreported counties, but the same ratio of democratic losses would land Mr. Bradley in the executive mansion at Frankfort. It is an open question whether either Senator Blackburn or Mr. McCreary or either will be United States senator from Kentucky."

The legislature may be republican but the hold-over senators will save the democrats on joint ballots. The legislature appears to be 65 democrats against 69 opposition. The populists hold the balance of power. Blackburn's friends claim his election with the aid of the populists.

New York, November 5.—The republicans have carried New York state and Tammany has swept the city clean. The following is the Tammany ticket elected: Henry D. Purroy, county clerk; Charles H. Truax, Charles F. McLean, Frederick Smythe, justices of the supreme court; Joseph F. Newburger, Martin T. McMahon, judges of the general sessions; Robert A. Vanwyck, John P. Schuchman, Edward E. Odwyer, justices of the city court; William Sohmer, register. According to returns so far received, Tammany has elected eleven out of twelve senators, and eleven assemblymen out of thirty-five.

The republicans have elected the following state ticket:

John Palmer, secretary of state; James A. Roberts, comptroller; Addison B. Colvin, treasurer; Theodore E. Hancock, attorney general; Campbell W. Adams, state engineer and surveyor; Celora E. Martin, associate judge of the court of appeals.

The election throughout the state was orderly and rapidly conducted and the results were quickly complied.

United Press bulletins say that the senators elected in New York state comprise thirty-four republicans and sixteen democrats.

New York, November 6.—There is no doubt that the republican state officers have been elected by pluralities averaging about 50,000. The estimated pluralities above the Harlem are about 100,000. The democrats carried New York city by fully 40,000 and the city of Brooklyn by something like 2,000 to 3,000, leaving a safe margin in the state at large of 50,000 votes in the republicans' favor.

From Mississippi.

Jackson, Miss.—The absolute certainty of the election of the entire democratic state ticket by a majority anywhere from 15,000 to 40,000, tended to make a small vote except in counties where the populists had hopes of electing their candidates for the legislature and county officers. In such instances the full vote has been polled.

The contested counties are mostly remote from telgraph connections and the chairman of the state democratic committee does not expect to receive definite information tonight. He has enough, however, to know that McLaurin has secured two votes to Burkitt's one, and it is not believed that the populists have elected as many as twenty of the one hundred and seventy-eight members of the two houses of the legislature.

It is impossible to give any correct estimate of votes polled, but returns from most important precincts indicate that the entire democratic ticket is elected by an overwhelming majority, certainly 30,000. It is barely possible that one or two beat offices will be carried by the populists.

Jackson, Miss.—The estimated plurality of McLaurin, the democratic candidate for governor, is from 35,000 to 50,000. The populists did not receive 15 per cent. of the total vote. The plurality for democratic state officers is in the neighborhood of 50,000.

Maryland.

Baltimore, Md.—Senator A. P. Gorman, the great Maryland leader who made it possible for Grover Cleveland to become president of the United States, met his Waterloo today. A tidal wave such as this good old democratic state has never known before swept through the counties and into the cities, and the candidates of the hero of the force bill went down under an avalanche of republican and independent votes.

The returns from the country are meager, but everywhere there have been large republican gains.

Late returns from the wards of the city show that the regular democratic ticket has been defeated by 15,000. More than two-thirds of the members of the legislature will be republicans. There will be but five democrats in the city council, one of whom will be a negro. The latter will be the second negro elected to the council by the people of the city.

Virginia Goes All Right.

Richmond, Va.—Returns received up to 1:30 o'clock Wednesday morning show that while the democrats have carried the state and elected more than a majority of the general assembly, they suffered more serious losses than was expected. The honest elections people have certainly carried sixteen house districts and two senatorial districts, one of the latter being the district now represented by Mr. Walton, the patron of the present election law which is being so vigorously fought. The opposition also claims to have carried Augusta and Pittsylvania, two of the largest counties in the state, and both of which usually give large democratic majorities. With the nineteen hold-over senators the democrats will certainly have two-thirds of both houses.

Nebraska.

Lincoln, Neb.—Not one-tenth of the voting precincts in the state had sent in even partial returns up to 11 o'clock Tuesday night. Reports are mainly from county seats, with a few estimates on outlying precincts, and these indicated a material falling off from the vote of 1893, with which comparisons are made. The loss to each party is about the same, and unless radical changes occur in outlying counties the republican state ticket will be elected. Incomplete returns from the state show that Norval, republican, has carried the state by 20,000 over Maxwell, populist, for supreme court justice.

Massachusetts.

Boston, Mass.—Massachusetts re-elected Governor F. T. Greenhalge for a third term by about 65,000 plurality over George Fred Williams, democrat, in a total vote of some 10,000 less than last year. Lieutenant Governor Walcott, republican, is re-elected by a plurality nearly as large. The balance of the republican state ticket is elected by slightly smaller pluralities. The democrats have gained one senator in Boston and a few representatives throughout the state. The question, is it expedient to grant municipal suffrage to women, is decided in the negative by a majority of 55,000, or very nearly two to one.

Kansas.

Topeka, Kans.—A light vote was polled today. Little interest was taken in the contest for chief justice. David Martin, republican, was generally considered a sure winner, but the returns from the few precints heard from indicate that the vote for Charles K. Holliday, independent free silver, will be much larger than was anticipated, the populists generally voting for him. Out of eight district judges, the republicans will elect five, and the populist and democrats three, being a loss of two to the republicans. The returns are coming in slowly.

Ohio Solidly Republican.

At midnight Chairman Kurtz, of the republican state committee, sent telegrams to General Asa Bushnell, candidate for governor; General Jones, of Youngstown, candidate for lieutenant governor, and to ex-governor Foraker, stating that the whole republican ticket was elected by pluralities bordering close around 100,000 and congratulating them.

The republican chairman claims 75 out of 112 members of the house and 27 out of 37 of the senate.

Seven hundred and ninety-eight precincts outside of Cincinnati—Bushnell, republican, 126,248; Campbell, democrat, 94,035.

Iowa Republican.

Des Moines, Ia.—The republican state committee claims the senate will be 42 republicans, 7 democrats; the house will be 74 republicans, 26 democrats; on joint ballot republicans 117, democrats 33; republican majority 84. Two hundred and five precincts give Drake, republican, 24,305; Babb, democrat, 16,743; net republican gain, 3,595.

175,000 in Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Pennsylvania has elected Haywood, republican, for state treasurer by a majority approximating 175,000, against 135,146 majority in 1893 for Jackson, republican, state treasurer. The six republican candidates for superior judges are elected by majorities slightly below that for Haywood.

The New Jersey Election.

Trenton, N. J.—The returns indicate a sweeping victory for the republicans in nearly every district in New Jersey, even in portions which have been for years strongholds of the democracy. John W. Griggs, the republican candidate for governor, has been elected by a surprisingly large plurality, probably by 20,000. The indications are that six out of seven senators elected are republican, and thirty-five out of sixty men of the assembly are republicans.

Utah Uncertain.

Salt Lake, Utah.—The election passed off very quietly. The vote cast on account of the bad weather will not exceed 80 per cent. of the total vote. Sufficient returns have not yet been received to show with any degree of certainty what the result will be, but present indications are that the vote will remain substantially as it was last year, except that the populist vote for Lawrence for governor will cut down Well's, republican, majority.

AN INSECT DUEL.

Fight to Death Between a Wasp and a Spider.

"I saw a wonderful exhibition of the bravery of insects while I was on my vacation this summer," said the professor, after the coffee had been brought on and the cigars had been lighted. "I spent my holiday camping out," he continued, "and the sight to which I refer was a fight to the death between a wasp and a spider.

"Soon after my tent was pitched I awoke one morning and heard a buzzing sound in the peak of my canvas house. Looking up while still lying on my improvised bed, I saw a wasp building his mud house on the tent pole. Several times he went out and returned a few minutes later with his load of clay, which very soon formed another section of his abode.

"The next morning at just about sunrise, I heard the buzzing again, but it seemed to have increased in volume. Glancing up again I soon saw the reason. A big spider had spun a web completely across the corner of the tent, shutting the half-finished home of the wasp off, so that it could not be reached except by passing through the web. The spider was an ugly-looking black fellow, and he stood on guard watching the movements of the wasp. The latter flew backward and forward looking for an opening to his domicile. Then he remained still in the air for a second or two, as if taking a general view of the situation. Finally he alighted on the tent pole within an inch or so of the edge of the web, and seemed to be making up his mind what to do next.

"By this time I had become interested and wondered what his plan of action would be. While I was still contemplating the two foes, the wasp flew off the pole and directly toward the spider, which had been keenly watching him, and was evidently ready for the fray, if there was to be one. As the wasp flew past his enemy he curled the under part of his body up so that the part containing the stinger would come in close proximity to the spider.

"The latter was evidently accustomed to such warfare, however, because he got out of the way in a twinkling. Maddened at his defeat, the wasp took a turn and went back again. Once more the spider eluded his venomous stinger, but at the same time he appeared to be trying to bite the wasp. The spider might have retreated so far away from his web fort that his enemy could not have touched him until the obstruction was broken down, but he evidently did not intend to have his carefully constructed flytrap destroyed without a struggle.

"There were several skirmishes of the kind already described, and then the wasp again alighted on the tent pole, as though reconnoitering and getting breath for a grand onslaught. That this was exactly what he was doing was proved by what followed. After remaining on the pole for a few seconds, he flew off and poised himself in the air a foot or so below the web. Then he darted directly for the spider and went completely through the web at the exact spot which had been occupied by the spider a second before.

"For an instant both combatants were lost to view and I heard the battle raging in the peak of the tent. Before I had scarcely had a chance to wonder which was getting the better of it, both insects dropped to the ground close to me. The spider was holding fast to the wasp's head with his small but effective mouth, and the wasp was running his stinger in and out of the spider's body with lightning-like rapidity. There was a short struggle on the ground, when both insects began to grow weak, and their movements were less rapid. Finally they fell apart, but neither moved. I examined them both after watching them for a few seconds. The poison of each had done the work for the other, and both were dead."

Assignment of a Leadville Bank.

The Leadville, Col., Savings and Deposit bank has closed its doors and made an assignment owing to a scarcity of ready money. The assignment covers the personal property of P. W. Breene, president, as well as all the bank's chattels.

Locked Out by Shipbuilders.

The Clyde shipbuilders at Glasgow, Scotland, began their promised lockout by paying off and suspending 25 per cent of their workmen. The Clyde builders are acting in harmony with the Belfast Shipbuilders, whose employes are on a strike.

Earthquake Shakes Rome.

Rome, Italy, was visited by violent shocks of earthquake at 5:40 o'clock Friday morning. People were aroused from their slumbers and fled to open squares, and the greatest consternation prevailed.

CLANTON, ALA., Nov. 7, 1895

Bob Ingersol denies that he said he would believe in a hell, when Kentucky went republican.

If no other consolation can be obtained from the recent republican landside, we at least should be thankful that Hill and Gorman are not presidential possibilities.

It does seem impossible that the Republican party have bought up Senators Morgan and Pugh, nor will we accuse these distinguished gentlemen with having sold out to the Rads, but if it has not penetrated the adamantine thickness of their understanding that the present policy is aiding the g. o. p. somebody had better commence on them with a club.

The coming birth of an heir to the throne of Russia is likely to cause the death of the Czarina. Gynecological specialists say it will be impossible for her to recover.

The office-seeker has again made his appearance, and he may now be seen on the street, button-holing candidates and making huge promises.

The melancholy days have come,
The saddest of the year,
The country's to be saved again,
The candidate is here.

The unkind blow delivered by the Banner man to the Advertiser will cause that paper to go into an early decline. Editor Crichton should be careful how he attacks a contemporary.

Our Southern Home, a new paper edited at Livingston, Ala. by Mr. W. H. Lawrence, came to our office this week. It is a bright and newsy paper, and we wish Bro. Lawrence much success in his enterprise.

The newspapers are after the scalp of "our Jess." The latest accusation is that he is an Argus with an hundred eyes. This may or may not be true, but the fact remains it would take a small regiment of that ilk to keep up with Jess.

"Call no man happy until he is dead." Several of our citizens, who have been bucking the fleecy staple, have had momentary fits of happiness, but when prices took a tumble, their faces were suggestive of no pie for dinner. They are all hopeful, however, and say they will win in the long run. Lawrence Sterne spoke truly when he said, "God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb."

The Clanton Banner is not disposed to let us alone, although it has been our policy to treat that sheet with silent contempt, as we do not wish to give it any free advertising through the columns of the View. Yet, for the benefit of some misguided individual, who, perhaps, might be lead to take for facts the statements of that alleged paper, we will say we are here to stay, and propose in the future, as we are doing to day, to run the only newspaper in this county. We are willing to leave it to any impartial witness if our paper does not contain more news, and is not conducted in a more journalistic manner than that organ of populism. We would not give fifty cents for the whole fifty subscribers alleged by the Banner man to have been received by him. If he is so positive that his paper and not ours is in so flourishing a condition, why is he without the slightest provocation forever snarling at our heels? His sheet is generally filled up with a supposed hit at the View and an editorial cheering populism, though why the latter, no has been able to determine, for as far as party affiliation is concerned, this would be editor has yet to be located.

Mr. Crichton informs us through the columns of the Banner that he has been to the Atlanta Exposition. We thought he had been somewhere, judging from the looks of his paper, and evidently he left some one to run it in his absence. For being short of news, and not having time to prepare, by proxy, a sarcastic screed about the View, he falls back on his time-honored custom of abusing the Advertiser. Verily, verily, what a wonderful help the Advertiser has been to the populite editors. It is to them an oasis in the desert. It is the Mecca to which they turn their faces—especially when news is short. If the Advertiser should go out business, of which there is no danger, the populite editors would abolish their editorial page. Dear, old Advertiser, you have not lived in vain, for you have furnished editorial material for the bummest set of newspaper men, who ever handled a pair of scissors.

The confusion and Democratic demoralization attending the recent repudiation of the Democratic party, recalls an interview the editor of the Tribune once had with a mountain Billy, who was a candidate for County Commissioner. We said; "Pard, what's the political situation?" Collecting his thoughts and giving a long yawn, he, in measured tones replied; "Well, I tell you, every son-of-a-gun I met on the road was running and hollowing fire! fire! and politically it is hotter than h—l still there is not a one of the dern fools who can locate the blaze' —Huntsville Tribune.

Were it not for a few political heelers, whose political salvation depends on keeping the people stirred up, the situation in this section would be most roseate. The people naturally are satisfied, and were they left to themselves there would be no further dissension in Dale.—Ozark Star.

We print the above because it applies so well to Chilton county, but agitators like the Banner man would not live if the people were friends and neighbors, and not at loggerheads with each other. He does not believe in the old maxim, "When things are quiet, let them be quiet.

The Alabama Christian Advocate of Nov. 7th contains the salutatory of the Rev. J. O. Andrew, D. D., who has assumed the editorship. ADVERTISING AS A SCIENCE PAYS.

Some people say that advertising is all a matter of luck; that you cannot tell what advertising is going to do, or whether or not it is going to pay. This may be true; but it is very strange that the man who gives intelligent thought to his advertising, and it in an intelligent, earnest, straightforward way usually has the luck on his side. He is lucky in his advertising, because he reduced it to a science. Advertising is just as certain as paying rent. Advertising is governed by the same common sense business lines that govern buying out of tomatoes or codfish.—Grocery World.

DISAPPEARING TOGETHER.

An Indianapolis dispatch says that the indications are that the Populist party organization in Indiana will disband within the next month. The dispatch says that the men who have been carrying on the agitation for four years have about decided that there is no future for their party in the State, and that they might as well abandon it. Continuing, the dispatch says; "E B Cummings, the Secretary of the committee, has tendered his resignation. The old officers and members of the State Committee will, it is said follow the example set by the Secretary. The men who have been leading the party here say they have information that the Executive Committee of the National Committee have decided to resign."

Whether it be true that the members of the Executive Committee of the National Populist Committee intend to resign or not the condition of the party organization in the single State of Indiana is good evidence of the rapid disintegration of that party as a factor both in State and National politics. But the Indianapolis story was not needed to prove that the Populist party is losing ground. The result of last Tuesday's elections demonstrate that fact. In Nebraska, for instance, they were supposed to be strong, they made a very weak showing. In Omaha the party went to pieces and in the State their falling off over two years ago was large.

Populism is dying with free silverism. The Populist party being the party that has ever incorporated the 16 to 1 idea in its platform. It is, of course, the only free silver party. In Tuesday's elections, free coinage, instead of strengthening it, seems to have weakened it, for in every State where the Populist had a ticket they were beaten. The Populist party is a calamity party, and a political organization founded upon hard times can not live long.

Likewise no financial theory whose only excuse for existance is a temporary business depression can survive. Populism and free silverism will disappear from the political stage together, for it is clear that neither of the old parties will ever bind itself down with the 16 to 1 fallacy.—B'ham News

VETERAN'S BUTTON.

The United Confederate Veterans, an organization of which Senator J. B. Gordon, of Georgia, is general commanding and J. F. Shipp, of Chattanooga, Tenn., is quartermaster general, has recently adopted a new design for the badge of the society. The old design was a square, upon which, in red, white and blue, were the crossed bars and stars of the Confederacy. Owing to the indiscriminate use and sale of the button it fell into disfavor. In consequence of criticism and complaint Quartermaster General Shipp, who, with General Gordon, is custodian of the society badge and button, prepared a new design and button, and this was protected by the patent office and is to be issued for the exclusive use of Confederate Veterans.

The new button is described in the application for a patent as being, in its main characteristics, in arrangement and combination of colors, and they are well adapted for the purpose for which the button is intended, viz., the insignia of an association of Confederate Veterans, the arrangement and combination of colors being red, white and red, known as Confederate colors; it also contains the national colors of red, white and blue, thus combining in the design the colors of a heroic past and the national colors of a reunited people.

In the illustrations the shaded triangles of the old design were red, the crossed bars were blue, and the stars white. In the newly adopted design on the right the outer square is red, with gold inscriptions; the inner square is red, with blue crossed bars and gold stars, and the space between the outer and inner square is white.

These buttons are not to be offered for sale, and can be obtained only from Quartermaster General Shipp, at Chattanooga, upon requisition from the commander, quartermaster or adjutant of a camp of association of the United Confederate Veterans in good standing of the general organization. The new button was supplied to some of the Confederates who attended the recent ceremonies in connection with the dedication of the Chickamauga-Chattanooga National Military Park, but the supply then on hand was exhausted by veterans in attendance and others who gave orders for them. The supply has now been replenished, and the buttons have been sent to those who have applied for them and who are entitled to receive and wear them.—N. Y. Times.

There is no medicine so often needed in every home and so admirably adapted to the purposes for which it is intended, as Chamberlain's Pain Balm. Hardly a week passes but some member of the family has need of it. A toothache or headache may be cured by it. A touch of rheumatism or neuralgia quieted. The severe pain of a burn or scald promptly relieved and the sore healed in much less time than when medicine has to be sent for. A sprain may be promptly treated before inflammation sets in, which insures a cure in about one-third of the time otherwise required. Cuts and bruises should receive immediate treatment before the parts become swollen, which can only be done when Pain Balm is kept at hand. A sore throat may be cured before it becomes serious. A troublesome corn may be removed by applying it twice a day for a week or two. A lame back may be cured and several days of valuable time saved or a pain in the side or chest relieved without paying a doctor bill. Procure a 50 cent bottle at once and you will never regret it. For sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton and McNeill and Smith, Jemison, Ala.

E. M. BARRETT,
Editor

PUBLISHED [illegible]

CLANTON, ALA., Nov. 7. 189

Bob Ingersol denies that he said he would believe in a hell, when Kentucky went republican.

If no other consolation can be obtained from the recent republican landside, we atleast should be thankful that Hill and Gorman are not presidential possibilities.

It does seem impossible that the Republican party have bought up Senators Morgan and Pugh, nor will we accuse these distinguished gentlemen with having sold out to the Rads, but if it has not penetrated the adamantine thickness of their understanding that the present policy is aiding the g. o. p. somebody had better commence on them with a club.

Mrs. Robt. Seaman, commonly known as "Nellie Bly," is having considerable trouble with her 80 year old husband.

Poor David B. Hill, he was so anxious to save Tammany that he forgot his own political fences, and now his name is mud in box car letters.

year old husband.

The coming birth of an heir to the throne of Russia is likely to cause the death of the Czarina. Gynecological specialists say it will be impossible for her to recover.

The office-seeker has again made his appearance, and he [illegible] now be seen on the street, button-holing candidates and making huge promises.

The melancholy days have come,
The saddest of the year,
The country s to be saved again,
The candidate is here.

The unkind blow delivered by the Banner man to the Advertiser, will cause that paper to go into an early decline. Editor Crichton should be careful how he attacks a contemporary.

Our Southern Home, a new paper edited at Livingston, Ala. by Mr. W. H. Lawrence, came to our office this week. It is a bright and newsy paper, and we wish Bro. Lawrence much success in his enterprise.

The newspapers are after the scalp of "our Jess." The latest accusation is that he is an Argus with an hundred eyes. This may or may not be true, but the fact remains it would take a small regiment of that ilk to keep up with Jess.

"Call no man happy until he is dead." Several of our citizens, who have been bucking the fleecy staple, have had momentary fits of happiness, but when prices took a tumble, their faces were suggestive of no pie for dinner. They are all hopeful, however, and say they will win in the long run.

Lawrence Sterne spoke truly when he said, "God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb."

The Clanton Banner is not disposed to let us alone, although it has been our policy to treat that sheet with silent contempt, as we do not wish to give it any free advertising through the column of the View. Yet, for the benefit of some misguided individual, who, perhaps, might be lead to take for facts the statements of that alleged paper, we will say we are here to stay, and propose in the future, as we are doing to day, to run the only newspaper in this county. We are willing to leave it to any impartial witness if our paper does not contain more news, and is not conducted in a more journalistic manner than that organ of populism. We would not give fifty cents for the whole fifty subscribers alleged by the Banner man to have been received by him. If he is so positive that his paper and not ours is in such a flourishing a condition, why is he, without the slightest provocation, forever snarling at our heels? His sheet is generally filled up with a supposed hit at the View and an editorial cheering populism, though why the latter, no has been able to determine, for as far as party affiliation is concerned, this would be editor has yet to be located.

Mr. Crichton informs us through the columns of the Banner that he has been to the Atlanta Exposition. We thought he had been somewhere, judging from the looks of his paper, and evidently he left no one to run it in his absence. For being short of news, and not having time to prepare, by proxy, a sarcastic screed about the View, he falls back on his time honored custom of abusing the Advertiser. Verily, verily, what a wonderful help the Advertiser has been to the populite editors. It is to them an oasis in the desert. It is the Mecca to which they turn their faces—especially when news is short. If the Advertiser should go out business, of which there is no danger, the populite editors would abolish their editorial page. Dear, old Advertiser, you have not lived in vain, for you have furnished editorial material for the bummest set of newspaper men, who ever handled a pair of scissors.

The confusion and Democratic demoralization attending the recent repudiation of the Democratic party, recalls an interview the editor of the Tribune once had with a mountain Billy, who was a candidate for County Commissioner. We said; "Pard, what is the political situation?" Collecting his thoughts and giving a long yawn, he, in measured tones replied; "Well, I tell you, every son-of-a gun I met on the road was running and hollowing fire! fire! and politically it is hotter than h—l still there is not a one of the dern fools who can locate the blaze'—Huntsville Tribune.

Were it not for a few political heelers, whose political salvation depends on keeping the people stirred up, the situation in this section would be most roseate. The people naturally are satisfied, and were they left to themselves there would be no further dissension in Dale.—Ozark Star.

We print the above because it applies so well to Chilton county, but agitators like the Banner man could not live if the people were friends and neighbors, and not at loggerheads with each other. He does not believe in the old maxim. "When things are quiet, let them be quiet.

The Alabama Christian Advocate of Nov. 7th contains the salutatory of the Rev. J. O. Andrew, D. D., who has assumed the editorship. Mr. Andrews shows in this, his first issue, that he is a writer of no mean ability, and is fully qualified for the work he has to perform. If this paper is any indication of those to follow, the Advocate will be read with pleasure by all denominations. Success to you, Bro. Andrew.

New York is to have a new city hall. Architect T. E. K. Tuerst, who has prepared the design, calculates it will cost 99 [illegible].

WITH OUR EXCHANGES.

If you ask some men for an advertisement they will tell you that they don't believe in advertising, that newspapers are never read. Let the same man be caught kissing his neighbor's wife or trying to hold up a building some dark night and if the printing office is in the seventh story of a building he'll go to it and beg the editor to keep the thing quiet "Don't publish it in your paper you know."—Alabama Enquirer

ADVERTISING AS A SCIENCE PAYS.

Some people say that advertising is all a matter of luck; that you cannot tell what advertising is going to do, or whether or not it is going to pay. This may be true; but it is very strange that the man who gives intelligent thought to his advertising, and it in an intelligent, earnest, straightforward way usually has the luck on his side. He is lucky in his advertising, because he reduced it to a science. Advertising is just as certain as paying rent. Advertising is governed by the same common sense business lines that govern buying lot of tomatoes or codfish.—Grocery World.

DISAPPEARING TOGETHER.

An Indianapolis dispatch says that the indications are that the Populist party organization in Indiana will disband within the next month. The dispatch adds that the men who have been carrying on the agitation for four years have about decided that there is no future for their party in the State, and that they might as well abandon it. Continuing, the dispatch says: "E. B. Cummings, the Secretary of the Committee, has tendered his resignation. The old officers and members of the State Committee will, it is said follow the example set by the Secretary. The men who have been leading the party here say they have information that the Executive Committee of the National Committee have decided to resign."

Whether it be true that the members of of the Executive Committee of the National Populist Committee intend to resign or not, the condition of the party organization in the single State of Indiana is good evidence of the rapid disintegration of that party as a factor both in State and National politics. But the Indianapolis story was not needed to prove that the Populist party is losing ground. The result of last Tuesday's elections demonstrate that fact. In Nebraska, for instance, they were supposed to be strong, they made a very weak showing. In Omaha the party went to pieces and in the State their falling off over two years ago was large.

Populism is dying with free silverism. The Populist party being the party that has ever incorporated the 16 to 1 idea in its platform. It is, of course, the only free silver party. In Tuesday's elections, free coinage, instead of strengthening it, seems to have weakened it, for in every State where the Populists had a ticket they were beaten. The Populist party is a calamity party, and a political organization founded on the hard times can live long. Likewise no financial theory whose only excuse for existance is a temporary business depression can survive. Populism and free silverism will disappear from the political stage together, for it is clear that neither of the old parties will ever bind itself down with the 16 to 1 fallacy.—B'ham News

VETERAN'S BUTTON.

The United Confederate Veterans, an organization of which Senator J. B. Gordon, of Georgia, is general commanding and J. F. Shipp, of Chattanooga, Tenn., is quartermaster general, has recently adopted a new design for the badge of the society. The old design was a square, upon which, in red, white and blue, were the crossed bars and stars of the Confederacy. Owing to the indiscriminate use and sale of the button it fell into disfavor. In consequence of [illegible] complaint Quartermaster General Shipp, who, with General Gordon, is custodian of the society badge and button, prepared a new design and button, and this was protected by the patent office and is to be retained for the exclusive use of Confederate Veterans.

The new button is described in the application for a patent as being, in its main characteristics, in arrangement and combination of colors, and they are well adapted for the purpose for which the button is intended, viz., the insignia of an association of Confederate Veterans, the arrangement and combination of colors being red, white and red, known as Confederate colors; it also contains the national colors of red, white and blue, thus combining in the design the colors of a heroic past and the national colors of a reunited people.

In the illustrations the shaded triangles of the old design were red, the crossed bars were blue, and the stars white. In the newly adopted design on the right, the outer square is red, with gold inscriptions; the inner square is red, with blue crossed bars and gold stars, and the space between the outer and inner square is white.

These buttons are not to be offered for sale, and can be obtained only from Quartermaster General Shipp, at Chattanooga, upon requisition from the commander, quartermaster or adjutant of a camp or association of the United Confederate Veterans in good standing of the general organization. the new button was supplied to some of the Confederates who attended the recent ceremonies in connection with the dedication of the Chickamauga-Chattanooga National Military Park, but the supply then on hand was exhausted by veterans in attendance and others who gave orders for them. The supply has now been replenished, and the buttons have been sent to those who have applied for them and who are entitled to receive and wear them—N. Y. Times.

at Montgomery.

Mr. John Knight, an old citizen of Chilton, who for some years past has been living in Arkansas, is visiting his brother Mr. E. A. Knight.

Call at this office and get our prices and see our samples before having your job printing done. We are prepared to print anything from a visiting card to an encyclopedia.

Messrs. Henry Honeycutt, J. A. Logan, Lee Hayes, Ben Wells and Frank Crichton are attending the populite convention in Birmingham.

Parties indebted to the VIEW will please come forward and settle for same. We will take any kind of farm produce in payment for old debts.

We are pained to learn the death of Mr. Jule Phillips, who died of rheumatism, at his home in Opelika. He was a brother to Mr. Tom Phillips, Mrs. W. J. Greene and Mrs. J. W. Hannon of this place.

You are throwing money away if you miss this great sale. We have the largest Clothing stock in Alabama, and our prices are the lowest ever seen on earth. Alex Rice, Montgomery.

The case of W. J. Melton, charged with breaking the peace, came up before Judge Honeycutt yesterday. Judge Honeycutt fixed his bond at one thousand dollars. The case will be appealed to the Supreme court.

We bought a stock of Clothing, Shirts, Hats, etc., at about half its value and we offer it to you at the same proportionate figure. ALEX RICE, Montgomery.

Two new prisoners are confined in Clanton jail. Isiah Patrick, charged with burglary, was captured Wednesday, in Greenville, by Sheriff Moore. W. J. Melton, charged with breaking the peace, is held in default of bond.

It is easier to pay too much than it is to pay too little. But there are times when too little is asked for goods—and this is one of them. A glance through our stock will demonstrate that our prices are very low.
ALEX RICE,
Montgomery.

Mrs. Hannon has been experimenting with a man cook. Several days ago a slick lookin negro of ginger cake hue applied for a job and was accepted. He said his name was, William Graham, and he hailed from Montgomery. The climate of Chilton evidently did not agree with William, for yesterday he left for parts unknown, accompanied by Mrs. Hannon's purse and a box containing jewelry. We shall miss you William and should you feel inclined to pay us another visit, you will be given a warm reception.

NAPOLEON'S VALUE OF A VICTORY.

It Finds a Striking Counterdarts in Recent World Triumph.

Napoleon knew well the value of a victory. After Austerlitz the world seemed his. Fame invited; fortune favored, everything stimulated his aspiring ambition. With growing power he gathered the fruits of victory. And so has it ever been. Success succeeds. A notable illustration of this truth is furnished by the great victories won at the World's Fair in '93 and the California Midwinter Fair in '94 by Dr Price's Cream Baking Powder. Ever increasing sales and popularity have been the result. The people have promptly ratified the official verdicts that declared Dr. Price's, for leavening power, keeping qualities, purity and general excellence the "foremost baking powder in all the world." Quite as quickly as the great Emperor do they know the value of a victory that means world-wide supremacy.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher is on every wrapper.

"Many of the citizens of Rainsville, Indiana are never without a bottle of Chamberlains Cough Remedy in the house," says Jacob Brown, the leading merchant of the place. This Remedy has proven of so much value for colds and croup in children that few mothers who know its worth are willing to be without it. For sale by Clanton Drug Clanton, and by McNeil and Smith, at Jemison, Ala.

Every mother should know that croup can be prevented. The first symptom of true croup is hoarseness. This is followed by a peculiar rough cough. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given freely as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the cough has developed it will prevent the attack. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and by McNeil and Smith Jemison Ala.

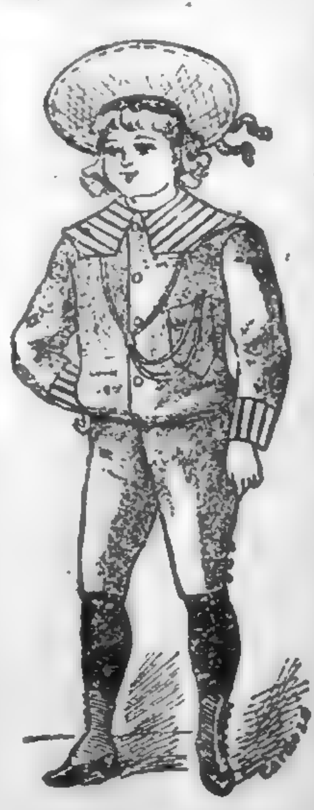
IF A MAN OFFERED YOU
GOLD DOLLARS AT 50 CENTS
APIECE, WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

OUR Buyer had a similar question to answer recently. The stock of several manufacturers had to be converted into cash. It did not take us long to make a trade. We bought about Forty to Fifty Thousand Dollars' worth of new, desirable merchandise for less than half its real value.



The goods are all in stock now; it is a case of Manufacturer and Importer paying the piper, and YOU enjoying the dance. Otherwise we couldn't afford to give you Two or Three Dollars' worth of Merchandise for One Dollar in CASH. If you can't save big money here, money can't be saved anywhere on earth, that's all. Remember that anything you buy of us and are not thoroughly satisfied with, we will cheerfully refund your money.

Easy Living in Japan.

The Japanese man of the people—the skilled laborer able to underbid without effort any western artisan in the same line of industry—remains happily independent of both shoemakers and tailors, writes Lafcadio Hearn in The Atlantic Monthly. His feet are good to look at, his body is healthy, and his heart is free. If he desires to travel a thousand miles he can get ready for his journey in five minutes. His whole outfit need not cost 75 cents; and all his baggage can be put into a handkerchief. On $10 he can travel a year without work or he can travel simply on his ability to work, or he can travel as a pilgrim. You may reply that any savage can do the same thing. Yes, but any civilized man cannot, and the Japanese has been a highly civilized man for at least a thousand years. Hence his present capacity to threaten western manufacturers.

Ability to live without furniture, without impediments, with the least possible amount of neat clothing, shows more than the advantage held by this Japanese race in the struggle of life; it shows also the real character of some weaknesses in our own civilization. It forces reflection upon the useless multiplicity of our daily wants. We must have meat and bread and butter; glass windows and fire; hats, white shirts, and woolen underwear; boots and shoes; trunks, bags and boxes; bedsteads, mattresses, sheets and blankets; all of which a Japanese can do without, and is really better off without. Think for a moment how important an article of accidental attire is the single costly item of white shirt! Yet even the linen shirt, the so-called badge of a gentleman, is in itself a useless garment. It gives neither warmth nor comfort. It represents in our fashions the survival of something once a luxurious class distinction, but today meaningless and useless as the buttons sewn on the outside of coat sleeves.

BUILDING WRECKED AND MANY LIVES LOST.

Fearful Collapse of The Journal Building at Detroit.

At about 9 o'clock Wednesday morning the boilers in the Journal building, at Detroit, Mich., exploded with terrific force. A portion of the building, about 40 feet wide, immediately collapsed, burying scores of people in the ruins.

Four dead and several injured were soon taken out. A great many girls and women were employed in the building. There were probably a hundred or more persons in the wrecked portion. The following is a list of the dead as far as can be ascertained at present: Two unknown men, two unknown girls, John S. Derby, Lizzie Tapley and Henry Larvier.

The list of injured is a long one, and it is probable that some of those most seriously hurt will die.

Shortly after 9 o'clock the ruin broke out in flame and the stifling smoke seriously impeded the firemen in their work of rescue. It is positively known that at the time of the collapse, the stereotypers engaged on the fifth floor were Michael Ward, Arthur Lynch, James Ross, all three of whom went down in the wreck.

In the third story was the Habbin Electrotype Foundry, in which there were some half dozen men. In the top story was the Journal's stereotyping department, where four or five men were busy. As near as can be learned there were from 25 to 30 at work in the building exclusive of those who may have been injured while passing on the street.

Twenty-Six Dead.

Twenty-six dead bodies have already been taken from the ruins of the Journal building, and the search still goes on. Later dispatches are to the effect that there are yet twenty missing, swelling the probable list of dead to forty or forty-five; besides these, nineteen persons were seriously injured, two of them fatally.

The dead thus far taken from the ruins are as follows: Adolph Schrieber, Jr., John Gordon, Kittie Leonard, M. Rosa Morgan, John Breitenbecher, unknown man, Jennie Niebauer, Bertha Weidbusch, Lizzie Tapley, Henry Walsh, John J. Reuter, George H. Soule, George Shaw, Willie Hawes, James Ross, William W. Dunlap, Henry Larivere, unknown boy, supposed to be John Bowman; Carrie Bauer, Hattie Hillier, Minnie Liese, E. L. Rieger, unidentified man, Walter P. Saxby, Michael Ward and Ernest Parkis.

The cause of the disaster has been definitely ascertained as a boiler explosion, but what caused the explosion is still a mystery. Thomas Thompson, the engineer, was painfully injured. He said he could assign no reason for the explosion. City Inspector McGregor says he inspected the boilers last August and found them to be up to the requirements. Some of the employes in the building assert that the boilers were old and known to be unsafe.

The scenes around the wreckage were heartrending. Parents, brothers, sisters, wives and friends of the entombed victims stood anxiously by and as a dead and mangled body was brought into the open air a shriek would go up by those who were near and dear that would penetrate that entire section of the city.

BOOKER TO BEN.

Open Letter from Booker Washington to Senator Tillman.

Booker T. Washington, who was the orator in behalf of the negro race on the opening day of the Atlanta exposition, has written to Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, an open letter in behalf of the negroes of that state.

The letter was inspired by this statement contained in a letter of James Creelman in the New York World:

"An appalling fact that may not be obvious at a first glance is that the course proposed means the end of negro education and negro progress in South Carolina. This is openly admitted by Senator Tillman and his friends."

Washington says he appeals to the senator as a magnanimous and generous man in behalf of 650,000 negroes in South Carolina, and begs that the members of his race be not kept in ignorance. He appeals in the interest of humanity. He concludes his letter with a statement that he is actuated by a desire that the state in attempting to rid itself of one burden will not take up one ten times more grievous.

A FAST TRAIN

To Be Operated Between Chicago and Atlanta.

A revolution in the operation of southern railway lines was inaugurated Sunday when the limited train over the Chicago and Eastern Illinois road started for Atlanta on a record breaking fast run.

The train left Chicago Sunday afternoon at 5:10 and arrived in Atlanta Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The running time is thus made 22 hours and 50 minutes, the fastest regular running time ever made between Atlanta and Chicago, except the Chicago Herald's special exposition edition train.

This will be a regular daily train hereafter between the Gate City of the northwest and the Gate City of the south.

Yale Will Not Come.

A dispatch from New Haven Conn., says: It is evident that the University of Georgia, at Athens, in that state, has been misled into the belief that the Yale 'Varsity football team would go south. The Yale Athletic authorities deny that thre is to be any game.

Ten Heretics Burned.

The New York World of Monday contained details of the burning of ten heretics by the judge of the Mexican town of Texacapa, published in a special dispatch from Pocuaba.

MISS VANDERBILT WEDS.

She is Now the Bride of the Duke of Marlborough.

The Duke of Marlborough and Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt were married at St. Thomas' church in New York Wednesday at 12:30 o'clock. The scene inside the church was one which will never be forgotten by those who were fortunate enough to have gained admission. The church was not overcrowded and the arrangements were perfect. Mrs. Vanderbilt and Sir Julian Pauncefote, representing the duke's family, entered the church through different doors shortly before noon. The bridegroom, accompanied by his best man, then walked from the vestry to the chancel rail, where they were soon joined by the bride and her maids. Miss Vanderbilt entered leaning upon the arm of her father, W. K. Vanderbilt.

Bishop Potter, aided by Bishop Littlejohn, performed the marriage ceremony, which began at 12:30 o'clock sharp. The choir then sang the anthem from the English service, "God Be Merciful Unto Us and Bless Us." The benediction was then pronounced and the bride, leaning on the arm of the groom, entered the vestry, where the marriage register was signed and witnessed by Mrs. Vanderbilt, J. K. Vanderbilt, Sir Julian T. Pauncefote, Dr. Brown, Bishops Potter and Littlejohn.

The surging crowds outside were kept back by policemen, and immediately the ducal couple had entered their carriage they were driven rapidly to the Vanderbilt home where Mrs. Vanderbilt, who had left the church by a side door immediately after the signing of the register, awaited the happy couple. The duke and duchess proceeded to the reception room, where, standing beneath an immense floral bell, they received the guests invited to the breakfast, among whom were W. K. Vanderbilt, Sir Julian Pauncefote and members of the British embassy.

The wedding breakfast was served in the large dining room. Eighteen covers were laid at the table of the bridal party. The service was of gold. Each guest received the customary wedding cake, in a small box, having on its cover a coronet and the letters "C and M" intertwined. One hundred were present at the breakfast.

SIX BURNED TO DEATH.

A Whole Family in New York Perish in the Flames.

A four-story brick tenement in Brooklyn, N. Y., burned at an early hour Friday morning. Six persons, inmates of the building, lost their lives. The dead are: Charles Ryan, Ellen Ryan, his wife; Joahanna Ryan, twenty years old; Sarah Ryan, seventeen years old; Maggie Ryan, fourteen years old; Lizzie Ryan, twelve years old. The last four were daughters of Charles and Ellen Ryan.

The fire started in the lower hallway and extended to the roof. It is supposed to have been caused by a gas jet in the lower hall setting fire to the woodwork. The Ryan family lived on the top floor, and were in bed when the fire started. Other tenants in the house got out safely.

A COSTLY FIRE.

Three Quarters of a Million Goes Up in Smoke in New York City.

Fire started in the building at the corner of Bleecker street and Broadway, New York, at 9 o'clock Tuesday night. The fire was a disastrous one and the loss is estimated at about $750,000. The entire block between Broadway and Crosby street was laid in ruins and the building of the Manhattan Savings Bank on the opposite side of the street, supposed to be fireproof, was entirely destroyed. Some 25 firemen were seriously injured. The fire burned fiercely till 1 a. m., when it was gotten under control by the firemen.

SUFFRAGE LAW ADOPTED

By the South Carolina Constitutional Convention.

A special from Columbia, S.C., says: The convention completed the article on suffrage Wednesday, adopting it as reported by the committee. Several amendments were offered looking towards making it beyond peradventure that registration books should always be open to public inspection, but the matter of regulating such details was left to the legislature. The ordinance to permit the state to issue bonds in order to loan money to counties to get them on a cash basis was killed.

WERNER OFFICE UNIONIZED.

The Great Ohio Publishing Company to Employ Union Printers.

The Werner Printing Company, of Akron, Ohio, has just entered into an agreement with the American Federation of Labor by which the firm will employ hereafter no printers but those who are members of the International Typographical Union. The firm has been employing non-union men in its composing rooms for a long while, and the announcement is a great victory for union labor.

Tanneries Shut Down.

The Fayette Shaw Leather Company, of Boston, Mass., has sent orders to the four big tanneries which it operates in Wisconsin to shut down for sixty days and take out no leather or put in no hides during that time. The Fayette Shaw tanneries employed about 500 men at this season of the year.

Railroad Deal Pending.

The Lookout Mountain, or Broad Guage railway, will shortly, it is semi-officially stated, go into the hands of the Southern railway, which will operate the line for the benefit of visitors to the mountain as an adjunct to its own lines. The purchase has not yet been consummated.

River Steamer Goes Down.

The steamer Joe Peters, plying between Memphis and Vicksburg, sank at 12 o'clock Sunday night at Island 63, while on her way down with a cargo of about 120 tons of miscellaneous freight. The cause of the accident is not known. No lives were lost.

WASHINGTON wouldn't have made a good soap manufacturer if it be true that he couldn't tell a lie.

FOR THANKSGIVING.

The President Designates Thursday, the 28th of this Month.

President Cleveland has issued a proclamation designating Thursday, November 28th, as Thanksgiving Day. The proclamation is as follows:

"The constant goodness and forbearance of Almighty God which have been vouchsafed to the American people during the year which is just past call for their sincere acknowledgment of devout gratitude. To the end, therefore, that we may with thankful hearts unite in extolling the loving care of our Heavenly Father, I, Grover Cleveland, president of the United States, do hereby appoint and set apart Thursday, the twenty-eighth day of the present month of November, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, to be kept and observed by all our people. On that day let us forego our usual occupations, and in our accustomed places of worship join in rendering thanks to the giver of every good and perfect gift for the bounteous returns that have rewarded our labors in the fields and in the busy marts of trade, for the peace and order that have prevailed throughout the land, for our protection from pestilence and dire calamity and for the other blessings that have been showered upon us from an open hand. And with our thanksgiving let us humbly beseech the Lord to so incline the hearts of our people unto Him that He will not leave us nor forsake us as a nation, but will continue to us His mercy and protecting care, guiding us in the path of national prosperity and happiness, endowing us with rectitude and virtue and keeping alive within us a patriotic love for the free institutions which have been given to us as our national heritage.

"And let us also on the day of our Thanksgiving especially remember the poor and needy, and by deeds of charity let us show the sincerity of our gratitude.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the city of Washington, this, fourth day of November, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-five, and in the one hundred and twentieth year of the independence of the United States.

"Signed GROVER CLEVELAND."

By the President:

RICHARD OLNEY, Secretary of State.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Condition as Reported for the Past Week.

Reports as to industrial conditions in all parts of the south for the past week show that the variations in the cotton markets have not been felt in other lines of business. The crop being short and the demand very great, all growers of cotton are getting a considerable advance on what was expected in the spring, and settlements as now being are on good terms. In other lines, such as cotton manufacturing, iron making, lumber and coal, everything is prosperous. The south's great advantage this year is that its cotton crop has been made for less money than ever before, is being sold for higher prices and the proceeds are almost all available for investment, as home grown supplies were never before raised in so great quantity.

The list of new cotton mills as reported for the week includes a $250,000 mill at Vicksburg, Miss.; mills each with $200,000 capital at Atlanta and Rome, Ga., and Jackson, Miss.; other cotton mills at Bessemer, Ala.; Gastonia, N. C., and Meridian, Miss.; a $200,000 cotton rope factory at Galveston, Tex., and a knitting mill at Brunswick, Ga. The Salem Oil and Gas Co., capital $500,000, has been chartered at Salem, W. Va.; car works and car wheel works are to be established at Savannah, Ga., at a cost of $100,000; the Meadow Brook Land Company, capital $50,000, has been organized at Louisville, Ky., and the Grafton Coal and Coke Co., capital $30,000, at Grafton, W. Va. Cooperage works, with $20,000 capital, are reported at Moultre, Ga.; a $20,000 saw mill and novelty works at Tampa, Fla., and a $15,000 saw and shingle mill at Windsor, Fla.

There is also reported an electric lighting plant at Abbeville, La.; the opening of iron mines at Cartersville, Ga., and Brown Springs, Va.; of a pottery at Macon, Tex., and a rice mill at New Orleans, La. A sugar refinery of a thousand tons capacity is to be built at Abbeville, La.; a tannery at Charlotte, N. C.; a furniture factory at Knoxville, Tenn.; saw mills at Tyrone, Ark., and Fernandina, Fla., and water works at Dublin, Ga., and Falmouth, Ky.—Tradesman (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

Significance of Christian Names.

Some significance should be attached to one's name, and a badly-named child is very apt to be influenced as much by its signification as by the stars under which it is born, says the seer. And so are here a few of our favorite names and their origin and meaning: Anna, from the Hebrew, meaning a prophetess; Annette, from the French, sweet, but sorrowful; Caroline, Latin, noble-spirited; Dorothy, Celtic, fruitful; Edith and Edna, Saxon, happiness; Frances, German, free; Grace, Latin, favor; Helen, Greek, a very beautiful woman; Ida, Greek, a lofty mountain; Josephine, French, a savor of life; Lucy, Latin, shining; Louisa, French, defender of her people; Leonora, Polish, victorious; Margaret, German, a pearl; Madeline, French, favored; Marie and Maria (from French and Spanish), and Mary, from Hebrew, a salt tear or a drop of water.

An Excess of Politeness.

They tell it of a member of a well known club that he never, under any circumstances, forgets to be polite. The relations between the gentleman and his wife have been strained for years. Last week matters culminated in a row, which resulted in a separation. When the war of words was at its height the wife cried, bitterly:

"Then you love me no longer?"

"Madame," replied the husband, with his very best bow, "I have that happiness."

Even in that trying moment he knew how to live up to his reputation.—Tit-Bits.

To Our Lady Readers.

Nine-tenths of the women of the world are afflicted with some of the complaints familiarly known as "Female Diseases," or "Womb Troubles." There is scarcely a family but has an idolized daughter, a cherished sister, or a dearly loved mother who suffers agonies that are endured in silence to protect her modesty. Proper treatment is postponed from month to month by dread of a physicians' humiliating examination, or surgeon's knife. Most of these dangerous diseases can be successfully treated at home, but there is wide-spread ignorance among even the most intelligent classes of women regarding their natural functions and organs of generation, owing to so little information having been published in regard to this subject and a modesty that shrinks from investigation such a disagreeable matter. The Wine of Cardui treatment of female diseases cures thousands of cases of this kind of troubles every year. It can be used successfully in the privacy of the home and is cheap and effective. Ask your druggist for McElree's Wine of Cardui.

[illegible] rush to my heart [illegible] done when I set my eyes [illegible] for the first time.

[illegible] knocked at the alarm door [illegible]

[illegible] did he mean? Could it be possible [illegible] man of wonderful powers had [illegible] his mind?

[illegible] trolled myself. It would never do [illegible] betray my dense ignorance in the presence of Mr. Ketcham. Assuming a [illegible] air I was far from feeling I [illegible] in studied tones:

"[illegible], sir, the idea struck me as rather out of place that an inmate of this house could have done that terrible deed, when we have already learned that the assassin climbed up the vines and entered the window."

Mr. Ketcham chuckled, and shutting one eye compared the distance between certain scrolls on the papered [illegible].

"Remember, Doctor, I said in the start, when we spoke of Leonore, that it was a negative not a positive clew. In such a case the motive must be found. In the positive case we know the motive, and seek to discover and prove the presence of the party suspected at the scene of the crime."

"I see what you mean, sir."

"Since I parted from you I have discovered certain things that at least demand a close investigation with reference to Leonore."

"Indeed. You arouse my interest [illegible]."

"This fact I learned from Ursula. It was drawn from her by degrees and through the medium of skillful questions, so that the old woman [illegible] nothing.

"Last night she saw Miss Leonore holding a candle, and clad in her [illegible] dressing-gown, enter the old lumber-room that lies next to his chamber, [illegible] there for at least ten minutes, when [illegible] once more appeared and went straight to her own room."

His words staggered me. Still I was not convinced. "She might have [illegible] was evidently [illegible] a father [illegible]."

Mr. Ketcham smiled.

[illegible]

[illegible] Mr. Ketcham?"

[illegible]

[illegible] Have [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] the case, [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] when [illegible]

[illegible] Doctor, [illegible]

[illegible] thing, sir."

"What is that?"

[illegible] means. You remember [illegible] the assassin [illegible] the vines [illegible] crawled through the open window."

[illegible] the assassin had planned [illegible] suspicion. We [illegible] You have been in the garden, Doctor."

"How [illegible] you know that?"

"[illegible] ways. I saw you from the [illegible]. Then I found your tracks, and [illegible] I can discover traces of the [illegible] on your shoes."

[illegible] trying to deceive this man, even in fun. Nothing seemed to [illegible] his eagle eye.

"I confess the soft impeachment, sir. I [illegible] in the garden."

"[illegible] investigated the ground at the base [illegible] vines?"

"I did."

"And found foot prints there?"

"Yes."

"Now, in your judgment, Doctor, was it a man or a woman who made those?"

I hesitated before replying.

"If a man, then he must have been of small stature, for they were not much larger than a boy's feet."

"Then you grant it as within the range of possibility that they were caused by a woman?"

"It is possible, and even probable."

"Having been there on the ground before me, I want to ask, Doctor, whether you made any discovery?"

I started, having completely forgotten the little instrument I had picked up.

This I now drew out of my pocket and placed in his hand.

Mr. Ketcham seemed to attach more importance to it than I had deemed possible. He examined it all over, carefully.

"Doctor, where did you pick this up?" he finally asked.

"Among the roots of the vines. It was partly imbedded in the soft soil, and gave evidence of having fallen from some height."

"Allow me to keep it. I will say there is a chance of this tool becoming a very important factor in this terrible affair."

"It is a burglar's tool, I believe."

"You are quite right. You followed the tracks to the low portion of the wall? Now, what impression did you reach?"

"Only this, sir. That the party must have watched the house some time, for they seemed perfectly familiar with the peculiarities of the grounds."

"Very true, Doctor. Miss Leonore has gone out, I believe."

"She said she was going for a walk."

"Under the circumstances, I may be pardoned for visiting her room in order to see whether or no I can find a clew to this mystery; I would to heaven that it might acquit her; at the same time, I must do my duty."

He was again the stern arm of justice.

I shivered at the bare thought of his power being hurled against that frail young girl to crush her, and yet business was business, as I well knew.

"Meet me in the room where he lies, Doctor. I have some further investigations to make there."

With these words Mr. Ketcham left me, passing out in his usual noiseless style, so that unless one were watching, it would be impossible to tell when he went.

I remained, buried in thought.

Could Leonore be saved from this fate which seemed to be stretching out its arms to embrace her?

I felt as though I were her only friend, and she had said, oh, so sadly, that if ever she were in need of friends it was [illegible].

A thought came to me.

What if the trail did come home to her and Mr. Ketcham proved his words true? Then she had committed the [illegible] while laboring under a temporary fit of insanity.

Would the law hold her responsible?

That was a pretty question, and one I [illegible] competent to decide.

CHAPTER VII.

[illegible] I proceeded up to the [illegible] cold form [illegible] the light of the early morning [illegible] in at the open window — New York was fully awake.

Mr. Ketcham had given me the key to the chamber of death.

[illegible] hand upon the knob I paused [illegible] entered.

[illegible]

[illegible] the wound [illegible]

"Yes."

[illegible] was the style [illegible] the deed was [illegible]

[illegible] stiletto or [illegible] as the wound had [illegible] the hemorrhage internal."

[illegible] to that opinion?"

[illegible] to change."

[illegible] something from his pocket.

"How would that [illegible]?"

I saw at once it was a Malay creese — [illegible] be nothing else with that serpent-like shape.

Then I remembered where he had gone when he parted from me.

"Great heavens, man, do you mean to say [illegible] found that in her room?"

"Yes."

"This is terrible, terrible! Suppose we try and see if it fits the wound."

"I was about to propose that, Doctor. It was not concealed, but lay upon her table among several magazines and was evidently used as a paper cutter. You have practiced surgery — perform the operation."

It was not a pleasant duty, but a doctor shrinks not before such tasks.

I took the blade.

It seemed a pretty toy, and yet the point was sharp as a needle and the edge keen.

Even a weak hand could use such a weapon to advantage.

Instinctively I looked quickly along the polished surface from point to hilt.

There was no sign of blood upon it.

Then stepping over to the bed I put my words into operation.

To my horror success greeted my efforts.

The wound had been made by such a blade as the creese.

"Mr. Ketcham, it fits perfectly," I said as I drew the blade out and wiped it upon a piece of paper.

A dry chuckle was my only answer.

Turning around I saw the old detective had passed over to the window and was bending down to examine the same imprint that had caught my eye.

I knew he would find it, and that it was merely a question of time. Nothing escaped his eyes.

"Ah! you have found a clew I was about to bring to your attention, sir."

"And a very important one, too. You see it is the left hand, for here is the thumb. Half of the forefinger appears to be missing."

"Then Leonore never climbed those vines."

"I never even thought she did. The party whose hand rested upon this sill, came up here intent on some other business."

I looked at him in surprise. He had a way of leading one to think he meant one thing until his end was attained, and then he would veer around like a weather-vane at a change of the wind.

"The finding of that tool below convinces me that a burglar climbed those vines and even crawled into the room, but that he left hastily as though alarmed."

"At what?"

"Perhaps the coming of Leonore. If this be so, that man, crouched just beyond the window yonder, must have seen the whole terrible drama acted."

His words fell like lead on my soul. They showed me that he still suspected the young girl through all.

"See here, sir, perhaps this burglar was the party who took Dr. Seabury's life."

"Knowing what we do, my friend, I cannot believe it possible. The man did not steal a thing — evidence enough to me that if there was a burglar among the vines and possibly in the room early this morning, he was deterred from taking away any of the silver scattered around, through fear of being suspected of the graver crime, which perhaps would arouse the people."

"Well?"

"I shall find the man. He has left a splendid clew behind him. There will be no difficulty in finding him, I think."

"Success to you, sir. Whoever sent that good old man over the dark river, I believe justice should be done. You can count upon me in any undertaking."

"That is like yourself, Doctor. Already you have rendered me good service. I shall not forget it in a hurry."

"I suppose you want it all kept very quiet, sir."

"Yes. We will finish our investigations now, for once the Coroner and his tribe arrive, all clews will probably be lost. They generally pry around and make a grand muss. Come, I wonder where this door leads. Mark you it is not locked on this side."

He opened it.

A room appeared to our eyes that seemed to be filled [illegible] furniture.

This was the store room or lumber room such as nearly every house has.

There [illegible] on the floor.

Dust had gathered there. Mr. Ketcham [illegible] his hands and knees.

[illegible] marks on the floor interested him and upon looking I saw that they were [illegible] in the dust.

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] I would learn nothing [illegible]

I was soon [illegible] the Coroner's inquest.

[illegible] remained [illegible] some time.

Then the jurymen were [illegible] up [illegible]

The [illegible] professionals, and thought [illegible] fee for [illegible] services.

When they were ushered into the chamber of death they ranged themselves around the side of the bed.

Then the coroner made them a little speech, examined me, as a doctor, upon the speedy effect of the poison, which, it was plainly to be seen, the deceased had taken.

One inquisitive juror, thinking his fee would not be earned without some exhibition of natural curiosity, made a show of examining the body, but he was peremptorily ordered back into his place again by the master of ceremonies.

The finding was in accordance with the facts laid before them.

Dr. Seabury had come to his death through the medium of a deadly poison, administered by his own hand.

Who could blame them for such a rendering, considering the fact that they were but obeying the will of their leader, and he in turn was dominated by Mr. Ketcham?

Having done their duty, as they considered it, they hurry off to attend another case where a drowned man was concerned.

A witness of the whole affair, I thought to myself, how many crimes are committed in this great city and never sifted in an intelligent manner, simply because there is no offer of a reward, and it does not pay to sift them thoroughly.

At last Mr. Ketcham and I were alone again with the dead.

Even the servants had not been called upon for their evidence.

Of course this was because the detective had desired the whole affair to be as quiet as possible, so as not to arouse fear in the mind of the unknown assassin.

"What now, sir?" I asked him.

"Doctor, the girl expressed a wish to see the body?"

"She did."

"I wish you would send her up here."

"Shall I tell her you want her?"

"Oh, no! I shall not be in sight."

He touched the door of a closet as he spoke.

I comprehended the idea and felt my face turn red at the thought of having a share in it, but should Leonore prove innocent it would be best to learn that fact at once.

I went down stairs.

At Our Boarding House.

"I heard you when you came home last night," said Landlady Snapshort to a boarder who had attended a protracted lodge meeting the other evening, "and it was ever so late. And let me tell you, Mr. P., that if you were my husband I would make you come home earlier, so I would."

"Indeed," said Mr. P.; "and let me tell you, madam, that if you were my wife I wouldn't come home at all." — Boston Transcript.

CAPITAL NOTES.

GOSSIP OF WASHINGTON IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS.

Doings of the Chiefs and Heads of the Various Departments.

Secretary Carlisle is devoting nearly all his time now to the preparation of his annual report. He visits the treasury every day, but remains only a short time. He is doing his work at home where he is not subject to interruption.

Reports have been received in Washington that the battleship Texas was badly damaged at Brooklyn navy yard, and the timber dock in which she lies has been partly flooded to prevent further disaster. The first report of the accident to the Texas came to the navy department Saturday from Commodore Montgomery Sicard, commandant of the New York navy yard.

Secretary Olney has received an intimation of the willingness of France to release John L. Waller from prison as an act of graciousness to the United States, [illegible]

[illegible]

There has been [illegible] between [illegible] American [illegible] the steps of the [illegible] government [illegible] with the work and the government [illegible] the concession [illegible] company then presented [illegible] $[illegible] present [illegible]

Both Recalled.

Robert S. Chilton and [illegible], of the state department, who were sent by this government to establish new consulates at Erzeroum and [illegible] in Armenia, have been recalled by Secretary Olney and it is believed that the project on which they were dispatched will be abandoned. Officials of the state department are exceedingly reticent about the matter and will admit nothing further than that Messrs. Chilton and Hunter had informed the department of their return to Constantinople.

Whether or not they are now en route to the United States or have been directed to come home cannot be ascertained. It may be that they are in Constantinople making a second endeavor to secure exequaturs from the Turkish government, but there is good ground for the belief that Mr. Chilton at least has been ordered back to Washington. The practical feature of the mission on which Mr. Chilton and Mr. Hunter were sent is due to the difficulties which the Turkish government placed in their way.

French Lottery Bonds.

A large banking firm of Wall street, New York city, has written the post-office department asking information in regard to the handling in this country of the French lottery bonds, which are to be issued next year to help defray the expenses of the Paris International Exposition in 1900. Each 20 franc bond will entitle the owner to twenty tickets of admission of one franc each, and confer on him certain other privileges, such as a reduction of twenty-five per cent on the charges for admission to places of entertainment inside the exhibition and other reductions. Foreigners holding bonds will receive reduction in transportation to and from Paris. Finally holders will share in a grand lottery drawing. The banking firm inquired of the department if it will be a violation of the United States postal laws to subscribe for these bonds and use the mails as a business medium for advertising and distributing them. The department has informed the firm that it can, of course, deal in the bonds, but cannot transmit circulars or letters pertaining to them through the mails, as the scheme is clearly a lottery.

The Sultan's Telegram.

The Turkish legation at Washington has received from the sublime porte the following telegram:

"The Armenian rioters of Zeitoun attacked the village of Tchoukour Hisar, killed thirty-five Mussulmans and carried away with them arms and cattle and belongings of the Mussulman villagers of Deughel and murdered the secretary of the tax collector of Zeitoun. The wife and four children of this functionary are missing.

"According to fresh advices from Diarbekir the Armenians are alone responsible for the recent disorders which originated solely by the rebels firing on the mosques at the hour of prayer and by their making an armed attack on the Mussulmans. The fire which broke out at Diarbekir was started by Armenian incendiaries, for 90 per cent. of the shops destroyed, as also about all the merchandise burned, belonged to Mussulmans. All assertions contrary to the above are propagated by the Armenian committees and their friends to misguide and deceive public opinion. The vali of Adana reports that about 200 Armenians, disguised as Circassians, attacked the Mussulman villages of Zeitoun, Besta and Narli and committed all sorts of depredations."

POWDERLY CANNOT VOTE

In the General Assembly of the Knights of Labor.

In the general assembly of the Knights of Labor in session at Washington the proposition to reduce the per capita tax from 2 cents per month to 1 cent was defeated, the drift of the argument going to show the organization needed the money thus derived for the institution of new assemblies and the propagation of the general work of the order. It was also thought that the tax was not so heavy but that it could be borne easily by the members while the organization was on a [illegible] footing.

LOSING ORDERS.

The Strike Costing the Clyde Shipbuilders Much Business.

Cable advices from Glasgow, Scotland, state that the disputes between the Clyde shipbuilders and their employes continue without any change. The builders have lost an order from the Italian government for the construction of three gunboats and twelve torpedo boats, owing to their inability to furnish a guarantee that they would be delivered at a specified time. The Norwegian government has placed an order for torpedo boats with German builders for the same reason.

FIVE DROWNED.

An Oyster Boat Capsizes With Disastrous Results.

A New York dispatch says: Five lives were lost Wednesday morning by the capsizing of the steam oyster boat, James W. Boyle, near Rockaway inlet. The Boyle was heavily loaded. The drowned men were Walter B. Wood, of Inwood, L. I., who owned the cargo; Captain Peter McDonald, Jr., of Princess Bay; Engineer John Finn, of Rondout, N. Y.; Deckhand John Newbury, of Tottenville, S. I.; John Carroll, deckhand and cook, of Hoboken, N. J.

A Heavy Verdict.

A jury at Dallas, Texas, rendered a verdict against the Oriental Investment Company, owners of the Oriental hotel in Dallas, for $30,000 in favor of Maggie S. Lynn, a servant who was injured about two years ago in an elevator in the hotel. She sued for $52,000. There are three other suits pending by parties injured in the same accident. The Oriental Investment Company is the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association of St. Louis, Mo., who purchased and operated the Oriental hotel.

Receiver of the N. & W. Road.

A Cincinnati special says: Judge Taft has appointed Henry Fink receiver of the Norfolk and Western railroad on petition of the Mercantile Trust Company, of New York, holding $16,000,000 of mortgage bonds. Fink had already been appointed receiver for the Fidelity Trust Company, of Philadelphia, holding other mortgage bonds.

THOUSANDS SLAIN.

Bloodthirsty Turks Make Many Armenians Victims.

It is stated at Constantinople that Bahri Pasha, who was dismissed from a governorship owing to his ill treatment of Armenians, on the representations of the British ambassador, Sir Philip Currie, and who, on Saturday last, was decorated by the Sultan with the grand cordon of the Osmanli order, is to be appointed to command the Turkish troops going to Zeitoun.

The number of victims of the Baiburt massacre is now reported to be 1,500, and it is estimated that the total number of Armenians, men, women and children killed during all the most recent massacres exceeds 10,000, and that the total is constantly being added to.

Consul Hampson announces that he has found trusty persons to distribute the funds collected for the relief of the suffering Armenians of the Sassoun district, and, therefore, the relief work there interrupted by the forced retirement of the American missionaries whose lives were in danger will be resumed.

It is estimated that during the past week or ten days three hundred Armenians have been exiled, without trial, from this city, and the police are still engaged in making arrests.

RICH GEORGIA MERCHANT DEAD

OATES' POLICY.

Gov. Oates is well up on all matters purely political, but this time he made a mistake. He did not turn loose quick enough to avoid suspicion. Plenty of good men would have been in the field for governor had it not been for the democratic precedent of allowing an officer two terms. Our politic governor held on long enough to convince every body that he was a candidate for re-election, and, whiz!—boom!—he lets go, and finds—not the consternation he expected, but a greater determination on the part of Democracy to defeat the free silver agitators. His conduct will prove a boomerang, when he enters the race for United States Senator. Gov. Oates has been long in public service and should be given a rest. We hope he will spend his future years in making reunion speeches, as that seems to be his forte.

Mr. William C. Whitney has declared positively that he will not be a candidate for the presidency. A preference for private life is his reason.

13,000,000 shares of mining stock was sold in Colorado Springs last week. The buyers will have plenty of time, before the dividends come in, to figure how much of it is water.

Highway robbers after the manner of Claude Duval and Jesse James are to be relegated to the past. A man in New York stole his widowed mother's watch and fled on his bicycle.

To what limits will science carry us? The people of Watertown, N. Y., having decided that the preverlence of typhoid fever there was due to typhoid germs in milk, have declared a general boycott against the milkmen.

A man in Ohio has invented a pneumatic tire, which cannot be punctured by a bullet fired at close range. A company has been organized to manufacture them. This will be welcome news to the bicyclist

Two members of the Salvation army of Frederick, Md., joined in with a lynching party and offered prayer for the victim. This reminds us of the Irishman, who drowned the Turk, after he had renounced Mohammedism, for fear he would recant.

A Chicago woman in trying to surprise her friend by going to her house attired in bloomers, came in contact with a St. Bernard dog, who tore every vestige of bloomers from her person, besides biting her severely. There are many obstacles in the way of the new woman.

Mr. J. D. Hardy, a prominent republican of Shelby county, was arrested, Monday, under an indictment from the Anniston City Court for election frauds committed at Anniston last year. It will be remembered that Mr. Hardy was the chief lieutenant of W. F. Aldrich, the republican candidate for congress in this district.

Gov. Oates has asserted positively that he will not be a candidate for a second term, yet that is no reason why the free silver cranks should cut up so many didos. It does not mean that Johnston will be governor by long adds. There are plenty of sound money Democrats left, who are competent to fill that office.

Editors, like other people, are very fond of praise. It is good for their livers and stimulates them to do good work. Just as we had come to the conclusion that our efforts to build up this paper were not appreciated, we received the following letter:

Honest Silver Money.

The advocates of the free and unlimited coinage of silver often appeal to the Bible to show that silver was the favorite money of the dear old patriarchs.

In a recent speech Governor McCreary turned this "argument" very neatly against the Kentucky silverites. He said:

"It has also been claimed that silver is the money of the Bible. Sheckles of gold and sheckles of silver are both refered to in the Bible. It has been said that Abraham bought a burying ground from Ephrom for which he paid 400 sheckles of silver, and that Jeremiah bought a field of Hannameel for which he paid seventeen sheckles of silver. An examination of these statements in the Bible will show that in each transaction the silver was weighed to the vendor. There are many references in the Bible to business transactions where silver was paid, and in every such transaction the silver was weighed, showing that silver in those days was currency in those days according to its commercial or market value, and not according to its stamp value."

The good men of the Bible were not in favor of a depreciated silver currency. If they were with us now they would be arrayed solidly against the scheme to coin an unlimited number of silver dollars with only half their face value. Let us be just to the dead—Atlanta Journal.

WITH OUR EXCHANGES.

A new political party was quietly ushered into the political arena last Saturday at Athens, this state. It is called the "Independent Free Silver Honest Elections Party." There's enough name to it to make a good clothes line if nothing more.—Alexander City Outlook.

Well, what's the use for Senators Morgan and Pugh to go around making a fight this year! They remind us of the boy who shot at the buzzards after the buzzards had "done gone." Why didn't they fight in '92 or '94—or wait till '96.—Dothan Siftings.

If you ask some men for an advertisement they will tell you that they don't believe in advertising, that newspapers are never read. Let the same man be caught kissing his neighbor's wife or trying to hold up a building some dark night and if the printing office is in the seventh story of a building he'll go to it and beg the editor to keep the thing quiet "Don't publish it in your paper you know."—Alabama Enquirer

The conglomerate mixture of anti-Democratic elements that used in Birmingham under the leadership of Peyton G. Bowman and Burn-His-Arm Off Adams will stink in the nostrils of all true and loyal Democrats. They raise the battle-cry of "free silver and fair elections," hoping to combine free silverites with the Republican horde by joining the old wornout Republican cry with the newfangled fad—free silver.—Huntsville Mercury.

To have any chance of victory next August, the Alabama Democracy must stand united, and it must be plain to everyone that silverism is not the kind of cement needed to unite it. The Democracy will be compelled to face alone allied anti Democratic forces, and it is simply "united we stand, divided we fall." We are going to support the regular Democratic nominee, whoever he may be, but we cannot see the wisdom of making silver an issue in the coming campaign.—Cullman Tribune.

ADVERTISING AS A SCIENCE PAYS.

Some people say that advertising is all a matter of luck; that you cannot tell what advertising is going to do, or whether or not it is going to pay. This may be true; but it is very strange that the man who gives intelligent thought to his advertising, and it in an intelligent, earnest, straightforward way usually has the luck on his side. He is lucky in his advertising, because he reduced it to a science. Advertising is just as certain as paying rent. Advertising is governed by the same common sense business lines that govern buying lot of tomatoes or codfish.—Grocery World.

A GEORGIA OPINION

Senators Morgan and Pugh, of Alabama, are talking of a solid North against a divided South, are saying that the result of the November elections means that the people are dissatisfied with the financial policy of the administration—that they object to the means taken by the administration to keep the silver dollar on a parity with the gold dollar, and that their purpose was to rebuke the administration. These eminent Senators therefore say that the wise course for the Democratic party to pursue is to favor no more efforts to keep the silver dollar on a parity with the gold dollar, but to take the position that our mints should be open to the free, unlimited and independent coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1.

We cannot see how the Alabama Senators reach any such conclusion. It is true that there is a practically solid North against a divided South on the financial question, but the South would not be divided on that question if it were not for the teachings of the Alabama Senators and other silverites. The business of the South the men who are supposed to be better informed on the money question than any other class, are almost solidly for sound money. The men who favor free silver coinage are, as a rule, residents of the rural districts. The most of them are undoubtedly intelligent men, but they have not given as much thought to financial matters as business men, and, hence, are not as well qualified to give an opinion in respect to them. But even in the rural districts the sentiment in behalf of sound money is steadily becoming stronger. It is probable that the majority in this State, not long ago, favored free silver coinage, but it is safe to say that it is now for sound money. If the change in favor of sound money continues, the South will not be divided very long. If the Alabama Senators think they can convert the South to a debased currency they are mistaken. They and other silverites have succeeded in bringing about a division, but the division will not continue. In nearly every Southern State there is certain to be a majority for sound money before the next national campaign is ended.

Is there need of facts to support this opinion? Look at Kentucky! That State is strongly Democratic. It is the only State in which the silver question was squarely an issue in the late elections. And what was the result? The usual Democratic majority of 40,000 was changed into a Republican majority of 15.000. The Democratic platform was alright, but the Democrat's candidates talked the 16 to 1 idea, and the people repudiated them.

We cannot find a single reason for the position taken by the Alabama Senators, namely, that the defeat of the Democrats in the November elections was intended as a repudiation of the administration's financial policy. If they had said it was intended as a rebuke to the Democratic majority in the last Congress for refusing to authorize an issue of gold bonds, thereby increasing the burden of the people more than $16.000.000 they would have stated what was correct. The fear that the 16 to 1 wing of the Democratic party might get control of the party and dictate its financial policy is what makes the people distrust that party, and leads them to give the majorities to the Republican party. If the Democratic party should follow the lead of the Alabama Senators on the financial question it would lose four-fifths of the States in the next Presidential election. Its only hope for success is to make a bold and unequivical declaration in its national platform in favor of sound money. Of course if the party should make a declaration of that kind, and the Democracy of Alabama should indorse it, Senators Morgan and Pugh would not get back to the United States Senate, but the party could much better afford to do without their services than it could afford to make a declaration in favor of unsound money.—Savannah News.

WHAT THEY SAY
OF THE ELECTROPOISE

The Electropoise has relieved me of a throat affection that has baffled all treatment and has annoyed me for more than forty years. Very respectfully, T. T. Tunstall.
Mobile, Ala., Oct. 22, 1894.

I commenced the use of the Electropoise when I was in a weak nervous state, lying awake night after night until 2 o'clock. I commenced to sleep better almost immediately after beginning its use, and after three months felt that the Electropoise had paid for itself. Yours truly,
Mrs. J. C. Barry.
Memphis, Tenn., March 5, 1895.

A relative of mine who was wounded during the war, and who never recovered from the effects of the wound, has been using my Electropoise, and he is now as well as he ever was. I recommend the Electropoise to all my friends.
Yours truly, W. B. McGee,
Tchula, Miss., Dec. 5, 1894.

I cannot say too much in favor of the Electropoise. Yours truly,
T. S. Jones,
Fannin, Tex., June 25, 1895.

After returning from Hot Spring about a year ago without a cure and as the last resort, I applied the Electropoise, and received a prompt cure of rheumatism. This same Electropoise has made many cures in other diseases, and the instrument will do all that is claimed for for it. Yours truly,
J. T. Stout.
Mobile, Ala., Sept. 22, 1894.

Rental terms, $10 cash for four months, with privilege to purchase by paying $17.50 additional at the expiration of four months.

There is no medicine so often needed in every home and so admirably adapted to the purposes for which it is intended, as Chamberlain's Pain Balm. Hardly a week passes but some member of the family has need of it. A toothache or headache may be cured by it. A touch of rheumatism or neuralgia quieted. The severe pain of a burn or scald promptly relieved and the sore healed in much less time than when medicine has to be sent for. A sprain may be promptly treated before inflammation sets in, which insures a cure in about one-third of the time otherwise required. Cuts and bruises should receive immediate treatment before the parts become swollen, which can only be done when Pain Balm is kept at hand. A sore throat may be cured before it becomes serious. A troublesome corn may be removed by applying it twice a day for a week or two. A lame back may be cured and several days of valuable time saved or a pain in the side or chest relieved without paying a doctor bill. Procure a 50 cent bottle at once and you will never regret it. For sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton and McNiell and Smith, Jemison, Ala.

OUT OF A JOB.

Mr. A. J. Thorne's Family Physician No Longer Derives Any Revenue from Mr. Thorne.

This is to certify that we have used the Electropoise in our family for three years, and, as I have written you before, it has done my wife more good than all the doctors in the country. She was confined to her bed thirteen years prior to my getting the Electropoise, and during that time I had had all the doctors in this part of the country to visit her, seven or eight having treated her in that time, and none of them doing her any good. All of them found her in bed and left her there. When I got the Electropoise she could not turn herself in bed, while now she does all her housework, and is still gaining. She has been using the Electropoise a little more than three years, and sin that time has not taken a single dose of medicine.

Since I have had the Electropoise none of the family have taken any medicine, and the instrument is our family physician for we have had no physician in my family since I got the Electropoise.

I would not be without the Electropoise, and it is worth all the doctors, Yours truly

NOTICE.

The Township Trustees will meet on the 22 inst., at the court house in Clanton, to make appropiations of the school fund for next year, and attend to other unfinished business.

A deal of interest is being taken in the protracted meeting, which is now being carried on at the Baptist church, by the Rev. Mr. Lowrv assisted by the Rev. Mr. Hogan, of Birmingham. These meetings have been well attended and much good has been accomplished. All who have heard the Rev. Mr. Hogan speak of him in the highest terms as a preacher.

A Quiet Wedding.

Last Monday night, Miss Minnie Phillips of this place was married to Mr. Ned Duke, of Ashford, Ala. It was a very quiet affair, only a few friends and relatives being present. Rev. P. M. Guthrie performed the ceremony. Their engagement was of long standing but no one thought its termination so near. Mr. Duke came to Clanton on business, and while here decided not to return home without the girl of his choice. Her consent having been obtained, he lost no time in making the necessary arrangements, and Monday night brought their engagement to a happy close.

The bride is a great favorite of Clanton society, and is noted both for her lovely character and intellectual culture. She is the daughter of Mr and Mrs. Tom phillips. The groom a former resident of this place, is a popular young man of sterling business qualities.

The View joins their host of friends in wishing them a long and happy voyage on the ocean of matrimony.

We are having some nice pleasant weather since the late cold spell.

Business is a little dull at present. Cotton is not coming in lively for the last day or two as it has been.

Our society circle too is a little quiet

Miss Ruth Cleveland, of Selma, spent a few days here last week with Misses Fay and Paul Cleveland. She was on her way home from the Atlanta Exposition.

Mrs. T. J. Mills and little daughter, Jessie Bell attended the Exposition last week and on their return reported a splendid Exposition and a delightful time.

Mrs. S. E. Brown, of Jacksonville Fla., spent two days with us last week. Mrs. Brown is a former resident of our town and is liked by all.

Mrs. C. W. Plaut, of Stanton, and Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Latham, of Montevallo, spent Sunday with friends and relatives here.

The Presiding Elder, Dr H. Urquehart, of Selma, preached at the Methodist church here Sunday night.

There was a baptizing something out of the usual line near here Sunday afternoon. It was, in fact, a two in one baptising, for two different denominations were represented, Baptist and Methodist. Five candidates, three Baptists and two Methodist were immersed. The singularity of it was that both ministers were in the water at the same time though both were independent of the other.

NAPOLEON'S VALUE OF A VICTORY.

It Finds a Striking Counterdarts in Recent World Triumph.

Napoleon knew well the value of a victory. After Austerlitz the world seemed his. Fame invited, fortune favored, everything stimulated his aspiring ambition. With growing power he gathered the fruits of victory. And so has it ever been. Success succeeds. A notable illustration of this truth is furnished by the great victories won at the World,s Fair in '93 and the California Midwinter Fair in '94 by Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder. Ever increasing sales and popularity have been the result. The people have promptly ratified the official verdicts that declared Dr. Price's, for leavening power, keeping qualities, purity and general excellence the "foremost baking powder in all the world." Quite as quickly as the great Emperor do they know the value of a victory that means world-wide supremacy.

You are throwing money away if you miss this great sale. We have the largest Clothing stock in Alabama, and our prices are the lowest ever seen on earth. Alex Rice, Montgomery.

What is

CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
Dr. G. C. Osgood,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
Dr. J. F. Kincheloe,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. Archer, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

"Many of the citizens of Rainsville, Idiana are never without a bottle of Chamberlains Cough Remedy in the house, "says Jacob Brown, the leading merchant of the place. This Remedy has proven of so much value for colds and croup in children that few mothers who know its worth are willing to be without it. For sale by Clanton Drug Clanton, and by McNeil and Smith. at Jemison, Ala.

Every mother should know that croup can be prevented. The first sympton of true croup is hoarseness. This is followed by a peculiar rough cough. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given freely as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even after the cough has developed it will prevent the attack. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton, and by McNeil and Smith Jemison Ala.

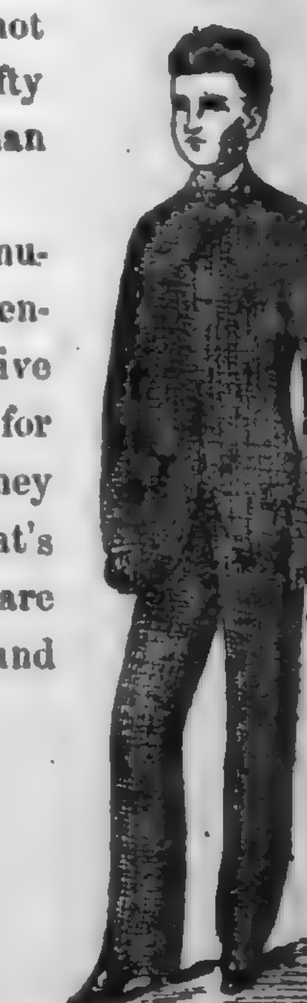
GOLD DOLLARS AT 50 CENTS
APIECE, WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

OUR Buyer had a similar question to answer recently. The stock of several manufacturers had to be converted into cash. It did not take us long to make a trade. We bought about Forty to Fifty Thousand Dollars' worth of new, desirable merchandise for less than half its real value.



The goods are all in stock now; it is a case of Manufactnrer and Importer paying the piper, and YOU enjoying the dance. Otherwise we couldn't afford to give you Two or Three Dollars' worth of Merchandise for One Dollar in CASH. If you can't save big money here, money can't be saved anywhere on earth, that's all. Remember that anything you buy of us and are not thoroughly satisfied with, we will cheerfully refund your money.

A Boy's Retort.

Once, when one of Farragut's gunboats on the Mississippi was just going into action, one of the powder monkeys was noticed by an officer kneeling by one of the guns saying his prayers. The officer sneeringly asked him what he was doing, and if he was afraid.

"No, I was praying," said he.

"Well, what were you praying for?"

"Praying," said the lad, "that the enemy's bullets may be distributed the same way as the prize-money is—principally among the officers."—Argonaut.

SULTAN IS TRICKY.

IT SEEMS THAT THE ARMENIAN MASSACRES WILL CONTINUE.

The Porte Treats Communications of the Powers with Mockery.

Each day shows the situation of affairs at Constantinople to be growing more threatening. The reply of the porte to the communications sent to it after the meeting of the ambassadors last Monday has been awaited with interest, as in the note the representatives of the powers used much stronger language than heretofore, and positively insisted upon being immediately informed as to what steps the Turkish government intended to take for the restoration of order in the disturbed province of Asia Minor.

The porte, replying to the identical notes of the ambassador of Germany, Austria and Italy, simply said that information regarding the scheme for reform in Armenia would be forwarded to the representatives of the powers "without delay." In other words, these three ambassadors, at least, have obtained no satisfaction at all. It is not yet known if the notes of the ambassadors of Great Britain, Russia and France have been replied to; but it is presumed that they were also assured that their requests for information regarding the proposed reforms would be complied with "without delay."

Surprise is expressed even by the diplomats of Constantinople, who expect almost anything from the porte, at the action of the sultan in sanctioning the official note issued Monday as cabled exclusively in The Associated Press, expressing Abdul Hamid's thanks for the "energetic measures taken by the imperial authorities" in "suppressing" the disturbances in Asia Minor, asserting that "order has now been restored in all the districts recently the scene of riots and conflicts," and adding that "precautions have been taken to insure the maintenance of order."

Mocking the Powers.

This really looks like mocking the ambassadors and is second in importance only to the snub administered by the sultan to Great Britain in decorating Bahri Pasha and giving him the command of the troops going to Zeitoon, after he had been removed from a governorship at the instance of the British ambassador, Sir Philip Currie, for his ill treatment of Armenians.

As to order being restored in the districts, it need only be said that the mobilization of about 150,000 troops to be sent to these districts is progressing as actively as the Turkish government can push such an undertaking, hampered as it is by lack of funds and the incompetency of its officials.

NEW YORK IS READY

To Sweep Down Upon Atlanta and the Exposition.

All doubt is now dispelled as to whether New York will do the handsome thing at the Atlanta exposition. An enthusiastic meeting of the committee on plan and scope was held Tuesday afternoon, at which it was unanimously decided to send a full representation of business men to Atlanta to do the honors of their city on Manhattan day, November 25th.

The delegation, which is composed of the cream of New York's citizenship, will be headed by Mayor Strong, who will have the celebrated squadron "A" as his escort. This company is held highly in esteem by New Yorkers and many of them are men of high position and wealth. It is a cavalry organization and will take its quota of mounts in palace stock cars. The company will also take its mounted band, numbering sixty pieces.

No effort has been made to make Manhattan day one of revelry and wild popular demonstrations. In fact, all such suggestions have met with prompt discouragement on the part of leaders, although there have been warm advocates of such a plan. The idea seems to prevail that Manhattan day shall be celebrated decorously and elegantly as befits the dignity of a great city. Nearly all the names entered thus far are men of prominence, both in the business and the social world, and it is doubtful if such a large body of men of like character ever left New York or any other city at one time in the history of the country.

More than 1,200 have already engaged passage from New York city alone and 500 from Brooklyn. This will require twelve trains of eight coaches each. Ample room is to be allowed and expenses are not to be considered.

THE O'BRIEN SUIT DISMISSED.

He Embezzled the Princely Sum of $76,000.

The litigation growing out of the defalcation of M. J. O'Brien in the sum of $76,000 had an end at Chattanooga Tuesday in the dismissal of the suit of the New York Fidelity and Casualty Company against M. J. O'Brien et al.

O'Brien was the supreme treasurer of the Catholic Knights of America, but disappeared after the embezzlement, living in New York in the guise of a broker. The plaintiffs were the foreign bondsmen of the defaulter, they paying the order $15,000. Judgment was partly secured by a second lien on property given in trust by O'Brien, but on which local bondsmen had a prior lien. The present suit was to obtain for the plaintiffs a proportionate share of the proceeds of the property sale.

HEIR TO SIX MILLIONS.

Nephew of the Late Anthony Drexel is Fortunate.

J. Cummings Drexel, of Peoria, Ill., a nephew of the late Anthony Drexel, of Philadelphia, has received information that by the death of an aunt, Mrs. C. E. Kenilworth, of Brighton, England, he is the heir of an estate valued at $6,000,000. Mr. Drexel is twenty-seven years old and during his residence in Peoria has been in the employ of the business department of a newspaper.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Condition as Reported for the Past Week.

The reports as to industrial conditions in all parts of the southern states for the past week indicate that no material change has taken place in the amount of business being done. The iron industry continues to be very active, and at no previous time have the furnaces been more actively at work. There are no signs of any reductions in prices of pig iron of the various grades. New orders are not so numerous as a few weeks ago, but many outstanding ones are being filled. Coal operators are quite busy and there seems to be a good demand for coal and coke, the supplies being readily absorbed by the trade. There is at present a better understanding among southern lumber men than ever before, and the business is being carried on in a conservative way. The demand does not warrant the full force in all the great mills, and by agreement, manufacturing is now somewhat restrained. The reports as to new textile mills for the week includes a proposed cotton mill at Fayetteville, N. C., to be capitalized at $300,000, a $200,000 cotton mill at Jackson, Miss., and a cotton seed delinting mill of large size at Charleston, S. C.

There is also reported the organization at Fort Smith, Ark., of the Fort Smith & Van Buren Light and Transit Co., capital $200,000; of the Hunting Island Land Co., of Bluffton, S. C., capital $30,000; of the building of cotton oil mills at Wolfe City, Texas, to cost $50,000; and of the chartering of the Keyser Manufacturing Co., at Chattanooga, Tenn., with $40,000 capital. The Texarkana Oil & Delinting Co., capital $30,000, has been chartered at Texarkana, Texas; an electrical plant to cost $25,000 is in contemplation at Owensboro, Ky., and a $15,000 tannery company has been chartered at Sanford, Fla.

Electric lighting plants are reported at Eufaula and Demopolis, Ala.; a flouring mill at Blevins, Tex.; a large guano factory at Valdosta, Ga., and lock works at Huntington, W. Va. Railroad machine shops are to be built at Charlotte, N. C.; a rice mill at Jennings, La., and the woodworking plants for the week include handle factories at Knoxville, Tenn., and Gainesville, Fla.; a lumber company at Covington, Ky., having $10,000 capital; and saw and planing mills at Riverside, Ala., Sparks, Ga., and Lacy, Miss. Water works are to be built at Eufaula, Ala., and Bay St. Louis, Miss. Among the enlargements are a $75,000 addition to a brewery at Nashville, Tenn., and enlargements of cotton mills at Eufaula and Florence, Ala., Douglasville and Lindale, Ga. The new buildings of the week include a $25,000 armory at Jacksonville, Fla., a $9,000 school building at Covington, Ga., and new buildings at University of Virginia to cost about $325,000.—Tradesman (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

FOR CHAINGANG REFORM.

Gov. Atkinson Sends a Message to the Legislature.

Governor Atkinson sent an important special message to the general assembly Tuesday morning. The message deals with the question of treatment of misdemeanor convicts in the counties of the state and is based upon the report of an inspection made by Hon. R. F. Wright, formerly assistant keeper of the penitentiary. The message is as follows:

EXECUTIVE OFFICE, Nov. 12, 1895.

GENTLEMEN OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY:

In my communication to you in 1894 I recommended that provision be made for state supervision of misdemeanor convicts. After the adjournment of the general assembly reports reached me touching the management of these convicts, which indicate such a state of affairs that I felt it my duty as the chief executive of the state, charged with the obligation to see to the proper enforcement of the law, to investigate and place before you facts showing the true state affairs, as the subject might be intelligently considered and wisely acted upon by you.

To perform this important work, I engaged the Hon. R. F. Wright, who had faithfully and efficiently performed the duties of assistant keeper of the penitentiary during the term of my immediate predecessor, to visit each camp in the state where misdemeanor convicts were worked, and make a thorough investigation and report to me.

This task he has partially completed, and I herewith send you his report upon the camps visited. It reveals such inhuman and barbarous conduct upon the part of some of those engaged in working this class of convicts that comment by me is unnecessary to induce you to act promptly to save our state from longer submitting to this burning shame.

There is but one remedy for the deplorable conditions now existing, and that is through state supervision by which uniform treatment can be required under one set of rules enforced by our penitentiary department. I ask that you give this valuable report, which I now submit to you, careful consideration, and to the subject upon which it bears, that attention which its importance demands. The special report made to me upon each camp visited, gives in detail the results of Mr. Wright's investigation and is subject to inspection by such committee as may have in charge legislation upon this subject.

W. Y. ATKINSON, Governor.

MISS WHITNEY A BRIDE.

Wedded at New York to Mr. Almeric Paget.

The marriage of Miss Pauline Payne Whitney to Mr. Almeric Paget was solemnized at New York Tuesday noon. The marriage occurred at St. Thomas church.

The bride who is the daughter of Wm. C. Whitney, former secretary of the navy, is a great favorite in society in New York, Washington, London, and Paris. The groom is the youngest son of the late General Lord Alfred Paget, who was personal aid de camp to the Queen and grandson of the first Marquis of Angelsea.

Among the guests were President Cleveland, Secretary Daniel Lamont, Secretary of the Navy Herbert, Governor and Mrs. Morton, Sir Julian Pauncefote, and members of the British Embassy and Dr. Chauncey M. Depew.

CHICAGO AT ATLANTA.

Illinois Receives a Royal Welcome from Old Georgia.

Illinois and Georgia joined banners at Atlanta Monday and the two states will henceforth have a common sentiment. Their citizens mingled at the exposition and talked of everything under the sun that conduces to good fellowship. They talked of the trials of war; they talked of the blessings of peace and they talked of the sunshine the future will bring.

It was the grandest celebration that has yet been experienced on the grounds of the Cotton States and International Exposition. Early in the morning the famous First regiment from Illinois formed in line and took up the line of march to the exposition grounds.

Governor Altgeld himself was in the saddle and was at the head of the parade. He even took upon himself the command of the parade at times, for, being a precise man, whenever he saw the line getting irregular in its formation during the course of the parade he would turn in his saddle and give orders for them to "close up." Governor Altgeld seemed to have his heart in the day's business. He went about it as a man of convictions and sober judgment.

The parade to the grounds was by far the most imposing that has yet been seen during the course of the exposition. The first regiment of Illinois showed up splendidly. They were in their uniforms of gray and their band of eighty pieces made stirring music all along the way.

The day was bleak and cold, but there were great crowds along the line of march to gaze at them wherever they went. They were cheered all down the line and were the toast of the day. The procession left the city at 10 o'clock a. m. and marched out to the grounds. It was one of the longest parades seen in Atlanta in many weeks.

After the exercises of Illinois day the soldier boys passed in review before the governor at the Illinois state building. This was one of the greatest displays of the day.

The review of the band was a grand and glorious display of Chicago's military. The regiment was then marched home. Illinois day will not soon fade from the memories of those who witnessed it at the Atlanta exposition. The exercises of the day in the auditorium were full of interest.

MOB LIBERATES PURVIS.

He Had Just Been Resentenced to Hang.

The jail at Purvis, Miss., was broken in Monday morning at 12:25 by a mob and Will Purvis, the alleged murderer and whitecapper, was liberated.

The mob that released Purvis was composed of about one hundred men armed with Winchester rifles and provided with keys. They surrounded the courthouse, in which were the jail guards, and while they were held at bay others of the mob sawed off the combination and opened the heavy doors.

Purvis was taken out and left the scene in a buggy, while a portion of the mob remained on guard two hours to prevent the sheriff's giving an alarm until the prisoner was well out of the way.

Purvis is a young negro who was convicted in Marion county two years ago, for being a whitecap and murdering a companion who squealed on the gang. He was sentenced to hang, but through the carelessness of the sheriff fell through the trap of the scaffold to the ground unharmed, the rope having slipped off his neck. The sheriff refused to hang the man, and put him back in jail, where he has since remained.

Only a week ago the supreme court decided that the prisoner should be resentenced. The supreme court named December 12th as the date of Purvis's execution. The failure of the last effort in his behalf created considerable excitement.

FOUR MEN KILLED.

Low Water in a Locomotive Causes a Fatal Explosion.

A special from Warwick, N. Y., says: The Lehigh and Hudson engine No. 13 blew up Sunday with terrific force and killed four men. The dead are Herbert Beetner, fireman; William Cooper, engineer; Martin O'Neill, conductor, and James L. Sloan, brakeman.

The force of the explosion was so great that the boiler was thrown from the trucks, but the latter remained on the rails. The victims of the accident were hurled in all directions, their clothing stripped from their bodies and the tattered garments fell in branches of trees along the tracks, where they remained hanging.

PITTS SHOT THREE.

A Sensational Tragedy Enacted in Tennessee.

The story of a sensational tragedy was received at Nashville, Tenn., Tuesday night from Macon county, on the Kentucky line. The scene was at a stave factory on Long Fork creek. It seems that John Kirby, Jim Livingstone and Jack Moulder, three of the factory hands, were drunk and attacked the factory boss, Captain F. G. Pitts. They rushed upon him with clubs and knives and he retreated some distance, but finally drew his pistol and fired four times. He brought down all three of the men. Kirby was shot in the abdomen, Livingston through the side and Moulder in the side. Kirby and Livingston are dying. No arrest has been made.

HOME SEEKERS

Ready to Rush in on the Nez Perces Reservation.

A special from Lewiston, Idaho, says: "The absorbing topic around the border of the Nez Perces Indian reservation is the announcement that President Cleveland will issue his proclamation opening the reservation November 18. Enough home seekers are now in camp near the reservation to take all the desirable lands to be opened to settlement. Several hundred are waiting in this vicinity for the opening day and hundreds are in camp at other points."

We always learn fastest in a day of sorrow.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Ohio stands at the head of the states in clay manufacture, its product being valued at $10,668,000, or over 16 per cent of that of the whole country. Illinois comes next, with 13 per cent, and Pennsylvania stands third, with 11 per cent.

Austria-Hungary has 174 paper factories, 120 pasteboard factories and 34 pulp factories. The yearly production is about 350,000,000 pounds of paper, 20,000,000 pounds of pasteboard and 150,000,000 pounds of pulp, worth more than $20,000,000.

For a short distance a lion or a tiger can outrun a man, and can equal the speed of a fast horse, but they lose their wind at the end of half a mile at the most. They have little endurance, and are remarkably weak in lung power.

If by any means a bird attained the lightness of a ballon it could not fly. A balloon drifts with every gust; steering is impossible, the wind chooses its course. The bird ballon, as light as the wind and as strong as iron, is a figment of the imagination.

Among the series of notices in the London Gazette notifying the closing of various churchyards for further interments, appears one relative to the parish churchyard of Stratford-on-Avon, within the limits of which, but inside the church itself, Shakespeare lies buried.

Lasting Regrets.

"I never bet on a horse race but once," said the good deacon, "and I have regretted it ever since."

"Surely the sin has been forgiven ere now," said the minister.

"Oh, I don't doubt that, but the fact is I only won $2, when I might just as well have made it $1,000, since I was in for it!"—Indianapolis Journal.

WOMAN'S ENEMY.

PERITONITIS SELDOM SPARES ITS VICTIMS.

When It Does She is But a Wreck—Physicians Have Long Been Powerless—The Experience of a Baltimore Woman.

From the Herald, Baltimore, Md.

Mrs. J. P. Grove, a married lady with grandchildren, lives 417 Pinkney Place, Baltimore. She would easily pass for a woman of half her age, and owes her present state of good health and probably her life to the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. A Herald reporter called at the house a few days ago and was informed that Mrs. Grove had gone out for a walk and would soon be back. The scribe was ushered into the parlor to await her arrival. The room gave every evidence of refinement and the care and attention of a good housewife. Choice books lay around giving proof of the intelligence of the family, and the walls were decorated with many rare articles of virtu and bric-a-brac from South America, Japan, and other countries. When Mrs. Grove was announced the reporter was astonished to find her such a young looking and healthy woman. She is well educated, and is a fluent talker and interesting to listen to. She, however, declined at first to speak of the results she had experienced from taking the Pink Pills as, she said, she did not like to have her name appear in print in any way. "However," she added, after some little hesitation, "the pills did me so much good that I might be doing wrong by not letting some other sufferer know what they did for me." Then she said, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are certainly all the proprietors represent them to be. I never had such relief from any other medicine. A short time ago I had an attack of peritonitis which left me in such a prostrated and nervous condition that I despaired of recovery. I could neither sleep, eat or read with any degree of peace or satisfaction, and life was absolutely a burden. Having heard that others had been cured of the same troubles by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, I secured several boxes and began to take them. As if by magic I at once began to improve. They cured me, and now I have no symptoms of nervousness or of the disease which so prostrated me. Now that's enough," said Mrs. Grove, in reply to another question. She walked to the door as lightly as a young girl and, with a pleasant good morning to the reporter, disappeared within the portals of her happy home with a little grandchild clinging to her skirts.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price (50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50—they are never sold in bulk or by 100), by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

The Bessonette Cotton Bale.

A man of the name of Bessonette, of Temple, Texas, has invented a process of compressing cotton, which, it is estimated, will save to the south $32,000,000 annually. Imagine, if you please, a cotton bale so dense and so well covered that a fire may be built upon it without causing calculable damage; also imagine a bale so packed as to occupy much less room than an ordinary compressed bale, yet not need any ties to keep it in shape. Imagine further a bale which contains no moisture, no air and nothing but cotton, and so compact as to be like a block of hard wood into which nails can be driven the same as if it were wood.

The cotton, according to the Bessonette process, is ginned into bats, wound on iron spindles, pressed down upon the spindle by a revolving cylinder with any required pressure, and then wrapped with cotton duck, something after the style of the wrapping of a cigar. Cotton duck cups are placed over the ends of the cylinder of cotton, after the spindle is withdrawn, and strands of wire passed around the ends of the cylinder hold the caps in place. No iron bands are used, as the way the cotton batting is wound on the spindle retains the full force of the compressage. The duck is to protect the outside of the cylinder of cotton from dirt.—Tuscaloosa (Cal.) Times.

Forgiveness of Two Kinds.

Judge Lamar, at a political meeting in his own state, alluding to the civil war, suggested as a parallel case the parable of the Prodigal Son, and the joyful reception at his home when the naughty boy returned. He was succeeded by a negro, a republican, who, after some general remarks, paid his respects to Lamar's parallel.

"Forgiben!" said he; "dey forgiben, dem brigadiers? Why, dey'se come walkin' into de house, an' bang de do', an' go up to de ol' man an' say: 'Whar dat veal?'"—Crypt.

Need of Help Then.

"Oh, do come and help!" gasped a boy who ran up to a policeman; "there is an awful fight going on in our street!"

"Who's fighting?"

"My father and another man."

"How long have they been at it?"

"Oh, half an hour."

"But why didn't you come and tell me about it before?"

"Why, because dad was getting the best of it along up to ten minutes ago."—Tit-Bits.

That's Just as Bad.

It wasn't really her fault that the biscuits burned a little on the bottom, and he ought not to have raised so big a row about it.

"I suppose such a thing never happened in all your mother's cooking," said she sarcastically.

"Never," he asseverated. "Occasionally she used to get them so light that they would float up to the top of the oven and get scorched that way, but they never burned on the bottom."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

BY ALEXANDER ROBINSON, M. D.

CHAPTER VIII.

Leonore was in the library.

She stood before the window looking [illegible] on the dreary day.

It had commenced to rain, and the drip of the water from the trees in the garden made a dismal picture, in keeping with the affliction that had visited the house.

As I entered she turned quickly, and seemed somewhat relieved when she found it was myself.

"Doctor, are those people gone?" she asked.

"Yes, Miss Leonore. That was the coroner and his jury—a very necessary [illegible] on in cases of this kind."

"Yes, I know. What was the verdict, Doctor?"

She was wonderfully calm and self-possessed. I could not but notice this [illegible].

"They decided that Dr. Seabury came to his death by poison, administered with his own hand."

Watching her face closely I could not see that she experienced any emotion. Her features were calm as the summer sky.

"When can I look upon my poor old friend?"

Her words relieved me from a duty I did not like.

"Now if you desire. Are you capable of standing the shock?"

"Do not fear for me; I am stronger than you imagine. Will you go up with [illegible]?"

"I have a little writing to do connected with the case. So with your permission [illegible] remain here until you come down."

So saying, I seated myself at a desk [illegible] to examine the phial I had [illegible] from the dead man's hand, at the same time drawing writing paper to me.

This phial was an odd little thing, made of crystal, to all appearances.

It had been buried in the tombs of the [illegible] for thousands of years, and no [illegible] might have aroused a fever of interest in the breast of a man like Doctor Seabury.

Leonore had left the room.

I realized what a shrewd trick this was on the part of the old detective, and [illegible] as the idea was to me, I could not forget that his aims were justice itself.

The innocent would never suffer at the hands of Abner Ketcham, and if guilty it was only the right thing that they should be brought to the bar.

I commenced my writing.

Some time passed by. So nervous had [illegible] me that it was with difficulty that I [illegible] at my work.

At last I heard the rustle of skirts on [illegible]. When Leonore entered the [illegible] I was folding up what I had [illegible], around the ancient phial.

I looked up into her face. Unless my [illegible] deceived me there were traces of [illegible] there.

There rushed upon me a mad desire to console her—to pour out burning words of regret at her lonely situation, and to offer my services in any manner acceptable, but wisely I restrained myself.

She was yet under the ban of suspicion.

Much as I believed firmly in her innocence, it had not yet been clearly proven, and there were some things that needed [illegible] investigation.

I now desired to see Mr. Ketcham.

To do so, I must go up-stairs again.

In looking around for my hat, I found that I had left it in the chamber above, and leaving Leonore, I ascended.

I found Mr. Ketcham standing thoughtfully by the window. He turned as I entered the room, and although I gazed eagerly in his face, I was baffled.

"Close the door and sit down, Doctor."

His words, innocent in themselves, sent a chill through my heart. They meant that he had discovered something [illegible] while repeating to me.

Being deeply interested in the case, I could not do otherwise than listen, eagerly.

"When Leonore entered the room, she stood right there for a minute with her hands clasped, her eyes glued upon the bed and that motionless figure.

"Then she seemed to break the spell that bound her, and gliding forward fell on her knees beside the dead.

"Doctor, I have in my time looked upon some strange sights, but never one [illegible] equal to that, where a girl we believe guilty of murder bends over the form of her aged victim, and fondles his hand."

I could not restrain a cry.

"She is innocent, sir. A guilty soul would turn from such a sight in terror. Why the dead must even arise to condemn her did she dare do that."

[illegible]

[illegible] myself under his magnetism [illegible] I waited to hear more.

[illegible] quiet assurance of his manner [illegible] me warning that in some way [illegible] had not improved her case by [illegible] she had made to the death bed.

"[illegible] remained there, apparently consumed with grief, and yet uttering no [illegible].

"Then I saw her raise her head and [illegible] her hands convulsively, while she [illegible] down upon the body.

"[illegible] fell from her lips. They [illegible] my ears, and were treasured [illegible] one as having a decided bearing on [illegible].

"This was exactly what she said, [illegible] the words in apparent deep [illegible]:

"'My poor, murdered guardy, to think that it has come at last, that which you [illegible] feared so long. Heaven forgive me for being the cause of it all.'

"Then she gave way to a fit of sobbing. This lasted but a short time, however, and Leonore became herself again.

"She [illegible] over and kissed the cold lips of the dead, then left the room."

I [illegible] sit still no longer.

"Do you mean to say, sir, the girl who [illegible] guilty of such a base crime [illegible] act in that manner?"

"Well! I neither condemn nor acquit till the returns are all in. I simply say that, according to the evidence, it looks black for Leonore.

"Remember, Doctor, the peculiar circumstances under which the girl committed the crime, if she did do it.

"That would account for the words she spoke, and allow of her actions. She seemed to know that in a time of mental irresponsibility she had committed this awful deed, and bewailed the fact. At least, that was the construction I put upon the words she uttered."

I was silent.

Although he had not broken down the barriers of my conviction, still his argument was unanswerable.

Before my mind was arrayed the evidence against the girl.

In one way it was overwhelming. I put it down under different heads, so that it could be regulated.

First. The photograph on the back of which the old doctor had written "Leonore—the cause of my sleepless nights and watchful days." It would indicate, as Mr. Ketcham said, that there was something wrong with the girl's mind, and that her loving guardian was constantly expecting a periodical outbreak, during which she seemed to seek his life.

His assertion to the detective relative to an enemy who had followed him from India might be only a blind to hide the truth, as he was apt to be sensitive upon this point.

I dismissed this from my mind, and proceeded to the next point:

Second. The discovery of the lock of black hair in the hand of the dead, undoubtedly torn from the head of the assassin, and that, a woman. It matched Leonore's hair exactly, and although in itself this fact was a simple thing, taken in the light of corroborative evidence it would amount to a good deal, since she had been in his room that night.

Third. The footprints in the dust of the old store-room. We had fitted Leonore's small slipper to some of them, and found that they tallied exactly.

Fourth. The discovery of the Malay creese in her room. It was ostensibly a paper cutter, but was just the weapon to be caught up and be put to deadly use by a person whose mind was unbalanced, and who in the delirium of sudden insanity was bent upon taking human life.

Fifth. Leonore's own words and actions, as witnessed and heard by the old detective, were strongly savored with the view of the case as he put it. She seemed to avow that she was the cause of the Doctor's death, and bewail the cruel fate that made it so. Of course a different construction might be put upon her words under new light, but just then they seemed to imply the worst.

When all these facts were arranged in a line before me, they presented a terrible indictment against Leonore.

No wonder I was silent.

There were a few things on the other side, but as yet they were overshadowed by the colossal proportions of the opposite evidence.

I was ready to work hard in order to prove her innocence, but for the life of me just then I did not know how to begin.

While my mind had been dwelling upon these things, Mr. Ketcham was regarding me with interest.

I could detect a faint smile lurking in the corners of his mouth, as though he could guess what was passing in my mind.

Then for the first time I noticed he held a paper in his hand.

The thought flashed upon my mind that he had found something in the ebony desk bearing upon the case.

Perhaps it was more evidence tending to fasten the coils around Leonore.

As he held the paper out I mechanically took it from his hand.

It seemed to be a letter. There was no date on it, and yet something about the paper told that it was several years old.

I saw it was addressed to the old Doctor, and seemed to be from some friend out in Singapore.

Most of it was mere gossip about the old friends of Dr. Seabury in India.

Then came a paragraph that riveted my attention.

"And Leonore—I hesitate to approach that subject, knowing how it concerns your days and nights—how is she? Has anything occurred yet? I hope not, in Heaven's name, and that that terrible scourge may never visit again my old friend Seabury."

That was all on that subject.

Sick at heart, I handed the paper back to the detective.

"Well, Doctor?"

"I am afraid all roads lead to Rome, sir."

"Then you admit that at least I have good reasons for my suspicions?"

"Alas! it is too true."

"Doctor, you take it too much to heart. Remember that, even if guilty, the girl cannot be punished. She was insane at the time."

"What you say does not take away the sting, sir?"

"See here, Doctor, am I to depend upon you any further in this case?"

I turned upon him indignantly.

"No, sir; not so long as it comes to hunting down a poor girl. That is business with you, but none of mine."

"Then you wash your hands of it?"

"Not at all. While you are seeking to tighten the coils around Leonore, Mr. Ketcham, I shall be using my utmost endeavors to prove her innocence. We shall see who will win the game."

His face brightened.

"Give me your hand, Doctor! I honor you for the stand you have taken. If ever that poor girl needed a friend it is now. Strange though it may seem, I sincerely hope you will succeed, but at the same time I say frankly I fear the worst."

These words drew me toward that man as I had never been drawn before.

I left Mr Ketcham seated in a rocker, his eyes glued upon the hieroglyphics on the ceiling, while I went out to start upon my hopeless task.

CHAPTER IX.

ALTHOUGH considerably cast down by the condition of affairs, I was not yet ready to throw up the case.

Mr. Ketcham had not proved his theory.

One false move would knock the bottom out of it, and this was what I intended to find if such a thing were possible.

I was arrayed against the keenest man in the detective line in New York.

My only hope lay in the fact that his heart was not in his work, while I could go at mine with the greatest of zeal, having before my eyes the vision of a woman's appealing face, as Leonore's appeared to me when she declared that if ever she had need of friends it was now.

Yes; I would be her friend, poor girl! What was the danger she seemed to dread? Was it discovery?

I shut my eyes to the terrible array of evidence against her, as set forth in the arraignment of Abner Ketcham, and turned my attention toward the other side.

Certain things haunted me.

If the party who had climbed that trellis of vines on the night of the murder could be found I believed I could learn something that would be of value.

I purposed devoting my first energies toward finding that person.

Of whom could I get particulars concerning the dead man?

A name I had seen upon card, coupled with the words "your old friend," decided me to visit the Sturtevant House with the intention of visiting him.

There was a strong possibility that he might no longer be there.

I consulted the register.

"Major Beebe, late of her Majesty's Royal Highlanders, Bombay."

That was the important entry I found in the register, written in a great sprawling hand.

"Is Major Beebe still here?" I asked the gentleman at the desk.

The clerk smiled, and replied to my question with a nod toward a rather pompous, red-faced gentleman, who was twirling his blonde side-whiskers near by.

This gentleman having surveyed me as I approached, assumed a stoical, freezing air that told me, without further investigation, that he had had some bitter experiences with New York confidence men.

"Major Beebe, I believe."

"The same, sir. What can I do for you?"

"I wish to talk a little with you, Major, on a subject of interest. Will you be so kind as to sit with me over yonder?"

He kept up his freezing manner, but accompanied me to the chairs.

"Now, sir, state your business," and he glanced at me through his spy glass, as though he would annihilate me.

Not one whit troubled by his fierce aspect, I proceeded in my own way.

"I understand, Major, that you were a friend of the late Dr. Seabury."

He almost jumped from his chair.

"What the deuce do you mean, sir, giving me such a shock? I am a friend of Dr. Seabury, if that is what you mean," he replied, with some asperity.

"When did you see him last?"

"Twenty-four hours ago."

"He was well then?"

"Unusually so. We took dinner in company in this house. By jove, young sir, am I to understand anything has happened to him?"

"Dr. Seabury is dead!"

He seemed stunned for a minute.

"This is terrible. When did he die?"

"About two o'clock this morning."

"It must have been very sudden."

"Terribly so."

"Of what did he die?"

"The coroner's jury has agreed that he came to his death by his own hand."

"Suicide?"

"Yes."

"The poor fellow must have lost his mind. He was the last one in the world to do such a thing."

"That may be so, Major. I am a doctor who was called to his bedside in the hope of doing something, but the poison was deadly and there was no hope. I wish to ask you what you know of the Doctor."

"We have been friends for, let me see, possibly a dozen years."

"Was there any mystery connected with his past life?"

"I have heard such hinted, but could not say positively."

"Do you know his ward?"

"Leonore? Yes, I have met her. She is a charming girl."

I thanked him mentally for tha

"What is her last name, Major!

"Seabury, of course."

"Then she was an adopted child?"

"I always understood she was the child of his cousin, by the same name."

"Did you know her mother or father?"

"I did not."

"Do you know anything about her?"

"Nothing, except that, while Seabury loved her fondly, I have seen him look over his shoulder at mention of the name Leonore, as though some sudden fear had come upon him."

My heart went down to zero.

One more question.

"Major, if I affirmed it as a fact would you believe it, that Leonore has been subject to occasional spells of insanity, during which, like most mad persons, she sought to injure the one she loved the best, and that it was this which haunted Dr. Seabury day and night."

"I would believe it possible," he replied, in the calmest of tones.

I had no more to say in this regard.

"Major, if you go to the house to see the body of your old friend, please do not say a word of having met me, or what I have talked about."

"I promise you, Doctor."

Shaking hands with the soldier, I left the hotel.

My first attempt, instead of bringing a gleam of light, had added to the darkness.

If this kept on, I would soon be compelled to grope my way.

All my energies were now to be devoted to finding the party who had climbed the vines on that night.

I had but one clew to his identity.

A portion of his forefinger was missing.

Where should I look for him?

The tool he had dropped seemed to indicate that he was a burglar, and could be found in dens frequented by such.

Being possessed of an adventurous turn, I had seen much of the great city. Still, I would have hesitated about engaging in any such undertaking, had the cause been an ordinary one.

All that influenced me was my determination to leave no stone unturned in the endeavor to save Leonore from the storm clouds gathering around her.

A feverish desire to do something was upon me.

Obeying my first impulse, I sought again the strange house of Dr. Seabury.

Standing beside the wall at the point where the party had climbed the wall in leaving the grounds, I looked about me.

Possibly there was some clew here which had escaped my first hasty search.

I examined the ground.

People had passed to and fro, and all traces of the footprints left by the man tracked had long since disappeared.

Here and there a little knot of women were to be seen talking together in low tones, and casting mysterious glances at the old house seen over the wall and among the trees.

Already news of the suicide had gone abroad.

A policeman stood at the gate.

Another walked the grounds, already nearly dry from the warm sun.

As I clambered over the wall he came toward me, motioning angrily with his club, but I paid no attention to him.

When he came up I had merely to mention that I was working with Mr. Ketcham on this case, and he instantly collapsed.

He had great respect for that name.

I found that the rain of the early morning had almost washed out the footprints left by the man.

It was not to examine these I had come back.

Was there nothing else?

Again I climbed up as the man had done, through the brambles that had grown in the breach of the half fallen wall.

One of the obtrusive twigs caught in my pocket, and actually dislodged my handkerchief.

I bent down to pick it up.

Ah! there was one of my letters also that had been deftly snatched out of a pocket by this self-same inquisitive bramble bush.

The deuce!

I started as if shot, for, as I picked the envelope up, it felt cold and damp.

It had come from my pocket, but had lain there through the rain.

Quick as thought, I turned it over to look upon the address. This was what what greeted my eyes:

"Theodore Parker,
"New York City."

That was all.

Stay, there was the postmark up in the right-hand corner. That might be a very important clew to me.

I could make it out distinctly.

"New York, June 6, 3 p. m."

When I had read this, I could not help smiling.

This very day was June 7th, and the letter I held had been mailed in the city during the preceding afternoon.

What could be plainer?

The man who carried it must have passed over this wall since that time.

There could not be the faintest shadow of a doubt but that Theodore Parker, whoever he might prove to be, had been in these grounds during the night that witnessed the murder.

Undoubtedly he was the burglar who had climbed the vines, bent upon plunder, and who had been concerned in some way with the crime.

Whether Theodore Parker would prove a woman in disguise I could not tell yet, but I felt sure that when I found him the identity of the man with the marked hand would be fully established.

I put the letter in my pocket, for I had already seen there was an inclosure of some sort in the envelope.

Then I sought the officer, from whom I learned the address of the policeman whose beat took in Dr. Seabury's place.

In twenty minutes I was rapping on the door of a neat little house.

A tidy wife opened the door and ushered me into the parlor, while she went to call her husband, who was asleep.

Presently he put in an appearance.

I saw he was a good-natured fellow, and at once apologized for disturbing him.

Without much waste of time, I told him about the suicide of Dr. Seabury, and the fact that a burglary had been attempted the same night.

"What I want to know, Dessley, is whether you saw any suspicious characters in the vicinity that night."

He shook his head.

"We see lots of 'em at all hours, so I can't exactly say as how there was more on last night than any other time."

"Think; was there any who seemed to hover about the Seabury place?"

"Now that you mention it, my pard and me did see a fellow near the wall, a-dodging along, but we didn't pay any attention to him."

"Why?"

"Well, we'd seen him more than once in that place, and understood that he was in love with old Seabury's gal, and that the Doctor was down on him."

"Where did you get that impression?"

"Can't say, exactly. Might have come from my pard, who's a great hand at reading stories. Anyhow, he kinder sympathized with the feller, who was a good-looking young chap. We never bothered him."

"Then you have seen his face?"

"Often, sir."

"What kind of a looking man was he?"

He assumed a reflective air.

"I reckon he had bright eyes, blue, I think they were, and wore a full yellow beard. When his cap was off I saw that his hair in front stood straight up, and that his forehead was more square an' white than any I ever set eye on."

The words of the policeman gave me a severe start. I thought of a picture I had seen in Dr. Seabury's chamber, turned face to the wall in a dark corner.

True, that had been the head of a young boy, bright and keen, but it had possessed the same peculiarity of yellow hair spoken of by the night patrol.

Instantly there flashed across my mind the conviction that I might discover some connection between the would-be burglar and possible murderer and the original of the picture that was turned to the wall.

More plainly, then, a new vista seemed opening before me.

I was delighted with my success thus far, and would not feel ashamed to meet Mr. Ketcham when I went to report my progress in the game.

Perhaps the man could establish one more link in the chain for me.

"Tell me, my friend, have you ever been close enough to see this man's hands?"

"Oh, yes, sir."

"Was there anything peculiar about them?"

"Well, no, sir, except I noticed one of his fingers was gone."

"Indeed! From which hand?"

He reflected a moment.

"The left, sir."

"You are sure of that?"

"I can swear to it. I remember he was leaning against the wall one night when we passed him, and his left hand was up against the stones. The light from a street lamp showed us his hand plain as day, and Bill, he's my pard, you know, he spoke of it afterward."

I had no more to say.

The case was assuming such proportions that I really wished for the assistance of Mr. Ketcham, but the time had not yet arrived for me to seek him.

I would try and find a clew to the whereabouts of Theodore Parker.

Perhaps the letter I had found would aid me.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

"What's the matter?" called a mother, turning to her little boy who "set up" a howl. "What are you crying about?"

"I want something?"

"What do you want?"

"I have forgot what it is an' that's what makes me cry."—Arkansaw Traveler.

CAPITAL NOTES.

GOSSIP OF WASHINGTON IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS.

Doings of the Chiefs and Heads of the Various Departments.

The fifty-fourth congress will convene within two weeks. At the Capitol preparations have already been made for the reception of the new body of lawmakers, and an interesting session is anticipated.

The annual meeting of the National Civil Service Reform League will be held in Washington December 12 and 13. Ex-Secretary of the Interior Carl Schurz, the president, will deliver his annual address on the opening night, and a reception will be given the next evening. All municipal associations and affiliated organizations have been asked to send delegates.

Hiram Hitchcock, president of the Maritime Canal Company of Nicaragua, has submitted his annual report to the secretary of the interior. There are no new features contained in it except that the Nicaragua-Canal Construction Company has been reorganized and is now the Nicaragua Company. When the construction company failed in 1893 all work was suspended, but now the Nicaragua Company is making active preparations for resuming the work under the contract which the construction company had with the maritime company.

Monroe Doctrine Resolutions.

From hints thrown out by leaders of both political parties at the capital, strong probabilities seem to exist that two important joint resolutions will be offered immediately after the assembling of the fifty-fourth congress. The first will be an affirmation of the principles embodied in the Monroe doctrine, expressing in plain and vigorous language the sympathy of the American people with the government of Venezuela in its boundary dispute with Great Britain. The second, a joint resolution, which is being prepared with much care, provides for the annexation of the Hawaiian islands to the United States under a territorial form of government.

The Philadelphia Mint on Full Time.

The treasury department was informed Thursday of the withdrawal of $500,000 in gold at New York for export to Europe. This reduces the treasury gold reserve to $86,394,557. Of this reserve about $32,000,000 is in gold coin, against which no gold certificates are held. The gold coin holdings at New York, because of the recent heavy exports of gold, have become less than it is customary to have in the subtreasury and gold coin has been ordered shipped from the Philadelphia mint to replenish the depleted stock of gold coin on hand at New York. The Philadelphia mint is now at work on full time and has been for several weeks past in turning gold bullion into coin. The coinage this month at the mint will be unusually heavy.

Receipts $27,753,000 Short.

The report of Mr. Joseph S. Miller, of West Virginia, commissioner of internal revenue, just made public, states that the receipts for the fiscal year had fallen below his estimates $27,753,000. This he attributes to the decision of the supreme court declaring the income tax unconstitutional after only $77,000 had been collected. His estimate for the year was $171,000,000; the actual receipts were $143,264,000. In regard to the next year the commissioner says:

"After a careful consideration of the receipts from all sources of internal revenue for the months of July, August and September, 1895, with the collections for the same months in previous fiscal years, and giving due weight to the improved business conditions manifested throughout the country in the peculiar lines touched by internal taxation, I estimate that the receipts from all sources of internal revenue for the current fiscal year will aggregate $165,000,000."

Ex-Consul Waller's Case.

It is not true, as has been stated in dispatches sent from Washington, that the United States government has indicated a purpose of asking the release, as an act of grace, of ex-Consul Waller. On the contrary, the state department has refrained thus far from acting on an intimation from France that the prisoner's release may be obtained as an act of comity, provided Waller surrender all claim for indemnity for false imprisonment. This proposition has been submitted by the state department to the family and attorneys of Waller's wife and they are considering the advisability of submitting it to Waller himself. Regarding the matter as one entirely personal to Waller, and taking the precarious condition of his health into consideration, his attorneys agree that he should have an opportunity to decide whether to accept release upon such conditions. His wife has advised against that course.

Crisp in an Old Role.

Ex-Speaker Crisp looms up as the natural leader of the democratic minority in the near approaching fifty-fourth congress. He will receive the complimentary nomination for speaker without opposition. That in itself will be a formal designation as leader of the minority. Although the democrats in the house cannot expect to cut much of a figure in the framing of legislation during the coming congress, they may be able, by uniting their forces, to make considerable trouble for the over-confident and too ambitious majority. As a leader of the minority in the 51st congress Mr. Crisp won most of his national honors, and he may be able to win the Georgia senatorship from the large field of aspirants for that position if he plays his cards well. It is possible that Mr. Reed may seek to retaliate upon Mr. Crisp for the latter's attempt to discipline the "Big Fellow from Maine" in the last congress. If the old warfare between Reed and Crisp is revived, with Reed in the chair and Crisp on the floor, some interesting history may be made.

Estimates for Rivers and Harbors.

The annual report of General Craighill, chief of engineers, to the secretary of war has been made public. The board has prepared projects for the artillery defense of Philadelphia, Key West, San Diego, the mouth of the Columbia river, Galveston and Puget Sound. In addition projects for the sub-marine defense of various places have been prepared or revised and nearly all have received the approval of the secretary of war.

He submits in detail his estimates for river and harbor improvements. Among them are the following: James river, Virginia, $150,000; Potomac river, $150,000; (with this estimate comes a recommendation that the Long bridge be rebuilt, as at present an ice gorge would overflow the city and do great damage; also that the reclaimed lands on the flats shall be reserved for park purposes and not given to commercial uses.) York river, Virginia, $20,000; Cape Fear river, below Wilmington, N. C., $195,000; Winyaw bay, South Carolina, $200,000; Charleston harbor, $100,000; Santee river, South Carolina, $60,000; Savannah river, $17,000; Darien harbor, Georgia, $25,000; Key West harbor, $125,000; Charlotte harbor, Florida, $20,000; Chattahoochee river, $20,000; Pensacola harbor, $500,000; Alabama river, $50,000; Coosa river, between Rome and Tennessee river bridge, $187,000, between Wetumpka and the same bridge, $312,000; Mobile harbor, $150,000; Black Warrior river, $100,000; Warrior and Tombigbee, in Alabama and Mississippi, $96,000; Tombigbee up to Demopolis, $97,000, below Demopolis, $96,000; Bayou La fourche, Louisiana, $25,000; Bayou Plaquemine, $150,000; Calcacieu river, $100,000; Sabine Pass, Texas, $275,000; Galveston harbor, $1,690,000; Galveston ship channel, $100,000; Buffalo Bayou, $15,000; Red river, Louisiana and Arkansas, $25,000; Ouachita and Black rivers, $50,000; Yazoo river, $25,000; Yazoo harbor, Vicksburg, $225,000; Arkansas river, $100,000; White river, $20,000; Cumberland river, below Nashville, $150,000; above Nashville, $450,000; Tennessee river, $485,000.

KNIGHTS OF LABOR.

Loosen the Rules Against Waiters in Saloons and Want Judges Elected.

The question of minority representation was discussed by the Knights of Labor in their session at Washington Monday. The sentiment is for a change which will give minorities a representation.

The restriction against saloon men and barkeepers was also discussed. The law will be changed in favor of waiters or others who act as barkeepers only temporarily. There is no purpose to loosen the rules of the order against saloon men who are permanently in the business.

An important resolution has been read and referred to the resolutions committee demanding that members of the United States supreme court shall be elected by general vote.

Master Workman Sovereign presented the following resolution, which was adopted by unanimous vote:

"Whereas, The supreme court of the United States has affirmed the decision of Judge Ross, which decision raised a misdemeanor to a felony and sent four local officers of the A. R. U. at Los Angeles, Cal., to prison for nineteen months; and,

"Whereas, The decision of the United States supreme court places all labor organizations in the role of criminal conspirators; and,

"Whereas, Said decision affirms that a greater penalty can be imposed for a conspiracy to commit a crime than is imposed for the commission of the crime itself.

"Resolved, That this general assembly of the Knights of Labor earnestly protests against such traversity on justice and outrage on the liberties of the people, and condemns said court for its partial ruling in the interest of the plutocratic classes, and its abridgement of the constitutional rights of the laboring people."

In supporting the resolution Mr. Sovereign said that the imprisoned men had served as a committee during the strike, one of them urging a railroad man not to take the place of the strikers. He asserted that no interference and no threats had been made, and the engineer had volunteered to talk to the committee. The resolution was then passed with the understanding that it would be supplemented later by one for the election of the supreme court judiciary by popular vote.

PRICE OF SALT DOUBLED.

Packers Being Bled by the Trust to the Tune of $500,000 a Year.

A Chicago paper says: The leading packers in the stockyards, as well as the lesser ones, are worried by the salt combine, which has been raising prices until now it seems the effect of the salt "trust's" squeeze will cost the packers a matter of $400,000 or $500,000 a year.

Rock salt has been advanced in price nearly 100 per cent. The packers dispatched trusted men to find out whether salt can be bought elsewhere. Their agents have returned and report that the combine seems to have secured everything. Packers, instead of $2.75 a ton, are now paying $4.50 to $4.75 for their rock salt.

WOMEN AND BABES

BUTCHERED WITHOUT MERCY BY SPANISH SOLDIERS.

A Probability That the Murderers Will Be Sentenced to Death.

Colonel Fernando Fegueredo, the Cuban leader, of Tampa, Fla., is in receipt of a letter from Havana, giving details of atrocities which were committed by Spaniards in Matanzas province.

Colonel Melino, who commands a Spanish regiment, recently encountered the advance guard of Gomez's army in Matanzas, and was defeated. While soldiers under Melino were in retreat, they met a group of women and children near a little town called Cayopino. As the soldiers passed, one of the women made a sneering remark about the Spaniards. The remark was overheard by the soldiers and so enraged them that they butchered everyone of the women and children. There were ten women and about a dozen children in the group.

The letter says that the Spaniards after shooting down their victims, stabbed them with bayonets, inflicting the most horrible wounds. One baby was killed at its mother's breast, and the bullet that passed through the infant, also passed through the mother. Colonel Melino made no report of the butchery, but it happened that two of the women murdered were wives of the Spaniards engaged in the sawmill business at Matanzas.

When they learned how their loved ones had been slaughtered they sent De Campos information of the horrible affair and demanded that Colonel Melino be punished. It is stated that De Campos has ordered that Melino be courtmartialed, and it is thought the butchers will be sentenced to death, as the massacre is condemned as bitterly by Spaniards as by Cubans.

METHODISTS IN SESSION.

Bush Bill Unanimously Endorsed and the Legislature Asked to Pass It.

The annual session of the North Georgia Conference of the M. E. Church, South, convened in Elberton at 9:30 o'clock Wednesday morning. Over two hundred members were present.

Rev. J. W. Heidt, D. D., was selected secretary. He appointed several assistants. Committees on books and periodicals, bible cause, temperance and Sabbath observance were appointed by a rising vote.

The conference unanimously endorsed the anti-barroom bill and asked the legislature to pass it. Much routine business was done and a number of new ministers continued on trial.

RACE TROUBLE IN FLORIDA.

Negroes Fired Upon by White Laborers at Moss Bluff.

There has been trouble for some time between white and negro laborers at Moss Bluff, Fla., a tie camp on the Ocklawaha river, about thirty miles from Jacksonville. Saturday night the whites surrounded the cabins in which the negroes were sleeping and poured in volley after volley from Winchesters. The negroes fled in terror. It is reported that three were killed and several wounded by the fusilade. The whites resented the importation of the negroes by the contractors and had threatened to drive them away.

SIX DROWNED.

A Sponge Schooner Founders in the Gulf of Mexico.

A special from Tarpon Springs, Fla., says: The sponge schooner Shamrock, of Key West, owned by William H. Asbury, foundered in the gulf Wednesday morning off St. Martin's key and six of the crew were drowned. The vessel was a twenty-three-ton schooner and carried a crew of fourteen men. The names of those who were drowned were as follows: Jeremiah Saunders, Gelisha Albury, Boller Butler, Joe Levarity, Walton Knowles and Stewart.

No Hope for Hayward.

The last hope that remained to Harry Hayward for his life was wrested from him when the Minnesota supreme court handed down a long opinion, affirming the action of the lower court in denying him a new trial.

THE REAL ISSUE.

"Coming events cast their shadows before." All things indicate that the republican party will be a factor in Alabama politics in our next election. not openly, probably, so far as State offices are concerned, but certainly with a view of capturing the representatives to congress, in this and other districts in the northern part of the State. The fusion in Birmingham shows conclusively that the republican party will again endeavor to procure a foothold, by the aid of those disaffected voters, who have strayed from the Democratic party, and by this means regain the power wrung from them by the white man, more than twenty years ago.

Will they succeed, and shall we see our beloved State helpless in the hands of unscrupulous men, who will again use her fair credit for their own personal advancement, thereby loading the tax payer with a burdensome debt? Would you like to see negroes in your public offices, on your juries and mingling with your children in the public schools? These will be the inevitable results, if this party comes again to Alabama.

Do you doubt it? Then, if you are old enough, turn your mind again to those scenes enacted during the days of reconstruction, or visit the republican states of Ohio and Kansas, and see the white and negro children mingling amicably together in the public schools.

Do you wish this state of affairs in Alabama? If not, then lay aside your prejudice for the once and calmly look the facts in the face, before being led by men avowedly in the pay of the republican party in bringing about just such conditions. You complain of corruption and bossism in the Democratic party, has it, during its twenty years power, ever subjected you to such indiguities as these? It is a condition and not a theory which confronts us, and, in the face of this common danger, you sholud return to the old party, and help us to fight back this enemy of white supremacy.

! ! ? ? * * — — § §

No, gentle reader, this type is not pied. This is what we heard a man say, who voted for Gov. Oates, under the impression that he was a sound money democrat, and not a get-the-office-by-any-means candidate.

We ask in all humility, if there was not a trade of some character between Governor Oates and Capt. Joseph Johnston, why every Johnston paper in Alabama favors Oates for the Senate. There is something rotten in Denmark, and it smells rank.

It seems settled now that Radford, the man who killed Simmons, a German merchant, in Columbia, is no other than Judge Frances C. Randolph, the defaulting probate judge of Montgomery. If he is convicted, of which there seems to be no doubt, he will be shot, as that is the mode of execution in that country.

Geo R. Marshal, who, several years ago, was convicted of burglary in this county, and sentenced for twenty years, escaped from Pratt Mines, and is now at liberty. It will be remembered that Marshal and his partner Hendricks broke into several stores at Verbena and Mt. Creek, and was finally captured by the citizens of Verbena.

The silver meeting in Birmingham did not lead to a fusion of the Populists and republicans, although there was some tendency in that direction. As the Populists are for free silver coinage and the republicans are gold standard advocates, it appears that any fusion of two such elements must lead to dire confusion.

Blount County News.

Have these editors forgotten the complete amalgamation of the free trade populist and the high tariff republicans, in our last campaign?

Hon. Thos. K. Jones, who was twice a candidate for State treasurer, on the populite ticket, says that party's race is run, the issue is now between the white man and the negro and he proposes to stand by the white man. There are plenty of men in this county, who voted for Mr. Jones, that feel the same way, and they should have the moral courage to say so.

WITH OUR EXCHANGES.

If you ask some men for an advertisement they will tell you that they don't believe in advertising, that newspapers are never read. Let the same man be caught kissing his neighbor's wife or trying to hold up a building some dark night and if the printing office is in the seventh story of a building he'll go to it and beg the editor to keep the thing quiet "Don't publish it in your paper you know."—Alabama Enquirer

What was called as a free silver conference in Birmingham last Wednesday turned out to be a purely Populist gathering, with a sprinkling of Republicans. The meeting passed a lot of resolutions, which could have been expressed in a single in a single sentence, thus: "Resolved, That we, the Populist of Alabama, allow ourselves to be swallowed by the Republicans." And the Republicans proceeded to swallow. After the meeting quite a number of men, who had followed Kolb off from the Democratic party through honest and conscientious motives, declared that they would not be turned over, bound and gaged, to the Republicans, Captain Kolb, Parson Adams and other leaders, fought the idea of fusing to the very last, but Bowman and his crowd were victors and they the party to the Republicans, it matters not who they may name as their candidate for Governor, even if it be Bill Stevens, and the platform may be what they please to make it.

ADVERTISING AS A SCIENCE PAYS.

Some people say that advertising is all a matter of luck; that you cannot tell what advertising is going to do, or whether or not it is going to pay. This may be true; but it is very strange that the man who gives intelligent thought to his advertising, and it in an intelligent, earnest, straightforward way usually has the luck on his side. He is lucky in his advertising, because he reduced it to a science. Advertising is just as certain as paying rent. Advertising is governed by the same common sense business lines that govern buying lot of tomatoes or codfish.—Grocery World.

DEAR SIRS:—The Acme Light Roadster came to hand O. K. on the 10inst., and I must frankly say it meets my fullest expectations, and I am very much pleased with it. I considered it a high grade up to date wheel in every detail of design material, construction and finish, and is fully equal, if not superior to many of best $100.00 wheels sold on the market here. I believe the Acme frame is the strongest and most rigid and the most graceful and lighest frame built. It is a beauty among beauties, and cannot fail to satisfy.

The Safe Basis For Silver Coinage.

A sign that the silverites are beginning to realize that free coinage at 16 to 1 is an impossibility is found in the demand by some silver organs for the coinage at that ratio of all silver produced in the United States. But this scheme is just as absurd as the proposal to open our mints to the world's stores of silver. No tariff would be able to keep foreign silver out of this country if it was valued here at a higher rate than its commercial value. Even though the importation of bullion was prohibited, it would be easy to bring in silver tableware, etc., which would be melted down. The idea of coining all United States silver will not stand examination. The only safe basis is to coin as much as can be maintained at a parity with gold. As soon as our supply of the latter metal increases to a proper amount we may venture to coin more silver. But not till then.

Want Silver Monometallism.

Some of the silverites are profuse in their protests that they only want bimetallism and do not wish to cease using gold as a standard of values or to drive it out of circulation. But it is only necessary to read the papers and speeches in which the free coinage doctrine is preached to see that, while pretending to favor using gold, they really want silver alone. The wholesale denunciation of gold as "money of the rich," as "a standard which robs debtors for the benefit of creditors," etc., shows that it is not merely love of silver, but hatred of gold, which inspires these attacks. Why not be honest, Messrs. Silverites, and admit that in advocating a policy which, on the confession of that eminent bimetallist, President E. B. Andrews, "would drive all our gold out of the country," you are working for the silver standard?

WHAT THEY SAY
OF THE ELECTROPOISE

The Electropoise has relieved me of a throat affection that has baffled all treatment and has annoyed me for more than forty years. Very respectfully, T. T. Tunstall.
Mobile, Ala., Oct. 22, 1894.

I commenced the use of the Electropoise when I was in a weak nervous state, lying awake night after night until 2 o'clock. I commenced to sleep better almost immediately after beginning its use, and after three months felt that the Electropoise had paid for itself. Yours truly,
Mrs. J. C. Barry.
Memphis, Tenn., March 5, 1895.

A relative of mine who was wounded during the war, and who never recovered from the effects of the wound, has been using my Electropoise, and he is now as well as he ever was. I recommend the Electropoise to all my friends.
Yours truly, W. B. McGee,
Tebula, Miss., Dec. 5, 1894.

I cannot say too much in favor of the Electropoise. Yours truly,
T. S. Jones.
Fannin, Tex., June 25, 1895.

After returning from Hot Spring about a year ago without a cure and as the last resort, I applied the Electropoise, and received a prompt cure of rheumatism. This same Electropoise has made many cures in other diseases, and the instrument will do all that is claimed for for it. Yours truly,
J. T. Stout.
Mobile, Ala., Sept. 22, 1894.

Rental terms, $10 cash for four months, with privilege to purchase by paying $17.50 additional at the expiration of four months.

There is no medicine so often needed in every home and so admirably adapted to the purposes for which it is intended, as Chamberlain's Pain Balm. Hardly a week passes but some member of the family has need of it. A toothache or headache may be cured by it. A touch of rheumatism or neuralgia quieted. The severe pain of a burn or scald promptly relieved and the sore healed in much less time than when medicine has to be sent for. A sprain may be promptly treated before inflammation sets in, which insures a cure in about one-third of the time otherwise required. Cuts and bruises should receive immediate treatment before the parts become swollen, which can only be done when Pain Balm is kept at hand. A sore throat may be cured before it becomes serious. A troublesome corn may be removed by applying it twice a day for a week or two. A lame back may be cured and several days of valuable time saved or a pain in the side or chest relieved without paying a doctor bill. Procure a 50 cent bottle at once and you will never regret it. For sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton and McNeill and Smith, Jemison, Ala.

OUT OF A JOB.

Mr. A. J. Thorne's Family Physician No Longer Derives Any Revenue from Mr. Thorne.

This is to certify that we have used the Electropoise in our family for three years, and, as I have written you before, it has done my wife more good than all the doctors in the country. She was confined to her bed thirteen years prior to my getting the Electropoise, and during that time I had had all the doctors in this part of the country to visit her, seven or eight having treated her in that time, and none of them doing her any good. All of them would her in bed and left her there. When I got the Electropoise she could not turn herself in bed, while now she does all her housework, and is still gaining. She has been using the Electropoise a little more than three years, and sin that time has not taken a single dose of medicine.

Since I have had the Electropoise none of the family have taken any medicine, and the instrument is our family physician for we have had no physician in my family since I got the Electropoise, I would not be without the Electropoise, and it is worth all the doctors, Yours truly

Clanton attorneys may be well posted on all things purely legal, but one of them, at least, should enter a driving school and familiarize himself with that noble art. The young man in question, while taking his best girl to ride drove into a stump, and the young lady was thrown out on the ground. This was highly improper. He should have held the fair one in the buggy even at the risk of his own life. We hope this sort of thing will not happen again, as it shows a lack of gallantry on the part of our Clanton boys.

Our town is improving, we have two schools.

Miss Elizabeth Lee, of Furman, is teaching the "opposition school."

Mr. Scott Cox, who has been attending school at Centreville, has returned home and will attend school here.

Miss Calista Hard, of Centreville is visiting Miss Mary D. Gardner.

Maj. A. P. Howsin spent a few days last week at Atlanta and upon his return reported a pleasant time and a better thing than expected to see.

JEMISON DOTS.

Mrs L. C. Day left Wednesday for Mobile to visit friends.

The new residence of Mrs. C. V. Heath on Broad Street is near completion. It will be one of the many attractive residences of our town.

The many friends of Maj. J. L. Hamell, who has been sick for some time, will be glad to learn that he is convalescent. The Maj. accompanied by Mrs. Hamell left Wednesday morning for New Orleans.

Mr. W. T. Hand is on the sick list.

Maplesville Melange.

We will not speak of the delightful weather this time nor how lovingly old summer twines her arms around winters neck as if so loth to go, all of which add so much to our comfort.

Mr. J. A. DuBose's friends were delighted to have him home a few days lately.

A very sad accident to one of our best citizens, Austin Goodwin, during his absence of his wife, three of their children caught on fire, one died in a few hours.

Mr. B. R. Crumpton has lately been on a visit to T. U. Crumpton of this place.

Our community was saddened this week by the burial of Mike McCarty who died at his home in Bessimer of typhus fever. He has been living in Bessimer for several years.

He was a member of the Stanton Lodge and was buried with the honors of that institution. We extend our deepest sympathy to his wife and infant child.

THANKSGIVING.

To-day is thanksgiving, and it should mean more to us than merely eating a good dinner. It is our duty to acknowledge and show gratitude to the Giver of all things for whatever benefits we have received at His hands. None of us have been so situated but what we have something to be thankful for.

The farmer should be thankful for an extraordinary corn crop and good prices for cotton, to say nothing of the fat hogs in the pen, and the potatoes in the cellar.

The merchant should be thankful for large trade and good collections.

The doctor should be thankful that "dead men tell no tales."

The lawyer should be thankful that his clients cannot get out of the penitentiary to do him bodily injuries.

The preacher should be thankful for the good things that will be sent him by his congregation.

The editor should be thankful that the silver craze is dead, and he can now write articles upon subjects with which he is familiar.

Let us give thanks.

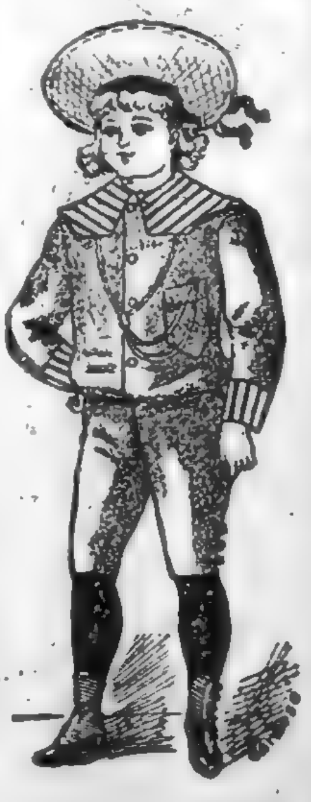
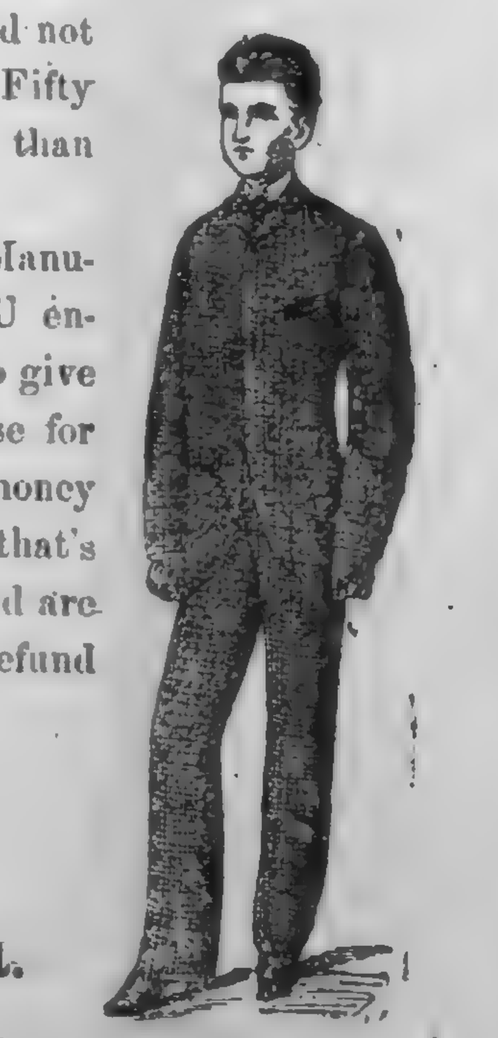
IF A MAN OFFERED YOU
GOLD DOLLARS AT 50 CENTS
APIECE, WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

OUR Buyer had a similar question to answer recently. The stock of several manufacturers had to be converted into cash. It did not take us long to make a trade. We bought about Forty to Fifty Thousand Dollars' worth of new, desirable merchandise for less than half its real value.





The goods are all in stock now; it is a case of Manufacturer and Importer paying the piper, and YOU enjoying the dance. Otherwise we couldn't afford to give you Two or Three Dollars' worth of Merchandise for One Dollar in CASH. If you can't save big money here, money can't be saved anywhere on earth, that's all. Remember that anything you buy of us and are not thoroughly satisfied with, we will cheerfully refund your money.

NEW CHATTANOOGA LABORATORY.

One of the Largest in the World—Wine of Cardui Has an Immense Sale.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., November 9th.—The immense new laboratory of the Chattanooga Medicine Company was commenced to-day. Nearly an acre of floor space is now used in making McElree's Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black Draught, but this new annex doubles the capacity of the plant. This business has become one of the largest in the country, and now sends its leading product, Wine of Cardui, to every part of the world. A branch office has been established at St. Louis for the northwestern trade.

BY WALLS OF FIRE

THE LIVES OF TWO HUNDRED PEOPLE WERE ENDANGERED.

Employes in a Building Jump from a Sixth Story.

Fire in a six story building at New York, Tuesday, caused a panic among 200 working people employed there. One person is known to have perished, and there may have been others who met a similar fate. The basement, in which the flames started, was occupied as a candle factory, and the tallow there caused the fire to spread rapidly, cutting off egress by way of the stairs. Several men jumped from the roof and from windows to the tops of adjoining buildings. After the building had been burned the firemen set about searching for bodies.

TRADE TOPICS.

Very Little Change Was Noted During the Past Week.

Bradstreet's review of business for the past week says:

"The condition of general trade continues irregular and without material change. There is a distinct falling off in the demand for iron and steel, with perhaps the heaviest reaction in quotations in those lines reported in any week since the late boom in those metals reached its climax. Central western cities continue to feel the unfavorable influence of unseasonably mild weather, which is true as well of cities in the northwest. Then there is the long list of decreases in quotations for merchandise. The converse includes an unexpected improvement in woolen goods.

"October gross railroad earnings reflect generally improved trade and an especially heavy movement of spring wheat is the largest gain shown for any month's but June and July this year. With the exception of the southwestern roads and the coalers, which show decreases, every other group shows gains. All the trunk lines and nearly all the southern roads show increases, the latter in spite of the short cotton crop.

"Renewed gold exports, amounting for the week to $3,250,000, have checked the bullish tendency of the New York stock market. The selling, however, is professional, the short interest enlarged, and the liquidation apparently completed. Further gold shipments are expected next week.

Bank clearings at cities throughout the United States aggregate $1,171,000,000 this week, 4 per cent more than last week. As compared with the corresponding period in 1892 at a time when bank clearings totals were exceptionally heavy, the falling off this week is 12 per cent.

"There are 279 business failures reported throughout the United States this week, compared with 260 last week, 280 in the week one year ago, and as contrasted with only 205 in the corresponding week of 1892. The increase in the number of failures this week over last is more than accounted for by southern and New England states.

"Other features include very generally satisfactory mercantile collections east, west and south, exceptions being conspicuous by their infrequency. There is a disposition in the gulf states to market cotton more freely, and Texas cities report a checked volume of business resulting from lower prices for cotton."

EXTENSIVE STRIKE.

10,000 Men May Go Out in New York City.

Eight hundred members of the Housesmith and Bridgemen's Union, at New York, were called out on strike Monday on buildings where the work is being done by J. B. & J. M. Cornell and Milliken Bros., two of the most prominent members of the Iron League. Four hundred of the men have been employed by the Cornells on twelve buildings, and about the same number were on eight buildings where the iron work is being done by Milliken Bros. The demands of the strikers include a wage scale running from $3.50 a day for foreman finishers to $2.50 a day for blacksmith finishers. The strikers also want a recognition of their union, the employment of only union men and new regulations about Sunday work and overtime.

Should non-union men be substituted for the strikers then a sympathetic strike will be ordered, and from 5,000 to 10,000 men are likely to be called out. The sympathetic strike will affect the plumbers and gasfitters, plasterers, carpenters, hoisting engineers, steamfitters, derrickmen, laborers, cement workers, stair builders, elevator constructors, painters, varnishers, framers, mosaic workers, tin and sheet iron workers, and granite cutters. The bricklayers, who do not take part in sympathetic strikes, will be forced out in many buildings through the strike of the other trades. The state board of mediation and arbitration met to consider the strike. Frank Larry represented the strikers.

PREACHER EXPLAINS KENO.

He Arranges the Gambling Implements on the Pulpit.

Rev. R. Toombs Dubose, pastor of McTyeire Memorial, the aristocratic Southern Methodist church of Jacksonville, Fla., created a sensation Sunday night by arranging a keno layout on the pulpit and showing his congregation how the game is played. For several weeks Rev. Mr. Dubose has been attacking the city municipals, alleging that they were in league with the gamblers. He began his remarks by stating that he had learned that a city official was a partner of a keno game which was opened in the city some days ago.

"You may not know what keno is," said the preacher, "but I will show you." Then he reached down and got the keno implements and placed them on the pulpit. He then showed how the game was played and explained how profitable it was to the city official who was interested.

Mr. Dubose's methods have caused a great sensation. He is a grandson of Robert Toombs, the famous Georgian.

AT DELMONICO'S.

The New York Chamber of Commerce Banquets—Carlisle Speaks.

The New York Chamber of Commerce held its 127th annual banquet Tuesday night at Delmonico's. The banquet hall was decorated with the stars and stripes and the greatest enthusiasm prevailed. Alexander E. Orr, president of the Chamber of Commerce, presided, and around him were seated, besides the speakers of the evening, Hon. Carl Scurz, Rear Admiral Erben, Mayor Strong, Hon. Hilary A. Herbert, Hon. Judson Harmon, General Thomas H. Ruger, Commander Montgomery Sicard, J. N. Constable, W. H. Webb, Calvin S. Brice, General Horace Porter, J. Edward Simmons, John Jacob Astor and James G. Cannon. The meeting was called to order by President Orr, who introduced the Hon. John G. Carlisle, secretary of the treasury, who spoke on "Our Currency Question."

The other toasts responded to were: "Our Domestic Commerce, by Hon. Julius O. Burrows; "National Development and Oopportunity," by Hon. Charles Emory Smith; "The City of New York," by Mayor Strong, and "Ethics in Politics," by Rev. Dr. M. W. Stryker.

Mr. Cleveland Sends Regrets.

Among the letters of regret read was the following:

"EXECUTIVE MANSION, Washington, D. C., November 1.—My Dear Mr. Orr: I am sorry that I feel obliged to write it, but you must let me off from the Chamber of Commerce dinner this year. There never was a time when my admiration for this important business organization was so great, and I am sure that the recent efforts of its members to save the country from the havoc of financial madness ought to be appreciated by every patriotic citizen.

"I would enjoy exceedingly a renewal of my association with my friends in the chamber at their banquet board, but the trouble is, I cannot attend this year and do the things required of me here in the way of official duty. Very truly yours,

"GROVER CLEVELAND."

A letter of regret was also read from Governor Levi P. Morton, who stated that official engagements prevented him from being president.

CAPTURED FILLIBUSTERS.

They Are All Prominent Cubans of New York.

Detailed official information has been received at Washington of the exciting events attending the capture of the fillibustering steamer Horsa, which is now held at Kingston, Jamaica, and of the arrest in Cuba of five of the principal members of the expedition. The information is contained in a long dispatch from Havana, dated Tuesday.

It states that on last Sunday a boat with five passengers and her crew arrived from Aguedores, six miles from Santiago de Cuba. They said they were fishermen from Jamaica, but afterward admitted that they were on their way to join the rebels and that they had thrown over their arms when they were discovered. They were placed under arrest. Their names are: Fernando Alvarez, who had a commission of general from Venezuela, Fernando Mendez, Francisco Zaldivar, Manuel Haroztarena, Leonard Vent, all Cubans.

As soon as the foregoing dispatch was received, the men under arrest were identified as five well-known members of the Cuban colony at New York, who, it is said, left that city on the night of Saturday, November 9, boarding the steamer Horsa off Cape Barnegat.

P. R. & W. C. ROAD SOLD.

Property Bid In by a Representative of Thomas & Ryan.

The Port Royal and Western Carolina railway was sold at Greenwood, S. C., Wednesday. Mr. A. R. Hutchinson, representing Samuel Thomas and Thomas Ryan, of New York, deposited the certified check, necessary to bid, and offered $2,650,000 for the entire property, and it was knocked down to him.

Messrs. Thomas & Ryan are members of the Central reorganization committee.

The Port Royal and Western Carolina railway was a consolidation of the Augusta and Knoxville, running from Augusta to Greenwood; the Greenwood, Laurens and Spartanburg, from Greenwood to Spartanburg; the Greenville and Laurens, whose terminals are indicated in the same, and the Savannah Valley, running from Mc Cormick to Anderson, making in all a mileage of 227 miles.

Since June 5, 1895, the road has been under the receivership of Mr. J. B. Cleveland, of Spartanburg, where it was placed by the request of the bondholders. All the stock is owned by the Central system.

MOTORMAN TESTIFIES

During the Coroner's Inquest on the Cleveland Horror.

The most important witness examined at the coroner's inquest in the central viaduct horror at Cleveland, O., was Augustus Rogers, the motorman of the car which plunged into the river. He testified that the conductor rang ahead when the car stopped at the safety switch and signalled him "all right."

He stated that the glass in the vestibule was blurred by rain and that he did not discover that the bridge was open until his car was within thirty feet of the gates. He then turned off the current, set the brake, and jumped. He said he saw no red light, and believes had there been one displayed he would have seen it. He admitted that he had been misled by the fact that the electric cut-off, provided by the street railway company as a safeguard, was out of order. Two other witnesses swore that the red light was displayed over the gates when the car struck them.

Colt Case Postponed.

The trial of Colonel A. B. Coit, of Columbus, O., for the killing of citizens in the riots at Washington C. H., has been again postponed to December 2d. Owing to the serious illness of one of the jurors the jury was discharged. The trial has already cost over $10,000 in addition to the fees of Colonel Coit's counsel, which are paid by the state.

Wonderful Escape

Mrs. M. A. Owens Falls Down a Long Flight of Stairs and Kills Her Child.

Ladies meet with many accidents in descending stairs—the result being often a broken limb or worse, but we have never heard of where a mother falls down a flight of stairs—kills her child and escape death, until our attention was called to an accident to Mrs. M. A. Owens, of 2115 K St., Washington, D. C. We use her language:

"About two months before the time for my confinement I fell down a long flight of stairs and killed my unborn child. I know this, as I never felt it move afterwards and could tell it was out of position. Upon being examined by two physicians the child was pronounced dead. They decided, as my symptoms were so favorable and I was in no pain; could eat heartily, rest well and was doing finely in every way, that it was safer to let nature take its course, and left me with instructions that they be advised promptly of any unfavorable symptoms. I had, without the knowledge of any one except my husband, been for some weeks using "Mother's Friend" with great relief and could see no reason why I should not continue its use, and did so. Now came a long time of suspense and waiting for developments. To the surprise of all I continued to do well, and got along better than I ever did before when enciente, although every one, including the physicians, feared the termination would be fatal.

Eight weeks and two days from the time I fell, natural labor came on and the child was taken away in the usual manner, and to the surprise of all, I was found in better condition than ever before at any previous confinement.

I had continued to use 'Mother's Friend' up to the last hour, and experienced so little trouble that when the time came was unaware of it, and the nurse had to make me undress quick and get in bed. I said to myself, "this is the work of 'Mother's Friend,' and I am having an easy time," as on previous occasions I suffered tortures for hours before.

Everything was so easy and rapid that the physicians had only time to get in the house. Always before I had trouble with my breasts, but this time I had none, as I used 'Mother's Friend' on them as directed. I had them drawn and dried without any inconvenience. You must not forget that it was eight weeks and two days from the death of the child before confinement, and I suffered less and was stronger than ever before on such an occasion. My physicians and friends, marveled at my escape.

I know that "Mothers' Friend" saved my life, and hope every expectant mother will use it. It robs the final hour of terrible suffering and leaves her stronger and makes recovery more rapid I have learned of marvelous results where only one bottle had been used, but the sooner "Mothers' Friend" is begun and the longer used, the better for the mother when the hour arrives.

The Bradfield Regulator Co., of Atlanta, Ga., will mail free to any expectant mother their little book containing valuable information and voluntary testimonials from ladies who have used "Mothers' Friend" with happy results.

It can be obtained of any prominent druggist in the United States.

Canned Foods.

In buying canned goods an eminent physician's instructions are to "reject every article that does not show the line of rosin around the edge of the solder of the cap, the same as is seen on the seam on the side of the can. Reject every can that does not have the name of the manufacturer or firm upon it, as well as the name of the company or town where manufactured. Standards have all this. When the wholesale dealer is ashamed to have his name on the goods, fight shy of him. Press up the bottom of the can. If decomposition is beginning, the tin will rattle the same as the bottom of the oiler of your sewing machine will do. If the goods are sound, it will be solid, and there will be no rattle in the tin. Reject every tin that shows any sign of rust around the cap on the inside of the head of the can. If housekeepers are educated on these points, then the muriate of zinc amalgam will become a thing of the past."

A Queer Compound.

A German chemist has made the discovery of a new compound body, which is said to possess the peculiar quality of solidifying under the action of heat, and to again revert to the liquid state at a temperature below 32 degrees Fahrenheit. To this substance the name of "crostase" has been given, and it is stated to be obtained by mixing equal parts of phenol, camphor and saporine, with the addition of a smaller proportion of the essence of trebenthine. It is supposed that up to the present time no body possesses this remarkable proper of liquidifying when cold and solidifying when not. Certain substances, such as albumen, harden when exposed to heat; but once they have attained this condition they cannot be made to resume the liquid state, although they may be subjected to exceedingly low temperatures.

ODDS AND ENDS.

The newest market novelty is the tomato sausage. It is made in a domestic way at Portland; it is a delicate pinkish white and tastes of sage and ripe tomatoes. It has made quite a hit in that city and surrounding towns.

Despite the strike in the Ishpeming and Negaunee iron mines, it is believed the shipment of Lake Superior ore this season will reach 10,000,000 tons, 1,000,000 tons in excess of the best previous record.

A farmer of Albany, Ore., is exhibiting a bunch of forty-two stalks of wheat, with 924 meshes and about 3,500 grains, which grew from a single kernel. Another farmer, in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, has a cucumber five feet long and still growing.

San Jose, Cal., has shipped more fruit during the third week of last September than in any other week on record. The total was 4,639,300 pounds. Of this amount 1,413,490 pounds was of canned fruit, and 1,960,000 pounds was of dried prunes.

An odd cribbage board is made of aluminum and fashioned in the shape of a heart. The pegs have flower heads and the whole is scattered over with small hand-painted forget-me-nots. In the center of the heart are painted three cards—an ace of hearts, a four of spades and a jack of diamonds.

Luminous Paint.

The most recent and, it is claimed, practical method, described, for the production of luminous paint is as follows: Oyster shells are cleaned with warm water, then put into the fire for half an hour, at the end of which time they are taken out and allowed to cool; when quite cold, they are pounded to a fine state, all gray portions discarded, and the powder placed in a crucible, in alternate layers, with flowers of sulphur. The lid is put on and cemented with sand made into a stiff paste with beer, and, when dry, is baked in the fire for the space of an hour. When quite cold the lid is opened, and, as the product should be white, all gray parts are to be separated, as they are non-luminous. A sifter is then made by taking a pot, putting a piece of very fine muslin loosely around, tied about with a string, and the powder put in at the top and raked about until only the coarse powder remains. On opening the pot, a very fine powder is found, and this is to be mixed into a thin paint with gum water, two thin applications being better than one thick one. This is said to be a luminous paint that will show luminously far into the night, provided it is exposed to the light during the day.

Called for the Limit.

There is a dealer in men's shoes who has sticking out of each pair of shoes in the window of his store three new $1 bills. An accompanying announcement reads: "Three of a kind takes a pair." A young man undertook to beat the game the other day.

"You sell shoes according to the rules of 'poker,' don't you?" he inquired.

"We do," replied the clerk.

"Well, I wear size 9; wrap me up two pairs of them."

He received the shoes and handed over $3.

"Excuse me," said the clerk, "but those shoes come to $6."

"That's all right," replied the young man, "three of a kind beat two pair."

"I know that," said the clerk, "but they don't beat four nines."—Shoe and Leather Reporter.

Two medicines have done me so much good I cannot find words to express my gratitude for them. I was down with a complication of troubles, catarrh of the bowels and falling of the womb. For seven weeks I could not sit up. Two bottles of McElree's Wine of Cardui and one package of Thedford's Black-Draught cured me. I have recommended the Wine of Cardui Treatment to a number of suffering women, and not one has failed to find relief by its use. If I can do anything to help bring this good medicine to the attention of sufferers, I will be glad. MRS. E. C. ADAMS.

A WEIRD MYSTERY

—OR—

Tracing a Dark Crime.

BY ALEXANDER ROBINSON, M. D.

CHAPTER X.

Availing myself of the first opportunity, I took it out of my pocket.

The inclosure was speedily in my hands.

I was surprised at what I found.

Theodore Parker:

I positively and for the last time refuse to grant you the interview you so impudently demand. The past has not been blotted from my mind. I am inexorable—the same yesterday, to-day, and to-morrow. Never dare address me again in any shape. I look upon you as one dead.

ABRAHAM SEABURY.

That was all.

The two policemen had seen fit to weave a romance about this young man, believing that he was in love with Leonore and disliked by the old Doctor.

In all but one particular the letter bore out this view of the case.

This exception was in the last sentence: "I look upon you as one dead."

This, coupled with the picture turned with its face to the wall, gave me an idea which, however, I could not as yet fully seize upon.

Ah, a thought came to me!

Why not see Leonore again? She might be able to tell me who Theodore was, and even where he was to be found.

Of course I would not breathe a whisper of the reason I desired to learn this lest she take the alarm and close her mouth to all utterances with respect to him.

Again I made for the manse set in the old park.

It was well on to 10 o'clock when I reached the place.

The policemen still stood at the gate, and by this time quite a crowd had collected around the outside.

Crime of all kinds has a fascination for the morbidly curious, and always "draws" much better than a gospel meeting.

I know this as a fact, much as I deprecated it.

The officer at the gate regarded my magic mention of Mr. Ketcham's name just as his comrade had done, and allowed me to pass by without trouble.

An old woman answered the summons. Her eyes were red with weeping, and I knew this was Ursula.

I mentioned that I had been in the house before that morning with the gentleman who had told her the sad news, and that I wished to see Miss Leonore.

"Please give her my card. I will wait in the library," I said.

"Miss Leonore is in there herself."

"Ah! then never mind the card. I will entered unannounced."

I stood for a moment before the partly opened door of the library.

Looking through I saw a sight that would not soon leave my mind.

Leonore sat beside the table, upon which both her elbows rested. Her hands clasped her throbbing temples. Upon that beautiful face was an expression of misery such as I never hope to look upon again. It was the stony stare of one who looks upon a cold world for the first time, or peering back sees a terrible something that must haunt her forever more.

Such an expression on a face, young or old, was indeed terrible.

I knocked upon the door.

Leonore stood up and turned her eyes upon me.

"May I come in?"

She caught her breath.

"Ah! it is you, Dr. Burton? Enter."

From her manner it seemed as though she were relieved to see me.

I did not know whether to take it as a compliment or not to have my company preferred to ghosts.

Without waiting for a further invitation, however, I went in.

Again I was in the presence of the young girl against whom circumstances had arisen to accuse her of a hideous crime.

Again I felt within myself that she was innocent beyond all doubt, and I resolved to prove her so to the satisfaction of the old detective who seemed determined upon running down his quarry regardless of sex or condition.

To him justice was above all.

He could even fail to be human when engaged upon a duty.

I had come here with a distinct purpose in view. This was to find out, or at least endeavor to do so, who Theodore was, and what connection he bore to both Leonore and the dead poison Doctor.

I meant to approach the subject gently, striving to read what her face might betray while I spoke.

So I began speaking of the novel situation in which she now found herself, and inquired of whom she should seek protection, now that her guardian was dead.

She shook her head sadly.

"Alas! I hardly know what to do, Doctor. I might get a companion and live on here. It all depends upon guardy's will."

Ah! I had never thought of the will.

It must be in the hands of some lawyer, and very possibly would explain things to a considerable extent.

I made up my mind to appeal to Mr. Ketcham about it at the first opportunity.

He would know what to do.

In the meantime, I realized that the opportunity for which I had waited was now at hand.

Assuming a careless manner, I said in calm tones:

"Can you not look to Theodore now?"

I had not imagined one-half the result that followed my words.

She turned upon me like a flash. Into her eyes there leaped a quick gleam that was instantly followed by a wondering look.

I could see her hands open and shut in her great emotion.

Of one thing I had already been assured—she knew who Theodore was. Though her lips might refuse to speak of him, her face had betrayed this secret.

"Oh, no, no! A thousand times no! Do not mention him, please. I cannot bear to hear his name!"

"Is it, then, so hateful to you?"

"The connection it bears with the past is far from pleasant to me. Besides, he, my guardian, would be displeased. It may seem strange to you, but even though he is dead, I seem to feel his spirit near me, to guard and protect. It is a pleasant thought, Doctor, though you may laugh at it as the silly conceit of a poor girl."

I was determined not to get off the track which had been started.

"Did you know, Miss Leonore, that Theodore has been hovering around this house for the last week or two?"

She hid her eyes with her hand.

"Yes; I knew it," faintly.

"What did he seek?"

"An interview."

"With whom?"

"With me."

Ah! now we were getting closer to the rock-bottom facts.

Why should he seek an interview with her unless he had a right to, either as a lover or something nearer—her husband.

This latter was a thought that had not come to me before.

It gave me something of a shock. Hesitating no longer, I put the question.

"Miss Leonore, who is Theodore?"

She raised her great black eyes to mine in a half-dazed way, and I fancied I could see something of pain there.

"Don't you know? I cannot tell you—I dare not tell you, Doctor. It would be displeasing to him."

I came very near uttering something disrespectful to the dead physician, but caught myself in time.

"Leonore, in solving a mystery it is essential that I should know this thing. Believe me, for your own sake tell me what relation this man Theodore bears toward you and Dr. Seabury."

"I cannot tell you," she said, sadly.

"For the same reason you spoke of before?"

"Yes. I know his wishes in this matter. Some day you will know all. It is not for me to reveal it. Doctor, you have been kind to me. Forgive me, but my lips are sealed by a promise—a vow."

That ended it, but I was just as fully determined to discover the truth as when I had started upon this tack.

There were more ways than one of accomplishing a thing. Her words had made me believe more firmly than ever that Theodore must be her husband. Perhaps he had done something in the past and had been kicked out by her angry guardian.

This would account for many things; yes, even the writing on the back of the photograph, for if Seabury had grown to fear for his life at the hands of this man he could well ascribe it all to Leonore.

I was beginning to build up quite a pretty theory that would soon rival that of the old detective.

Then we should see whose castle fell first.

Having reason to know how set a woman could be in her way, I did not attempt to change Leonore's mind.

She believed she was right. I could find other ways of learning the truth.

So I talked with her on different subjects for a short time, until I made her forget her late fears.

All the time I was reading her. It was a pleasure to me to watch the light come and go in her eyes, and note the blush upon her cheeks.

I was not so practical as Mr. Ketcham, who let nothing influence him.

After spending quite a pleasant half hour, I arose to withdraw.

In passing through the hall, I felt sure that I saw the form of Mr. Ketcham at the head of the stairs, but I did not pay any attention to the fact.

Possibly he had come back to the house for more evidence. While he was winding the spool, I was just as industriously slipping it loose, and between us it seemed simply a question of time or endurance when something must happen.

When I left Leonore, my mind was made up. My next endeavor would be to find Theodore himself.

From him perhaps I might learn the truth.

There seemed to be no clue to his place of residence, as he had received his letter through the general delivery at the postoffice.

I took it out again to look at it.

Then my eye was attracted by something that seemed to have escaped it on my previous examination.

CHAPTER XI.

There was something written in pencil across the back of the envelope.

The rain which had beaten down upon the paper had almost obliterated the writing, but it was still faintly visible.

I turned my eyes upon it and proceeded to decipher the almost faded characters.

The task was difficult, but presently I saw that the writing was an address, and the name of the street was Dudley.

When I had become satisfied with this, I turned all my powers upon the number.

At first I made it out to be 95.

Then I saw there had been another figure in front, whether two or three I could not say.

It was plain, however, that I had come exceedingly close to the truth.

Delighted with my success thus far, I now set out to find the street. It was not one of much importance, but I soon came upon it, and in a short time passed in front of No. 295.

Although not appearing to do so, I surveyed the building.

It was a modest-looking house, and I could see nothing in its external appearance to indicate that there was any connection between its inmates and men of a burglarious stamp.

Indeed, so quiet did it seem that I even experienced a feeling of disappointment concerning the probable outcome of my quest.

I remembered, however, that very often the most daring of thieves were the most cunning. They did not associate with men of their class, but were select.

Perhaps this man Theodore, having once been a gentleman, persisted in carrying his old surroundings into his new business. He must live after a certain style, and have at least the comforts of civilization around him, even if his trade was now that of a common housebreaker.

Somehow this thought gave me confidence once more.

I began to feel that looks were not everything in this world, and when I had gone some little distance down the street I turned to look back.

Ah! A man was coming out of the very house which I had been watching. He came toward me at quite a rapid pace.

To my intense surprise and delight I saw the object of my search before me.

There could be no mistake—I was looking upon Theodore Parker—the man who had climbed the vines leading up to the window, and who was in the chamber of Dr. Seabury on the night of the murder.

Knowing that I now had need of all the coolness I could command, I resolved to act my part with discretion.

As I walked on the man rapidly overtook me. I waited until he had come up alongside; then I turned.

"How do you do, Theodore?" I said.

He came to a sudden halt, and seemed very much astonished, yet I could see that my shot had gone home.

"You have the advantage of me, sir," he replied, coldly, ignoring my hand.

"You admit that you are Theodore Parker?"

"Why should I deny it?"

"Then I wish to have a private conversation with you."

"I do not know why I should grant it, sir. You are a stranger to me."

"That is true. Allow me to introduce myself," and I handed him my card.

"Dr. Burton," he read.

"At your service."

"Well, sir, will you be so good as to inform me why I should grant you an interview? I am no wiser than before."

"I come from Leonore."

The shot told. I could see the color go and come. His white teeth became tightly clenched, as though he were determined not to give way to any emotion, yet the mention of that name had knocked his reserve away, and left the past open to assault.

I knew that my name had been my passport into his favor. He looked at me again, for I had assumed now importance in his eyes.

"You have seen Leonore?" he asked, huskily.

"Yes."

"And she sent you to me?"

I could hardly say that, and yet he must be led to believe something this way.

"You see I am here."

"For what?"

"As I said before, I seek to have an interview with you. Will you go with me to some quiet restaurant where we can talk without being overheard?"

"Why not go back to my room?"

"That would do, only I do not know who else you have in the house."

His lip curled as though he believed I was actually afraid, when my inquiry was directed merely through a desire for secrecy.

"There is only an old widow lady in the house. I have a room there. She is deaf as an adder and can hear nothing."

"We could not find a better place. I will go back with you, Mr. Parker."

As I turned and walked away with him my heart beat high. At last I could see a fair prospect of reaching the end I had in view.

Theodore Parker would be obliged to confess what he knew of the murder, for I meant to pin him down with questions that he could not evade.

He opened the door with a night-key and led the way along a hall; at the end was a door which he opened.

I now found myself in a cozy room, comfortably furnished.

Theodore motioned toward a chair.

"Make yourself comfortable, sir."

When I sat down, I managed it so that the light from the window should be upon the face of my vis-a-vis, while my own was in shadow.

His hand was trembling, and I could see that he awaited my speaking with a great deal of subdued excitement.

A great question was before me. I looked at his left hand, and saw that the upper half of his forefinger was gone.

This was positive proof in one way.

To all appearances the crime now lay between Leonore and Theodore. Which could I believe the guilty party?

Already in my mind I had acquitted the girl; hence, this man must be the one whose frenzied hate had buried the blade in the heart of the old Doctor.

To beard a murderer in his den is no play. It must not be supposed that I had come here unprepared for an emergency.

Safely hidden in my pocket was a reliable revolver. I knew how to use it, too, and more than once in my researches in the Holy Land and in the old countries of Europe I had found it a faithful and efficient friend.

I could reach it with one quick movement should the occasion demand such action on my part.

Theodore waited for me to speak. Of course I did not mean to jump at the question in the start. I believed in leading a refractory horse gently.

"Mr. Parker, of course you have heard the news?"

"News, sir! what news?"

"Dr. Seabury is dead!"

"What!"

The word burst from him like a pistol shot.

His face became white as chalk, and I thought the man was about to faint; but he recovered himself with an effort, and even controlled his voice.

"Will you repeat that, sir?"

"Dr. Seabury is dead."

"When did this terrible event happen?"

"Early this morning, at ten minutes after 2."

"You are precise. Ah! I recollect—you are a physician—you were called in. Did she—Leonore send you for me?"

This was spoken naturally enough, but it did not deceive me. I knew that the man who could commit such a fearful crime could act his part in covering it up.

At the same time, I meant to keep him on the rack, giving him no rest until the final charge was sent home.

"Leonore did not send me, though it was partly for her sake I came here. Dr. Seabury did not die under my charge. When he breathed his last, so far as we know, he was alone."

I was surprised to hear the young man groan aloud.

Surely he was acting his part to perfection.

"Tell me about it, Doctor."

"You appear deeply interested."

His eyes flamed up.

"I have a right to be."

"That is so," I said, meaningly; but he did not appear to see the undertone.

"If no one was with him when he passed away, how can you affirm that he died at ten minutes past two, Doctor?"

"I shall have to tell you something of the story, sir. As I said before, I am a doctor, and, like the deceased, made a specialty of the science of toxicology.

"About half-past two this morning I was aroused from a nap which I had been enjoying upon my sofa by a knock at the door.

"Opening it, I found there Abner Ketcham, one of the best of New York detectives.

"He said he required my services, and as we were friends I entered a carriage and rode with him to Dr. Seabury's house.

"There I found the old Doctor lying dead, and at the request of my friend I examined a small phial which the dead man held in his hand.

"It contained a terrible poison, found in a tomb in the Egyptian pyramids."

"He committed suicide, then?"

There was an air of relief in the voice of the other, as he put this question, which I could not fail to catch.

It was as though he suddenly saw an avenue of escape looming up.

"So I thought when I saw that phial, and discovered that a part of the contents had passed his lips, for it was deadly poison, and would bring a collapse within ten minutes after being taken."

"How came your friend the detective on hand, Doctor?"

"That concerns another part of it. The old Doctor feared sudden death from some source, and his room was connected with the office of the detective by telegraph

"My friend heard the alarm bell, and was in the house before a quarter of an hour had elapsed, yet he found the old gentleman stone dead."

"Terrible, terrible, to think he died alone. I feel now that all was not done that might have been on my part. Doctor, do you think he suffered?"

"I fear he did, but more from mental than bodily anguish. I am not yet done, young sir. My friend Mr. Ketcham asked me to examine his breast, to see if there were marks of the poison having caused the blood to gather about the heart.

"Judge of my amazement when I discovered a small puncture directly over his heart and a drop of blood upon his clothes."

Parker uttered a low, gurgling cry.

He was surveying me with a fixed stare, and there was something set and stony in it that made me think of the dead.

Was he trying to read my mind—to learn what I suspected?

I went on:

"My friend now told me why he had brought me to see a dead man; it was not to save but to avenge.

"He wished me to learn, positively and without the faintest shadow of doubt, whether the terrible stroke at the heart had been the cause of death or the poison."

"And what did you decide?" huskily asked the young man.

I was becoming more cool and collected as I proceeded, while he showed all the symptoms of intense excitement.

Nor could I blame him. If he was guilty of this terrible crime, then it must seem to him as though the day of judgment had surely arrived.

"My examination convinced me of certain things which could be readily proved should the occasion ever arise.

"I knew that the Doctor had taken the poison before receiving the stab-wound, but that it had been given immediately after, and that the last spark of life had left his body before the poison had had half a chance to work, so that Dr. Seabury did not die by his own hand, but was murdered."

I said this in a cold, ringing voice. It was my intention to send the charge home to his guilty soul like a cannon shot.

He betrayed all the symptoms of one who was in mortal fear.

His hands worked convulsively, and his eyes sought mine again with much the same expression in them as I have seen in a dog as he cowers before the master from whom he expects a whipping.

I believed I had cornered my game right here, and that presently I would extort a confession that must not only raise my prowess in the mind of the great detective, Mr. Ketcham, but at the same time save Leonore.

It only needed a little more skillful manipulation and the thing was done.

"This is a terrible thing, Doctor," at last fell from his lips.

"Yes, indeed, Mr. Parker. It was bad enough to believe the old man had taken his own life, but is much worse when we find that some cowardly assassin crept up behind him and slew him."

He hid his face in his hands, as his emotion became too powerful. In my eyes this was a strong sign of guilt.

I was about ready to send the final bolt home. Leaning forward so that I could watch him closely, while at the same time my hand slipped around to where my revolver was hidden, I said:

"Theodore Parker, what business brought you to that room on the night of the murder—that caused you to climb the vines to the window above? Speak!"

"Great heavens! Do you believe it was I who did this terrible deed?" he suddenly asked, showing his face.

"I have reason to think so."

"But you do not seem to know my connection there."

"I can guess it—you are Leonore's lover."

He groaned dismally.

"Worse still. I am Abraham Seabury's son."

It was my turn to be amazed.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

A Boy's Essay on Breathing.

We breathe with our lungs, our lights, our kidneys and our livers. If it wasn't for our breath we would die when we slept. Our breath keeps the life a-going through the nose when we are asleep. Boys who stay in a room all day should not breathe. They should wait until they get out in the fresh air. Boys in a room make bad air called carbonicide. Carbonicide is as poison as mad dogs. A lot of soldiers were once in a black hole in Calcutta and carbonicide got in there and killed them. Girls sometimes ruin the breath with corsets that squeeze the diagram. A big diagram is best for the right kind of breathing.—Old Homestead.

A Reward of Merit.

"I bought four dozen eggs of you the other day," he began, as he entered the grocery, "and I found——"

"Two dozen bad ones, of course. Well, I'm not responsible. I can't see through an egg shell."

"I was going to say that——"

"I know it, but I shan't make up the loss."

"Won't you let me say they were all good, every one of them?"

"Oh!"

"Not a bad one in the lot."

"James, put him up another dozen as a reward for lying!"—Detroit Free Press.

ONCE let us deal with virtue and we are moving in a spiritual world; a world as different from materialism as is wine from the cup that holds it. By moral greatness we are put en rapport with better things.—Mallock, in "Dogma, Reason and Morality."

"THAT man made money just by his sand." "What? That undersized, miserable little specimen?" "Yes; he's a brick maker."

THE public suffer, but how often has the hand-organ man heard his own tunes?

CAPITAL NOTES.

GOSSIP OF WASHINGTON IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS.

Doings of the Chiefs and Heads of the Various Departments.

As a result of the investigation into the recent destruction and mutilation of treasury records in the theft of obsolete internal revenue stamps attached to the records, Secretary Carlisle has just dismissed four employes, one a clerk and three colored laborers. Their names are C. D. Vining, Orville Bacon, A. B. Hopkins, Charles Edwards.

Evidences of the meeting of a new congress are now seen on every hand. Republican members of the house are arriving at the capitol in droves, while the candidates for office and their strikers are crowding every hotel and the usual excitement prevails. Democrats are scarce. They will not appear until the last moment—just in time to hold a caucus to nominate candidates simply to be complimented by votes. Tom Reed's arrival opened the excitement. Mr. Reed looks fat, contented and happy. He has shaved off his diminutive mustache and in both face and form he has that overgrown boyish expression. To the interviewers he has said but little.

The report of Secretary of the Interior Hoke Smith elaborately reviews the varied work of the interior department. It begins with the Indian service and calls attention to the strict enforcement which has been given to civil service reform, both as to those places covered by the classified service and those to which the rules of this service do not apply. It dwells upon the necessity of eliminating politics from the management of Indian affairs and of conducting each reservation upon strictly business principles, the object being to make every Indian who remains upon the reservation self-supporting and ready, as soon as possible, to assume the duties of citizenship and be freed from the paternal care of the government.

Uncle Sam's Mails.

In Postmaster-General Wilson's annual report it is estimated that two-thirds in weight of all the matter carried in the mails is under existing laws and classifications carried as second-class matter, at the rate of 1 cent a pound, where it is not actually carried postage free. The aggregate weight of second-class matter in the year 1894 was 299,000,000 pounds. During the last year it increased to over 312,000,000, a growth of over 13,000,000 pounds. Deducting the weight of that which is known as "county free," being the matter which is circulated among subscribers free of postage in the respective counties of publication, estimated to be 46,820,185 pounds, there remained 265,314,382 pounds which returned, at the rate of 1 cent per pound, a revenue of $2,653,143.82. The average cost to the department of transporting and handling this matter is estimated at 3 cents per pound.

Thefts of Autographs.

The wholesale investigation throughout the executive departments as to the stamp thefts has resulted in finding even worse ravages than were first discovered in the treasury. Another element has crept into the situation as it is learned that the autograph fiends, too, have been at work among the files. This vandalism, so far as is known, seems to have been practiced principally in the interior department.

In the investigation by the secret service men it has been discovered that the signatures of many great men, long since dead, especially presidents of the United States, were affixed to papers in the land office. Some of these were accordingly examined, with the result that scores of autographs have been found to be missing from them. Abraham Lincoln's autograph has been especially sought after.

These papers are stowed away in the files, and it is hardly once a year that any of them are needed, so that discovery of mutilation, in the ordinary course of office routine, was improbable. The papers have been, in many instances, rendered practically valueless by this mutilation, which is a very serious matter.

Hauling Over Public Roads.

The office of road inquiry of the department of agriculture has completed an interesting investigation relating to the common roads of the United States. Returns have been received from about 1,200 counties showing the average length of haul from farms to markets or shipping points to be twelve miles, the average weight of load for two-horse wagons 2,002 pounds, the average cost per ton per mile, 25 cents and $3 for the entire haul.

Estimating the farm products at 219,824,227 tons in weight and making estimates on other articles carried over the public roads, it is calculated that the aggregate expense of this transportation in the United States is $946,414,665 per annum.

Reports have been asked from the United States consuls abroad of the expense of hauling where the roads are good so as to render possible a calculation which will show how much of this vast outlay is due to bad roads. The estimate is ventured, however, upon information in the office of the bureau, as to the enforced idleness and the wear and tear to live stock and hauling machinery caused by poor roads, that two-thirds of the cost might be saved by an improved condition of the roads.

No Canal as Yet.

A serious blow has been dealt the Nicaraguan canal company's project for the construction of a waterway across the isthmus by the report of the Nicaraguan canal commission. Inevitable delay and a further and more thorough investigation of the entire subject are declared to be necessary before even the engineering feasibility of the canal across Nicaragua can be decided upon.

The contents and the text of the conclusions of the report of the Nicaraguan canal commission is now lying on the president's desk, and is being considered by him in connection with his annual message to congress.

The report is at such variance with the numerous rumors and predictions which have from time to time been published concerning it, that it will cause great surprise and disappointment among those who have hoped for a generally favorable report, and who have therefore placed credence in these rumors, which usually stated "on the highest authority" that the commission favored the route proposed by the company, and placed the cost of the canal at about $110,000,000.

The report points out that it is neither practicable nor advisable to attempt the construction of the Nicaraguan canal upon the data at present available, and that the undertaking would be fraught with hazards too obvious to disregard.

Mint Director Preston's Report.

The director of the mint has submitted his report to the secretary of the treasury, covering the operations of the mints and assay offices of the United States during the fiscal year 1895, together with the statistics of foreign countries relative to the production and coinage of gold and silver and the monetary condition of each country. The value of the gold and silver estimated to have been used in the industrial arts during the calendar year 1894 was approximately $21,541,652, of which $10,658,604 was gold and $10,883,048 was silver.

The estimated metallic stock in the United States on July 1, 1895, was, gold, $636,229,825; silver, $625,855,949; a total of $1,262,084,774.

The estimated product of gold and silver in the United States during the calendar year 1894 was, gold 1,910,813 fine ounces, of the value of $39,500,000; silver 49,500,000 fine ounces, of the commercial value of $31,422,000 and of the coinage value of $64,000,000.

The estimated production of the world for the calendar year was, gold 8,737,788 fine ounces, of the value of $180,626,100; silver, 167,752,565 fine ounces of the coinage value of $216,892,200, commercial value $106,522,900.

Mr. Preston gives an estimate of the approximate stock of money in the principal countries of the world. He places the stock of gold at $4,086,800,000; the stock of full legal tender silver at $3,439,300,000; stock of limited tender silver at $631,200,000, making a total silver stock in the world of $4,070,500,000; the uncovered notes are placed at $2,469,500,000.

He reviews in his report the monetary legislation and monetary system of the United States. Mr. Preston states that the real demonetization of silver took place in 1853, when the weight of the divisional coins was reduced about 7 per cent. This was not an accident or oversight. It was expressly declared in the house of representatives that the intention was "to make gold the sole standard of value in large transactions, and silver subservient to it for small ones."

The act of 1873 was only nominal, and conformed the law to the actual monetary condition, so far as the metallic currency of the United States was concerned, that had existed for nearly a quarter of a century. He states that the currency laws of the United States since 1873 are not only inconsistent, but contradictory, obstructive of each other's operation and mutually destructive.

ATLANTA'S BIG DAY.

One Hundred Thousand People Visit the Exposition.

Nearly 100,000 people saw the fair at Atlanta Thanksgiving day, and when the day was done that number of people returned to the city to tell their friends that the Piedmont exposition had been eclipsed.

South Carolina carried the day. Her conquering army paraded the streets, captured the city and stormed the exposition. The crowd that came into Atlanta from the Palmetto state was the largest that has ever been sent from one state to the exposition. Twenty trains, consisting of from eight to ten cars each, came in loaded to the platforms.

Inman day will be handed down as the most memorable day in the annals of Atlanta.

This return to the city was made in a mighty rush. The most imaginative mind could not picture the scene Thursday night after the grand display of fireworks, when the great throng strived to make its way to the trains. It was a bigger rush than any one had expected—than any one had prepared for—and the mighty host surged and pushed in vain effort for release.

It was early Friday morning before the exposition grounds were deserted and all the visitors had been transported to the city.

The Thanksgiving appetites of the people were not satisfied during the day and at about 7 o'clock in the evening everything on the grounds suitable to satisfy gnawing hunger had been exhausted. Not a restaurant on the grounds could accommodate those who called and thousands were turned away wearied and hungry.

A good many horses are docked, even when they don't lose any time.

BIG CHICAGO BLAZE.

Sixteen Firms Burned Out—A Panic Narrowly Averted.

A fire which caused a property loss of $500,000 and imperiled the lives of half a thousand persons, mostly young women, originated at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon on the third floor of Charles Emerich & Co., feather and down goods factory, 175 and 181 South Canal street, Chicago. The conflagration was attended by scenes of intense excitement and a score of firemen narrowly escaped being killed by fire and falling walls. When the flames were raging most furiously, in spite of the best efforts of twenty-five engines and a small army of firemen, fire brands were carried by the wind to adjoining manufacturing buildings and it looked as if many more would have to go.

The seven-story brick building extending from 175 Canal street south to the corner of Jackson street, the nine-story brick building adjoining on the north and the greater part of the four-story brick building in the same direction were entirely destroyed. These buildings occupied nearly the whole of the block on the west side of Canal street between Adams and Jackson streets. The seven and nine-story buildings were owned by Warren Springer, and the owner of the four-story building, which is one-third saved, is William J. Wilson. The buildings were amply insured. In all sixteen firms were burned out, and the losses are estimated at $350,000. The building loss is placed at $150,000.

SAYS HE WAS NOT INVITED.

Gov. Atkinson Took No Part in Celebrating Georgia Day.

Governor Atkinson did not participate in the Georgia Day exercises at the exposition Tuesday.

The governor said he was not invited to take part in the exercises. President Collier said that the Georgia Day exercises were placed in the hands of the governor, and that no further invitation for him to participate in the exercises were thought necessary.

A pretty muddle has grown out of it all. The governor's dignity is offended, the exposition directors surprised and the public will be amused.

The governor said that he had intended to take part in the exercises, thinking, of course, that he would be invited to do so.

"I had written to all the members of my staff to come and take part in the day's observance," said he, "but at the last moment, not having received an invitation to participate in the observance of the day, I telegraphed members of my staff living outside of Atlanta not to come."

President Collier expressed regret that any misunderstanding had arisen. "We placed the Georgia day exercises in the governor's hands," said the president, "and thought that was all the invitation he required to take part in the exercises. He issued the proclamation announcing the day."

THE MESSAGE READY.

Will Be the Longest the President Has Yet Written.

Mr. Cleveland has completed his message, and will send it into congress next Tuesday morning. It was partially submitted to the cabinet at its meeting Tuesday. Contrary to expectations, it will not be a brief message, dealing with the financial question alone, but will cover all subjects, and it is said to be the longest message he has ever prepared. Much of it is devoted to foreign affairs, and the Nicaragua canal is discussed at length. He repeats about what he has said heretofore on the financial question. It will be in line with Mr. Carlisle's speech, delivered in New York last week. In his message Mr. Cleveland will devote some space to the question of increasing the revenue, and it is just possible that he may recommend an increase of the beer tax. The question of increasing the revenue is being seriously considered by the leading republicans as well as by the administration.

TRUNK LINES AGREE.

Articles of Organization Approved and Take Effect January 1.

The following statement has been given out at the office of the Trunk Lines Association at New York:

"The articles of organization of the joint traffic association have been unanimously approved by every party to it, and it was agreed to make them effective January 1, 1896.

"The presidents are now in executive session in regard to the appointment of arbitrators.

"The board of managers will doubtless be announced in a very few days. The committee on revision has been continued with power to arrange all details, procure signatures to the engrossed agreement, decide on the delivery of copies of the proper public authorities, the press, etc."

TO SUCCEED MAHONE.

Virginia Republicans Meet to Select a New National Committeeman.

A conference of members of the Virginia republican committee was held at Petersburg Wednesday for the purpose of choosing a successor to the late General William Mahone as leader of the republican party in the Old Dominion. As a result of the conference it is probable Colonel William Lamb, of Norfolk, will be named as Virginia's representative on the republican national committee and Edmund Waddill chairman of the state committee.

UBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY

LANTON, ALA. Dec. 5, 1895.

In the light of these experiences hich accord with the experiences other nations, there is certainly o secure ground for the belief hat an act of Congress could now ridge inequality between gold nd silver at our present ratio, nor there the least possibility that ur country which has less than ne seventh of the silver money in he world, could by its action alone aise not only our own but all ilver to its lost ratio with gold. ur attempt to accomplish this by he free coinage of silver at a ratio iffering widely from actual relaive values would be the signal r the complete departure of gold rom our circulation, the immedite and large contraction of our irculating medium, and a shrinkge in the real value and monetary fficiency of all other forms of curency as they settled to the level f silver monometallism. Every ne who received a fixed salary and very worker for wage would find he dollar in his hand ruthlessly caled down to the point of bitter isappointment. If not at pinching privation. A change in our tandard to monometallism would lso bring on a collapse of the entire system of credit, which, when based on a standard which is recognized and adopted by the world of business is many times more potent and useful than the entire volume of currency and is safely capable of almost indefinite expansion to meet the growth of trade and enterprise.

In a self invited struggle through darkness and uncertainty our humiliation would be increased by consciousness that we had parted company with all the enlighted and progressive nations of the world and were desperately and hopelessly striving to meet the stress of money, commerce and competition, with a debased and unsuitable currency, and in association with the few weak and laggard nations which have silver alone as their standard of value. Cleveland's Message.

The Presidents message to congress is characteristic of that famous leader. It contains no equivocation but is a clear, manly, succinct statement of facts. No one who reads it can help but proclaim it a masterpiece.

At a meeting of the State Board of Missions of the Alabama Baptist State Convention Rev, W. C. Bledsoe, of L Fayette, was elected Secretary to succeed Rev. W. B. Crumpton. resigned.

The following evangelists were appointed: Rev. S. O. Y. Ray, for South East Alabama with headquarters at Troy; Rev. J. L. Lowry, with headquarters at Calera Rev. A. C. Barnes for North Alabama.

If you are a Democrat, come out and say so. If you are a republican, be equally honest. Don't go around calling yourself a Jeffersonian democrat or a populite The time for that sort of thing has past. The populite party is, dead, not only in Alabama but all over the United States. Its leaders have shown they were republicans all the time, so if you are opposed to democracy, be a man and proclaim that you are a republican. It is far more honest, and no one will believe you if you say otherwise.

Since the free silver agitators have about exhausted their ammunition in booming Capt. Johnston, is it not about time for a real possibility to announce himself as a candidate for governor? Dick Clarke, of Mobile, is the most available man, if he would consent to run, and he is too good a democrat to refuse to serve his party With the blue eyed congressman from the Gulf as a leader, the sound money, administration party loving democrats will have no difficulty in sweeping everything in the next convention. Let us all centre on him. We cannot find a better man.

If those misguided people, who call themselves populists, have not found out they have no party, it is time some one was informing them. It is plain to every one that populism will never play any part in the politics of this country, for it is dead beyond resurrection. The leaders of that party have entered the republican camp, where they always belonged, and a great many of the rank and file are following their footsteps. Those honest men who were led into populism believing they were still democrats have now no alternative but to join the republican party, which they loathe, or to return to their old friends of the democratic faith. And the democratic party will welcome them, for these men had no intention to abandon their party, nor did they belong to that class who sought office only. They were led away by zealous inthusiasm for a wrong cause, and are now willing to return to the party of their choice. Brethren, we will welcome you back home.

WITH OUR EXCHANGES.

ADVERTISING AS A SCIENCE PAYS.

Some people say that advertising is all a matter of luck; that you cannot tell what advertising is going to do, or whether or not it is going to pay. This may be true; but it is very strange that the man who gives intelligent thought to his advertising, and it in an intelligent, earnest, straightforward way usually has the luck on his side. He is lucky in his advertising, because he reduced it to a science. Advertising is just as certain as paying rent. Advertising is governed by the same common sense business lines that govern buying lot of tomatoes or codfish.—Grocery World.

Now that Capt. Johnston has come out for the gubernational nomination, and inasmuch as he has been fond in the part of declaring himself on various national questions, isn't it eminently proper that he come out with his views and polices on State questions? Why should he not take up his facile pen or use his ready tongue to define himself publicly on matters here at home, as well as on the financial question?

Take, for instance, the matter of the State's floating indebtedness. He is a banker, a financier. How does he propose to handle that subject?

Then there is the ever present convict question. What does he recommend in that direction? Shall the convicts be removed from competition with free labor in Jefferson county, or be left in the mines?

Then there is the proposition to hold a constitutional convention. Is he in favor of it, or against it?

Then there is the matter of election laws. He is understood to favor openly the most iron-clad statutes to ensure fair elections What amendments in that direction will he recommend?

And so the list might be extended. Doubtless other Democratic papers can add to it. These are all pertinent matters, because as Governor he would probably have to take positions on them during the session of the Assembly. Why should he not be as free and frank upon them as upon the financial question?

It is hoped that he will not hesitate to speak out on these matters. The rank and file of the Party has the right to know his views on such subjects.—Montgomery Advertiser.

THE COLORADO MESSIAH.

The early history of Francis Schlatter, the Denver "Messiah" who claims to possess healing powers, has been the subject of no little comment, of late, with a view to ascertaining whether or not the man is insane. It is known that he left the shoemakers bench to embark in the healing business rather unexpectly, and the public is acquainted with the additional fact that he refused to receive any pay for his work. These two propositions in themselves furnish a very good basis for the belief that the man has a wheel in his head.

Schlatter formerly resided in Jamestown, Long Island. At times he worked at his trade as a shoemaker and at times he was a steamboat fireman. He was brought up a Catholic, but attended no particular church after he reached manhood. He was a Republican in politics until 1862, when he became a Socialist. Saving up some money he invested it in silver mining and went West to make a fortune. It was soon afterward that the alleged healing power is said to have possessed him.

Schlatter was a great student and kept late hours pouring over his books. This was when he lived on Long Island. The nature of his studies is not stated. A Justice of the Peace, who knew him well, says that he was a trifle insane. Others say that his hopes of wealth were blasted when he reached New Mexico, and that this affected his mind. It may be that over study, followed by disappointment, unhinged his reason. Just before he left Long Island Schlatter began to to talk to his friends of divine images that appeared to him in his dreams, a delusion common among insane people.

Schlatter's former neighbors on Long Island do not believe in the efficiency of his cures. They say that the hankerchiefs he blessed and sent them were powerless to heal. They regard that he is crazy. If Schlatter can really cure by a touch of his hand and can restore the sight and hearing, he is something more than human. If he and his believers are alike, self-deceived, as is evidently the case, he is simply a harmless crank, who will most probably develop into a full-fledged lunatic if given sufficient time. The suggestion of an exchange that a scientific investigation into the alleged cures of the "Messiah" be made to ascertain whether he has really cured anybody, and if so, how the fact is to be accounted for, would be the best way to settle matters, and will be done if Schlatter reappears and resumes operations.—B'ham News.

WHAT THEY SAY
OF THE ELECTROPOISE

The Electropoise has relieved me of a throat affection that has baffled all treatment and has annoyed me for more than forty years. Very respectfully, T. T. Tunstall.
Mobile, Ala., Oct. 22, 1894.

I commenced the use of the Electropoise when I was in a weak nervous state, lying awake night after night until 2 o'clock. I commenced to sleep better almost immediately after beginning its use, and after three months felt that the Electropoise had paid for itself. Yours truly,

There is no medicine so often needed in every home and so admirably adapted to the purposes for which it is intended, as Chamberlain's Pain Balm Hardly a week passes but some member of the family has need of it. A toothache or headache may be cured by it. A touch of rheumatism or neuralgia quieted. The severe pain of a burn or scald promptly relieved and the sore healed in much less time than when medicine has to be sent for. A sprain may be promptly treated before inflammation sets in, which insures a cure in about one-third of the time otherwise required. Cuts and bruises should receive immediate treatment before the parts become swollen, which can only be done when Pain Balm is kept at hand. A sore throat may be cured before it becomes serious. A troublesome corn may be removed by applying it twice a day for a week or two. A lame back may be cured and several days of valuable time saved or a pain in the side or chest relieved without paying a doctor bill. Procure a 50 cent bottle at once and you will never regret it. OUT OF A JOB.

Mr. A. J. Thorne's Family Physician No Longer Derives Any Revenue from Mr. Thorne.

This is to certify that we have used the Electropoise in our family for three years, and, as I have written you before, it has done my wife more good than all the doctors in the country. She was confined to her bed thirteen years prior to my getting the Electropoise, and during that time I had had all the doctors in this part of the country to visit her, seven or eight having treated her in that time, and none of them doing her any good. All of them found her in bed and left her there. When I got the Electropoise she could not turn herself in bed, while now she does all her housework, and is still gaining. She has been using the Electropoise a little more than three years, and in that time has not taken a single dose of medicine.

Since I have had the Electropoise none of the family have taken any medicine, and the instrument is our family physician for we have had no physician in my family since I got the Electropoise.

I would not be without the Electropoise, and it is worth all the doctors. Yours truly

STANTON STORIES.

Miss Alma Dyer, one of our most highly esteemed young ladies, was married last Wednesday night to Mr. H. R. Schurter, of North Decatur, Ga, W. J. Ruddick officiating. Miss Alma will be greatly missed as she was organist for two of our churches We wish the young couple much success in life.

Miss Melonia Pynor, wife of Mr. J. A Pynor, was buried here last Thursday evening. Mrs. Pynor has been a great sufferer for many years with cancer of the face. She was 72 years of age.

It some what strange that nearly all of our Stonton girls who have married lately, were married to widowers.

Business is lively on our end of the county. the saw mill and planing mill are running on full time and our furniture factory is crowded with work

Dame Rumor has it that there are soon to be some other marriages in our community.

Miss Ollie May Garner is again teaching at Oak Grove.

Messrs. Will Garner and Bud Atchinson, of Blockton, paid relatives and friends of this place a visit recently.

CLINT.

MONTEVALLO LOCALS.

N. T. Lucas, a Baptist minister, was shot by William Seales, about three miles east of here yesterday, and it is thought that he cannot recover.

The trouble came up over some land which Lucas had in his possession and from which the Seales boys and their friends were trying to drive the Lucases. Young Lucas and R. O. West got into a hand to hand encounter which became warm, and West pulled his pistol and fired at Young Lucas several times. Old man Lucas ran in to seperate his son and West when William Seales shot him in the back with a heavy load from a shot gun.

The wounded man was taken home and his wounds were dressed and examined closely. It is feared, however that he can not possibly recover.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

IF A MAN OFFERED YOU

GOLD DOLLARS AT 50 CENTS

APIECE, WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

OUR Buyer had a similar question to answer recently. The stock of several manufacturers had to be converted into cash. It did not take us long to make a trade. We bought about Forty to Fifty Thousand Dollars' worth of new, desirable merchandise for less than half its real value.

The goods are all in stock now; it is a case of Manufacturer and Importer paying the piper, and YOU enjoying the dance. Otherwise we couldn't afford to give you Two or Three Dollars' worth of Merchandise for One Dollar in CASH. If you can't save big money here, money can't be saved anywhere on earth, that's all. Remember that anything you buy of us and are not thoroughly satisfied with, we will cheerfully refund your money.

The star boarder had quarrelled with the landlady's daughter, whose steady company he had been. Three-year-old was in the parlor when the quarrel occurred. She was supposed not to be old enough to understand such things.

The next day at luncheon time Three-year-old looked across the room at the star boarder and piped out, during a lull in the general conversation:

False Witnesses.

There are knaves now and then met with who represent certain local bitters and poisonous stimuli as identical with or possessing properties akin to those of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. These scamps only succeed in foisting their trashy compounds upon people unacquainted with the genuine article, which is as much their opposite as day is to night. In Olden Times

People overlooked the importance of permanently beneficial effects and were satisfied with transient action, but now that it is generally known that Syrup of Figs will permanently cure habitual constipation, well-informed people will not buy other laxatives, which act for a time, but finally injure the system.

Responsibility walks hand in hand with capacity and power.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. EXPOSITION NOTES.

PEN PICTURES OF THE BUILDINGS AND EXHIBITS.

Interesting Description Written By An Alabama Woman.

In the Atlanta of which we write live the spirits of Atlantis and Atalanta. In the colossal enterprise of the exposition, the maiden whom no suitor can overtake, save the spirit that lights the fiery cloud, comes out at the end of the race with the world upon her shoulder. She has demonstrated to the world that she is powerful and she is swift.

The Forestry building presents a fine collection of timber and ornamental woods of the world. There are blocks of mahogany twenty feet long from Africa and Cuba. In the building are twenty polished columns of fine woods of Georgia and other states. There are specimens of mahogany, birch, curly poplar, curly cherry and oak, all from the state of Georgia. Here are fine specimens of ore and marble. The Copper Queen mine of Arizona has an exhibit in this building of the finest specimens of azurite and malachite. Over the windows are seen beautiful scenes, illustrating the exhibits.

The hog and cattle show is fine. There are many fine breeds of hog and cattle. Conspicuous among the latter are the Galloway cattle. They have long, fine, curly hair, and the hide when tanned with hair on, is much used for buggy robes. These cattle are from Michigan.

The negro building demonstrates the steps of evolution from the savage to the citizen. Slavery was the mighty genius that waved the wand of industry and made the negro savage a useful citizen. Over the entrance you see the design of the negro and the mule: What God hath joined together the yankee cannot put assunder. These are inseparable factors in southern prosperity.

The women's building declares to the world, that woman is man's helpmeet in every undertaking in life. With tears of pity, she dons the nurse's cap, and binds the wounds of the old soldier in the hospital. With heart aglow with love, and face beaming, she enters the nursery and kindergarten. She has learned to climb Euclid's stairway of reason, but can reach conclusions as if by flashes. Here is what woman has done in all departments; here is what she has done with spindle, adz, pen and palette. The Chapter of the Daughters of the Revolution have a fine collection of mementoes of the revolution. Conspicuous among these is the old battle flag of Gen. Greene. Here are fine portraits of the distinguished men and women of revolutionary times.

The building of liberal arts, is the world in miniature. In the Pennsylvania exhibit is a small mountain, composed of the soils and minerals of the state. On the mount are seen the flora and fauna of Pennsylvania. The marine birds are gathered around a brook at the foot of the mount. Some of the water is real, and some is simulated by glass. In this building are some of the crown jewels of Europe. Conspicuous among these, are the Kohinoor, the Regent, and the E'tvile.

The cocoanut tree, just as it stands in its native forest, bearing fruit, is a grand sight. The foliage is beautiful, and combines the appearance of palm and fern. The nut is encased in a cushion to prevent breaking. The tree grows to the height of 125 feet. The natives have a cunning device of obtaining nuts. They make a monkey mad, and he runs up the tree and gnaws off the fruit.

The government building is, within itself, a liberal education. Educators who do not bring their pupils here, will miss a rare opportunity. Here are the best series of object lessons perhaps ever brought together on the American continent. The Smithsonian display is complete. It circles the globe. Osceola stands as when he led the Seminoles into Florida. In the top of the building is the skeleton of an extinct whale, the Zeuglodon. The frame is perhaps fifty feet long. All departments of the government, all in their regular order and work, are here for the student. The fish display is wonderful. The cow-fish is one of the marine curiosities. In the military you see the army as it was in the revolution, with all its appurtenances, and as it is now. You see field wagons used in our late war. The old Culpepper minute men flag, bearing the design of the rattlesnake, saying: "Don't tread on me," is hanging near the revolutionary officers. In the naval are seen models of the many famous ships of the world.

All Alabamians are justly proud of the Alabama exhibit. Alabama has the finest display of coal and iron on the grounds. There has been no attempt at display. The exhibit shows that the prosperity of the state rests upon a foundation as solid as the everlasting hills. To S. T. Pruett, who has charge of the agricultural department of Alabama's exhibit, we are indebted for much valuable information: There are thirty varieties of hay, sixty-five of corn, a dozen varieties each of ground-peas and sweet potatoes; meat, and canned goods of all varieties of fruits and vegetables. There are four hundred varieties of minerals. Alabama is a land of beauty, a land of plenty. The spirit of the Indian chief still cries, "Here we rest." Alabama has a governor whose soul is with the state.

The Plant System has a fine exhibit. Florida and California have fruits fit for the gods. Los Angeles, Cal., has the finest fruit exhibit on the grounds. The orange tower is magnificent. The design is the same as that exhibited at Chicago. There is large horn of plenty made of lemons. Here is the mangel beet, weighing seventy pounds.

The cocoon screen is one of the rare exhibits. The ramie is shown from stalk to cloth. The silk exhibit shows the whole process from cocoon to handkerchief.

All visitors to the exposition will miss a grand scene who fail to see the cyclorama of the Battle of Atlanta. Want of space forbids description.

LYNCHING IN THE SOUTH.

How They Were Begun—They Must Stop Bellinger's Good Offices.

[From the N. Y. World.

The cruel lynching of Hilliard, the negro murderer, by the mob in Tyler, Tex., two weeks ago, has aroused the best sentiment of the south. Lynchings must stop. The wide publicity and the photographic illustrations of the burning to death of Hilliard has aroused into earnest activity the growing feeling that these outbreaks of lawlessness are injurious to the business interests and progress of the south.

The South Carolina constitutional convention has spent two days discussing a measure drastic enough to stop the evil. Governor O'Ferrall, of Virginia, it is announced, will recommend to the new legislature a law making bondsmen of sheriffs liable to the heirs of victims of Judge Lynch. Other southern states will follow the example of South Carolina and Virginia.

The South Carolina convention adopted a simple, but it is believed, an effective remedy. Years ago in that state duels were frequent. Many methods were proposed to stop the practice. To kill a man in a duel was declared to be murder in the first degree, but the practice went on, and no one was ever found guilty of murder because he had killed a man in a duel. Finally the legislature passed a law that any man who fought a duel, or even sent or carried a challenge to another to fight a duel, was forever disqualified from holding office in South Carolina. The practice ceased immediately, and since 1882, when that law was passed, no duel has been fought, or attempted to be fought in that state.

The same remedy is now to be applied to the evil of lynching. Many of the members of the convention were in favor of going so far as to disqualify a sheriff or other officer from holding office if by any means a prisoner in his care was lynched. This was thought to be too severe, and the section to the article on jurisprudence, as passed by the convention, reads:

"In the case of any prisoner lawfully in the charge, custody or control of any officer, state, county or municipal, being seized and taken from said officer, either by his negligence, permission or connivance, by a mob or other unlawful assemblage of persons, and at their hands suffering bodily violence or death, the said officer shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon true bill found shall be deposed from his office pending his trial, and upon his conviction shall forfeit his office, and shall, unless pardoned by the governor, henceforth be ineligible to hold any office of trust or profit within the state. It shall be the duty of the prosecuting attorney within whose circuit or county the offense may be committed, to forthwith institute a prosecution against said officer, who shall be indicted and tried in such county, other than the one in which the offense was committed as the attorney general may elect. The fees and mileage of all material witnesses, both for the state and for the defense, shall be paid by the state treasurer in such manner as may be provided by law."

The convention added a clause to the section giving a person who, while under the custody of the sheriff or other officer shall suffer bodily harm less than death, at the hands of a mob, a cause for action against the county, with damages not less than $1,000; and in case of his death his heirs shall have the same cause of action.

Lynchings may be said to have begun in South Carolina during the reconstruction times. When the state was in the hands of the carpet baggers, guarded by Federal soldiers, and the judiciary was thoroughly corrupt, so that a white man could not expect to get justice against a negro in a court of law, the Kuklux clans were organized, and the white men wreaked their real or fancied grievances against negroes by torchlight, with buggy traces to inflict lashes on bare backs, or hempen ropes to swing the grossest offenders out of this world.

When the whites got control of the state, in 1876, this practice ceased, but in its lawless wake came the lynching party, who overpowered the often too willing jailer and swung their victim in some prominent place as a warning to his race.

At first lynchings were confined to those who assaulted women. In many sections of the state a certain class of citizens considered it a county disgrace for such a criminal to be allowed a formal trial. It is without question that innocent negroes suffered in more than one instance.

Another victim had his eyes torn out, his ears and his nose cut off, and he was disembowelled before his miseries were ended by hanging.

One of the reforms promised by Captain B. R. Tillman, in his gubernatorial canvass, was to stop lynching, and he charged the old regime with negligence in the matter. In his message to the legislature he recommended that the governor be given power to remove any sheriff who allowed a lynching to occur in his county, but the legislature refused to grant the power, or could not because the sheriff was a constitutional officer and out of their reach.

Governor Tillman made great efforts to stop lynching. The rewards were increased and other agencies set in motion. A number of white men were indicted in several instances and tried but in every case were acquitted "because of lack of evidence."

HEAVY SNOW IN NEBRASKA.

The State Covered to a Depth of From Five to Ten Inches.

A special from Omaha says: From five to ten inches of wet snow covers Nebraska. Snow fell all night Sunday. All the country within one hundred miles of Omaha has experienced the same storm, while from Chardron and along the line between there was a heavy fall of snow which continued for at least twelve hours. All of Nebraska seems to be included in the limit of the storm. Trains on all the roads reaching Omaha Monday morning were from one to five hours late.

Who partakes in another's joys is a more humane character than he who partakes in his griefs.

DISASTROUS STORMS

IN FURY SWEEP OVER THE WEST AND NORTHWEST.

The Gale at Many Points Seventy-five Miles an Hour.

The Postal Telegraph and Cable Company was the only wire working out of Chicago at nine o'clock Tuesday morning. The company reports that one of the worst storms that ever struck the city raged Monday night and Tuesday morning.

The wind blew a gale and railroad traffic is greatly delayed and the street car companies have had to abandon some of their minor lines, devoting their energies to keeping the main lines open.

In many places the storm blew down the telephone and trolley wires and from the latter serious accidents were narrowly averted. As it was, three horses were killed by coming in contact with the trolley wires. Several fires occurred during the night, and made great trouble for the fire department, as its own electric system was badly deranged, and delays were caused in transmission of alarms. The police system of telephone between the stations was also rendered utterly useless by the storm.

The damage done by the storm in the city will foot up to many thousand dollars. The roof of Music hall, one of the largest structures in the city, was loosened and many buildings were wrecked. One man is reported killed by a falling roof.

Dispatches received from other points show the same state of affairs throughout Illinois. Quincy reports a howling blizzard, with snow falling fast, interfering with street railway traffic.

Four big passenger steamers, the Jay Gould, City of Duluth, City of Traverse and the Peerless, all of the Lake Michigan and Lake Superior Transportation Company's were out on the lake in the big storm and have not been heard from. The officials of the company are greatly alarmed and are using every means in their power to obtain some tidings of the missing vessels.

At Cleveland, Ohio.

Cleveland, O., reports the greatest gale that ever struck that city began blowing from the south at midnight Monday night. At 5 o'clock Monday morning the wind had reached a velocity of 72 miles an hour. Several houses were blown down and many buildings unroofed. Trees were uprooted and signs blown away. The water in the river and harbor is at the lowest point recorded in years.

Telegraph and telephone wires are down in all directions. Peoria says the storm is still raging and serious damage is feared.

At Fairbury, Ill., sleet caused considerable damage.

On Lake Michigan the gale was very severe and the sea is running very high. Comparatively few vessels are out at this time of year and it is not expected that there will be much loss of life if any.

Special dispatches from the Ohio fields show that hundreds of oil derricks were blown down, and general havoc wrought throughout the entire section. The loss cannot yet be estimated, but it will be very heavy.

The storm was very destructive at Put-in-Bay, Ohio. Several buildings were demolished. A deck hand, whose name is unknown, on the steamer Messenger, was blown overboard and drowned.

High winds prevailed at Buffalo, N. Y. The telegraph companies are experiencing great trouble in getting off business. Wires are down in all directions. Canada is practically cut off from communication with the United States at that point.

Seventy-Six Miles at Detroit.

The deluge at Detroit was followed about midnight by a terrific gale that wrecked chimneys, plate glass windows, signs and trees in all parts of the city. No serious damage was done, however, and as yet no marine disasters have been reported.

The wind reached its maximum, 76 miles per hour, the highest, with one exception, ever recorded at the weather office. Two electric towers were blown over and a horse killed by stepping on a live wire. The water on the Detroit river fell five feet in twelve hours, and only the regular ferries are running. Three vessels are aground at Grosse Point and many other vessels are lying to, waiting for the water to rise.

Northern and western Michigan points report heavy snow storms and trains badly delayed.

At Akron, O., the gale was the severest in the history of the city. The wind reached a frightful velocity, and many persons sought safety in cellars. Many residences and factories were demolished or unroofed. The property loss will be heavy. No one was killed as far as known.

Fastest Ever Known at Toledo.

At Toledo, O., storm had for a time a velocity of 75 miles an hour, the highest ever recorded at the weather office. There were no serious accidents, but a great deal of minor damage. Several frame houses in process of building were wrecked, roofs injured, chimneys toppled over, and several hundred shade trees uprooted. There was no damage in the harbor though vessel men are anxiously awaiting news of their craft which were on voyage during the night.

It is learned that the storm raged violently through Missouri, Arkansas and Texas. In the latter state it swept over the ranches, covering them with snow several inches deep, severely exposing all kinds of live stock to its fury. If the temperature falls much lower there will be great loss of cattle and sheep. As it is, there is much suffering.

Three Children Roasted.

While securely locked in a cabin on the plantation of Mr. W. A. Ansley, near Forsyth, Ga., three negro children were roasted alive. The mother of the children, Georgia Ann Head, left them asleep while she went to the lot to milk the cows, locking the door behind her.

Hints for Housewives.

Persons not having scales and weights at hand may readily measure the article wanted to form any recipe without the trouble of weighing, allowance to be made for an extraordinary dryness or moisture of the articles weighed or measured. A MARVEL.

REMARKABLE AND ASTONISHING CURE OF AN EXTREME CASE OF ST. VITUS' DANCE.

How a Young Lady Regained the Use of Her Arms, Limbs and Speech in Three Weeks.

From the Standard-Union, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Too much hard study at school brought on St. Vitus' dance. Such was the common experience of Miss Glendora Rivers, daughter of Mrs. Amelia Rivers, of 69 Ryerson street, Brooklyn. The disease grew worse every month, until the young lady's entire right side became paralyzed; but, now that a marvelous and permanent cure has been wrought, it will be interesting to read her own version of the efficacy of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

"For more than a year," said Miss Rivers, "doctors attended me without effecting the slightest change in my condition. If anything, I grew worse under their treatment, until February of this year, when my condition became critical.

"I had lost the complete use of my arms and limbs and speech. I could only swallow liquids, and these only as they fed me with a spoon, when they could get my mouth open. I wanted to sleep all the time. The stupor I laid in was something like a trance, and no doubt I would have died if they had not waked me up at intervals.

"The first week in March my mother, who is a sick nurse, was advised by a neighbor to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in my case. She got some of the pills—a box from Neilson's drug store, at the corner of Myrtle avenue and Hall street. Before I had taken one-half the contents of the box a remarkable change was noticed in my condition.

"Gradually I regained the use of my arms and limbs and speech, and by the time the pills were gone I was up and about the house almost well. But my mother thought it wise to get another box of the pills, and this she did, and here you see me stand before you with more strength and more ambition than I ever had.

"Some of our near neighbors attribute my regained body and health to some miraculous or supernatural agency; but my mother and most intimate friends know that the cure was effected by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

"Three weeks from the day I swallowed the first dose of the pills I was as well as you see me to-day."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature.

They are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., and are sold by all druggists at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50.

The Island of Cuba.

Under the existing conditions of revolution in Cuba, and the probabilities that the approaching session of congress will recognize the insurgents as being entitled to all the rights of belligerents, a few statistics concerning the importance of Cuba, its population, and commercial relations with this country will not be inappropriate.

The island of Cuba comprises an area of about 46,000 square miles, about one-fourth smaller than the state of Florida, though the population is much more dense, Cuba having over 1,600,000 inhabitants, while Florida has about 450,000 at the present time. Of Cuba's population nearly two-thirds are white. The chief cities of the island are as follows: Havana, the capital, with a population of 200,000; Santiago de Cuba, 70,000; Puerto Principe, 46,000; Holguin, 35,000; Matanzas, 27,000; St. Jago, 27,000. The total revenues of the country from all sources are estimated at $25,000,000 per annum, while the expenditures reach $35,000,000, or a per capita debt of nearly $170, while the value of its landed estates is $220,000,000. In a good year the exports of Cuba reach $90,000,000 in value, comprising sugar, tobacco, cigars, molasses, cedar and hardwoods, iron ore and tropical fruits. Two thousand vessels with a tonnage of 2,500,000, trade with the island annually. In return the United States exports to Cuba merchandise and supplies of all descriptions to a value of $24,000,000 and over. Of the $90,000,000 exported annually by Cuba, about five-sixths of it comes to this country.

Oh!

A witness in Judge Low's department of the police court came near being sent to jail for contempt of court yesterday, for telling the truth. The witness was called and sworn.

"What is your name?" asked Prosecuting Attorney Madden.

"I. Denau," replied the witness.

"What's that?" demanded the judge.

"I. Denau," repeated the witness.

The judge and prosecuting attorney stared at each other in blank amazement.

"Look here, sir," roared the judge, when he had recovered his breath, "you will not be permitted to trifle with this court."

"Well—er—I only know what I have always been told was my name," explained the embarrassed witness. "Of course, I cannot swear to it, but if it is not my true name, I'd like to know it, your honor."

"That is all any man knows of his name," declared the judge. "What have you been told was your name?"

"I. Denau, sir."

"You don't know? Mr. Clerk, enter up an order——"

"I didn't say I didn't know," hastily explained the witness. "I said my name was I. Denau—Ignatz Denau, sir."

"Oh!" said the judge.

"Oh!" echoed the prosecuting attorney.—San Francisco Post.

An Anglomaniac.

"This is about the time of the year," said Mrs. Watts to her neighbor, "that the fishing fever strikes my husband. If he can get out on the banks of some creek and catch two or three little mudcats in the course of an afternoon, he is perfectly happy." "So he is fond of fishing, then?" "Fond of fishing? Why, that man is a perfect anglomaniac."

Scott's Emulsion makes cod-liver oil taking next thing to a pleasure. You hardly taste it. The stomach knows nothing about it—it does not trouble you there. You feel it first in the strength that it brings; it shows in the color of the cheek, the rounding of the angles, the smoothing of the wrinkles.

It is cod-liver oil digested for you, slipping as easily into the blood and losing itself there as rain-drops lose themselves in the ocean.

What a satisfactory thing this is—to hide the odious taste of cod-liver oil, evade the tax on the stomach, take health by surprise.

There is no secret of what it is made of—the fish-fat taste is lost, but nothing is lost but the taste.

OUR HAPPY LOVE.

BY C. LOWATER.

The dark grows light, the glorious sun arises,
Another day's begun;
Like the first day of the earth's creation,
And yet, another one.
The self-same sun will rise and set forever,
While empires pass away,
But never, till we saw its rosy dawning,
Was seen this happy day.

Since Adam courted Eve in Eden's garden
Sweet love has ruled the heart,
And men have wooed and maidens smiled and pouted,
And all have done their part.
So all the world has kneeled to play the courtier
With love enthroned above:
But never, till we heard our fond hearts beating,
Was known this happy love.

A WEIRD MYSTERY

—OR—

Tracing a Dark Crime.

BY ALEXANDER ROBINSON, M. D.

CHAPTER XII.

STARTLED, I looked in his face as he sat there opposite.

Then for the first time I realized that there was in many respects a resemblance between this man and the old Doctor.

His startling words were true, but did not this make the matter blacker?

I remembered that there had been a mystery in the old Doctor's past. This, then, was a portion of it.

The letter I had found came once more into my mind. It was as if the characters were written with fingers of fire upon my brain, and now I could see a new light upon their rendering.

THEODORE PARKER: I positively and for the last time refuse to grant you the interview you so impudently demand. The past has not been blotted from my mind. I am inexorable—the same yesterday, to-day, and to-morrow. Never dare address me again in any shape. I look upon you as one dead.

ABRAHAM SEABURY.

How could I have been so blind before as not to see the truth? It was apparent now in every line.

Looking back, I could see some terrible quarrel between these two men, each of whom no doubt possessed a strong temper.

Perhaps Leonore had been the cause of it all, and the result had been that Theodore was banished from home with his father's curse upon his wretched head.

From time to time he had sought an interview, but the old Doctor had perhaps misconstrued the tone of his letter, and deemed him impudent, when perhaps he was only determined.

Then had come a dark resolve on the part of the wretched son to avenge his wrongs, and perhaps gain the fortune of his father at one fell blow.

He had done it. Could it be possible that this was the terrible foe Dr. Seabury had dreaded for years? I could hardly believe it, and yet the evidence pointed that way.

Whoever had killed him had been the cause of his constant dread.

While these thoughts were flitting through my mind, I sat there watching the man, and trying to analyze the waves of emotions that flitted across his [illegible]

It was beyond my power.

The man writhed under my indictment, and I could not see how anything other than guilt could make him [illegible]

He spoke first, and his voice was not so strong as before.

"Doctor, am I to understand that you believe me guilty of my father's death?"

"I am bound so to believe, sir."

"This is a terrible accusation to bring against a man."

"It is warranted by facts. You were at loggerheads with your father. In the dead of night you sneak like a thief to the house, and climb the vines leading to your father's window. He is found dead—murdered beyond all shadow of doubt. Now, sir, what would it be reasonable to suppose?"

A spasm of pain crossed his face.

"I see the force of your accusation, Doctor, and yet I solemnly declare to you, as heaven is my witness, that I was not in my father's chamber on that night—I am innocent of this terrible crime."

"What! dare you deny that you were present—that you climbed the vines as I have said, leaving the mark of your hand on the white window ledge, and losing a letter from Dr. Seabury at the broken wall?"

"I deny none of these, simply stating that I am innocent of the crime."

To say that I was amazed would be putting it rather feebly—I was almost paralyzed by the situation.

Here the man who had turned out to be the old Doctor's son admitted that he had climbed the vines and looked in at the window of his father's room, but emphatically denied going further.

Ah! a sudden thought: had he seen anything to cause him sudden alarm?

The idea came with resistless force.

It would account in a measure for his strong emotions.

This thought I had to dismiss instantly, for it threw me off the track, and sent me back to the old suspicion entertained by Mr. Ketcham—that Leonore, in a fit of mental insanity, had done the deed which had created such confusion in the mind of the old detective.

Of course this was but a scheme on his part to evade punishment.

The man was capable of much cunning—I saw that he was no ordinary character, but that he possessed strong powers.

Returning to the attack, I once more pushed him hard.

"You have not acquitted yourself in my mind, sir. Remember, the charge against you is a terrible one. It would serve your interests well were you to tell me the real nature of your visit to that house."

My words impressed him. I saw that he was thinking deeply.

"Am I to understand that unless I prove my innocence to you, Doctor, I shall be arrested, charged with this heinous and most unnatural crime?"

"You are so to understand."

"So be it. I cannot tell you why I climbed to that window, but simply repeat my former statement that I was not in the room, and am innocent of the deed."

Young Seabury spoke like a man who had made up his mind as to the course he should pursue—his rudder was lashed and there should be no change.

Naturally I sought for a motive in this most singular action.

It was hard to find.

Two courses seemed open to me, and I could take my choice.

The first concerned his own guilt, and somehow it came hard for me to apply his strange actions to him here. I could understand how he might deny everything blankly, if guilty, and swear that he was not within a mile of the spot at the time of the murder, but to admit that he had even climbed the vines and looked into his father's room, at the same time vehemently asserting his innocence, was a piece of strategy on the part of a guilty man that I could not readily grasp.

On the other hand another picture was presented to my view.

Suppose this young man was all that he should be—that he had gone to the house to make a personal appeal to his father, or for some such reason, and, upon climbing to the old Doctor's window had looked upon a sight that had frozen the marrow in his bones—was he the man, then, to take guilt upon his own shoulders rather than have it fall on the head of one he loved?

I looked at him critically with this new thought in my brain.

As I have said before, his face was a strongly marked one—there were no signs of weakness there.

He was capable of great things, either for good or evil, as the spirit might sway him.

"Will you not tell me what you saw there, Seabury?" I asked.

He shook his head.

"I cannot, Doctor."

"Meaning you will not?"

"Take it as you please. My lips are sealed upon that subject."

My interest was bounding on apace.

I could hard keep it in sight.

"If I understand you correctly, you acknowledge having looked into the room of the old Doctor?"

"I do not deny it."

"And you saw something that occurred within that chamber?"

He did not answer.

I could see his teeth close hard, and he had the appearance of a man who was sternly resolved upon his course.

"Do you refuse to tell me what it was you saw?"

"I have nothing to say."

"Perhaps you forget that your life may pay the penalty of this refusal to speak and clear yourself."

"I forget nothing. Would to heaven I could forget! At the same time, if it must come, so be it. I am resigned. As the Arabs say, Kismet—it is fate."

I was becoming more and more interested in this man. He was a character to study with profit. In fact, I do not know that I ever met one who gave me more of a chance for observation.

"Since you are determined upon this course we will drop that question; but perhaps you will not object to answering certain others of minor importance."

I was going to beat about the bush, and perhaps discover in an indirect way what he refused to divulge openly.

"Anything I can answer I shall do so with the greatest of pleasure," he said, quietly.

"You admit entering the grounds by means of the wall?"

"Yes."

"You made your way direct to the foot of the vines, retraced your path to the wall, and then back once more to the side of the house. What made you do this thing?"

"You are mistaken, Doctor."

"In what?"

"I passed through the garden only once each way."

"There were two sets of tracks there. I saw them myself."

"Then some one else made the other."

"Impossible. They were near enough alike to have been made by the same man."

"And yet I stand ready to swear that I went direct from the wall to the house, and when I left I followed the same route."

He was quite determined in his manner.

I could not say that he was telling a lie; at the same time I felt sure he must be very much mistaken.

Possibly at the time he hardly knew what he was doing, and had fled from the spot only to return again, drawn thither by some terrible fascination.

To assist my investigation, I pretended that I had fallen in with his idea

"Then you think some one else must have been in the garden on the same night, and almost followed your course to the vines."

"Since you affirm that there were two sets of tracks, it must be so. I made but one."

"Let me see your boot."

He held up his foot.

It was a very small one for a man of his size, and not unlike a woman's.

"That will do. Now tell me, while you were hovering around your father's place that night, did you notice any suspicious character about?"

He started at my words, as though they offered him a loophole of escape.

"Yes, I did."

"Tell me about it."

I did not take any stock in what he was about to say, for I believed he was simply jumping at the bait offered. At the same time, to deceive him, I pretended to be greatly interested.

"As I passed out through the break in the stone wall I heard a sound near me, and turning my head I saw the figure of a man of low stature, standing with his back against the wall.

"I noticed no more, for I was not in a condition to care for such things. His head was bent low as I passed him, and I could not have seen his face had I tried."

"You don't know whether he went into the grounds or not?"

"I couldn't say. It would be very likely, if he was bent on burglary, or anything else."

"Another question, Seabury. Have you ever carried any burglar's tools?"

His face flushed, either with real or assumed indignation, but, biting his lips, he controlled himself.

"Never in my life, sir."

"Let me describe a tool that I found under the vines, and tell me whether you have ever seen it."

I described it accurately.

He shook his head as I finished.

"I give you my word of honor, Doctor, I never even saw such a tool, and certainly never possessed one. If you found that among the vines, depend upon it some one mounted them either before or after I had been there."

If I could believe his words, then a third trail had opened up before me; but I was not yet ready to change my mind.

Until I did so, this man was the guilty party, although it was far from my intention to say so, as I had no intention now of arresting him, and wished to keep him quiet.

Just about this time I began to feel the need of counsel.

If I could only see Mr. Ketcham, and have a good hour's talk with him, perhaps there would be a straightening out of the kinks that were beginning to bother me.

Strange things had occurred to me since last I saw him.

What was he doing—pursuing the trail that brought up with Leonore?

My heart was in my mouth at the thought that possibly what I had to tell him would be only strengthening the toils about the poor girl.

Nevertheless he should know all.

For the last time, I turned upon the other.

"Theodore Seabury, tell me truly, if I come to you with positive evidence that I know who drove that blade to the heart of your father—if I prove that your silence is no longer necessary, and that, in speaking, you will do no harm, and only clear away some of this dreadful mystery—will you then tell me what you saw when, hanging to the window-ledge, you looked into the chamber of your father?"

"Yes, Doctor, I promise you that."

"Solemnly?"

"On my honor as a man."

"I have no more to say. Do you mean to leave the city?"

"No, sir. If I am needed I will be found, and although I may be punished for a crime I never committed, no human power can make me tell that which I have sworn never to reveal."

"I will say good-by for the present."

I put out my hand, and he took it.

"Doctor, how does Leonore stand it?" he asked, with some confusion in his face.

I knew afterward what this meant, but as I hurried from him I felt that this question was but an indication of his guilt. He had dared all to win her.

CHAPTER XIII.

My intention was to seek out Abner Ketcham, the great detective, and laying all I had learned before him, ask for advice in the premises.

My mind had become so confused that I hardly knew what I was about.

Most certainly I needed a consultation with some one.

I knew where his office was, and in this direction I bent my steps as soon as I had left young Seabury.

Although I was seeking aid, I had reason to be proud of my work. Perhaps the old detective might feel called upon to compliment me, something he seldom did.

I reached his office.

A rap on the door brought him out.

"Ah, Doctor, is it you?" he asked, while his grim face lighted up.

He ushered me into his "den." It was really the first time I had ever been within the sanctum, and I must confess that I looked around me with a great deal of interest.

The room was a regular old bachelor's apartment. Besides this, it had an interest for me on account of the many queer trophies hung upon the walls—things that were doubtless connected with all the greatest criminal cases for many years past, in which Mr. Ketcham had figured prominently.

I looked around me for a short time, and then coming to my senses, realized that Mr. Ketcham was watching me.

"Now, Doctor, what do you come after?"

"I have been uneasy, sir, with regard to Leonore. Tell me, have you made out the case any worse against her?"

He smiled peculiarly.

"Your interest in her is pardonable, Doctor. I really hope you will not be disappointed in your expectations. I have discovered certain new things, but cannot say that they settle the case."

"I am glad to hear that."

"Meantime, how is it with you?"

"What do you mean Mr. Ketcham?"

"You have made some discoveries."

"How do you know that?"

"Perhaps I guessed at it from your manner, or, to get nearer the truth, I have run across your trail several times."

I saw that there was no use trying to keep anything back from this man. For the first time the thought came into my head that perhaps he would be able to return my Roland with an Oliver—that he already knew much more than I would be able to tell him.

At any rate he would have to give me credit for my discoveries.

So I began the story. Nothing was withheld, from the time I had left him up to my meeting with Theodore.

The old detective evidently enjoyed the story. He lay back in his chair, with his eyes fastened upon me. Now and then, at some interesting part of my story, his face would light up and perhaps he would put a few questions to me.

His interest was greatest, however, when I told how I had succeeded in finding Theodore, and the manner in which I sent the question home to him.

Then Mr. Ketcham leaned forward in his chair and seemed to hold his breath. I could feel rather than see his eyes fixed intently upon me.

As I revealed Theodore's secret he chuckled as though greatly tickled.

"Good, Doctor; I commend your skill at running a trail," he said.

I finished, at length, and told him why I had sought him out.

"What you have given to me, Doctor, is not all news, and yet there have been some points in it of great value. Again allow me to commend your qualities in the detective line. You have met with astonishing success."

I bowed.

"Praise from Sir Hubert is praise indeed."

"I suppose what you want now is my opinion on your discoveries?"

"Yes, in part. I would not object to hearing what you have done in that line yourself, Mr. Ketcham."

He smiled at my words.

"Your enthusiasm in this case certainly entitles you to every consideration, Doctor, and at my hands you shall certainly receive it."

I waited for him to speak further, but it was some time ere he did so. Perhaps he was pondering over the matter.

"Now, Doctor, listen to me. In one way it seems as though this young man may have been guilty of the crime, and yet I am inclined to believe he speaks the truth in the matter.

"At the same time he is morally certain that when he looked into that room he saw something that alarmed him.

"You see that he refuses to tell what it was he saw. I judge that he is not the man to take much care of his own life, but a secret involving one he loves would never be torn from him.

"Now, the great question is: what did he see that troubles him so intensely, and which, he says, the rack could not tear from his lips?

"Let me tell you.

"He looked upon Leonore, the girl he loved, in mad frenzy bending over his father and sending the blade home to his heart.

"That was the sight which froze the blood in his veins and made his heart stand still. No wonder he hardly knew what he did after that, and went back and forth between the wall and the house.

"Think of it—he saw the girl he loved murder his father! No wonder, then, he declares that he is dumb. Sooner than tell the truth, and have Leonore convicted by his testimony, he would take the crime upon his own shoulders. That is the kind of man he is."

"You have seen him, Mr. Ketcham?" I said, suddenly.

"Yes, I have seen him, but without knowing positively who he was."

"You don't think he will give us the slip?"

"No danger of his running away, as long as she seems in danger."

"So I believed. Now, how much stock do you take in this theory of yours, Mr. Ketcham?"

He looked at me and laughed outright.

"Come, Doctor, you read me too well. Haven't I convinced you that I believe I have been on the true trail all along?"

"No, sir, you have not. You persist in following it, and at the same time cast out feelers in other directions. I believe you have other irons in the fire."

"There is no use trying to dodge you, I see, Doctor. Question me if you will."

"First of all, I would like to know if you really believe Theodore saw the girl in the act of killing his father?"

"Honestly then, I do not. He could not have kept from leaping into the room and either endeavoring to stay her arm or else confronting her afterward, and he swears he has never been in that room."

That was one point gained. I returned to the attack.

"What do you suppose his object was in climbing the vines?"

"That is a mystery. I see two reasons that might have induced him to act in that way. It may be he was bound to see his father, and force proofs upon him that would show how unjust the old physician had been all along. Then, again, perhaps he thought he was climbing to the room of Leonore, and that she would be at the window waiting for him."

"That is a queer idea."

"Not so queer as you think. Look at this piece of paper. I found it in the grounds, where it had been lost."

The rain had washed it, but the writing was still legible.

It ran simply:

I must see you, in spite of all. If no other way appears, I shall climb up to your window at night. This suspense will drive me mad. THEODORE.

I looked up at Mr. Ketcham.

"Sure enough; your latter theory in this respect is the true one. Still, there is a little thing I don't understand."

"I know just what it is, and can put you in the way of enlightenment. Notice the slip of paper you hold again, and you will see that the top is turned over."

"Who did that?"

"It was I. Cast your eyes upon it now."

I turned the paper around.

As I did so, I could not keep from uttering a cry of astonishment.

There was cause for it. Only one line of three words greeted my eyes, but it gave a terrible shock.

That line made clear many things. It also lifted a weight from my heart, and I knew just where I stood.

What was it then that met my eyes upon this piece of paper to create this sudden revulsion of feeling within me.

"Leonore—my wife!"

A Wealthy Laborer.

Every one to his taste, and if a millionaire chooses to work out by the day, why not? There is a rara avis of this kind living near Troy. His father keeps a farm for breeding horses, by which he has made an enormous fortune. He is cultivated, well-bred, and dresses fashionably, but his son can be hired at any time by any one for $1.50 a day to dig or hoe potatoes, and is not above taking his meals in the kitchen with his fellow-workers. This is a true story, and I would give you his name if I had not so bad a memory. I have met him, and talked with him, and found him most intelligent and gentleman-like. Fancy one of the Vanderbilts milking your cow and feeding your chickens for a small sum —Society.

Plantation Philosophy.

De worl' may be a heap better den it uster be, but a lie still takes de premium ober de truth.

Some pussons takes er pride in raisin' up dar chillun ter be sharp, an' many times arter da is grown da puts de sheriff ter a great 'eal o' trouble.

De man whut makes it his study may in de co'se o' er lifetime say a good many smart things, but he will also say a heep more foolish things den de man whut neber gin half de study ter de subjeck.—Arkansaw Traveler.

A MAN should surely dare to live his small span of life with the little heed of common speech upon him or his life, only caring that his days may be full of reality, and his conversation of truth-speaking and wholeness.

CAPITAL NOTES.

GOSSIP OF WASHINGTON IN BRIEF PARAGRAPHS.

Doings of the Chiefs and Heads of the Various Departments.

First Lieutenant Samuel Reber, signal corpse, has been ordered to Atlanta, Ga., for the purpose of examining and reporting upon the electrical exhibit at the Cotton States and International exposition and upon the completion of the duty contemplated at that place will return to Washington and report to the major general commanding the army for temporary duty.

United States Consul Barker at Tangier, Morocco, in a report to the state department says that wheat has grown so dear there that the last two steamers brought out consignments of American flour which were immediately sold at a profit. The consul believes if direct communication could be had with the United States and carriage charges reduced, Morocco would prove to be a profitable market for American breadstuffs.

Secretary Herbert, in his annual report, shows progress made during the year in the construction of government cruisers, and speaks in highest praise of the workmanship of the navy. He also outlines the work under contract. The secretary devotes considerable space to the consideration of armor plate, ordnance, projectiles, submarine boats, automatic torpedoes, etc., and improvements in the business methods of the department.

The president sent to the senate Wednesday the nominations of United States judges, marshals and attorneys made during the recess of congress. Included in these are those of Walter E. Faison, of North Carolina, to be solicitor for the department of state; William M. Springer, of Illinois, judge of the northern district, and Constantine B. Kilgore, of Texas, for the southern district of Indian territory; and W. L. Marbury, United States attorney for the district of Maryland, Mr. Marbury was nominated during the last congress, but the senate took no action on it.

Members of the house who have had interviews with Speaker Reed during the last two or three days on the subject of committee appointments, believe that the committee list will be announced before or not later than the fifteenth of the month. Formerly speakers have not been able to make their selections before the Christmas holidays, as a general rule, but Mr. Reed has had the advantage of a year, practically, in which to make up his mind. He has said to several that he is anxious to have congress finish its business and adjourn as soon as possible, and all the time he can save on committee selections will tend to that result.

Favorite of Labor Organizations.

The labor organizations of the country are making a concerted effort to secure the appointment of Representative Phillips, of Pennsylvania, to the chairmanship of the house committee on labor. Their action is a decidedly complimentary one since Mr. Phillips is not identified with labor organizations, but on the contrary is an employer of many workmen in connection with his many oil interests in Pennsylvania. Letters have been presented to Speaker Reed from the chief officials of the Knights of Labor and American Federation of Labor and fifteen other organizations asking for the appointment.

Carlisle's Estimates.

Secretary Carlisle has sent congress estimates submitted by the several cabinet officers of money required for conducting government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1897, amounting to $418,091,073. Appropriations made for the present fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, amounted to $412,753,264. Among the detailed estimates noted are improving the harbor at Charleston, S. C., $100,000; improvement of harbor at Galveston, Texas, $1,140,000; for expenses at Norfolk, Va., navy yard, $75,750; the naval station at Port Royal, S. C., $338,182; the dry dock at Algiers, La., $100,000—total cost of which will be $1,250,000; public building at Savannah, $100,000.

English Comment On the Message.

Referring to President Cleveland's message to congress, the St. James Gazette says: "There is nothing whatever of the jingo in Mr. Cleveland's message. In spite of all assertions to the contrary, there is not the least probability that the United States will put any obstacle in the way of a proper settlement in Venezuela."

The Pall Mall Gazette says: "So far as our relations with America are concerned, the message is not likely to raise any unpleasant question; but we fail to see how Mr. Cleveland's definition of Monroeism applies to Venezuela."

The Globe says: "There is nothing surprising in the fact that the Monroe doctrine bulks rather largely in the message, nor in the hostile tone adopted towards England. Isn't the presidential election drawing nigh? Pulling the lion's tail may look to the old world a curious way of trying to catch fish, but it has been found to answer in the turgid waters of American politics."

Crisp On the Message.

In an interview regarding his opinion as to the financial feature of the president's message, ex-Speaker Crisp is reported as saying:

"I heard with some surprise and great regret that part of the message in relation to our finances. That relief is needed no one doubts. That it can be found in the direction indicated by the message I do not believe. The president makes as strong an argument as can be made in favor of the single gold standard, but I do not think he fairly states the case. He assumes throughout his message that our obligations are payable in gold. There is no law on the statute books justifying this assumption. All bonds, treasury notes and other obligations of the United States are payable in gold and silver, and if the treasury would exercise the option which the law and contract gives, of paying in that metal most convenient to it, our [illegible] I am opposed to the retirement of the greenbacks and Sherman notes, for it would ruinously contract our money. Neither can I approve the propositions recommended enlarging the privileges of national banks. I have no doubt the president honestly believes he is right, and I am sure I honestly believe he is wrong."

Running at a Loss.

The comparative statement of government receipts and expenditures for the month of November and the five months of the fiscal year to date has been issued by the treasury department. The deficit for November is $1,212,780 and for the five months of the fiscal year $15,869,327.

The receipts for November were $25,986,503 and the expenditures $27,199,283. As compared with November, 1894, the receipts for last month show a gain of nearly $6,000,000, while the expenditures are $1,250,000 less than for November, 1894. For the five months of the current fiscal year the receipts are $141,279,116, which is $2,750,000 greater than for the corresponding five months of 1894. For the same period the expenditures have been $157,148,443, or $2,700,000 less than the corresponding five months of 1894. The receipts of November were nearly $2,000,000 less than for October last and the expenditures $7,000,000 less, due to interest payments in October. Customs receipts for the five months of this fiscal year are $120,000,000 greater than for the corresponding five months of 1894.

Internal Revenue Commissioner Miller has compiled the collections of internal revenue for the four months of the current fiscal year. They aggregate $51,494,692, a decrease of $13,264,992 as compared with the corresponding four months of 1894. The principal sources of internal revenue were: Spirits, $26,877,637, a decrease of $14,417,013, arising from the withdrawals in 1894 to evade the increased tax of 20 cents a gallon; tobacco, $11,036,350, an increase of $658,915; fermented liquors, $12,934,612, an increase of $743,273; oleomargerine, $485,297, a decrease of $172,848, and miscellaneous, $130,786, a decrease of $127,319. The receipts for October, 1895, were $13,750,213, against $5,714,575 in October, 1894.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Condition as Reported for the Past Week.

Reports of industrial and business affairs in all sections of the southern states for the past week indicate that manufacturing industries continue to report a large and profitable amount of business. There is an increase from week to week in the number of cotton mills. Local investments are very generally made in this class of industries. They are generally making good returns, and the number will continue large as long as the business is conducted as at present. There is no movement of importance in cotton. The planters still hold a large part of the crop, and are expecting higher prices. Iron and coal miners and furnace operators report continued quietness with a steady amount of business, and prices pretty well kept up, but not so firm as a few weeks ago for pig iron. The output is very large. Southern coal miners are making very large shipments and report that the markets for their coal are not over supplied Prices are steady and unchanged.

The reports as to new cotton mills for the week show the Arcade Cotton Mill, of Rock Hill, S. C., capital $200,000; a large mill at Gastonia, N. C., one at Taylorsville, N. C.; cordage works at Greensboro, N. C., and a new silk mill at Lynchburg, Va. The Brazos & Wichita Irrigation Co., capital $600,000, has been incorporated at Wichita Falls, Texas; a tannery to cost $100,000 at North Wilkesboro, N. C., and the Rome Guano Co., of Rome, Ga., capital $50,000. The Virginia Bridge and Iron Co. has been chartered at Roanoke, Va., capital $50,000; the A. M. Eley Lumber Co., with $25,000 capital, at Oakwood, Va., and a $15,000 brick and tile making plant at Petersburg, Va.; a cannery at Alvin, Texas, a large cotton compress at Aberdeen, Miss., electrical plants at Lake City, Fla., and Norfolk, Va., and flouring mills at Columbia and Princeton, Ky., and Statesville, N. C. A cotton oil mill will be built at Fort Worth, Texas, a rice mill at Abbeville, La., and woodworking plants at Fairford and Salitpa, Ala., and Hinton, W. Va. Waterworks are to be built at Perry, Ga. The new buildings of the week include business houses at Greenwood, S. C., a college to cost $200,000, at Richmond, Va., and a railroad station to cost $2,000,000, also in Richmond, Va., and a $25,000 office building in New Orleans, La.—Tradesman (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

WARD CAPTURED.

He Was Arrested in Guatemala by the Memphis Police Chief.

A. K. Ward, an alleged embezzler from Memphis, Tenn., was arrested Sunday on board a steamer at Livingston, Guatemala, by the chief of the Memphis police. The information came in an official telegram to the state department. Ward is now on his way to New Orleans in custody.

THE REICHSTAG MEETS.

Speech From the Throne Read by Chancellor Hohenlohe.

The German reichstag was opened at Berlin Tuesday at noon. The speech from the throne was read by Prince Hohenlohe, the chancellor. After referring to the anniversary of the glorious victories of 1870-'71 and urging the reichstag, in conjunction with the federal government, to continue to build up the united empire, the foundation of which was laid twenty-five years ago, the speech says:

"The friendly relations of the empire with all foreign powers continue unchanged. In conjunction with Russia and France, Germany has endeavored to prevent further complications which were threatened by the war between the two great East Asiatic empires. Our endeavors have been attended with success, thanks to the judicious moderation displayed by the Japanese government, and will contribute to preserving and enlarging the field of peaceful labor for Germany's industry and trade.

"The deplorable events in the Turkish empire and the situation created thereby have our serious attention. Faithful to its alliances and to the tried principles of German policy, the empire is ever ready to co-operate with the powers when called upon by their interests to work for the furtherance of the cause of peace. The unanimity of the decision of all the powers to respect existing treaties and support the government of his majesty the sultan in the establishment of the orderly state of things, justify the hope that they will not be wanting in success.

After inviting the co-operation of the reichstag in passing the proposed civil code and a series of bills intended to promote the welfare of the industrial classes, including the establishment of artisan chambers, the speech alludes to the proposed Bourse law, intended to remove as far as possible the influence of dealing on the bourse in affecting the prices of commodities, the dangers of which have been frequently felt to the detriment of the national well being.

FOR STEALING A BIBLE.

Two Negroes Are Lynched in South Carolina.

The details of an ugly lynching which occurred in South Carolina last Monday night came to light Thursday. It took place in Colleton county, near the Barnwell and Hampton line, and was not known generally in that vicinity until Wednesday morning, when the dead bodies of two of the victims stripped of their clothing were found —one being an old woman. They had been taken out and beaten to death with new buggy traces, the man's offense being that he was suspected of having stolen a Bible and some furniture from a church, and the woman's that she was supposed to know something about it.

RATIFYING THE NEW LAWS.

Finishing Touches to the South Carolina Constitution.

The South Carolina constitutional convention reassembled at Columbia Tuesday night to ratify the constitution. There was a surprisingly large attendance of the delegates. The committee on order, style and revision, which has been at work during the recess, had done its work well and its report was presented in a most comprehensive shape. The convention before adjourning completed the consideration of more than one half of the constitution, adopting all but two of the amendments proposed by the committee.

AN INDIANAPOLIS BLAZE.

Destroys Property Valued at Half a Million.

A fire in the wholesale district of Indianapolis, Tuesday, destroyed property valued at a half million dollars. The northeast quarter of the block bounded by Meridian, Maryland, Georgia and Illinois streets was completely laid in ruins. Seven or eight great business establishments were burned out. The fire began in the wholesale grocery store of Schnull & Co., on Meridian street.

World's Fair Medals Ready.

The Chicago world's fair medals will be delivered at Washington by the 15th instant, where they will be kept until the world's fair diplomas are ready and both will be delivered at the same time. The world's fair closed November 31, 1893.

Hallowe'en.

Hallowe'en is a festival that should be especially honored by young people. There are so many amusing and good-natured tricks, and so many innocent bits of "white magic" appropriate to the time, that no self-respecting youngster should allow its observance to be omitted by careless "grown-ups."

There, for instance, are the "snapdragon," and the "bobbing for apples," and the blowing out of a candle hung at the end of a stick suspended on a twisted string and balanced by an apple so contrived as to deal a smart blow upon the cheek of the too lingering candle-blower. And there are the many charms and contrivances that, once consulted in honest faith by rustic lovers, are now the pastime of boys and girls during an autumn evening.

Shoe Dealers Assign.

Stevenson, Alexander & Co., wholesale shoe dealers at Baltimore, Md., have made an assignment to a trustee. The assets are $160,000, liabilities $150,000. Depression in business was given as the cause of the failure.

CHILTON VIEW

E. M. BARRETT,
Editor.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY

CLANTON, ALA. Dec. 12 1895.

Commissioner Hector D. Lane is spoken of as a probable candidate for governor. Should he enter the race, it would weaken Johnston's strength in North Alabama.

The republicans are sore over the fact the United States Embassador to England has been associating with gentlemen. Had he been a republican from Massachusetts, this charge could not have been brought.

The death of Col. A. C. Hargrove, caused by a pistol shot with his own hand, cast a gloom over the entire State. He was a noted man, having been long in public service and was at one time president of the senate of Alabama.

Hon. Richard F. Clarke has consented to run for governor. We knew he could be depended on and when he said he would do anything to save his party, he meant it. True Democrats can now prepare to hurrah for Clarke.

President Cleveland surprised Tom Reid and the whole republican party, by not asking for funds to carry on the government. They expected it, and his failure to make the demand left them with only blank cartridges in their guns.

It is a remarkable fact that the Johnston men only are the ones who say the party cannot be successful unless he is nominated. This assertion has all the ear marks of a threat to bolt the party if their wishes are not carried out.

The State-Herald, the mouthpiece of Captain Joseph F. Johnston, continues to defend Gov Oates. This is no matter of surprise, as it is in keeping with the contract made between Oates and Johnston.

The Apaches are again on the war path. Several people have been killed in the Gila Valley, by those red skin fiends. This is the same country in which Geronimo made his famous raid. Troops have been ordered to put down the uprising.

The action of the republicans in trying to impeach Embassador Bayard for not agreeing with their tariff views is characteristic of that party. They could not have attacked a man of more spotless reputation, for, like Bayard of old, he is sans peur et sans reproache.

That greatest of all fake papers, the Montgomery Journal, is very much troubled over Clarke's candidacy, and declares that Johnston is the choice of the people and should receive the unanimous nomination. Brother Hood has a happy faculty for getting on the losing side.

"The latest novelty among the ultra fashionable," says the New York World, "is stockings with pockets in them." The Gotham belles claim that this is the safest place to carry valuables. The idea of carrying valuables in stockings may be a novelty in New York, but it has been in vogue here for many years.

The greatest specimen of nerve exhibited lately is the request of Johnston men for harmony. They mildly assert that the majority of the party should accede to their wishes for the sake of peace. We had plenty of harmony before they started their crusade against the administration, and we will have it after they are buried under the avalanche of public opinion.

The English papers are red hot on account of President Clevelands message, in reference to Venezuela question. They don't like the idea of carrying the Monroe doctrine enforced, and they believe that Cleveland unlike those politicians, who have been criticizing him, in reference to his policy, is just the man to do it. Let the lion roar the European nations will never be allowed to increase their territory from the American continent.

Some men whisper that they are democrats. Why the whisper? It is something to be proud of, and should be proclaimed from the housetops, if necessary. There are people in this vale of tears who are afraid to call their souls their own. If you are a democrat let it be known in a way that is unmistakable. Let people know where you stand, and by doing so clear your name from the imputation of coward. Don't be a secret foe; it is neither manly or honorable.

THORSBY.

Right in the heart of the piney woods, in the healthiest portion of Alabama, where the gentle zephers, ladened with the scent of the balsam pines, play sweet symphonies among the trees, lies the town of Thorsby. It is a new town—in fact it can hardly be called a town at all, but it fast breoming one. A colony of Swedes, about twenty-five or thirty in number, have settled there, and more are coming every day. Thorsby is situated about one-fourth of a mile above Strasburg, at an altitude of 630 feet above the sea level.

The company who propose to build this town, are all determined, earnest, hard working men, and they are going about it in a business way. Three two story dwelling houses have already been completed, and a large hotel is in the course of erection. The music of the hammer and saw greet the ear upon entering the place, while the clothes on the line and the chubby, children at play give a home-like appearance to the scene.

When the editor of the VIEW reached the place, he was told to go into the office and Mr. Peterson would be there directly—that gentleman being engaged in building the new hotel. Upon entering the office, we were struck with its appearance, for as far as fixtures were concerned, it might have been the office of a Montgomery real estate agent. An inventory of the room showed as follows: A lounge, a desk, a bookcase, a Hammond typewriter, a Edison mimeograph, besides chairs, cuspidores, etc.. On the walls hung large photos of buildings, fruits and flowers, which were taken in and around Thorsby. While we were gazing at these things, Mr. Peterson came in, and a more pleasant, affible gentleman we do not care to meet. "Yes," he remarked, "we are going to build a town here. This is what it is going to be," he added, pointing to the wall, on which hung a large plat. "This," he continued, "will be the residence portion, this the business, and we have reserved these lots for parks." How many people will be here? we asked. "Well, that is hard to say. There will be several in the next two or three days, and an excursion will leave Minneapolis on the 11th, for this place."

What will be the occupation of the settlers? we next enquired.

"That depends. Some of them will raise vinyards, some truck farms and some will do both. That however, will be the principal industry."

We next strolled out near the hotel. "That lumber," said Mr. Peterson, "will be used to build a drug store. A docter came to us the other day. We have contracted with a man up north to start a bank and a general merchandise store, and we are now corresponding in reference to a sash, door and blind factory.

Thorsby is a destined to be a second Cullman. It is being pushed by men of energy and pluck, who are bound to make it succeed. We are glad to note this improvement, and the VIEW will always lend a helping hand towards the upbuilding of this county.

WITH OUR EXCHANGES.

Since the republicans have formed a fusion or coalition with all old populite ballot-box stuffers, it occurs to us that papers like the Birmingham Times should stop talking about stealing votes, and all that. The first thing they know they'll knock a hole in the "fusion" as big as a man-of-war. —Montgomery News.

With Senator Hill frozen out in the Northwest and ex-Congressman Bland chilled to the bone in the Southeast there are just two things to be said. The climate can have had nothing to do with the result. In the far North the people did not want to hear Mr Hill, and in the far South the people refused to listen to Mr. Bland. These gentlemen have one characteristic in common, and one thing only; They both fought their party's leader. That sort of thing reflects upon the fighter and makes every-day sort of people tired. They are tired of Mr. Hill and they are tired of Mr. Bland.—Mobile Register.

A DISTINGUISHED AUTHOR

Col. Richard Malcolm Johnston, of Baltimore, the distinguished Southern author, in a letter to a member of The News staff, pays President Cleveland a high tribute and avows him for President for another term. The News has been permitted to publish that part of the letter, which makes interesting reading coming as it does from so prominent a man as Colonel Johnston. He says: * * *

"Mr Cleveland is in my opinion the best President the country has had in sixty years. We have to go back to Jackson for one as purely patriotic but Jackson had personal prejudice and bias, which Mr. Cleveland thus far seems to be without. Never has there been a President with so small a suite of personal followers. Indeed, to me it has seemed that he preferred that kindred and friends should not come anigh him whilst in discharge of public duties. For this reason it is that politicians, who are mere politicians, have never liked him. Yet it is for this reason that the people at large who are not mere politicians like him particularly well, and, as I sincerely believe, would like to have him for another term.

* * * *

"The country needs, therefore, and it desires that he have another, a second to this term which should be regarded his first. As before, mere politicians are hostile to it. Yet how many of these, great in their own opinions, and by those who for gain follow the trade of politics, supposed to be great, have been conquered and laid low in the warfare waged against Mr. Cleveland.

"Those who are nearest in his confidence say that he does not desire a second term. So much the better—for the absence of such desire makes him the more desirable. My own opinion is this (perhaps excepting General Stevenson) he is the only democrat in this country who could be elected next year.

"For the last fifty years it has been an unhappy thing that men high in official place have been expected and have yielded to the expectation to postpone to public welfare rewarding of partisans. This Mr. Cleveland never has done, and therefore it is that his own mere personal following has been so inconsiderable. His faithful observance of civil service, neither democratic nor republican politicians understand or appreciate. The greatest surprise ever sprung in this country was that in 1892 when the people showed to the politicians of both parties that they wished and intended to have him for their President again after General Harrison's administration had failed of its promises.

"Talk of a third term is mainly in the mouths of those whose hopes of rising depend upon frequent ever-recurring rotation. The people can always be depended upon in the voluntary untrammelled choice of their leaders. The Romans did indeed put a limit to the consulate established after the expulsion of the kings. Yet intermission of its exercise received a candidate as eligible as in the first instance, and from such reelections no harm occurred as long as the people themselves were loyal to the behests of patriotism.

"You know well that for years I have taken no public part in politics. I have written this because of more than usual interest on the subject that I now feel."—Birmingham News.

DEAR SIRS:—The Acme Light Roadster came to hand O. K. on the 10 inst., and I must frankly say it meets my fullest expectations, and I am very much pleased with it. I considered it a high grade up to date wheel in every detail of design material, construction and finish, and is fully equal, if not superior to many of best $100.00 wheels sold on the market here. I believe the Acme frame is the strongest and most rigid and the most graceful and lighest frame built. It is a beauty among beauties, and cannot fail to satisfy.

There is no medicine so often needed in every home and so admirably adapted to the purposes for which it is intended, as Chamberlain's Pain Balm. Hardly a week passes but some member of the family has need of it. A toothache or headache may be cured by it. A touch of rheumatism or neuralgia quieted. The severe pain of a burn or scald promptly relieved and the sore healed in much less time than when medicine has to be sent for. A sprain may be promptly treated before inflammation sets in, which insures a cure in about one-third of the time otherwise required. Cuts and bruises should receive immediate treatment before the parts become swollen, which can only be done when Pain Balm is kept at hand. A sore throat may be cured before it becomes serious. A troublesome corn may be removed by applying it twice a day for a week or two. A lame back may be cured and several days of valuable time saved or a pain in the side or chest relieved without paying a doctor bill. Procure a 50 cent bottle at once and you will never regret it. CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The Free Silver Chimera.

The ridiculous attempt of the silver contingent to commit the United States to free coinage—to the exchange of 50 cents' worth of silver for a dollar in gold —rivals in its absurdity and enthusiasm the wildest chimera of romantic fiction. It carries us back to the fond but futile search for the fountain of everlasting youth, to the mediæval alchemists' theory of the transmutation of metals and to the beautiful mythological story of Midas and the golden touch.—Philadelphia Record.

APIECE, WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

OUR Buyer had a similar question to answer recently. The stock of several manufacturers had to be converted into cash. It did not take us long to make a trade. We bought about Forty to Fifty Thousand Dollars' worth of new, desirable merchandise for less than half its real value.

The goods are all in stock now; it is a case of Manufacturer and Importer paying the piper, and YOU enjoying the dance. Otherwise we couldn't afford to give you Two or Three Dollars' worth of Merchandise for One Dollar in CASH. If you can't save big money here, money can't be saved anywhere on earth, that's all. Remember that anything you buy of us and are not thoroughly satisfied with, we will cheerfully refund your money.

Wonderful Escape

Mrs. M. A. Owens Falls Down a Long Flight of Stairs and Kills Her Child.

Ladies meet with many accidents in descending stairs—the result being often a broken limb or worse, but we have never heard of where a mother falls down a flight of stairs—kills her child and escape death, until our attention was called to an accident to Mrs. M. A. Owens, of 2115 K St., Washington, D. C. We use her language:

"About two months before the time for my confinement I fell down a long flight of stairs and killed my unborn child. I know this, as I never felt it move afterwards and could tell it was out of position. Upon being examined by two physicians the child was pronounced dead. They decided, as my symptoms were so favorable and I was in no pain; could eat heartily, rest well and was doing finely in every way, that it was safer to let nature take its course, and left me with instructions that they be advised promptly of any unfavorable symptoms. I had, without the knowledge of any one except my husband, been for some weeks using "Mother's Friend" with great relief and could see no reason why I should not continue its use, and did so. Now came a long time of suspense and waiting for developments. To the surprise of all I continued to do well, and got along better than I ever did before when accidents, although every one, including the physicians, feared the termination would be fatal.

Eight weeks and two days from the time I fell, natural labor came on and the child was taken away in the usual manner, and to the surprise of all, I was found in better condition than ever before at any previous confinement.

I had continued to use 'Mother's Friend' up to the last hour, and experienced so little trouble that when the time came was unaware of it, and the nurse had to make me undress quick and get in bed. I said to myself, "this is the work of 'Mother's Friend,' and I am having an easy time," as on previous occasions I suffered tortures for hours before.

Everything was so easy and rapid that the physicians had only time to get in the house. Always before I had trouble with my breasts, but this time I had none, as I used 'Mother's Friend' on them as directed. I had them drawn and dried without any inconvenience. You must not forget that it was eight weeks and two days from the death of the child before confinement, and I suffered less and was stronger than ever before on such an occasion. My physicians and friends, marveled at my escape.

I know that "Mothers' Friend" saved my life, and hope every expectant mother will use it. It robs the final hour of terrible suffering and leaves her stronger and makes recovery more rapid I have learned of marvelous results where only one bottle had been used, but the sooner "Mothers' Friend" is begun and the longer used, the better for the mother when the hour arrives.

The Bradfield Regulator Co., of Atlanta, Ga., will mail free to any expectant mother their little book containing valuable information and voluntary testimonials from ladies who have used "Mothers' Friend" with happy results.

It can be obtained of any prominent druggist in the United States.

Yachting With Paper Sails.

The diversity of uses to paper may be applied is coming to be phenomenal. Car wheels, boats, houses—it is long since the use of paper in these has excited surprise, but paper sails are something new.

The Herreshoffs, builders of racing boats, have lately experimented with the application of rubber to balloon and other light sails. The idea in view in making these sails of rubber is to obtain an elastic material which will allow the sails to increase in area, and consequently in propulsive power in proportion to the force of the wind. A chief reason for the employment of paper stock for this purpose is lightness, a matter which counts for considerable in the fast sailing vessels, but there are other points of superiority, one thing that the composition stretches just about enough to favor both wind power and vessels, while another is that the paper sails are airtight. Besides this, practical tests have shown that the paper, properly prepared, is very durable and is less liable to tear in case of high winds.

The sails made on this new plan are not woven from strands or threads, but are made up from compressed sheets, those being cemented and rivited together in such a way as to form a smooth and strong union.—Argosy.

Naturally.

"Mamma," said the little girl at the flower show, who had absorbed during the evening a glass of lemonade, a quantity of clear cider and some grape juice, "I wish you would buy me a drink of water. I want something to unthirst me."—Chicago Tribune.

HOT RESOLUTIONS

AGAINST EXPOSITION SPEECHES OF TILLMAN AND EVANS.

The Exhibitors' Association Does the Roasting.

Senator Ben R. Tillman and Governor John Gary Evans, of South Carolina, were denounced in no uncertain language by the members of the Atlanta Exposition Exhibitors' Association at a meeting Thursday morning. Resolutions condemning their speeches on South Carolina day at the exposition as inflammatory utterances, were adopted, and the two South Carolinians were referred to as ranting demagogues, cutthroats and moonshiners. The remarks of the two gentlemen from South Carolina created quite a sensation at the exposition.

The meeting was held in the transportation building and was called to order by President Jackson. All of the members were present. After the transaction of some routine business the speeches of Senator Tillman and Governor Evans were incidentally referred to and the reference aroused one of the members, who said that the association ought to take notice of the speeches, that they were beneath the dignity of the body. In his opinion the speeches were but the utterances of a set of cutthroats and moonshiners who ought to know better and who could not be taken as the sentiment of the south or the feeling of the southern people. He moved that a committee of five be appointed to draft resolutions concerning the speeches. This was done and the committee retired. In a short while they presented the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, The public expressions of representative men who have visited the Atlanta exposition have been of a conciliatory character, marked by evidence of the broadest patriotism and the most sincere fraternity, and

Whereas, This characteristic has been true regarding the expressions of distinguished visitors, whether those visitors came from the north, the east, the west, or the south, and

Whereas, The friends and promoters of the Atlanta fair, by reason of the many fraternal expressions of their enterprise had provoked from patriots of all parts of the Union, had begun to regard the more friendly relations between the different sections of our common country as one of the best and most gratifying results likely to grow out of their stupendous enterprise, therefore be it

Resolved, By the Exhibitors' Association of said Atlanta exposition, a body composed largely of American citizens and representing all parts of the union and all shades of political opinion, that we deeply deplore the one marked and flagrant exception to the heretofore prevailing expressions of fraternity, brotherly love, patriotism and loyalty, that was made manifest at this exposition on South Carolina day and in which the ex-governor of that state, Ben Tillman, and the present governor, John Gary Evans, were the offenders.

Resolved, That we know, from our contact and intercourse for the past few months with southern people, that in their disloyal and inflammatory utterances those two ranting demagogues are a libel on the better class of southerners and do not give voice to the prevailing southern sentiment.

Resolved, That we sympathize with the southern states of our Union in the affliction which compels them to endure such blots on their inner worth and such clogs to their merited progress; and we especially sympathize with the ignorance that must yet prevail in South Carolina to make it possible for such scum to rise to the surface.

Resolved, That for the fame and good name of the Atlanta exposition, at which these men were unfortunately permitted to speak, we denounce their speeches as being devoid of reason, sense and patriotism, and we repudiate the speakers. In this we feel confident we are but voicing the sense of our country and the earnest feelings of the better people of all the southern states.

Resolved, That we sympathize also with the management of this exposition that under the cloak of temporary authority two such fanatics should have been able to intrude their utterances upon the otherwise healthy and satisfactory proceedings that have characterized this enterprise. But while dismissing the utterances of these men as unworthy of further notice from our association or the country, we do not forget that in the general economy of nature mankind must have his troubles and communities their afflictions. It is not many years since California was greatly annoyed by a brace of bandits known as Evans and Sontag, and the exhibition witnessed here on the 28th of November is but an evidence that South Carolina in its turn is enduring, through its own indiscretions, a season of torment from its Tillman and Evans.

Committee for Association: J. A. Filcher, California, chairman; J. William Porter, Maryland; W. F. Anthony, Virginia; Bennett, Tennessee; C. H. Robbins, Boston.

Approved. George Johnson, President Exhibitors' Association.

MANUFACTURERS INDICTED.

They Are Charged With the Offence of Forming a Trust.

The investigations by the New Orleans grand jury into the charges that certain persons had combined to form a trust relative to the sale of crackers, biscuits and paste has resulted in the indictment of Frank T. Bohn, Henry J. Bolling and Edward J. Reese, comprising the commercial corporation known as the James J. Reese Company and L. J. Follett, acting as manager and representative of the National Cracker Company and Henry A. Taylor, acting as manager and representative of the American Biscuit Company. The presentments charge them with entering into a contract on November 4th, last to engage in a combination in the form of a trust and conspiracy in restraint of trade and commerce, in violation of legislative act No. 86 of 180, forbidding such combines.

ANOTHER SPANISH OUTRAGE.

Two Gunboats Stopped and Searched A Harmless Fruiter.

Two Spanish gunboats boarded and searched, off the north coast of Cuba, the small Norwegian steamship Moringen, which arrived Tuesday from Baracoa, loaded with bananas.

The Moringen sailed from Philadelphia on November 17th for Baracoa, and the news of her departure was at once cabled by the Spanish officials at Philadelphia to Cuba and the war craft which patrol the coast were ordered to keep a good lookout for the fruiter. Five days after leaving the capes, and when in sight of Cuba, two Spanish war vessels appeared in sight and the sharp report of a rapid fire gun gave warning for the Moringen to heave to, which order was promptly complied with. Boat loads of men from one vessel boarded the fruiter, while two warships kept watch to prevent the escape of filibusters and the landing of war materials, which was supposed to be on board. After a thorough search nothing of a contraband character was found on board and a certificate was given to the captain of the Moringen to that effect. A protest was also forwarded by the admiral in charge of the search, protesting against the ridiculous stories which are continually being sent to Cuba from Philadelphia.

ANOTHER TRIAL FOR HILL.

His First Trial Cost the State About $7,850.

The second trial of the case of the state of Nebraska against ex-Treasurer J. E. Hill and his bondsmen before the supreme court began at Lincoln Monday afternoon in the senate chamber. This is a suit to recover $236,000 state funds lost in the failure of the Capitol National bank.

This is the first case ever tried by a jury in the supreme court of Nebraska. Hill's first trial occurred last May. It consumed about two weeks, cost the state about half of the $15,000 appropriated for its prosecution by the legislature, and resulted in a disagreement.

MURDERING CHRISTIANS.

Butcheries, Riot and Pillage Continues in Turkey.

Word was received at Boston by mail Monday morning at the rooms of the American board that there had been a terrible uprising among the Moslems at Oorfa, a station of the Central Turkey mission. Christians and a few Moslems had been murdered—in what proportion is not stated. Pillage and murder occurred all day on October 28th. The premises of the mission of the American board were surrounded by armed Christians. The only missionary at Oorfa is Miss Corinna Shattuck, of Louisville, La.

FIVE NEGROES KILLED.

White Laborers Are Driving the Negroes Out of Florida.

Contractor W. J. Allsop, whose headquarters are at Starke's Ferry, Fla., on the Ocklawaha river, reports that the whites have formed an organization and are driving all the negroes away. Some time ago Allsop imported negroes to cut ties. These were driven away, three being killed. Last week more negroes were brought in and they, too, were driven away Tuesday, two being shot. Allsop says the negroes are terrorized. He claims that he has lost several thousand dollars owing to the driving away of the negroes.

ANOTHER FOOL GONE.

Fasted Forty-Seven Days and the Subject of a Funeral.

William J. Murray, of Toledo, O., died Wednesday evening after fasting for forty-seven days. The old gentleman—he was four score years—took it into his head seven weeks ago not to eat any more. His relatives did not take his decision seriously, but when four days and a week passed they became alarmed. Mr. Murray stoutly persisted in his determination and all efforts to give him food were in vain. He became greatly emaciated toward the last, but did not suffer any pain and his end was quite peaceful.

WILL AGREE UPON WAGES.

A Probability That the Mines Will Adopt the Scale of the Operators.

The miners' delegation to the joint wage convention of miners and operators held a secret conference at Pittsburg, Pa., Thursday morning to consider the operators' ultimatum of 64 cents per ton for the first three months of 1896, and 70 cents for the balance of the year.

The miners want 74 cents for the entire year, but there was a disposition to accept the operators' ultimatum and an amicable settlement is looked for.

BIG CHICAGO FAILURE.

A Large Furniture Manufacturing Company Goes Under.

A. H. Andrews & Co., of Chicago, one of the largest manufacturers of office and school furniture in the country, have failed, with liabilities which will probably reach several hundred thousand dollars. The immediate cause of the collapse was the demand of the Globe National bank for payment of two judgment notes amounting to $25,774, which the bank had loaned the company. The latter pleaded for time, but it was not granted.

FUN AT FORTY.

Banker Higginson's Spouse Elopes With a Young Barrister.

Mrs. Francis L. Higginson, wife of the famous Boston, Mass., banker, and a social favorite, has forsaken her home and family, leaving no word behind her. She has been gone over two weeks. There is also missing from the same social set Mr. James Wheatland Smith, a young lawyer. Mrs. Higginson is within a few months of forty years of age, and the mother of four children.

EXPOSITION NOTES.

PEN PICTURES OF BUILDINGS AND EXHIBITS.

An Interesting Description Written by an Alabama Woman.

Atlanta still wears her best dress, and wreathed with smiles, takes into her capacious heart countless thousands. Thousands are pouring into the city daily. Last week was a protracted banquet. The streets were gay with the soldiery of different states.

* * *

The directors have not spared any expense to gather all that would attract and instruct. Just opposite the main entrance, on the outside, is the cyclorama of the battle of Gettysburg. The cyclorama is the work of a Frenchman, and cost eighty thousand dollars. It is fifty feet high, and situated about 45 feet from the stand. The landscaping is almost faultless. The circular painting is erected on an exact perpendicular; yet the eye seems to roam miles and miles, and take in mountain and valley.

* * *

The administration building resembles some old structure of feudal times. When you succeed in storming the walls and getting in, you find that kindness and chivalry are still in the castle. The officials are daily besieged by a veritable army. This building is a part of the main entrance.

The Pullman car exhibit is gorgeous. The coaches are made of vermilion wood, from the East Indies. The upholstering is of Russian leather.

It is a grand portable palace. In the dining room is quite a display of silverware. The boudoir and bridal chamber are beautiful. The windows have gorgeous hangings of satin and velvet. An air of elegance and magnificence pervades the entire train. The cost of this exhibit is enormous. Near this exhibit is the engine called the General, which has a place in the late war history.

From the Pullman car exhibit are stairs leading up to Midway. Midway shows to most advantage at night. The spielers are very persistent and, with their large speaking trumpets, will be heard. The whole scene is grand when seen by electric lights. Music from a thousand instruments can be heard, as you parade the Midway. The exhibits are so constructed as to look best at night. Hagenback has a very fine collection of trained animals. This is the most substantial exhibit on the Midway. In the various villages are seen the different nations. The Ice Grotto is the home of the Esquimaux in miniature. One of the Esquimaux brought here has died. The Esquimaux and their dogs seem very much at home in the Ice Grotto. The Esquimaux are dressed in skins and furs.

The Moorish Palace has some very classical scenes. The representations are very good. The figures are very life-like and move by electricity. The death of General Custer is very pathetic. By force of electricity the figure is made to gasp and close its eyes, and is a most perfect representation of a dying man. Near the entrance is seen a group of cupids with wings moving. The arrow is not seen; perhaps it has sped.

The agricultural building is a fine representative of the agricultural resources of the United States. All Alabamians think Alabama is the promised land. There is food for the hungry and clothes that queens might wear. Wide to the honest we open the door. Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas have fine exhibits.

From Mr. H. McLeod, from Monroe, La., who is one of the large planters of Louisiana, we have received much valuable information concerning the resources of the state. He thinks the agricultural resources the finest of any state in the Union. The fruit and vegetable display is very fine. The designs made of agricultural products are very pretty. One was a seed tower. It is glass case shaped like a tower, and filled with various kinds of grain and seed. One design that is from California is a bear and eagle made of raisins. The alphabet is written in raisins and various kinds of dried fruit. All the exhibits are very attractive.

A Phenomenon.

There has always been an inclination to believe in the existence of a fund of nervous energy in the body that resembles the flow of a current of electricity, both in its tangible aspect and its remarkable physiological effects. The nerve centers of the body, or nerve ganglions, all start from the brain as a distinct focus. from here radiate the nerves proper as a complex system with minute tendrils that give rise to sensations of the most agonizing, as well as the most exquisite nature—the blow of a cudgel or the tickle of a straw being equally and as readily perceptible. Although no determinations of a positive character have ever been made, the gymnotus, or electric fish, is a type of organism in which the two functions seem closely allied. The discharge areas are controlled and owe their lasting qualities to the nervous system to such an extent that the fish falls into an exhausted condition if so irritated that its reserve fund of material for electrical phenomena becomes too quickly used.

In South America the eel, which is eaten by the Indians, used to be caught by driving a number of horses into the river and allowing them to receive the discharge from the fish, which, when thus weakened, were drawn from the water. In cases of locomotor ataxia the nervous energy is so lacking that the irritation of any part arouses only after a deliberate interval the sensation expected. The gradual transmission of nervous force is forcibly illustrated when a needle is inserted in the flesh; frequently ten seconds elapse before the impression is conveyed to the brain. There is no doubt that the mysterious adjunct of nerve-tissue is of a most perplexing nature. Let a nerve center of the brain be affected and the part of the body controlled by it loses movement and sensation. The almost structureless composition of the brain hides within it the secret of all sensation. The slightest thrill of its particles may mean a thought that will shake the earth with its importance—its quietude means either sleep or eternal peace.—Electrical Age.

The comet discovered at Lick observatory, California, on Nov. 17th, by Mr. C. D. Perrine is now about 84,000,000 miles from the sun. The distance will decrease and reach a minimum of about 20,000,000 miles on December 18th, at which time its angular distance from the point where its path intersects the ecliptic will be 263 degrees. After December 18th, the distance from the sun will again increase. The object is not visible to the naked eye, but its brightness is increasing very rapidly. It will undoubtedly be visible with telescopic assistance within a few weeks.

Unfortunately, however, its approach to the sun will bring it into the morning twilight, and the difficulty of observation will be increased thereby. It is now 1½ times as far from the earth as the sun is.

WEIRD MYSTERY

—OR—

Tracing a Dark Crime.

BY ALEXANDER ROBINSON, M. D.

CHAPTER XIV.

I began to see things that had been hidden behind a veil of mystery.

Leonore—his wife!

Something had come between them in the past, and the old Doctor believed his son to be a guilty man.

Suppose she was guilty, would he ever close the past?

"I believed him a man of an iron will, like his father before him. Truly had I said torture could not force him to reveal what he had seen.

"This is a surprise to me, Mr. Ketcham," I said, frankly.

"As much so, perhaps, as the discovery of Theodore's indentity was to me."

"Leonore is his wife, and he was making an effort to see her when—he gazed upon a sight that sent him away again without accomplishing his errand."

"So it seems."

"Honestly now, Mr. Ketcham, since you are not willing to believe that Theodore saw his father killed, what do you suppose he did gaze upon?"

"He saw his wife enter the old Doctor's room, and her face must have told him that she was crazy for the time. Unable to bear the cruel sight he hastened away, came back to look again and then fled.

"When you told him how his father, instead of committing suicide, as the coroner's jury decided, and the afternoon papers printed, had really been murdered, his mind leaped at once to the dreadful truth, and he closed his lips upon the story."

"That is the most probable view we can place upon the matter, looking upon it in a charitable manner. Whether Leonore is guilty or not, her husband believes now that she slew his father in a fit of insane frenzy, and believing that he is the one who holds the secret, has vowed to die before he will reveal it."

"That straightens the kinks out of the way to a certain place, Mr. Ketcham."

"Where is that, Doctor?"

"The possible presence of a second person upon that trellis of vines on that side."

Mr. Ketcham was measuring the distance between a crack in the ceiling and the floor of the room. He did not even deign to cast me a glance.

"Ah, Doctor, you have something to say upon that subject?" he drawled.

"Yes, sir. In the first place, Theodore denies having passed more than once that way between the walls and the [illegible]

"There were two trails."

"I know it; and yet they diverged in places."

"You examined the marks?"

"I did."

"And thought they had been made by the same person?"

"At the time I never questioned it, and I can now see that a clear examination might have revealed some difference."

"What next, Doctor?"

"Theodore also swears he never owned or carried a tool of the kind I described, and which you affirm is an ingenious tool of a burglar or cracksman."

Mr. Ketcham reached out his hand and took the article in question from a small drawer near him. Not until then did he withdraw his eyes from the ceiling.

"This is an ingenious device used by thieves almost exclusively, although, of course, there might be a few that have fallen into other hands."

"Well, he declines the honor of ownership."

Instead I could see the detective's face light up, as though I had given him a new clew.

"That may be all stuff and nonsense, Doctor. Mind, I merely suggest that and do not affirm it as my belief. You do not know Theodore yet. He may circumvent us and turn out a diabolical villain."

Was this an attempt to turn me off on another tack?

I half believed it, and yet at the same time I did not give myself away, simply making up my mind that more would be learned from this quarter in the future.

The case was a remarkable one.

Mr. Ketcham, a detective of great experience, had solemnly declared it to be the most mysterious and complicated of his life.

If this were the case, then I could not expect to solve it without great labor.

What made it more difficult was the fact that there were so many trails leading away from the scene of the crime, and any of these, at different times, seemed to be the right track.

"Doctor, I told you of one discovery I have made. Now, there is another that may interest you.

"When I went down that morning to see Leonore I found her examining the pantry window, which had been opened by a deft hand in the night."

I heard his words with a feeling of both astonishment and satisfaction.

It seemed to be a link in the chain leading to the third party.

"Then a burglar entered the house through the pantry window?"

"That seemed to be the indication. What was singular about it was that not a thing had been stolen."

"The deuce! that is singular."

"Perhaps Theodore entered the house that way when he came either the first or second time."

"That is possible, of course."

Did Mr. Ketcham believe this?

It was hard to tell, for his face was like that of a sphinx, and beyond the ken of an ordinary reader.

He wore a mask, figuratively speaking, behind which it was impossible to spy.

But if there had been another party in the house on this night—who was he?

If a burglar, what a fool not to have carried off the plunder while he had the chance, and not go away empty-handed.

I made up my mind to investigate this matter before I would be satisfied.

Perhaps this person who had been prowling in the neighborhood, and who had entered the house after all, it and from the pantry window, might have been a burglar after all.

Who then?

My mind was clear as a bell. All that I had seen and heard relative to this case rose up before me.

I realized that this was the last chance to save Leonore.

Should this fail then she must inevitably be guilty.

It all depended upon who was meant by Dr. Seabury when he expressed himself in daily fear of some one. If we could only fathom this mystery of his past, the truth might be made clear.

Who could help me?

My thoughts turned to Theodore. He might tell what mystery of the past this was connected with his father.

The only question that arose was whether he would feel so inclined.

There was no need of telling all this to Mr. Ketcham.

The advantage was already on his side, since he had drawn out all I knew, and suited himself about returning the favor.

By this I mean that he told me what he discovered, but without taking me fully into his confidence, and explaining the possibilities of each discovery.

I did not feel hurt by this way of conducting the case. From the beginning I had realized that it was an honor to be connected with a man of sterling worth like Abner Ketcham.

I was contented to assist him by any means that lay in my power, without any desire to reap the reward.

In the name of justice I would work; at the same time it was with the hope that I could help to prove the innocence of the one against whom the case seemed darkest—Leonore.

My mind was set in a certain quarter, and I was anxious to once more begin work, so that I might the better learn whether my last suspicions were founded upon fact or were fated to be wafted away at the first breath of cooling wind.

In some way I must find out who had entered through the pantry window, what their object had been, and also what they had seen or done.

If this end could be achieved I felt that the curtain must be raised and a glimpse of the truth be discovered.

Every means within my power must be brought to bear upon the matter, with this end in view.

In connection with this, I believed I had a strong point, whether Mr. Ketcham noticed it or not.

When we examined the tracks in the old room adjoining the Doctor's, and the detective had fitted Leonore's small slipper into them, I had noticed two things which I believe I had made note of at the time.

These were that there were other tracks present, somewhat larger than hers, and also that in places these heavier ones completely covered the marks we believed Leonore had left, thus establishing a very important point, viz: this other person had passed through the dusty room after Leonore.

Another little thing gave me courage this way, for I had seen a faint touch of blood upon the knob of the door, as though the knife had rubbed against it.

This fact was brought out again by Mr. Ketcham, who mentioned it, although at the time I had not known that he was aware of its presence.

Putting these things all together, I began to believe I had a strong case.

The party who had murdered the old physician, be it man or woman, had entered the house by means of the pantry window, as Mr. Ketcham had seen.

Perhaps he had first tried the vines but changed to the other.

When his bloody work was done he had retreated in the same way.

This was easy to place. I took a positive and keen pleasure in noting how neatly all the facts seemed to join together, just as though the mechanism were complete within the affair.

One little thing still troubled me.

This was the long black hair taken from the hand of the deceased. We had believed that he had torn it from the head of the person who had murdered him, and this had appeared to establish the fact that this party must be a woman.

Was this necessarily so?

I approached the subject carefully, determined not to leave a stone unturned in the endeavor to ferret out the truth.

First: It was not proven that this hair came from the head of his assassin. It might have been deposited there by accident.

Then again the party might have been a woman in disguise. No one could say aught to the contrary.

As a third thought: This supposed burglar, whom I believed to be the assassin, must prove the long dreaded foe for whose coming Dr. Seabury had watched and waited, knowing that fate was bringing the time nearer.

Who, then, could this enemy be?

My mind went back.

The good Doctor had spent many years of his life in India, and it was probably there where he had incurred the hatred of this party.

Then the vengeance-seeker might be a thug, one of that secret band of assassins to whom the use of the cord and creese is sacred.

The presence of the wound made by a creese suggested that such was the truth.

This far had I come, patching it up on the way, when, happening to look toward Mr. Ketcham, I saw that he had quietly inserted his hand into his pocket.

When he drew it out he tossed a small white object toward me.

"Examine that, Doctor," he said, simply.

When I opened it out I saw it was a lady's embroidered handkerchief. A few stains of blood marked it. Looking closer I could see where it had been partly cut, as though a sharp instrument had been drawn through it. Further still, in one corner was the letter L.

"Where did you get this, Mr. Ketcham?" I asked, holding my breath.

His answer gave me a terrible blow.

"In the room of Lenore, hidden behind a trunk, Doctor."

CHAPTER XV.

I SAT there motionless, my eyes glued upon the fatal handkerchief. Could it possibly be that, after all, the girl was unconsciously guilty?

A shudder went over me.

Of what avail this trying to fight against the hand of fate? Better give it up, and let the hand of justice, in the shape of Mr. Ketcham, have its course.

Truly, I felt discouraged, the prospect ahead looked so black.

Again I minutely examined the frail web in my hand.

There could hardly be the least doubt but that a knife of some sort had been drawn through the handkerchief to cleanse it.

Was it the creese that was wont to lie upon the table in Leonore's room, used as a paper cutter?

Mr. Ketcham seemed to divine my thoughts.

Out from one of those capacious pockets he drew the veritable weapon.

Evidently he had been putting his time to good advantage around the house on the avenue, while I was chasing myths.

"See here, Doctor, how precisely this fits, and tell me if you think it was the weapon that was drawn through this kerchief."

I did look. He proved it to me in such a way that I must have confessed it as a fact, even though it had signed the death-warrant of my dearest friend.

Either that creese, or a blade just like it, had been drawn through the handkerchief.

"I am afraid I must give it up, sir."

"I wouldn't do that, Doctor. This far you have carried your end of the log in a manner highly creditable to you, and with the greatest admiration from me. If you see any chance for work still ahead, ferret it out. It is best to make all safe and sure."

I was not a little surprised at these words from Mr. Ketcham. They puzzled me for quite a time.

What was his object in uttering them (for that he had an object I knew was positive, as he was not the man to do anything haphazard)?

Did he want to keep me away from the warm trail, because I might bother him?

If that trail led to Leonore I was glad to be kept away, for I could not have a willing hand in dragging her before the curious public as a criminal.

On the other hand, did Abner Ketcham believe there was a slight possibility of the truth being other than it now seemed, and that he wished me to be working this up while he was busy elsewhere?

This might be so.

I hoped it was the truth.

Well, I had seen Theodore, and learned all there was to discover about him, yet Mr. Ketcham did not seem to believe him in any way the guilty party.

Ah! a thought flashed across my brain.

Theodore was Leonore's husband, banished from his father's home. What if, after all, he proved to be the man who had entered the house by the pantry window—could it be possible that he would seek her room and secure the knife, afterward wiping it upon one of her dainty handkerchiefs, and secreting the same in her room, where a search would reveal it?

For what should he do this—to cast suspicion upon her?

Perish the thought. I had seen enough of the man to believe him incapable of this.

Why, he had even declared that he would suffer any torture rather than tell what he had seen when he looked in at the window.

This might be a cunning trick, but I could not bring myself to believe it.

I turned to Mr. Ketcham again.

"Since you wish it, sir, I will continue my investigations outside, leaving this inside mystery to you. It is more congenial to you than it would ever be to me."

He smiled peculiarly, but made no comment on my words.

"See here, Doctor, when you examined this blade before you missed something. That little speck up near the hilt is dried blood. I have examined it through a microscope."

"Then it seems settled that Dr Seabury was killed by this blade?"

"I shall have that settled in a few hours. I am to bring to a celebrated chemist this bloodstained handkerchief and that portion of the old Doctor's night robe where you found the little round, red mark, just over the wound.

"The chemist will be able to tell me whether the blood of the same person marks both.

"You know science is making great strides, and they say that a minute examination shows that it is about as impossible to find a strict resemblance in the blood of two persons as it is in their faces. The presence of bacteria, or some such minute animalcule, determines the question."

"I understand that, sir. You can readily ascertain your point. In my opinion it will prove that the blood is the same. What I want to know is: did Leonore do this deed, or was it done by some one else who entered the house like a burglar, and to hide his crime took this knife, replacing it again, and even using a handkerchief belonging to the girl to wipe off, the few drops of blood remaining on the blade."

"Doctor, you have the case in a nutshell. That is exactly how it stands now."

"Well, sir, what do you wish me to do?"

"Nothing against your will."

"Mr. Ketcham, you must not understand the case in that way. I am eager to work in any direction save one."

"And that I have not asked you to work upon, Doctor."

"I know it."

"There is one thing which as yet has not been followed up."

"The burglar?"

"Yes; the man who entered at the pantry window. Who was he—what did he come for—what did he do and see, and why did he leave without stealing a thing, when the whole house was spread open before?

"These are pertinent questions which may have a decided bearing on the case. I ask you to take them up, feeling sure that if you carry the idea out as you did the other trail leading to Theodore, it will only be a question of a short time before the truth in that quarter is known."

His words were uttered in a calm, earnest tone, and he took my hand as if to assure me that he did not mean to flatter.

That settled it with me. I would do much for Mr. Ketcham. He was a man to win one's earnest admiration and devotion.

I was anxious to get off.

"Hold on a minute, Doctor," he said, laughing, as I was about bidding him good day, "perhaps I can help you a little in this matter."

I jumped at this offer.

"You will oblige me very much, sir, by doing such a thing," I replied.

"Sit down again. Now, I have examined the work at the pantry window, and I should say it was done by an expert.

"Perhaps you may not know that these first-class cracksmen have each a peculiar way of running things, but it is a fact.

"More than once I have been able to tell at a glance whose hand had done a certain job just from the manner in which the fellow had gone to work to overcome certain difficulties in his way.

"My first thought, then, was to look for some such private mark that would betray the fellow's identity.

"Certain things gave me what I was disposed to believe was a clue, and I felt almost ready to swear that the man who had entered the pantry window was no other than an expert cracksman known to the fraternity under the name of Colonel Cain.

"Now, my idea is that you hunt up this man, get in with him by pretending to be of his ilk, and gradually worm your way into his confidence, when, the conditions being favorable, you can get at his secret."

"You do not approve, then, of hurling the truth at him and making him confess?"

"That would all depend upon circumstances, Doctor. You might find a better opportunity to work that way than any other."

"To take it literally, then, I am to use my own discretion in the matter?"

"Certainly."

"Now, since that point is settled, Mr. Ketcham, what assistance can you give me in looking this man up?"

"I can be of some help to you there, Doctor;" and as he spoke he drew a large book toward him.

As he opened it I saw that it was a private rogues' gallery.

Scores on scores of pictures were there, each secured in its place by a little clasp, and under all of them were from one to twenty lines of writing, telling who the party was, what they were wanted for, and full particulars, including the reward offered for their apprehension—a very important fact with detectives.

Turning over the leaves lightly, he at length stopped and held the book out to me.

I saw the face of a man who might have attracted attention anywhere.

The features were strong, but a practiced eye could read the marks both of dissipation and free license to criminal practice. There was a cunning look about the eye too that declared the man to be one whom the ordinary police would ever be baffled by.

Underneath I read a few lines—it was the rogue's biography.

"Colonel Cain—real name unknown, but supposed to come of good family over in London. Fled from London for large embezzlement, defying extradition. Now an expert cracksman. Believed to be concerned in the Fairley case, the Judge robbery, the Manhattan Bank affair, the Cope burglary and many others. Age about forty. Well educated. Inclined to be social and might be reached in that way, if needed."

That was all.

I understood the concluding words to mean that as yet there was no reward offered for this man, the officials had not been able to connect him closely with any of the crimes of the past.

While I was reading this the detective had taken the photograph out.

"Keep it while you are at work. A look now and then may be of benefit in determining whether you have struck the right man or not."

"Thank you, Mr. Ketcham, I shall do as you say. Have you any idea where I shall be likely to run across this rather slippery gentleman?"

"Yes, I can tell you even that."

He proceeded to give me instructions in a manner that forced them upon my mind so that I could not forget.

When this had been done I knew there was nothing more for me to do except wait for night to come, when I might begin my work.

Then my thoughts turned to my office.

So interested had I been in this wonderful case that I had neglected my regular business shamefully.

There were still a few hours left, and by working like a Trojan I might manage to get through.

I arose to take my leave. Before bidding Mr. Ketcham good day I laid one hand gently upon his shoulder and said with vehemence: "I am going to run this murderer to earth if I perish for it."

He seemed pleased at the earnest determination which my words and manner betokened, and bade me God speed in my self-imposed task.

So I bade Mr. Ketcham good day and turned to my office.

There were a few calls which needed my attention, besides those on my regular list.

I called for my buggy and started forth to my work, apologizing to those who had grown weary waiting for me, that I had been engaged on a case of life and death.

With this they had to be satisfied.

By the time twilight had settled down over the great city I had gotten through with my work and was ready to take up the trail of crime once more.

I had never believed that I would make anything of a good detective, nor had I believed that I would ever have a fancy for the work, but the fascination of the work was something astonishing.

Now that I had become all worked up in the case, I would not have given it over for a good deal.

When I had finished eating my supper I prepared for the work on hand.

It was a singular piece of business for a physician in good standing to enter upon. I might have to pass through all manner of ugly places, and enter the haunts of crime before I could accomplish my object.

My mind was made up, however, and it must be more than this that could keep me from carrying it out.

Thoughts of Leonore urged me on. If there was a chance of saving her, I would take heavy risks to accomplish it.

So shortly after darkness fell upon the city of New York, I left my office and began to make my way down to the artery of the city—the Bowery.

EXPOSITION NOTES.

PEN PICTURES OF THE BUILDINGS AND EXHIBITS.

An Interesting Description Written by an Alabama Woman.

The admirer of the original and unique in art will be drawn at once by the appearance of the Forestry building. The building is made of trees with the bark on. The trees and barks are gnarled and intertwined in very artistic designs. One is forcibly reminded of the Enchanted Hall, and almost expects to see bewitching Ellen and hear the ominous blade of Douglas fall. In the interior are numerous stairs threading the top of the building and leading to the Aragon roof garden. This roof garden is constructed on the plan of the house tops of the Orient. There is a beautiful rustic tower at one end of the garden. In the building is seen a collection of the various woods and minerals of the world. The woods are classified and named in their order, as building, dyeing and ornamental. The minerals are also classified and arranged in their regular order. All the minerals containing gold are classed as gold ore, and so on through the whole collection. It is a fine series of object lessons on geology, mineralogy and botany.

One of the most unique designs is a salt exhibit. The figure is Lot's wife. The figure stands on an immense pedestal of salt, and is perhaps ten feet high. This suggests the idea of divine justice, and carries the mind back to the destruction of Sodom and Gomarrah, of which the bituminous deposit in the Dead sea is the result.

Volumes might be written on the Government Building. The stairs leading to the building are guarded by huge marble statues, representing deities, and symbolizing the functions of government. From each of the four corners rises an immense circular tower, while the center is adorned by a huge square tower, from which start the four sections. Our own beloved flag floats from each of the towers. To the left of the stairs are the chimes. They are ringing "Home Sweet Home." Even men grown old grow home-sick as the soft, silvery sound floats over the Exposition City. It seems the call of the angel of twilight, and immediately the electric spirit says, "Let there be light," and there is light. Clara Meer sparkles as a lake of silver, studded with millions of diamonds. The electric fount appears as a mighty pillar of fire rising out of the lake. It seems to reflect or betray the mood of the electric spirit, and by turns appears in varied beautiful colors.

The model of the fish-hatching station is very interesting. There is a model of the houses and hatching troughs. Near the exhibit is a long figure illustrating the manner of obtaining eggs from the salmon. There is also a model of the transportation car. Here is seen every form of net seine. Here are models of boats first used, on down to the improved fishing schooners of today.

All the late agricultural inventions are receiving attention from all who recognize what they save to man. The cotton-picker is indeed a show. It picks eight acres per day, and picks as rapidly in thick cotton as thin. It is said to pick the bottom crop and leave the top uninjured. Nothing but open cotton will adhere to the fingers.

GEORGIA HOLMES.

The exposition draws rapidly to a close and for the next two weeks the days will be filled with events of unusual interest. Decembar 20th will be Farmers' day and Railroad day. The farmers find a good deal to see here. In the Agricultural building they find every kind of plant and fruit treated elaborately in health and disease. Along with this there are samples of all the principal soils of the southern states, showing the various important parts in due proportion in glass jars. With these samples of soil, are other samples, showing the fertilizing elements needed to make the soils produce corn, cotton, wheat, oats and other crops. The diseases of animals are also shown, with the proper methods of treatment. Also enlarged models of insects, and the material for destroying these pests. In the Forestry building a new French system of turpentine farming, which saves the tree and makes it produce for twenty years, is shown. Among other agricultural implements, shown in the Transportation building, is the Americah Cotton Picker, which is claimed to be a practical and successful machine. A committee from the exposition board thinks that this machine will work a revolution in cotton culture similar to that which Eli Whitney's gin did in its manufacture.

December 25th has been designated on the calendar as "C. A. Collier Day," in honor of the president of the exposition. Arrangements are being made to draw an immense crowd here on that day. Among other things there will be a number of fantastics to ride in a procession on the exposition grounds, and the Midway is expected to make a display. There will be low rates on the railroads from the 19th to the 25th, and in fact through the holidays.

President Collier received information last week to the effect that in several states reports were being circulated that exhibits would be dismantled and some of them removed before the close of the exposition on December 31st. Mr. Collier has sent out by the Press Association a statement declaring that no exhibit had been removed, and the management would allow none removed or interfered with before the first of January. The fact is, that the fair is at its best, and thousands of people are passing through the gates every day. Even during the bitter cold of the first week in December the crowd was quite large. It is a noteworthy fact that the visitors at this exposition have come from remote states in larger proportion than the visitors of any other exposition. Twenty-five press associations have come and gone, and the enthusiastic praises of thirty-five hundred editors have moved thousands toward the great fair.

The railroads have, from the start, given this exposition lower rates than they gave the World's Fair of '93, but now that the end is drawing near, they will make much lower rates, beginning on the 19th, and they propose to haul the people so cheap that almost any man can afford to see the exposition.

Especial efforts are being made to bring the farmers, who have not, up to this time seen as much of the fair as they should, though it has perhaps more for them than for any other class.

Although the Negroes, for the first time, have had special recognition at this exposition, and although their exhibit here has done more to secure for them the recognition as a race, which they so much desire, comparatively few of their people have attended the exposition. For this reason, Saturday, December 21st, has been set apart as Negro Day, and special efforts are being put forth to secure a large representation of these people. All employers of Negro servants in Atlanta and neighboring cities have been requested to give them a holiday on the 21st, in order that they may attend the exposition on that occasion.

LABOR MEETING.

Resolutions Adopted to Recognize Cubans.

At Thursday morning's session of the American Federation of Labor in Madison Square Garden, New York, a communication was read from the Trade and Labor Assembly of Chicago to the effect that the lack of harmony among the trades unions of Chicago was due to the interference of lawyers and others who sought to make capital and fees out of the labor movement, and requesting that the incoming executive council of the federation appoint a committee to establish the labor movement in Chicago upon a sound basis. This was referred to a special committee.

At the afternoon session this committee recommended that a committee consisting of two members of the executive council of the federation, go to Chicago to investigate and settle the difficulties.

A number of resolutions were referred to appropriate committees, among others one providing for a petition to congress in favor of the recognition of the belligerent rights of Cuba and another protesting against any legislation that will open the way to Sunday labor.

A request from the care-takers of type-setting machines, calling themselves "type-setting engineers," that they be given a seperate charter gave rise to a lengthy discussion. The request was referred back to the committee on organization.

THE COTTON REPORT.

Issued by the U. S. Agricultural Department.

Following is cotton crop report issued by the agricultural department: A crop equal to 67.3 per cent of last year's, or 6,375,000 bales is indicated in final returns from county and state correspondents.

More complete reports, based on the commercial movement, will be issued in 1896, the first of them probably in February. Mean farm price 7.57 cents, a gain of 65 per cent on last year's figures, 4.6 and of 9 per cent on 1893. Returns from correspondents are almost uniformly unfavorable as to quantity, the weather having proved generally disastrous.

The drought caused an unusually early marketing throughout the cotton area, with an almost total sacrifice of top crop. The lint, however, is generally clean so that the quality is especially high. Many reports show crops completely gathered and marketed.

JUDGE BRAWLEY'S DECISION

In Regard to the Case of Captain Hughes, of the Steamer Laurada.

Judge W. H. Brawley, of the United States district court at Charleston, has handed down his decision in the case against Captain Samuel Hughes, the master of the steamship Laurada, which was charged with violating the neutrality laws of the United States.

Judge Brawley holds that while there is no proof of an expedition begun within the territory of the United States, there is sufficient proof of an offense committed on the high seas to justify further investigation. He therefore issued an order holding Captain Hughes under bond for trial at the approaching January term of the court for the eastern district of South Carolina.

SOUTHERN TO ENTER NORFOLK.

Will Use the W. & W. and N. C. Railway Tracks.

The Southern railway will enter Norfolk, Va., the first week in January, running its trains over the Wilmington and Weldon from Selina N. C., to Tarboro, and over the Norfolk and Carolina from the latter point to its new terminal point, at Pitner's Point, on the Norfolk harbor.

THURMAN IS DEAD.

THE "OLD ROMAN" PASSES OVER THE DARK RIVER.

A Life Full of Years and Honors Brought to a Close.

Allen G. Thurman died at his home in Columubus, O., Thursday. The death of Judge Thurman was a painful shock to the general public of Columbus.

The latest reports from him before his demise were to the effect that he was doing finely. The Thurman residence is about a mile from the center of the town, and details were eagerly awaited. The immediate cause of his death was the fall he sustained some weeks ago, and from the effects of which it was thought he had partially recovered.

But his apparent improvement was temporary only and the end has not been unexpected for some days, although his son, Allen W. Thurman, stated three days ago that his father was feeling brighter and better than he had at any time since his fall.

The Old Roman was 82 years old the 13th of last November and had it not been for his accident a month ago might have lived for a number of years, for the feebleness of age had by no means overcome him. He has not been able to leave his home for more than a year, it is true, but he could walk about the house without assistance, could read, and retained much of the power of his once vigorous mind.

The shock of the accident more than the actual physical injury seemed to impair his hold upon life, and while he grew temporarily better, he at no time has recovered his accustomed health.

Brief Sketch of His Life.

Allen G. Thurman was born at Lynchburg, Va., November 13, 1813. For six generations his ancestors had been natives of Virginia. His grandfather fought in the Revolutionary war. His father was the Rev. P. Thurman. His mother was the only daughter of Colonel Nathaniel Allen, father of William Allen, who, late in life, became governor of Ohio.

In 1844, against his protest, he was nominated for congress and was elected after a quiet canvass, in which there was nothing on his side but his wise and homely speeches, reversing and adverse majority by over six hundred votes. He was put on the judiciary committee of the house and was soon distinguished as a great lawyer. He declined re-election at the close of his term and retired, as he thought, to private life for good and all. But in 1851, when the new constitution of Ohio was adopted, he was pressed into the race for a supreme court judgeship and was elected, leading his ticket by over two thousand votes. He sat upon the bench for over four years, the last two years serving as chief justice.

In 1867, after a season of rest, he was put forward as the democratic candidate for the governorship, General Rutherford B., afterward President Hayes, leading the republican hosts. There was no chance for a democratic victory, the republican majority the year before having been 43,000. Under Judge Thurman's sledge hammer blows, however, this enormous majority was brought down to a trifle less than 3,000, and the legislature was captured by a decisive majority, insuring the defeat of Ben Wade. Judge Thurman was elected in Mr. Wade's stead, and took his seat in the senate in 1869.

Here he served two full terms, from 1869 to 1881. In his "Twenty Years of Congress" Mr. Blaine says of Mr. Thurman, that "his rank in the senate was established from the day he took his seat and was never lowered during the period of his service. His retirement from the senate was a serious loss to his party—a loss, indeed, to the body. He left behind him the respect of all with whom he had been associated during his twelve years of honorable service."

The red bandanna, which fluttered into such significant prominence immediately after his nomination to the vice presidency, was waved triumphantly in the United States senate chamber from 1869 to 1881, and during those years in which Mr. Thurman was the representative of Ohio.

Cleveland and Thurman.

Cleveland and Thurman had never met up to the election of 1884, although Thurman was a delegate to the convention which made Cleveland the nominee. They met after the inauguration and at once developed a great friendship.

His nomination and defeat for vice-president on the Cleveland-Thurman ticket is a matter of recent history.

ASKED FOR AN EXTENSION.

Liabilities of Whitten, Burdett & Co., of Boston, are $500,000.

Whitten, Burdett & Co., the largest wholesale clothing house in Boston, Mass., have asked an extension from their creditors. This house failed six years ago for $1,200,000, and their credit has not been good since. It is probable that the liabilities will not exceed $500,000.

To Reduce Lumber Production.

One of the largest and most important lumber meetings of the year took place at Texarkana, Ark., Wednesday. The yellow pine industry of the states of Missouri, Arkansas, Texas and Louisiana was represented. It was decided to curtail production one-third by running the mills only four days a week. The capacity affected is 5,000,000 feet per day or 1,500,000,000 feet a year.

The December number of the Cosmopolitan is a marvel of beauty, and reflects great credit upon the publisher. How it can be published for a dime is a mystery.

Chandler is likely to have an opportunity to twist the caudal appendage of the British lion. At least he will close his jaw in reference to Cleveland's weak kneed foreign policy.

It has been decided by Gov. Oates and the Board of Convict Inspectors to build a cotton factory at Speigners, to be operated by convicts. It will probably be completed by next fall.

Cleveland's special message in reference to the Venzuela question meets the approbation of every one. No one can help but admire the manly and yet conservative statements made therein.

The prompt action of Congress to appropriate money for the expenses of a commission to investigate the Venezuela boundary shows that patriotism is far greater with that body than party differences.

Col. Clarke, of Mobile, seems to be the universal favorite for governor. To enter the race at this period would be a sacrifice of political ambition, as he has been prominently mentioned to succeed Senator Pugh, yet he is not the man to falter or hold back, when called upon by his party. He will be nominated.

Senator Hill, of New York, has introduced a bill in the Senate to repeal the law, which provides that no person who held a commission in the United States army or navy at the beginning of the late war, and who afterwards served in the cause of the confederacy shall be appointed to any position in the army or navy of the United States. This law was the offspring of partisan rancor and hatred and should have been repealed long ago.

The many tributes of respect paid to the memory of Judge Allen, G. Thurman show in what esteem he was held by the entire country, regardless of section or of politics. The Boston Advertiser says:

He will be missed. His name will not be easily or soon forgotten. His memory will live until it becomes transmuted into a fond tradition. No history of the United States for the last half of the nineteenth century can be written in which there will not be a large and luminous page devoted to the record of Allen G. Turman of Ohio—Boston Advertiser.

The great cry of the Johnston papers is that the fight is against the [illegible] belt, and the white counties all want the Captain for [illegible]. In no sense of the word can this be called a black belt county, and the Johnson men represent the oats alleged to have been had by the historical Carter. The democrats of this section have [illegible] over the free coinage of silver, they are tired of the abuse which has been heaped upon the president, by Johnson, Morgan, etc., and are in favor of a good man and a sound money platform. The Hon. R. H. Clarke of Mobile, seems to be the popular favorite.

The indications are unless Lord Salisbury backs down this country will have a war with England. President Cleveland says the Monroe doctrine must be enforced, and congress is in sympathy with him. Republicans and democrats are in perfect harmony, with reference to putting a stop to England's bulldozing. The London Times the most powerful newspaper in Europe, scoffs at the President's position, and declares that England will never submit to the terms. Cleveland's message is full of manly and ringing utterance, and, as Senator Morgan remarked, when the message was read, there is "no mistaking the meaning of it." England's proclivity for bullying smaller countries is historical, but this time she is fooling with the business end of a hornet. Uncle Sam has laid down the law and she must submit or fight. The manly way in which the President winds up his message is characteristic of the man, and should be read by all.

"In making these recommendations I am fully alive to the responsibility incurred and keenly realize all the consequences that may follow. I am nevertheless firm in my conviction that while it is a grievous thing to contemplate the two great English speaking people of the world as being otherwise than friendly competitors in the onward march of civilization and strenuous and worthy rivals in the art of peace, there is no calamity which a great nation can invite which equals that which follows a supine submission to wrong and injustice and the consequent loss of national self-respect and honor beneath which is shielded and defended a people's safety and greatness.

Grover Cleveland.

Executive Mansion December 17th, 1895.

WITH OUR EXCHANGES.

While we think that the canvass for governor and state officers should be carried on upon state issues in a great measure, we can not for the life of us see how anybody can say that the election of a governor openly hostile to the national administration can have no effect upon matters pertaining to that administration. Nor can we see how the silver question or any other question, the control of which is delegated to the federal government, can be injected into a state campaign, made the subject of a plank in the party platform, and then have no bearing on the question at issue in its relation to the action of the national party. A majority of the state in a national convention make the platform and shape the policy upon which the democratic party makes the contest for the presidency. Now, suppose that Alabama democrats should nominate Capt. Johnston for governor, and the convention declare for free silver and a majority of the states should do the same thing and elect delegates in favor of 16 to 1 free coinage to the national convention would or would it not have any effect? We leave the State Herald to answer.—Brundidge News.

Here is a story which Stallings of Alabama tells on himself, says The Washington Post.

"It happened in the Fifty-second Congress, when I was a new man in the House, not so experienced as I am now. Bingham of Pennsylvania was making a bloody shirt speech on some subject or other. Near me sat old Judge Culberson. He listened awhile and then beckoned to me.

"'Say, Stallings', said he in his slow, lazy, way 'git up and answer that fellow. The idea of his abusing the Southern cavaliers like that. He never was in the war. He never smelt gun powder. He skulked while we were fightin' Yankees'. "I didn't know Bingham," continued Stallings. "I felt flattered that Culberson should call on me to speak for our side, and got the floor as soon as I could when Bingham had finished.

"Well sir, I lit into Bingham. I threw all the eloquence of my tongue in that effort to annihilate him. I pictured the Northern soldier shoulding his musket and kissing his wife and children farewell at the front gate. I pictured the battle field, where he fought and bled for union, I pictured the Southern soldier, departing from his thatched cottage home, where dwelt his loved ones, going out to fight for what he believed his right, and his return to find his house in ashes and his dear ones dead or scattered. And then I denounced the skulking stay-at homes in the North, men like the gentleman who had just proceeded me, who had never seen a battle field, never smelt gunpowder, except on the Fouth of July or at a ratification meeting, and who thirty years after, would get up in Congress and denounce the Southern men who had gone out to lay down their lives for their cause, right or wrong.

"To my surprise," said Stallings "Bingham took it in the best of humor. He even laughed. Some of the Republicans smiled, and looked in an amused way at Bingham, and then at me. And next thing I knew some on our side were smiling and laughing; and when I turned about there was old Culberson doubled up in his seat, laughing to himself as though he had a fit. It began to dawn on me about this time that Culberson had put up a job on me. I wasn't through with my remark, but I cut off short and sat down.

"Presently Bingham walked over to me, holding out his hand in a pleasant sort of way, and said:

"This is Mr. Stallings, I believe? I'm sure you have been made the victim of a practical joke. I was in the union army, and was wounded at Gettysburg, Spottsylvania and Farmville, and was mustered out as brigadier general. It's all right. Only I hate to see a young man like you imposed upon.—Montgomery Advertiser.

Money Only a Tool.

"Money is the lifeblood of trade" is a favorite fallacy of the silverites and fiat money inflationists. This idea arises from ignorance of the real nature of the operations of industry and commerce. Money is merely one of the tools of business. Its functions have no resemblance to that of the blood in the human system. It does nothing to replace goods which have been consumed, nor does it of itself produce anything or add to the wealth of the country. The real lifeblood of business is the volume of the products of farm, mine or workshop continuously flowing all over the country. They furnish us with the means of subsistence, renew our strength and minister in a thousand ways to our necessities and comforts. They are the true lifeblood of trade.

Result Would Be Disaster.

The Richmond Dispatch (Dem.), which favors international bimetallism, declares that "unlimited free coinage at a ratio of 16 to 1 of all the silver which would under the operation of such a ratio be carried to the mints for recoinage would result in universal disaster."

Cotton is advancing and the free silver craze is declining.

ADVETISING AS A SCIENCE PAYS.

Some people say that advertising is all a matter of luck; that you cannot tell what advertising is going to do, or whether or not it is going to pay. This may be true; but it is very strange that the man who gives intelligent thought to his advertising, and it in an intelligent, earnest, straightforward way usually has the luck on his side. He is lucky in his advertising, because he reduced it to a science. Advertising is just as certain as paying rent. Advertising is governed by the same common sense business lines that govern buying lot of tomatoes or codfish.—Grocery World.

There is no medicine so often needed in every home and so admirably adapted to the purposes for which it is intended, as Chamberlian's Pain Balm.

Hardly a week passes but some member of the family has need of it. A toothache or headache may be cured by it. A touch of rheumatism or neuralgia quieted. The severe pain of a burn or scald promptly relieved and the sore healed in much less time than when medicine has to be sent for. A sprain may be promptly treated before inflammation sets in, which insures a cure in about one-third of the time otherwise required. Cuts and bruises should receive immediate treatment before the parts become swollen, which can only be done when Pain Balm is kept at hand. A sore throat may be cured before it becomes serious. A troublesome corn may be removed by applying it twice a day for a week or two. A lame back may be cured and several days of valuable time saved or a pain in the side or chest relieved without paying a doctor bill. Procure a 50 cent bottle at once and you will never regret it. For sale by Clanton Drug Store, Clanton and McNiell and Smith, Jemison. Ala.

WHAT THEY SAY

OF THE ELECTROPOISE

The Electropoise has relieved me of a throat affection that has baffled all treatment and has annoyed me for more than forty years. Very respectfully, T. T. Tunstall.

Mobile, Ala., Oct. 22, 1894.

I commenced the use of the Electropoise when I was in a weak nervous state, lying awake night after night until 2 o'clock. commenced to sleep better almost immediately after beginning its use, and after three months felt that the Electropoise had paid for itself. Yours truly,

Mrs. J. C. Barry.

Memphis, Tenn., March 5, 1895.

A relative of mine who was wounded during the war, and who never recovered from the effects of the wound, has been using my Electropoise, and he is now as well as he ever was. I recommend the Electropoise to all my friends.

Yours truly, W. B. McGee,

Tehula, Miss., Dec. 5, 1894.

I cannot say too much in favor of the Electropoise. Yours truly,

T S. Jones,

Fannin, Tex., June 25, 1895.

After returning from Hot Spring about a year ago without a cure and as the last resort, I applied the Electropoise, and receved a prompt cure of rheumatism. This same Electropoise has made many cures in other diseases, and the instrument will do all that is claimed for for it. Yours truly,

J. T. Stout.

Mobile, Ala., Sept. 22, 1894.

Rental terms, $10 cash for four months, with privilege to purchase by paying $17 50 additional at the expiration of four months.

Pocket Electropoise book of particulars free to any address.

Mr. A, J. Cox visited Selma on business Tuesday.

Mr. J. B. Hard, of Centreville, and James Barge, of Selma, were in our town Monday.

There was quite a party of young folks left our town for Atlanta Monday afternoon to see the sights of the Exposition MMisses Fay and Pauline Cleveland, Sarah and Estele Abney and Messrs. Harry Brown and Jack Abney, while our jolly hotel proprietor, Mr. J. C. Woolley, and J. B Hard, of Centreville, went along to take care of the crowd.

There was an unknown man killed by the south bound local freight train about two miles below here Monday afternoon. He was a foreigner and was selling a soldering preparation. The train did not run over him but struck him and breaking his leg his arm and neck killing him almost instantly. No blame is attached to the railroad employees as they made every effort to avoid the killing but it was on a grade and the train being behind time was under full headway. He was buried near here Tuesday by the rail road company.

J.

Irving W. Larimore, physical instructor of Y. M. C. A., Des Moines, Ia. says he can conscientiously recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm to athletes, gymnasts, bicyclists, foot ball players and the profession in general for bruises, sprains and dislocations; also for soreness and stiffness of the muscles. When applied before the parts become swollen it will effect a cure in one half the time usually required. For sale by Clanton Drug Store Clanton, and McNeill & Smith, Jemison, Ala.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. is on every wrapper.

TO CHURCH MEMBERS—If every man who has anything to buy for his own wear would go to Alex Rice's, Montgomery, this fall or winter and buy it, and agree to give what he saves by the operation to his favorite church on Sunday the contribution boxes and the little "clinkless" plates would have to be enlarged.

The Free Silver Chimera.

The ridiculous attempt of the silver contingent to commit the United States to free coinage—to the exchange of 50 cents' worth of silver for a dollar in gold—rivals in its absurdity and enthusiasm the wildest chimera of romantic fiction. It carries us back to the fond but futile search for the fountain of everlasting youth, to the mediæval alchemists' theory of the transmutation of metals and to the beautiful mythological story of Midas and the golden touch.—Philadelphia Record.

IF A MAN OFFERED YOU

GOLD DOLLARS AT 50 CENTS

APIECE, WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

OUR Buyer had a similar question to answer recently. The stock of several manufacturers had to be converted into cash. It did not take us long to make a trade. We bought about Forty to Fifty Thousand Dollars' worth of new, desirable merchandise for less than half its real value.

The goods are all in stock now; it is a case of Manufacturer and Importer paying the piper, and YOU enjoying the dance. Otherwise we couldn't afford to give you Two or Three Dollars' worth of Merchandise for One Dollar in CASH. If you can't save big money here, money can't be saved anywhere on earth, that's all. Remember that anything you buy of us and are not thoroughly satisfied with, we will cheerfully refund your money.

A Chinese Divorce.

The American humorist should be glad to learn that loquacity is recognized in China as a ground for the divorce of a wife. Opportunity for many jokes is presented by this fact. Other causes are neglect of her lord and master's family, jealousy, childlessness and curiosity. The young Chinese girl seems born to be ruled half her life and to rule the other half unless Fate gives her a too-long-lived mother-in-law. In her home she is subservient to mother, father and brothers, working for them all and looking for no reward in the way of trips to Europe, diamond rings or saddle horses. At 12 or 13 she marries. She is then the slave of her mother-in-law, and her term of servitude under this awe-inspiring person's rule is apt to be even more wearisome than her childhood's slavery.

Finally the mother-in-law dies, as they sometimes do even in China, and her successor, who is little Mrs. Sun Flower herself, at once begins her regime of authority, rearing her daughters to be submissive and her sons to be spirited and filled with a healthy contempt for womankind. And then when one of these manly individuals brings home a wife her victory is complete, and she bullies and tyrannizes over her to her heart's content, and if she be malicious and the record of a sad girlhood to avenge, the spirited son's wife is apt to have a sad time of it.

Value of Humus.

There seems to be a deep-rooted opinion that humus is necessary to profitable crop production. The matter is subject to dispute, the authorities not having agreed upon any definite conclusion thus far. As bearing upon the point: In the light, sandy soil of southern New Jersey sweet potatoes have been grown for sixteen consecutive years without a particle of organic matter being applied as manure. Commercial fertilizers are used, in this particular case, exclusively. The example of this one instance has caused the abandonment of stable manures in that neighborhood, with very flattering results generally.—American Fertilizer.

A Singular Form of Monomania.

There is a class of people, rational enough in other respects, who are certainly monomaniacs in dosing themselves. They are constantly trying experiments upon their stomachs, their bowels, their livers and their kidneys with trashy nostrums. When these organs are really out of order, if they would only use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, they would, if not hopelessly insane, perceive its superiority.

Surely, if all the world was made for man then man was made for more than the world.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Milwaukee millers ground 1,576,064 barrels of flour during the year 1894, against 1,070,860 barrels in 1884, 735,481 barrels in 1874, and 187,339 barrels in 1864.

The receipts of barley malt in Milwaukee last year were 764,705 bushels, and the shipments 3,055,781 bushels. Milwaukee is not only a large brewing but also a malt center.

Chinese records are quoted to prove that tea was cultivated in that country at least 2,700 years before Christ, and it is generally conceded that its use originated in that region.

It is estimated that 30 per cent of the iron manufactured by Tennessee is sold outside of the southern states. It is said to be the favorite iron with pipe, plow and stove makers in the east and the north.

The several species of turnips all appear to have originated in Europe, but to have early spread under cultivation into Siberia and other parts of Asia. They are still found in their original wild state in many parts of northern Europe.

Detroit street cars will not be heated by electricity this winter. The Citizens' company at least has come to this conclusion after an investigation of the state of science with reference to the capacity of electricity to furnish heat as well as light and mechanical power.

The ground in the dark coal gas region of Indiana is said to be so permeated with the gas that it is dangerous to drop a match in a well, sewer or any sort of digging in the district. Several serious explosions have resulted from the incautious work of well-cleaners.

Kaffir Corn.

The Kaffir corn is destined to be one of the great staple products of this country, as has been abundantly demonstrated in the last two years. The cereal seems perfectly adapted to the climatic conditions here, and with any sort of attention, will make a big crop. It is peculiarly the crop for the poor man—good for man and beast. Nothing which the farmer can raise will fatten hogs, horses or cows so quickly as Kaffir corn, and for mush and batter-cakes, the meal cannot be excelled. The care of this corn when raised, however, does not seem to be well understood, and, in fact, is more difficult than could at first be supposed, and yet there is but little trouble in this respect if reasonable intelligence and ordinary gumption be exercised. It will not do to cut the heads off and throw in a pile of any considerable size before it is thoroughly dried, and even then it must be completely protected from the wet. The best way to manage it is to cut the corn when ripe and build it into long shocks north and south, so that the air can pass readily through; let stand in the field until quite cured, then head and thresh, or if not ready to thresh, haul where wanted and build into long ricks, the heads to the center, and cover with hay or something that will shed the rain. Of course if the farmer can provide himself with long, narrow cribs thoroughly ventilated and perfectly dry, then the best and most satisfactory way is to head in the field and crib at once. As to threshing the crop, any intelligent, experienced thresherman can soon adapt his machine to that. That is largely a matter of experiment. It is true that the cutting season is over and some of the suggestions in this article are late, yet it will pay the Kaffir grower to take care of this paper or paste the article in his hat for reference another year.

The mills of the country are fast adapting their machinery to grind the Kaffir corn, and we are informed that the mill here will make and sell Kaffir corn chop feed, just the same as any other grain chop is made and sold. This is a good opportunity and should not be neglected, as it will pay the farmer big to feed his grain in chop.—Oklahoma Farmer.

A Rare Coin.

When Louisiana seceded, January 26, 1861, the new government seized the United States mint at New Orleans and struck $254,820 in double eagles and $1,101,316.50 in silver half dollars, using the United States dies for 1861. The bullion was exhausted in May, 1861, when the coinage ceased, and the United States dies were destroyed. A Confederate States' die was then made, to be used for silver half dollars, but it was not fit for use in a coining press, the relief being too high. Four half dollars were struck with it on a screw press, and these comprise the entire coinage of the Confederate States. They are worth about $250 apiece to dealers.—Collector.

Drs. Maybe and Mustbe.

You choose the old doctor before the young one. Why? Because you don't want to entrust your life in inexperienced hands. True, the young doctor may be experienced. But the old doctor must be. You take no chances with Dr. Maybe, when Dr. Mustbe is in reach. Same with medicines as with medicine makers — the long-tried remedy has your confidence. You prefer experience to experiment — when you are concerned. The new remedy may be good — but let somebody else prove it. The old remedy must be good — judged on its record of cures. Just one more reason for choosing AYER'S Sarsaparilla in preference to any other. It has been the standard household sarsaparilla for half a century. Its record inspires confidence — 50 years of cures. If others may be good, Ayer's Sarsaparilla must be. You take no chances when you take AYER'S Sarsaparilla.

LOW WAGON WHEELS FROM LOGS.

Select a log of the desired size from a gum sycamore, or any other hard timber that does not split readily, writes G. M. Davis, of Wayne County, Illinois. Saw off the wheels, making them the desired thickness. Then take out the spokes from an old wagon wheel, square the hub, and fit into the center of the log wheel. The wheel is then completed and will last many years on farms, or even for the road, if well taken care of. Many of these are in use in this vicinity, and are quite satisfactory.—American Agriculturist.

WHEAT HAY FOR COWS.

Wheat hay is not a good feed for dairy cows. There are some other kinds of fodder which are much better, as oats and peas, which will grow where wheat will. Corn is an excellent fodder, especially when made into silage. Millet grows well in dry, hot localities, and wheat grain, ground, for the cows, will make an excellent addition to these fodders, with sugar beets or mangels. Thus, there will be no scarcity of crops to take the place of wheat. A silo should be one-fourth deeper than its diameter—thus, if it is twelve feet square, it should be fifteen or sixteen feet deep, and, in fact, the deeper it is the better all round, as the silage packs more solidly, and this makes it keep better. Thus, the depth is a matter of convenience mostly—the greater the better—but it should not be less than the limit above mentioned. Corn is cut for silage when the grain is glazed.—New York Times.

VALUE OF CORN.

Considerable difference of opinion exists among farmers as to the number of pounds of pork that can be made from a bushel of corn. The estimates run all the way from three to twelve pounds. The amount depends upon the kind of stock, the weather, the skill of the feeder and other conditions. Breeds, too, differ in this respect, some showing somewhat greater gains than others, but all the improved varieties respond more readily than the scrub. It is impossible, therefore, to lay down any regular rule by which to find the pork equivalent of a bushel of corn. We are able only to determine the approximate value.

In some experiments recently made in this direction it was found that thoroughbred pigs required nearly one thousand pounds of meal to carry them from 100 pounds to 300 pounds in a growing condition and without making them too fat. Greater gains can be made, however, with pigs under 100 pounds, the smaller the animal the less amount of food being required to support its weight while making the gain.—New York World.

GRADING ABOUT BUILDINGS.

There is no better time to do this work than in the fall, and there are few buildings that would not be the better for more or less work of this kind. At some points, perhaps only a wheelbarrow load or two may be needed, while at others several wagon loads may be required. For the benefit of the foundation walls, the grade should be at least three inches to the foot for at least five or six feet, especially if there is a cellar located under the structure. It not only looks better, but makes the cellar walls firmer, prevents water from soaking into the cellar, and renders it warmer in winter and cooler in summer. The earth used for the surface of the grade should be well enriched, and either sodded over now or grass seed sown and well raked in. About the doors of the barn buildings use stiff clay or gravel, and stones two or three inches in diameter should be placed on the surface and driven into the soil with a sledge and covered with two inches of soil. Every year again cover the stones that become exposed.—American Agriculturist.

SHIPPING LIVE POULTRY.

Country shippers ought to pay more attention to the condition of their coops before using. Considerable stock is lost by shipping in worn out coops which come apart in transit if roughly handled, as sometimes happens. Every coop should be carefully examined, and all bottoms and cleats securely nailed. The coops should be strong, but light; heavy wood is unnecessary if long nails are used. They should not be so large as to render handling difficult.

The coops should be high enough to allow the poultry to stand easily upright, and should not be overcrowded. Too close packing and too low coops are cruel and cause loss by suffocation. Hens and roosters should be shipped separately whenever possible. All poultry for the New York market should be well fattened, and should be fed lightly before being placed in the coop, if it reach its destination the day after shipping, as the New York law requires that the crop be entirely empty before killing. From more distant points provision must be made for feeding and watering in transit. At the beginning of their journey they should be fed lightly, as overfeeding at such time makes the birds sick and dumpish and unfit for the fatigue of travel. After the first day or two, when the poultry have become accustomed to their new quarters, the supply of food should be increased. All these things should be considered and every care exercised to have the birds arrive in the best possible condition, so that they may sell readily at the highest prices. It is only good stock that really pays. The shipper who does not get the best market price for his stock should consider seriously where the fault really lies.—New York World.

KINDS OF TREES FOR SHADE.

Those who wish to plant trees often ask what kinds of trees are the best to be planted and the most likely to give general satisfaction as shade and ornamental trees.

Here, as in almost everything else, tastes differ, but we think we are safe in saying always plant native trees if you wish your work to be permanent and approved by posterity; for tree planting should have the blessing of those who come after us. We have such an abundance of beautiful native trees that we can have large room for selection. Our sugars and hard maples, our tulip tree and our elms, our lindens and our sycamore, all make good shade trees in soils well adopted to them, in the Middle and Northern States. For general purposes as beautiful shade trees we would prefer the sugars and elms and the tulip tree, which is very beautiful tree and a rapid grower if it has a fair chance. The ash trees make a fine growth in an open space, and for roadside shade we confess a liking to the black walnut, as well as to the white walnut or butternut, which is a very attractive tree and a rapid grower, but these last must be grown from the nut, as transplanting unless quite small is scarcely ever successful. To these may be added our evergreens, which may be selected according to the taste of the planter for the climate in which he lives. We have omitted an elegant and favorite tree, "the magnolia," which is beautifully ornamented when the climate is not too severe. There are so many other native trees, especially in the Southern States, which can be selected that we have only yet to say, do not plant "foreign trees," unless for mere curiosity, and do not plant trees which produce a litter around your premises for half the summer, or such as send their roots to the surface for forty feet around them, from which myriads of sprouts are sent up to annoy you.

When you are ready to plant, which should be done without delay, determine just what you want to do, and do it well, and you yourself will have increased happiness and your children will rise up and call you blessed.

It is surprising to us that Georgians should plant china trees and white mulberry trees, both being pests, when they have such beautiful native growths as our tulipefera, or swamp poplar, or our linden or sycamore or even our swamp or native silver poplar, which is so far superior to the imported varieties.

The tulip trees and our native oaks are the finest shade trees in the world. Our native elms and maples are superior to any imported varieties, and our sycamores are not only excellent shade trees but are among the best lightning rods ever furnished by art or nature.

Farmers, let us plant our home trees.—Atlanta Journal.

FARM AND GARDEN NOTES.

New milk will fatten a colt faster than skimmed milk.

Fertilizer can be profitably applied with or without manure, and will more than pay for their cost.

In keeping down the expenses do not do it by denying wife needed help in the house. That is the poorest economy.

Care should be taken not to cloy the appetite of a colt, and when there is any symptoms of that the feed should be cut down at once.

Manure is recommended by all experienced farmers and experimenters, but it is a scarce article compared with the area of land to be covered, unless there is a large number of animals kept on the farm.

If the legs, ankles, joints and pasterns are strong, and the colt's appetite is keen, the grain ration can be increased to three quarts at a feed three times a day, especially if he has regular work to do, either to harness or on the kindergarten.

The majority of farmers prefer to use manure, and seldom resort to the use of fertilizers. They cannot produce sufficient manure for a large farm and manure one field a year. The plan is excellent, but they lose time by not using fertilizers on those fields where no manure has been applied.

Those who keep but one cow and save the cream until a sufficiency has accumulated for a churning will not succeed in making choice butter, as it is a mistake to mix the old and new cream. This is a fact that is frequently overlooked, and has been the cause of more failures than anything else.

The Russian thistle has moved a little closer to the East, and it is simply a matter of time when it will be established on the Atlantic coast. The railroad cars bring the seeds and scatter them along the lines. Good cultivation destroys it. It is not as severe a pest as the gipsy moth or the potato beetle.

A writer in the Chicago Times-Herald recently advocated preserving corn in air-tight bins. He says, and truly, that less care is taken of the corn crop than of any other grain the farmer raises. He also holds and endeavors to prove that no other grain is injured more by exposure to storm and other misuse.

With many farmers the most serious problem of life is to get out of debt. The only way to solve it is either to keep down the expenses or to increase the income, or, if possible, both. The danger is that in endeavoring to increase the income expenses are increased to a point that leaves no profit and the debt is as far from being paid as ever.

The great mistake which farmers make in sowing clover seed under Western conditions is that they do not give it a deep enough covering. As to depth of covering, no general rule can be laid down except this, that it must be deep enough to secure moisture and not too deep to exclude light. There is heat enough in the soil in the summer season at almost any depth to which it might be covered in ordinary agricultural operations.

Banking Underground.

A Cleveland architect thinks that the occupancy of underground quarters by a large bank in that city is going to mark a revolution in building. He says: "The idea is not new, but in this case it has been greatly developed, and I look for startling results. It has been shown that with the aid of air shafts and other appliances a story below ground may be rendered far more comfortable than those above, and with care exercised in the ventilation these quarters will doubtless prove perfect from a sanitary standpoint. If this is so, one story below ground, why not three or four, and if two, three or four, why not ten or twelve if necessary? This may solve the problem of economy in building space and do away with the sky-scraping buildings that in other cities are already causing unfavorable comment. It may be a long time hence, but I believe the time will come when there are as many buildings ten stories below ground as there are that number above the surface of the earth." This sounds chamerical, but perhaps it is not.—Bankers' Encyclopaedia Monthly.

The Nimble Penny.

There is a great demand on the subtreasury for pennies just now, and it comes from all sections of the country. The treasury officials say that the loudest call is from Chicago, where the stock of pennies in the sub-treasury was exhausted several months ago and shipments had to be made from other points. It is supposed to be due to the practice of dry goods and notion stores in marking down prices from round figures so that pennies are needed for change. There are now 780,000,000 pennies outstanding, but it is estimated that nearly one half of them have been lost or have disappeared from circulation, which is a gain of several millions to the government. The daily output of the mints is 150,000 pieces, upon which the government makes a profit of $1,200.—Chicago Record.

Component Parts of an Egg.

The ordinary hen's egg weighs about 1,000 grains, the white constituting about 600 grains, the yolk 300 and the shell 100. Divide the contents of an egg chemically and it will be found that the white consists chiefly of water (83 parts to the 100.) The other 17 parts are divided between dry albumen and salts, of the former 15½ parts and of the latter 1½ parts. The yolk is composed of a very strong solution of albumen, in which multitudes of minute globules of oil are held in suspension.—St. Louis Republic.

A FATHER'S DESPAIR.

A Sad Affliction of a Four Years Old Child.

From the Citizens' Journal, Atlanta, Texas.

Tuesday morning, August 13th, the editor of the Journal, in company with G. W. Taylor, the stableman of Linden, Texas, drove out seven miles northwest of Linden to the residence of Mr. John Miller. We were received and well entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Miller. Their son, Buford J. Miller, at about four years old, became pale and weak and nothing seemed to do him any good. He continued in this condition until he was about twelve years old, at times eating too much for one or two meals and then eating but little for weeks afterward. At twelve years of age his feet and legs began to swell, and developed into what his physician said was a bad case of dropsy.

Mr. Miller had two good physicians to treat him; first Dr. A. J. Oliver, of Linden, and then Dr. J. P. Mills, of Almira, Texas. They both, after making a trial, gave up the case. They could not benefit the patient.

Mr. Miller then tried a number of patent medicines, without any good result. He had spent much money and his son Buford appeared to have no blood, no appetite, and was so weak that he could not walk a hundred yards without stopping to rest. Mr. Miller had given up in despair when one day a neighbor, Rev. S. G. Echols, who lives near Linden advised him to try Pink Pills.

Mr. Miller said he had no hope, and did not want to make the trial, but his neighbor insisted. The next question was where could he get the pills. He went to Jefferson and found that J. F. Crow, a druggist, had them. Mr. Crow was an old neighbor and friend and persuaded him to give the pills a thorough trial, promising that if he would take three boxes and Buford received no benefit from them he would charge nothing. Mr. Miller took three boxes of Pink Pills home with him, and says before Buford had taken one box there was a wonderful improvement. This was about eighteen months ago. To-day Buford Miler is a stout hearty young man about nineteen years old.

We met several of his schoolmates at Linden who state there has been a wonderful change in Buford Miller. He is well known by the people of Linden.

His mother, Mrs. Miller, was also afflicted with dropsy about seven years, suffering much in the spring of the year. After seeing that Pink Pills were benefiting her son she concluded to try them for herself. This was about a year ago, and she remarked that if it had not been for Pink Pills she did not know what would have become of her. She had no symptoms of dropsy the past spring. She said too much can not be said in praise of Pink Pills.

Mr. Miller referred us to J. F. Stovall, the druggist in Linden; Eb. Frazier, merchant, and many others who are well acquainted with his family and know the facts.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are not a patent medicine in the sense that name implies. They were first compounded as a prescription and used as such in general practice by an eminent physician. So great was their efficacy that it was deemed wise to place them within the reach of all. They are now manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., and are sold in boxes (never in loose form by the dozen or hundred, and the public are cautioned against numerous imitations sold in this shape) at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company.

PROTECT USERS OF "ROYAL."

Baking Powder Company Wins Its Case in United States Court.

The decision of Judge Showalter in a recent case that came up before him sustains the claims of the Royal Company to the exclusive use of the name "Royal" as a trademark for its baking powder. The special importance of this decision consists in the protection which it assures to the millions of consumers of Royal Baking Powder. The excellence of this article has caused it to be highly esteemed and largely used almost the world over. Its high standard of quality having been always maintained, consumers have come to rely implicitly upon the "Royal" brand as most wholesome and efficient. If other manufacturers could sell under the name of a well known, reputable brand incalculable damage would be done to the public by the deception. The determination of the Royal Baking Powder Company to protect the users of the Royal baking powder against imitators by a rigid prosecution of them makes such imitations of its brand extremely rare.

Some say that the hypophosphites alone are sufficient to prevent and cure consumption, if taken in time. Without doubt they exert great good in the beginning stages; they improve the appetite, promote digestion and tone up the nervous system. But they lack the peculiar medicinal properties, and the fat, found in cod-liver oil. The hypophosphites are valuable and the cod-liver oil is valuable.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver Oil, with hypophosphites, contains both of these in the most desirable form. The oil is thoroughly emulsified; that is, partly digested. Sensitive stomachs can bear an emulsion when the raw oil cannot be retained. As the hypophosphites, the medicinal agents in the oil, and the fat itself are each good, why not have the benefit of all? This combination has stood the test of twenty years and has never been equalled.

SCOTT'S EMULSION has been endorsed by the medical profession for twenty years. (Ask your doctor.) This is because it is always palatable—always uniform—always contains the purest Norwegian Cod-liver Oil and Hypophosphites.

Insist on Scott's Emulsion with trade-mark of man and fish.

Put up in 50 cent and $1.00 sizes. The small size may be enough to cure your cough or help your baby.

Efficacy of Hot Milk.

Hot milk for the complexion has proved to be of the greatest benefit, and many women say they owe an improvement of their complexion to the constant use of hot milk applied every morning and night to their faces. Here is what a woman prominent in the literary world, and whose complexion is equal to a young girl's, says: "When I am frightfully fatigued from the rush of the life I lead, I get a gallon of milk for 30 cents and put it in my bathtub, adding sufficient hot water to cover the body. I lie in this mixture for ten minutes and come out feeling thoroughly refreshed and with a new life to the skin, which, previous to the bath, had a dead look."

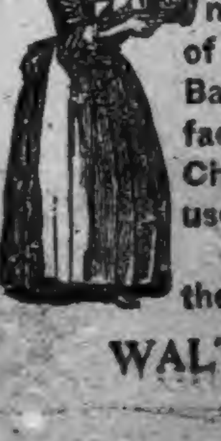
Timely Warning.



The great success of the chocolate preparations of the house of Walter Baker & Co. (established in 1780) has led to the placing on the market many misleading and unscrupulous imitations of their name, labels, and wrappers. Walter Baker & Co. are the oldest and largest manufacturers of pure and high-grade Cocoas and Chocolates on this continent. No chemicals are used in their manufactures.

Consumers should ask for, and be sure that they get, the genuine Walter Baker & Co.'s goods.
